[The witness, in the course of this investigation, is requested to examine all the files of letters and papers in the room referred to in this deposition as room 320, but which he now says is room 321, and also the other files of papers in the general office which the witness has referred to, and any other files of papers which may come to the witness' knowledge in connection with Lewisohn Brothers' business and the Leonard Lewisohn estate.]

WITNESS: What do you mean by "examine"?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Look through them and see whether they have been examined and searched through heretofore by you, and 708 whether they contain the private files referred to as being Mr. Faint's private Old Dominion files, and whether they contain any other papers relating to these Old Dominion matters.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: Mr. Brandeis means to re-examine the whole thing in order to be absolutely sure you have gone over everything.

Mr. BRANDEIS: And make a memorandum of the search he has made and the time consumed in the search; and he is instructed to take any one to assist him; and if he takes any one with him we want the same record kept by that other person that he keeps.

[The examination of this witness is then suspended for the present, and it is consented that the deposition of Edward C. Westervelt may be taken with the same force and effect as if his name was mentioned in the order for examination herein.]

EDWARD C. WESTERVELT, sworn for plaintiff.

Direct examination by Mr. BRANDEIS:

Q. 1076. What is your occupation?

A. Clerk with Lewisohn Brothers.

Q. 1077. How long have you been connected with Lewisohn Brothers?

A. About four years.

Q. 1078. Were you connected with the corporation of Lewisohn Brothers?

A. No, only the firm.

Q. 1079. What was your occupation before you became connected with Lewisohn Brothers?

A. Clerk in Wall street with Walter C. Stokes & Company.

Q. 1080. How long had you been engaged in that business?

A. Do you mean the Wall-street business? Ten or twelve years.

Q. 1081. Are you a bookkeeper?

A. I am not.

Q. 1082. What is the nature of your duties as clerk?

A. Stock clerk. I am now cashier with Lewisohn Brothers, but I went there as stock clerk for Mr. Leonard Lewisohn. I merely ran the stock ledger.

Q. 1083. In the various corporations he was in?

A. No, memorandum of stocks bought and sold; New York stocks, sundry stocks.

Q. 1084. Sundry stocks bought and sold by him?

A. That was all, stock ledger; took charge of the securities, to see that they came in proper and see that they went to the vault.

Q. 1085. That is, the investments of one kind and another of Lewisohn Brothers that they made in stocks of different companies buying and selling?

A. Yes.

709 Q. 1086. Mr. Lauterbach has produced to-day what purport to be transcripts of accounts entitled "Old Dominion Syndicate," "Old Dominion Syndicate Subscription No. 2," and "Old Dominion New Stock Subscription New A/c," containing in all seven double pages which have been marked 231, 232, and 233. Are these transcripts in your handwriting?

A. No; they are our bookkeeper's handwriting, Mr. C. Ebner. I don't know whether it is Charles or not.

Q. 1087. From what book or books are these a transcript?

A. Lewisohn Brothers' ledger.

Q. 1088. The corporation?

A. The old firm.

Q. 1089. The old corporation?

A. The old corporation.

Q. 1090. How is the ledger numbered?

A. I could not tell you that. I believe in years, it must have been the '95 and '96 ledger, 1895 ledger.

Q. 1091. And have they a separate ledger for each year?

A. That I could not tell you. I know nothing at all about their books.

Q. 1092. What investigation have you made in regard to this matter that enables you to testify at all?

A. None at all.

Q. 1093. I mean why you were singled out to testify in connection with these transcripts?

A. Of course you have had everybody in the office practically working on this matter, and of course I knew it was going on, and as I have been cashier since the first of the year, I naturally cleared out everything and started all around—I went over the old books in the office, and cleared out a lot of old matter to make myself perfectly familiar with everything, so that in case anything should turn up I would know everything about the place, and I found this ledger and I immediately took it in—I believe Mr. Lauterbach was there at the time, and I asked him if that had anything to do with that account, and he said yes, that he wanted this account, so I run through the ledger to see what was there, and told the bookkeeper to take everything out; and that is everything.

Q. 1094. And is that a transcript of these accounts which you found in the ledger?

A. Yes, of the ledger, and that is practically all I know about it.

Q. 1095. Are these the only accounts in that ledger?

A. The only accounts of the Old Dominion; that is all you want, isn't it, bearing upon the Old Dominion matters?

Q. 1096. Can you furnish me definitely a description of the ledger; I mean whether it was numbered or lettered, and the pages on which these accounts appear?

A. I could not do that without looking at the ledger.

Q. 1097. And that ledger you can get, can you not, and give it to us later?

A. Oh, yes.

710 Q. 1098. On my examination of the papers submitted as transcripts of the ledger, I find no reference in the transcripts to pages of any journal or cash book, or any other book from which these ledger entries are taken.

A. "To Cash," that is cash book.

Q. 1099. But I understand, according to the habits of bookkeepers——

A. [Interrupting.] I am not a bookkeeper.

Q. 1100. I understand, according to the habit of bookkeepers, it is customary to have some reference to another book, be it a day book, or cash book, or sales book, or stock book, whatever it may be, from which the items are entered in the ledger, and I call your attention to the absence of any such reference here, and ask you whether, in view of that fact, you are able to say these are exact transcripts of the ledger?

A. Well, not being a bookkeeper, I didn't do it. Of course, I gave it in charge of our head bookkeeper, and he has taken it off from the ledger, I suppose, I know where he states "To Cash," that of course that is the cash book.

Q. 1001. But you have no reference to any page as against that?

A. When you take off a transcript of an account you never do it.

Q. 1102. And you haven't done it in this instance?

A. No; and I never saw anybody who did it. Of course, it can be done.

Mr. BRANDEIS: I should like to have that done.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: If the ledger contains any such column, which, I suppose, it does, I will furnish it.

Q. 1103. Did you also find any other books relating to this period, 1895, besides the ledger?

A. I did not.

Q. 1104. What other books were there at the place where you found this ledger?

A. No others. I have explained the place where I found the book; found it in the stock.

Q. 1105. Was there nothing else in that stock?

A. Nothing at all.

Q. 1106. And you have never seen anywhere the other books making up the set of which that ledger is one?

A. I have not.

Q. 1107. How far back have you found the regular set of books in the place?

A. Our books go back to January 1, 1900.

Q. 1108. No books prior to that date there except this ledger?

A. None that I know of of any kind.

Q. 1109. Are there any private books of Mr. Leonard Lewisohn prior to January?

A. Not in our office.

Q. 1110. Or anywhere, so far as you know?

A. No, of course I could not tell.

711 Q. 1111. So far as you know you can't tell?

A. No, there are none.

Q. 1112. And you are certain there are none in the office under your personal charge?

A. I am very much so. Not in my office.

Q. 1113. What do you mean by "your office"?
A. Lewisohn Brothers' office, the general office.
Q. 1114. Have you made any search in any storeroom?
A. I have not.
Q. 1115. And you don't know where the old books are stored?
A. I do not.
Q. 1116. And haven't heard anything in regard to it?
A. Nothing except the controversy here among yourselves.
Q. 1117. I mean as to where they are stored.
A. No.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Can't this witness take back these papers, and have them completed?

Mr. LAUTERBACH: You mean the folios, etc., put in?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Yes.

WITNESS: When I spoke to the bookkeeper I didn't specify that, but I thought he would do it.

Mr. BRANDEIS: I wish you would, at the same time, also give us a description of the ledger on the back; state what it is,—for instance, No. 3, or whatever is on the back of it.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: It is 1895, I am sure.

Mr. BRANDEIS: And I wish in the mean time you would see if you can find any other book.

WITNESS: I never bother very much about them, and I can't tell.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: And also see if you can find any ledger, day book, cash book, or any other book to which these entries refer.

JESSE LEWISOHN, sworn for plaintiff.

Direct examination by Mr. BRANDEIS:

Q. 1118. State your full name, age, and present occupation.
A. Jesse Lewisohn; age, thirty-one; manager of the United Metal Selling Company.
Q. 1119. What was your occupation in 1895?
A. I was employed by Lewisohn Brothers.
Q. 1120. Was that a partnership or corporation?
A. In 1895? I really don't remember—it was a partnership, and was transferred to a corporation, now the date I don't re-
712 member, as I had been employed by the Lewisohn Brothers partnership before, and continued right through.
Q. 1121. And you continued to be employed by Lewisohn Brothers, first as a firm and then as a corporation, until the United Metal Selling Company was organized?
A. Yes.
Q. 1122. And you became manager of the United Metal Selling Company?
A. Sometime after, yes.
Q. 1123. The United Metal Selling Company took over the business of selling copper which Lewisohn Brothers were engaged in?
A. That is correct.
Q. 1124. And the concern was then, and subsequently, largely owned by the members of the Lewisohn family?

A. That is right.

Q. 1125. What was your interest in the firm or corporation of Lewisohn Brothers in 1895 at the time when the Old Dominion——

A. [Interrupting.] I had a percentage, my interest was on a percentage basis.

Q. 1126. Did you have an interest in the profits?

A. In the profits.

Q. 1127. And in the company, you had an interest in the stock?

A. Yes.

Q. 1128. What office did you hold in the corporation?

A. No particular office.

Q. 1129. You were one of the directors, I presume?

A. Yes, I was.

Q. 1130. And you were one of those who signed as general manager?

A. Yes, sir, assistant general manager.

Q. 1131. Your father, Leonard, and Adolph, signed as general manager, both of them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1132. When the Old Dominion matter was taken up for the purchase of the Simpson interest, the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, you acquired an interest in that purchase, did you not?

A. Yes, the interest that Lewisohn Brothers took.

Q. 1133. What was your first connection with that purchase; the first thing that you had to do with it?

A. I don't remember.

Q. 1134. Did you have any part in any negotiation for the purchase?

A. No.

Q. 1135. I call your attention to a telegram appearing among those produced by Mr. Lauterbach of May 3, 1895, from G. M. Hyams to Lewisohn Brothers, reading as follows: "Had not you or Josse better meet me at station on arrival so that I may know what to say to Meredith. Train will probably arrive an hour or two late." I ask you whether that telegram in any way refreshes your recollection as to any interview you had with Mr. Hyams in regard to the purchase?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Defendant objects to the putting on record of a telegram which is alleged to be described in the interrogatory, such telegram not being admissible in evidence and not yet having been offered in evidence, it being between parties other than the parties in this suit.

713

A. It does not.

Q. 1136. State what the first thing is that you do recall, if anything, in regard to interest acquired by Lewisohn Brothers, or Leonard Lewisohn, or yourself, in the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, or the Old Dominion Mine, as it is sometimes called.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to the interrogatory, as it inquires for irrelevant and incompetent matter.

A. That would virtually necessitate the story of what is formed in my opinion.

Q. 1137. Question repeated.

A. I remember the purchasing of the Simpson-estate interest.

Q. 1138. Now state what you recall in regard to that purchase.

A. I remember that the syndicate acquired a five sevenths interest in the Old Dominion Company of Maryland, for an amount which I don't remember now.

Q. 1139. Will you state fully all that you recall in regard to the acquisition of that interest, and the formation of the syndicate by which you say that it was acquired?

Mr. HEMENWAY: These are facts that are called for.

A. My recollection is that Mr. Lewisohn and Mr. A. S. Bigelow bought this interest.

Q. 1140. Question repeated.

A. I don't recollect how the syndicate was formed other than it would be by a conversation.

Q. 1141. Well, tell us all that you remember for the formation of the syndicate, be it by conversation or otherwise; I am endeavoring to get your full recollection.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to any conversation at which Mr. Bigelow was not present.

A. Mr. Beaman, of the firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, was the attorney for our interest, Lewisohn Brothers, in this acquisition.

Q. 1142. Question repeated.

A. I then remember that the balance of the company was bought from the Keysers of Baltimore and that a new company was formed under the laws of New Jersey, wherein I was the treasurer and was subsequently deposed in favor of Mr. Nelson, to whom I turned over the books—whatever books and moneys that I had.

714 Q. 1143. You stated a few moments ago that all you remember in regard to the formation of the syndicate was by a conversation: what conversation do you refer to?

A. I refer to the possibility of the conversation being held over the 'phone as we had the use of a 'phone continually with the Boston office at that time, and unless it is on record in the letters that you have it might have taken place over the 'phone.

Q. 1144. You refer now to a conversation between Lewisohn Brothers and Mr. Albert S. Bigelow?

A. Yes.

Q. 1145. Is there any conversation which you had with Albert S. Bigelow on this subject?

A. None.

Q. 1146. Is there any conversation which your father had with Albert S. Bigelow in your presence?

A. None.

Q. 1147. Is there any conversation which your father had with any one in your presence in relation to this syndicate?

A. None that I can remember.

Q. 1148. Do you recall that you were ever present when your father had any conversation with Albert S. Bigelow in relation to this syndicate?

A. I cannot recall.

Q. 1150. Or in relation to the purchase of the property?

A. I do not remember.

Q. 1151. I call your attention to a copy of a letter of Lewisohn Brothers to Mr. James Calhoun of May 14, 1895, being one of the papers produced by Mr. Lauterbach, and particularly to the initials in the left-hand corner of that copy, "J. L." above the word "Enclo," and ask you whether such letters indicate that it is a letter dictated by you?

A. Either dictated by me or for me to sign.

Q. 1152. I call your attention to the following copies of letters produced by Mr. Lauterbach and bearing the initials "J. L." in the left-hand corner, as inquired about in the previous interrogatory, namely: Letter of May 6, 1895, No. 5; May 14, 1895, No. 164; May 14, 1895, No. 11; May 15, 1895, No. 13; May 15, 1895, No. 166; May 17, 1895, No. 16; May 29, 1895, No. 17; May 29, 1895, No. 167; June 14, 1895, No. 41; June 15, 1895, No. 44; June 17, 1895, No. 45; June 18, 1895, No. 52; June 18, 1895, No. 54; June 18, 1895, No. 58; June 18, 1895, No. 59; July 10, 1895, No. 91; November 26, 1895, No. 226; December 9, 1895, No. 229, and request you, after reading the same, to state whether or not these, or any of these letters, refresh your recollection in any respect as to the facts relating to the purchase of the interest in the Old Dominion Company or mine, or the formation of the syndicate in connection with the purchase, or of your own relations thereto.

A. [After examining the letters.] They refresh my memory.

Q. 1153. Now will you state, after so refreshing your recol-
715 lection, more fully what the facts were in relation to the purchase of the mine and the formation of the syndicate?

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to this testimony as being incompetent and irrelevant at the present stage of the testimony.

A. As I remember the matter, my father, Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, desired to buy or get a controlling interest in the Old Dominion, and arranged with Mr. Meredith to get an option from the Simpson estate, who owned five sevenths. This was accomplished, and Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Hyams were sent to examine the properties, as the option was only for a short period. After they had started to make their examination Mr. Leonard Lewisohn took the matter up with Mr. Bigelow, and they agreed to take the option jointly in case the report was satisfactory.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to this statement of the agreement: if the agreement was in writing—it must be produced, if it was in writing. Defendant desires the witness to state whether or not it was in writing.

Q. 1154. You can state whether it was in writing, if you know.

A. I don't know whether it was in writing: this is my recollection now after reading the different papers that you called my attention to.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Is this your recollection of an agreement between your father and Mr. Bigelow, or is it a recollection of something in reference to the transaction?

WITNESS: Only in reference to the transaction.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to the statement of the witness except as to matters which took place between Mr. Leonard Lewisohn and Mr. Bigelow in his presence.

Q. 1155. You may go on.

A. During the examination it was deemed advisable to endeavor to obtain the Keyser interest, and that was acquired.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Did you take part in these negotiations?

WITNESS: I was in the office continually, but I don't remember just whether I was absolutely active in the direct negotiation.

Q. 1156. Or whether it was done in your presence?

A. I don't know whether it was done in my presence; that is my recollection of the business.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is your own memory that is being asked for in this case, and not any inference.

Q. 1157. Your recollection; and I ask also for a recollection of everything that was said to you by your father, or by Mr. Bigelow, or said in your presence; it does not mean necessarily said to you.

A. Well, I could not make any declaration as to any particular inference that I drew from anything directly said to me.

716 Q. 1158. I am asking you, not merely what was said to you, but for anything that happened, to your knowledge, or anything that you heard.

Mr. HEMENWAY: He is asking for your memory of what took place in 1895; not your inference now of what might have taken place, but your memory of what actually took place, if you have any.

A. Then there was a new company formed, which acquired the property from Leonard Lewisohn.

Q. 1159. What, if anything, do you recall, after refreshing your recollection, as to the organization of the syndicate who joined with your father and Mr. Bigelow to purchase the property?

A. There was no such syndicate ever formed.

Q. 1160. What was the syndicate to which you referred?

A. The syndicate to which I referred in answer to a previous interrogatory?

Q. 1161. Yes.

A. It was the syndicate of Leonard Lewisohn and A. S. Bigelow solely.

Q. 1162. Is it not a fact that a number of other persons joined with them in the purchase, or in contributing money with which the property was paid for?

A. No.

Q. 1163. What is your best recollection in that connection?

A. That Leonard Lewisohn and A. S. Bigelow paid jointly for the property.

Q. 1164. Do you mean by that to say that the money—that no part of the money which was used in paying for that property was contributed by any other person?

A. I believe no one else.

Q. 1165. I call your attention to the names of the following persons, and ask you whether that does not refresh your recollection as to others contributing to the purchase: John Stanton, J. D. Probst & Company, Charles F. Brooker, Joseph Cahn, Theodore Gaden, D. Wallerstein, E. Hawley, E. L. Bingham & Company, G. A. Bickner, W. A. Ammermann?

A. They did not contribute to the purchase of the shares from the Simpson estate and the Keyser shares.

Q. 1166. Do you mean, by your answer to the last interrogatory, to testify that all the purchase money was paid by your father and Mr. Bigelow in cash before these persons made any payment, or acquired any interest in the syndicate, so called, or in the Old Dominion Company?

A. I mean that they either paid for it or gave notes before the money was paid by the parties mentioned from your list.

Q. 1167. Before any money was paid by any of those parties?

A. I cannot say "any money," but my recollection serves me that either cash or notes had been given for the full payment of the purchase of the stock before any money was paid by any subsequent sale of new shares of stock.

Q. 1168. Will you make more clear what you mean by 717 your answer to the last question? What do you mean by "any subsequent sale of new shares of stock"?

A. That Leonard Lewisohn and A. S. Bigelow bought the Old Dominion shares from Simpson and Keyser, and that thereafter there was a sale of these shares to the syndicate, who invited participation; and the money—well, I think that answers your question.

Q. 1169. You mean that Leonard Lewisohn and Albert S. Bigelow paid for the property before anybody else was permitted to take any interest in the property?

A. That they either paid the money or gave notes, which, I understood, was the equivalent.

Q. 1170. For both the Simpson and the Keyser interests?

A. That is my recollection.

[Adjourned to February 25, 1903, at 10 a. m.]

[Next Exhibit for Identification, 234.]

NEW YORK, February 25, 1903.

[Met pursuant to adjournment.]
[Present: Same as before.]

JESSE LEWISOHN, resumed.

By Mr. BRANDEIS:

Q. 1171. At the adjournment of the session yesterday you were stating in what respect a perusal of the letters and papers submitted to you refreshed your recollection. We will go on from that. Now will you proceed and state anything further in respect to which your memory is refreshed by the perusal of those letters?

A. I can't think of anything else.

[Mr. Lauterbach here returns the transcripts of the accounts heretofore marked for identification 231, 232, and 233, with the statement that the references to cash books and journals, and the page numbers, as appeared by the witness' testimony, have now been supplied.]

Mr. BRANDEIS: I offer those transcript in evidence as part of Mr. Westervelt's testimony.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to the introduction of the transcripts on the ground that they are irrelevant, incompetent, and immaterial; that they are matters taking place between other parties than the parties to the suit, and that the subject matter 718 thereof is not strictly within the purview of books of account as admitted in action at law or in equity.

Q. 1172. I hand you transcripts from the ledger of Lewisohn Brothers entitled "Old Dominion Copper Company Syndicate," being Exhibit No. 231, "Old Dominion Syndicate, Sub. No. 2," and "Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A C," these being papers marked Nos. 231, 232, and 233, introduced as a part of the deposition of E. C. Westervelt in this case, and ask you to examine the same, and state whether such examination enables you to refresh, in any respect, your recollection in regard to the purchase of the interest in the Old Dominion Company and property and of the formation of the syndicate?

A. [After examination:] I see nothing in these documents to refresh my memory as to the syndicates.

Q. 1173. Does it refresh your memory any further in regard to the circumstances attending the purchase of the interests in the property?

A. It does not.

Q. 1174. Does it refresh your recollection in any respect as to any interviews that you had with Mr. Bigelow?

A. No, sir.

Q. 1175. Or Mr. Hyams, as representing Mr. Bigelow?

A. It does not.

Q. 1176. Or with Mr. Meredith?

A. It does not.

Q. 1177. Or with Mr. Keyser?

A. It does not.

Q. 1178. Or with your father, or anything said by any of these persons in your presence?

A. I can't recall anything.

Q. 1179. Is your memory refreshed in any respect beyond what you have fully testified in respect to any such interviews or any matters by the letters which you read yesterday or otherwise, or have you now stated fully all that you remember in regard to the acquisition of the property, or relations to the syndicate or organization of the syndicate?

A. I remember nothing further than what I have already stated.

Mr. Brandeis: I should like to suspend this examination until you have completed your search, and then go on with Mr. Lewisohn, as I suppose when we adjourn that search will be made so full that we will have everything completed and will have everything before us.

Mr. Lauterbach: I have given instructions to have a thorough search made, and I think under those instructions it must be very thorough.

[Adjourned until Tuesday, March 3, at 10 a. m., with the understanding that if Mr. Hemenway is engaged, the adjournment is until the following day, March 4, at 10 a. m.]

[Next Exhibit for Identification, 234.]

719 New York, March 3, 1903.

[At the request of Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Hemenway, adjourned to March 5, at 10 a. m.]

New York, March 5, 10 a. m.

[Met pursuant to adjournment.]

[Present: Mr. Webb, Mr. Brandeis, Mr. Lauterbach, and Mr. Hemenway.]

Edward C. Westervelt, recalled.

By Mr. Brandeis:

Q. 1180. Referring to the request made by counsel for plaintiff of Mr. Lauterbach, under date of February 27, 1903, namely, "You will recall that the total amount of Old Dominion stock delivered to Mr. Leonard Lewisohn or his order was 58,840 shares, that is 36,190 shares out of the 80,000 shares and 22,650 shares out of the 50,000 shares. The transcripts of the account which you submitted from Lewisohn Brothers' ledger which went in as exhibits Nos. 231, 232, and 233 do not show what the disposition was of this stock; that is, they do not show how much of this stock was delivered to Mr. Leonard Lewisohn's associates in the syndicates, how much was retained by him, and what disposition he made of the stock; that is, to the extent his estate still holds the stock or even when he sold it and the proceeds of such sale." Will you have the kindness to have ready at our next meeting transcripts of such of the accounts as will show these facts? I understand this request was transmitted to you as the person in charge of Lewisohn Brothers' books most competent to make the search and present the testimony. Will you state whether or not you have complied with that request?

A. I have endeavored to comply with it.

Q. 1181. And what has been the result of those endeavors?

A. I could not do it.

Q. 1182. What accounts have you found in Lewisohn Brothers' books containing the entries relating to the transactions inquired about in that request?

A. Stock book C, folios 59, 85, 86, 87, 88, 125, and 126, covering the period from September 24, 1895, to March 11, 1897 as of which date the account is transferred to stock book D folio 20. That contains all the entries which I have found bearing upon that matter.

Mr. HEMENWAY: On examination of these pages referred to in the answer of the witness the defendant objects to any admission of them for any purpose of the contents of these pages, either the original or a transcript, for the reason that they are apparently the entries of transactions not ordinarily or properly the subject of 720 book accounts, and it does not appear by whom said entries were authorized or that said entries in any way ever came to the attention of the defendant in this action, the whole matter being transactions between other parties with whom the plaintiff has no interest or connection.

Q. 1183. Where was this stock book C of Lewisohn Brothers found by you?

A. It was not found by me.

Q. 1184. When did it first come into your possession or subject to your inspection?

A. The 3d of March.

Q. 1185. By whom was the book submitted to you?

A. An office boy.

Q. 1186. Give his name.

A. Edward Middy.

Q. 1187. At Lewisohn Brothers?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1188. Had you ever seen this book before?

A. No.

Q. 1189. Do you mean you had not even seen the exterior of the book?

A. How could I answer a question like that?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Answer it of your own knowledge.

A. Not to my own knowledge.

Q. 1190. That is you have never seen this book before March 3?

A. Not to my knowledge.

Q. 1911. And do you know where this book was kept prior to March 3?

A. In the storeroom.

Q. 1192. Which storeroom?

A. Lewisohn Brothers' storeroom.

Q. 1193. No. 321?

A. The number of the room I don't know.

Q. 1194. Was it kept where the other old books of Lewisohn Brothers are kept?

A. No.

Q. 1195. Where were the other old books of Lewisohn Brothers kept?

A. That I could not tell you.

Q. 1196. Then you don't know that they are not kept at the same place this book was kept?

A. May I speak to Mr. Lauterbach?

Mr. LAUTERBACH: No. State all that you know about the books and about any book.

A. All the old books in this storeroom are the stock ledgers; just the stock ledgers.

Q. 1197. What stock ledgers are in that storeroom; covering what period?

A. A, B, C, D, and so on.

Q. 1198. What is the stock book now in use; what number or letter?

A. H.

Q. 1199. Then all the stock books except H, the one in current use, are in the storeroom?

A. Or they ought to be.

721 Q. 1200. You have seen the whole of the books after C yourself, haven't you, in the course of this search?

A. From D on.

Q. 1201. D, E, F, and G you have seen?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1202. And they are in the storeroom?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1203. In whose handwriting are the entries in this book?

A. I don't know.

Q. 1204. Is it the handwriting of any person who is now in the employ of Lewisohn Brothers?

A. No.

Q. 1205. Or who has been in the employ while you were there?

A. No.

Q. 1206. Why do you say that you are unable, from this book, to determine what disposition was made of the stock received by Lewisohn Brothers?

A. I went over it to prove it and I could not prove it; that was all.

Q. 1207. Doesn't this book give all the data necessary to determine?

A. Not being a clerk at that time I know nothing at all about the matter.

Q. 1208. That is, all the knowledge you have is the knowledge which the book itself affords?

A. Contains.

Q. 1209. And the only data which you could arrive at from that book are those which any accountant that took the entries in the book and put them together could arrive at: is that what you mean to say?

A. That is what I mean.

Q. 1210. And have you made a similar examination of books D, E, F, and G?

A. I have not.

Q. 1211. Have you examined any one of those with reference to the entries of Old Dominion?

A. I have not.

Q. 1212. Have you examined stock book B?

A. No.

Q. 1213. Did you request the office boy or any one to bring you the stock book B?

A. The way I put my request was to ask them for the stock book for the period of 1895.

Q. 1214. This stock book C begins September 24, 1895?

A. Yes.

Q. 1215. So that you don't know, of your own knowledge, at all events, whether there is any entry in stock book B relating to Old Dominion or not?

A. I do not.

[The witness, upon request, produces stock book B.]

Q. 1216. You have now before you stock book B. Will you state whether or not there is in stock book B any entries relating to transactions in stock of the Old Dominion Company or Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

A. Nothing to my knowledge.

Q. 1217. You have also produced now, upon request, stock
722 book D. Will you state whether or not there are any entries in that book relating to the transactions of Lewisohn Brothers in the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company stock: if so, on what pages?

Mr. Hemenway: The defendant objects to any reference to the entries in stock book D for the same reasons expressed in regard to the admission of stock book C.

A. There are: folios 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27 (marked void), 28, and 29.

Q. 1218. At folio 29 the account appears to be transferred to stock book E, folio 20, does it not?

A. Yes.

Q. 1219. Please give the first and last dates of the entries in this account in stock ledger D which you have mentioned.

A. The first entry is under date of March 11, 1897, and the last entry is June 30, 1898.

Q. 1220. Are you able to state in whose handwriting this account, or any portion of it, is in this stock ledger D?

A. A part of it is in mine, part of it is in the handwriting of Theodore F. Van Ness, and the balance I don't know whose writing it is.

Q. 1221. What is the first entry in your own handwriting?

A. The entry of June 30, on folio 29.

Q. 1222. The first two entries on that date are in your handwriting?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1223. During what period is the handwriting of Theodore F. Van Ness?

A. All of the entries commencing with November 18, 1897, on folio 24, up to my entries on June 30, I believe, are in the handwriting of Mr. Van Ness. The entries on folios 20 and 24 prior to November 17, 1897, appear to be in the same handwriting as the entries in stock book C, and I don't know who made them, with the exception of the entries from October 18 to October 20, 1897, which appear to be in a different handwriting.

Q. 1224. Is Theodore F. Van Ness still in the employ of Lewisohn Brothers?

A. He is not.

Q. 1225. Is he living, so far as you know?

A. So far as I know he is.

Q. 1226. Where is he?

A. That I could not tell you.

Q. 1227. When did you last see him or hear of him?

A. I saw him about six months ago on Broadway.

Q. 1228. You don't know his present address or occupation?

A. No.

[Recess.]

WITNESS: I told you this morning that the last stock book in use was H. It is not. I have not got any number on it at all. The last one was G.

Q. 1229. The one in use now being not numbered?

A. Not numbered.

723 Q. 1230. You have produced now, in pursuance of request, stock book E of Lewisohn Brothers containing the account of transactions in Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company stock, from folios 20 and 21, covering a period, the first entry appearing being October 1, 1895, and the last entry April 25, 1899. Please state in whose handwriting those entries are.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to any examination or to the admission of any account in stock book E, the same being immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and for the reasons already stated in reference to the other stock books.

A. Mine.

Q. 1231. I will ask you whether at any time in this account covered on folio 20 in the stock ledger E, the account appears to be balanced; and if so, at what date?

A. It is not directly balanced, but under date of November 9, 1898, all stock that Lewisohn Brothers previously held had been disposed of according to the books.

Q. 1232. Will you prepare, or allow the commissioner or stenographer to prepare, and annex to your deposition a transcript of the entries in stock ledgers C, D, and E, up to and including the date of November 9, 1898?

A. We will make it ourselves.

Q. 1233. And hand it to the commissioner?

A. Yes.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: Have you any objection to its being continued down to and including all the entries in stock ledger E, to show the whole transactions?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Not at all.

Q. 1234. Have you looked at the ledger from which the accounts produced here at the last hearing, marked, I think, 231, 232, and 233, were taken, to ascertain how the book is described?

A. I have looked at it in a general way.

Q. 1235. Can you tell what it is called and how it is numbered?

A. 1895 ledger, I believe.

Q. 1236. Of Lewisohn Brothers?

A. Lewisohn Brothers.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: Is that the corporation or the firm?

WITNESS: That is the corporation.

Q. 1237. Have you made any search for any other books than those which have been produced here, and of which a transcript was produced at the last hearing?

A. I have not.

Q. 1238. Have you aided any one in making a search for any letters or papers in relation to the Old Dominion matters?

A. I have not.

Q. 1239. And you have no knowledge of what search was made?

A. Except that a search was being made.

[The examination of this witness is suspended for the present.]

724 FERDINAND RAHAEUSER, recalled.

[Mr. Lauterbach produces another batch of papers, telegrams, etc.]

By Mr. BRANDEIS:

Q. 1240. You have produced here a memorandum of seven pages. Does that memorandum embody a correct statement of the days and hours during which you made search for the papers which you were requested at our last hearing and also a correct description of the various files of papers which you examined?

A. Yes, sir.

[The memorandum produced by the witness is here marked "Plaintiff's Exhibit C."]

Q. 1241. Did you complete the examination of all files available?

A. To 1895, yes, sir.

Q. 1242. And where did you make a search for those files?

A. In room 321.

Q. 1243. And also the general office?

A. We had all the files from 1895 sent down to the general office, as we had better light to work under there.

Q. 1244. And does the search which you made include all files for 1895 anywhere in the office?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1245. And you have produced here letters and copies of letters as appears by the list marked D which you presented at the hearing this morning? Are these all the letters and copies of letters and papers relating to Old Dominion matters that you found in connection with your search?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1246. In what files did you find these letters and copies of letters and papers; that is, were they all found in one file or separate files?

A. In separate files.

Q. 1247. I call your attention to the fact that there is not, among all of the papers which you now present, a single letter from or to Albert S. Bigelow or from or to J. Morris Meredith or from or to G. M. Hyams. Were there no letters from or to either Mr. Bigelow or Mr. Meredith or Mr. Hyams in the files which you examined?

A. Nothing relating to Old Dominion.

Q. 1248. Was there anything in those files relating to any other subject from or to Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Hyams, or Mr. Meredith?

A. From Mr. Hyams and Mr. Bigelow I believe there was.

Q. 1249. But not from Mr. Meredith?

A. Not that I know of.

Q. 1250. Now you were requested to make a search for the private file of Old Dominion papers referred to in the memorandum you stated was in William Faint's handwriting and which was 725 made on the copy of the letter of May 29, Exhibit 167. Have you made such search?

A. I had John Stocket, the colored man, bring around all the files of 1895; they are in one place; they are all kept together, 1895 files; and I went around myself afterwards to see they were all taken out and there was no private file of Old Dominion there.

Q. 1251. Then the only search that you made is that which you have described, namely, examining the files which John Stocket brought you?

A. And went around to see myself.

Q. 1252. You afterwards went into the room from which you are informed these files were taken; is that the fact?

A. Yes and saw there was no 1895 file left there.

Q. 1253. Do you mean to say you made an examination to see if there was no 1895 files there?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1254. Now what was there in that room 321 when you made that examination, and what was there there when the 1895 file left there?

A. I think there were files there away back for fifteen or twenty years; I believe, up to 1895.

Q. 1255. And were there any there for 1895?

A. No, sir.

Q. 1256. That is the last year of anything in that room?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1257. Did you take a memorandum of all files which you examined which you looked at the outside of?

A. In that room?

Q. 1258. Yes.

A. No, sir.

Q. 1259. You were requested to do that, were you not?

A. Only those that I handled; that is what I understood.

Q. 1260. You were requested to make an examination of all files which you examined, with a view to being able to testify what you had looked over, in order to testify as to the extent of your search for that private Old Dominion file; isn't that what you were requested to do?

A. I understood I was to look for the Old Dominion file and all files of 1895 in relation to Old Dominion. Now if I looked over one file in that room there I could easily say there were five or six hundred files in the room, dating back from 1863 up.

Q. 1261. Did you look at each one of those five or six hundred files, or how many there were in there?

A. No, sir, I did not.

Q. 1262. I don't mean whether you examined the contents of each one of these, but whether you looked at each file?

A. I looked at the outside of the files.

Q. 1263. How careful an examination did you make of the outside of those files?

A. Glanced over to see whether there were 1895 Old Dominion files among them.

Q. 1264. The precise thing I desired you to do was to take 726 a note of each file that you examined in order to ascertain whether you could find that Old Dominion file, and I submit you have not done it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: And I submit he has. What he says, as I understand his answer, is that in this room there were files from 1866 up, and that there were from five to six hundred of them; that the files of 1895 he examined carefully and went through them, and then examined the others sufficiently to see that there were no 1895 files in them other than those he examined.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: And no Old Dominion files.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is what you say, isn't it?

WITNESS: Yes.

Q. 1265. I ask you whether you made so careful an examination of every file that there is or was in room 321 that you can, on your oath, state as a fact that there is no file there relating to Old Dominion matters?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1266. You do state that as a fact?

A. There is no file there relating to Old Dominion.

Q. 1267. And do you also state as a fact, upon your oath, that there is and was no file there covering the year 1895, which you have not carefully examined, and from which you have not taken every letter or other paper relating to Old Dominion that was in there?

A. Every file of 1895 was examined in the way you have described.

Q. 1268. Did you find, in the course of your examination, anything to indicate in any way where that private Old Dominion file is?

A. No, I did not.

Q. 1269. Did you, in the course of that examination, find anything which would indicate to you where any letters or copies of letters to or from Albert S. Bigelow, G. M. Hyams, or J. Morris Meredith are?

A. No, sir.

Q. 1270. Where any of them could be found?

A. No, sir. In examining the papers for Old Dominion, you understand that when I came to a file where there was a lot of Old Dominion in it I took it out and pushed it aside without reading the letters through and through.

Q. 1271. Now have you produced here every single letter and paper relating to Old Dominion which you found?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1272. What happened to these letters and papers between the time that you took them out of the files and the time you produced them here to-day?

A. In my desk.

Q. 1273. Under your personal custody?

A. In my desk, yes, sir.

Q. 1274. Were they continuously in your custody?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1275. Nobody else saw them?

A. No, sir, except the stenographer this morning.

727 Q. 1276. Which stenographer?

A. Our stenographer—no, he didn't see them this morning; he saw them yesterday.

Q. 1277. In what connection did your stenographer see them yesterday?

A. Taking a memorandum of the letters, just who they were sent to and who they were from.

Q. 1278. Making a list?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1279. Of all the dates?

A. Yes, sir, all the letters and dates.

Q. 1280. Who is that stenographer?

A. Mr. Willicomb.

Q. 1281. How long were those letters in Mr. Willicomb's possession?

A. Long enough for him to finish making a memorandum of the letters.

Q. 1282. I mean, how many hours?

A. They were not in his hands any time.

Q. 1283. Some hours?

A. I don't think so. I didn't pay any attention to the time he had them.

Q. 1284. Was your desk locked while these papers were there?

A. Every night.

Q. 1285. And open during the day?

A. Open during the day.

Q. 1286. Anybody else besides the stenographer have occasion to go to your desk?

A. Nobody has occasion to go to my desk. In fact, no one is allowed in the room.

Q. 1287. That is, nobody is supposed to be in the room; you haven't a room absolutely alone, have you?

A. I have.

Q. 1288. How do you account for the fact that you have now produced this large number of letters and papers relating to Old Dominion, and that you failed to produce them heretofore when you had been requested to make a search and produce the letters relating to this subject?

A. The only way I can answer that is, as I said before, that I worked under insufficient light. I worked around that room under candle light at first. Now I sent them around to my room and made a more thorough search of them. I may have skipped a couple of them that came from a place.

Q. 1289. You spoke about skipping a couple. Now I find four or five times as many papers than you produced as the result of the other two searches?

A. I was requested before as to Stern and Meredith, and the other subscribers of Old Dominion or any one I could find. I think that accounts for it.

Q. 1290. Is that the only explanation you can give?

A. That is the only one I can give.

Q. 1291. Are you certain you now have made the most thorough search for these letters?

A. Yes, sir; I have had some help during that work.

Q. 1292. Who helped you?

A. Mr. Henry Asendorf, and John Stocket, I believe his name is.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: That is the negro?

728 The WITNESS: Yes, sir.

Q. 1293. Any other assistant?

A. No; they were the only ones.

Q. 1294. Did you have the assistance of Mr. John Stocket and Mr. Asendorf continuously?

A. No; Mr. Asendorf for one night, I believe, and Mr. Stocket worked on them one or two nights and during the daytime.

Q. 1295. Alone or in connection with you?

A. In the daytime worked alone and in the night time we both worked at different desks.

Q. 1296. Then in the daytime, when he worked, some of these papers were found, and some when you worked; isn't that the fact?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1297. And you have no knowledge yourself as to whether Mr. Stocket has handed you all the papers which he found or not?

A. I certainly have; he kept them in his desk until this morning, when I asked him for them and put them with my other letters and brought them over.

Q. 1298. You have no knowledge except that you made a request of him and he handed you the letters to-day?

A. That is all.

Q. 1229. And is the same true with regard to Mr. Asendorf's examination?

A. Yes, sir; in fact, Mr. Asendorf didn't hand me any letters.

Q. 1300. What did Mr. Asendorf do in the way of assisting you?

A. Looked through the files.

Q. 1301. When he found letters what happened?

A. I don't know as he found any letters.

Q. 1302. Then there was part of these files which you have never examined yourself?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1303. What part have you not examined personally?

A. The list is there. I don't know exactly what they are.

Q. 1304. You mean by reference to the list marked C?

A. Yes.

Q. 1305. Can you by reference to that list marked C state what you have not examined personally?

A. Those appearing on the list under Mr. Stocket which he examined and Mr. Asendorf examined. Those I have not examined personally.

Mr. LAUTERBACH: All the rest you have?

WITNESS: Yes, sir. I was mistaken in saying that Mr. Asendorf handed me nothing. He did hand me some cables.

[It is agreed that Mr. Stocket and Mr. Asendorf shall be examined next, and the hearing for the taking of the testimony of the witnesses is adjourned until some day mutually agreed upon by counsel.]

[Next Exhibit for Identification, 495.]

729 HENRY A. ROOT, sworn for plaintiff.

Direct examination by Mr. McCLENNEN:

Q. 1306. What is your residence?

A. Butte, Mont.

Q. 1307. Were you interested in some way in the original organization of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

[Objected to as leading.]

A. I was interested financially in that enterprise.

Q. 1308. What was the first thing that called your attention to the matter of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

A. My best recollection is a conversation I had with Mr. Hyams in Boston.

Q. 1309. With Mr. G. M. Hyams?

A. Yes, the gentleman sitting here.

Q. 1310. Can you fix the date of that conversation?

A. I can only fix it by reference to some papers I have looked at in Mr. Stern's office.

Q. 1311. To what papers do you refer?

A. I have seen an agreement there which was made by Mr. Stern with Mr. Lewisohn.

Q. 1312. And by reference to that paper what was the time you fixed as the date of the conversation with Mr. Hyams?

A. I should say it was a short time, whether a few days or a week or two I could not say, before the end of May, 1895.

Q. 1313. Where did the conversation occur?

A. In Mr. Bigelow's office in Boston.

Q. 1314. Will you relate the conversation, as nearly as you can?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. I had been interested, as Mr. Hyams knew, or rather, to put it in more legal shape, Mr. Hyams and I had been talking over a little experience I had with the Merced mine, and fortunately I had made a little money, and I told Mr. Hyams that I would like to know if there was anything going on where there would be an opportunity to make some money, and he said he would be very much pleased to let me know any time that there was something doing, and he told me at that time that Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Lewisohn were going to bring out a new company, the Old Dominion, and that he would let me know when there would be some underwriting if I wanted him to so as to give me a chance to get some of the underwriting. That is all there was to it.

Q. 1315. That is the whole conversation?

A. That is all I recollect about it. That was impressed 730 on my mind because I thought it was very friendly on the part of Mr. Hyams.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I object to the latter part of the answer as not responsive to the question.

Q. 1316. You think that entirely exhausts your present recollection of the conversation, do you?

A. I think it does, yes.

Q. 1317. Let me call your attention to some specific things. Was anything said in that conversation with reference to under the laws of what state the new company was to be organized?

[Objected to as incompetent.]

A. Nothing.

Q. 1318. Was anything said in the conversation as to the amount of capital which the new company was to have?

[Objected to as incompetent.]

A. Not a word.

Q. 1319. Did you have any subsequent conversation with Mr. Hyams in relation to your going into the enterprise?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. None that I recall.

Q. 1320. What next did you do with reference to the matter?

[Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.]

A. I called to see Mr. Stern.

Q. 1321. And I assume you had some conversation with Mr. Stern?

[Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.]

A. I did have.

Q. 1321½. That is, Mr. Simon H. Stern?

[Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1322. Of Stern & Rushmore of New York city?

A. Yes, sir.

731 Q. 1323. After this conversation with Mr. Stern what next did you do?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. The next thing that occurred, so far as I was concerned,—perhaps there may have been more than one conversation with Mr. Stern,—but the next step of any importance that I can think of was meeting Mr. Jesse Lewisohn.

Q. 1324. And where did you meet Mr. Jesse Lewisohn?

A. At the Lawyers' Club.

Q. 1325. In New York?

A. In New York.

Q. 1326. Who were present at that interview?

A. Mr. Stern, Mr. Lewisohn, and myself.

Q. 1327. Will you relate, as nearly as you can, the conversation at that interview?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. Mr. Stern talked with Mr. Lewisohn about going into the Old Dominion speculation. Mr. Lewisohn told him that if he would deliver over to him, Lewisohn, some of the underwriting which Mr. Stern had in the Merced Gold Mining Company, Mr. Lewisohn, or the Lewisohns, would give Mr. Stern a chance to go into the Old Dominion enterprise.

Q. 1328. Was there any more to that conversation?

[Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.]

A. Oh, it was a conversation that lasted probably an hour—a great deal more. Mr. Lewisohn, it is my best recollection, offered, or told Mr. Stern, that if he would turn over to the Lewisohns 600 shares of the underwriting in Merced they would let Mr. Stern into 5 per cent of their investment in Old Dominion. I say 600 shares without being absolutely positive about it, but just an impression I have that there were 600 shares spoken of, but my further best recollection would be that Mr. Stern told them that was too much, didn't want to give them so much as that, and finally they agreed between themselves that he was to turn over to Lewisohns 300 shares of the Merced underwriting, and Lewisohns were to allow Stern to have 5 per cent of the investment which Lewisohn Brothers were putting into the Old Dominion. I may, of course, be mistaken as to this conversation. I could not be mistaken as to the 5 per cent, because I was equally interested with Mr. Stern in that myself, and 732 the amount was stated as to what we would have to put in; that is, what the 5 per cent was to be.

[The defendant objects to the answer as not responsive.]

Q. 1329. Do you recall anything further now of that conversation?

A. Nothing further except as to the amount that we were to put in; what the 5 per cent was to be.

Q. 1330. What was the date of that conversation?

A. I don't know. I only know it was before the agreement was made. It may have been two or three days, and might have been a week or two; I don't know.

Q. 1331. And the agreement was actually made on what date?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

A. On the last day of May.

Q. 1332. In view of the objection just made, I will ask you again, what was the date of the signing of the paper which you have characterized as an agreement?

[Objected to as immaterial and incompetent.]

A. The paper is dated the 31st day of May. I don't know whether it was signed that day.

Q. 1333. And the year?

A. 1895.

Mr. Heminway: I object to this evidence of the contents of a paper not produced nor its absence accounted for.

Q. 1334. Having regard to such papers as you have investigated lately, will you state the extreme dates within which that conversation occurred with Jesse Lewisohn?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. I would say it was in the month of May, 1895.

Q. 1335. Have you stated all that you now recall of that conversation?

A. Unless you should call my attention to something that would refresh my memory, I have.

Q. 1336. Was any reference made in that conversation to the fact that you had previously talked with Mr. Hyams as to the bringing out of this new corporation?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

733 A. I don't recollect any.

Q. 1337. Was there anything said in the conversation relative to the subject matter of your 5 per cent interest; what you were to have a 5 per cent interest for?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1338. What?

[Objected to as before.]

A. In the Old Dominion Mining Company.

Q. 1339. Was anything said in the conversation indicating whether your interest was to be an interest in an old or a new corporation?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. It was to be in some stock that was to be issued.

Q. 1340. And stock of what?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

A. Old Dominion Mining Company, or the Old Dominion, that is all. I don't think there was anything said about Mining Company—Old Dominion.

Q. 1341. Were you informed in that conversation as to the price which was to be paid, or had been paid for the Old Dominion mine or mines?

[Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial, and leading.]

A. We were informed that the Lewisohns were to put into it $300,000. That was to be their share of the contribution to the enterprise.

Q. 1342. Were you informed as to the total amount that was to be devoted to acquiring the properties?

[Objected to as before.]

A. As to that I could not be absolutely positive; but it is my best impression, and I would be nearly positive, that Mr. Lewisohn said they were to pay $300,000 for a further interest in the property that was being purchased—that their investment was to the extent of one half; that is my impression, which is rather a positive impression, but I could not testify to it with absolute certainty.

734 Q. 1343. Were you informed where the properties were situated?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. I don't think I was then, but I knew where they were. I think I got that information from Mr. Hyams, or learned it somewhere.

Q. 1344. Was anything said in that interview as to the laws of the state that the company was to be organized under?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

A. There was not.

Q. 1345. Was anything said in that conversation as to whether the property had or had not already been acquired?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. I could not say.

Q. 1346. Was anything said in that interview as to the amount of capital for which it was proposed to organize?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial, and having already been asked, and irrelevant.]

A. I don't think there was.

Q. 1347. Did you personally have any talk with Leonard Lewisohn relative to the matter?

A. I don't think I did.

Q. 1348. Do you know what amount of money was in fact contributed by yourself and Mr. Stern?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1349. What was the amount?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. $15,000.

Q. 1350. Did you receive some stock in the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

[Objected to as immaterial.]

735 A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1351. What amount of stock did you receive? I mean by that, you and Mr. Stern.

[Objected to as immaterial.]

A. I believe we received 1800 shares.

Q. 1352. I call your attention to a letter of December 4, 1895, from Simon H. Stern to Jesse Lewisohn, and marked for identification, "Exhibit 152."

Mr. HEMENWAY: The defendant objects to the introduction of said letter, or its examination by the witness.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Do you recall having the conversation therein referred to?

[Objected to as incompetent and leading.]

WITNESS: I have a faint recollection of the subject, which is brought to me now by this letter, or this copy of a letter.

Q. 1353. Do you remember where that conversation took place?

[Objected to as incompetent and irrelevant.]

A. Yes, at his office.

Q. 1354. Whose office?

A. Mr. Stern's office; because we always talked business there. I will say that, because we always talked business there, and nowhere else, that I remember.

[Answer objected to as irresponsive.]

Q. 1355. Do you remember any one else being present?

A. I presume there was no one. I don't remember any one being there.

Q. 1356. Who were the participants in that conversation?

A. Mr. Stern and myself.

Q. 1357. Did you, before that time, have any conversation with Jesse Lewisohn?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

A. I don't think I did.

Cross-examined by Mr. HEMENWAY:

X 1358. With whom have you talked about the substance of your direct examination?

A. I talked with Mr. Stern about it yesterday and with Mr. McClennen this morning.

736 X 1359. These matters having occurred more than ten years ago your memory is somewhat hazy about it, is it not?

A. I can't say that it is hazy except that it is refreshed by papers I have examined.

X 1360. Otherwise you would have no particular memory about it, would you?

A. Oh, yes, I would. I made some money out of it and I never forget anything I make money out of.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: The latter part of the answer is objected to as not responsive.

Mr. MCCLENNEN. From the papers marked for identification Exhibits 1 to 494 of the depositions taken in New York on February 4, 10, 11, and 24, and March 5, 1903, the complainant offers in evidence, subject to the right of the defendant to object to any of them on the ground of immateriality, the following:

Exhibit 18, letter of June 3, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to William Keyser, as follows:—

"JUNE 3RD, 1895.

William Keyser, Esq., President Old Dominion Copper Co., Baltimore, Md.

DEAR SIR: The Expert has returned from the Old Dominion Copper Company and—as you were doubtless advised by Mr. Butler—the first payment was duly made and good and sufficient Notes given for the balance.

The new owner would be obliged to you if, under the circumstances, you would send directions to the mine to stop all work of every kind, except pumping and such other work as is necessary for the protection of the property.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Exhibit 20, letter of June 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to A. S. Bigelow, as follows:—

"JUNE 4TH, 1895.

A. S. Bigelow, Esq., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We to-day received the Old Dominion Syndicate blanks for which we are obliged.

Kindly send us bill and we will remit.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

J. R."

737 Exhibit 36, letter of June 13, 1895, Leonard Lewisohn to William Keyser, as follows:—

"JUNE 13TH, 1895.

Mr. Wm. Keyser, care Balto. Smelting & Rolling Co., Baltimore, Md.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Brent Keyser no doubt has told you that I have offered you through him an interest of up to $25,000 in the Old Dominion enterprise with us on the same terms exactly as I myself come in. I should like to know from you, either tomorrow (Friday) or on Saturday at the latest, whether you are going to avail yourself of this or not. I thought you might wish to be a little interested and I should be only too glad to have you with us somewhat in the matter.

Yours very truly,

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

L. L."

Exhibit 38, letter of June 13, 1895, William Keyser to Leonard Lewisohn, as follows:—

"William Keyser, President.
Joseph Glendenn, Secretary.
R. Brent Keyser, Treasurer.
A. L. Walker, Consulting Engineer.

The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City.

Office: Keyser Building, German and Calvert Streets, Baltimore.

JUNE 13TH, 1895.

Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, New York City.

DEAR SIR: In accordance with a telephone message from Mr. Beaman I enclose herewith, duly signed, two papers drawn yesterday the first being a plan of procedure for Thursday June 20th, 1895, and the second covering the details of the sale of the two-sevenths of the stock of this company. In the latter paper I have added to the third clause from the last the words 'as of May 28, 1895' and have erased entirely the clause next to the last. Trusting you will find them in order, I remain

Yours truly,

WILLIAM KEYSER,
B."

738 Exhibit 39, letter of June 13, 1895, Leonard Lewisohn to A. S. Bigelow, as follows:—

NEW YORK, June 13th, 1895.

A. S. Bigelow, Esq., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: After a long telephonic communication between Messrs. Beaman, Keyser and myself this afternoon, we have arranged as per enclosed copy of agreement, which Mr. Keyser has signed in Baltimore to-day and is sending me, and which I have signed at Mr. Beaman's office and am sending him.

Besides, please find enclosed plan of procedure for Meeting of the Directors of the Old Dominion Copper Company next Thursday, June 20th, when transfer is to be made.

Mr. Allen W. Evarts and I will be in Baltimore on that day, and I should be very pleased if you could make arrangements to be there also.

Very truly yours,

LEONARD LEWISOHN,
Per JESSE LEWISOHN.

Enclo."

Exhibit 43, form of agreement to form the Old Dominion Syndicate, dated June 15, 1895, as follows:—

"We the undersigned propose to form a Syndicate to be called the 'Old Dominion Syndicate.'

And we hereby agree to pay to A. S. Bigelow the sums set against our respective names.

Subscriptions to this Syndicate shall be payable as follows:

May 27, 1895 Fourteen per cent. (14%).

July 26, 1895 Twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent ($28\frac{2}{3}$%) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

August 25, 1895 Twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent ($28\frac{2}{3}$%) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

September 26, 1895 Twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent ($28\frac{2}{3}$%) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

It is expressly agreed and understood that each subscriber hereto acts for himself alone and that the relation of partners shall not exist or be deemed to exist between the subscribers hereto by virtue hereof.

The conditions, covenants and agreements herein contained 739 shall be binding on the substitutes, successors, heirs, representatives and assigns of the respective subscribers hereto.

In Witness Whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and opposite thereto the amounts of our subscriptions respectively, this fifteenth day of June, A. D. One thousand eight hundred and ninety-five."

[No signatures.]

Exhibit 45, letter of June 17, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to A. S. Bigelow, as follows:—

"JUNE 17TH, 1895.

A. S. Bigelow, Esq., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your second letter of June 15th; we wish to say that we have had a conversation over the telephone this morning with Mr. Keyser regarding the way in which payments are to be made; and Mr. Keyser understands fully, and wishes us to make the payment in Boston—so that all the payments will be made in Boston at the office of the Old Colony Trust Company.

We also hear from Mr. Keyser that Mr. Bigelow has arranged with the Old Colony Trust Company that the money will be paid on Thursday. Mr. Abbott has written to this effect to Mr. Keyser.

Mr. Keyser is writing a letter to Mr. Abbott to-day telling him on payment of this money, to hold the shares to the order of Mr. Lewisohn—although we understand that the shares will have to be retained by the Old Colony Trust Company until the last note is paid.

Mr. Keyser is sending copies of the letters he is writing, of which we will send you copies.

In regard to the 25 shares of stock which Mr. Keyser is holding over; he is doing this as each Director needs 5 shares to qualify, and he thought it best to have these on hand in case they are needed at the Meeting, so that the Directors are qualified. Mr. Beaman also says this is necessary. We saw Mr. Beaman this afternoon and this gentleman says he believes that as regards the three Directors who, they promise, will resign; this will go quite in order; but he says he understood Mr. Bigelow had some relative or friend residing in Maryland who could be a Director—that if Mr. Bigelow desired this and that gentleman could be present, he could act as a Director.

740 If there is anything further you wish us to do, please let us know over the telephone and we will be glad to attend to it.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

J. L."

Exhibit 67, letter of June 28, 1895, Leonard Lewisohn to C. C. Beaman, as follows:—

"JUNE 28TH, 1895.

Mr. C. C. Beaman, Messrs. Evarts, Choate & Beaman, 52 Wall Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR: We merely desire to confirm our message to your clerk on the telephone this afternoon—that Mr. Leonard Lewisohn would like to hear from you at your convenience whether you consider it would be best to re-organize the Old Dominion Copper Company under the laws of Arizona, or whether it would be more advantageous to do so under the laws of some other State.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

W. F."

Exhibit 81, letter of Leonard Lewisohn to Allan W. Evarts, July 5, 1895, as follows:—

"JULY 5, 1895.

Allan W. Evarts, Esq., New York City.

DEAR SIR: Since this morning I have communicated with Mr. A. S. Bigelow, who desires me to have for the first year the following seven directors of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. nominated, namely: Mr. A. S. Bigelow, Mr. Thomas Nelson, Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, Mr. Edgar Suffum, Mr. Moses P. Stephens, Mr. Joseph G. Ray, Mr. J. A. Coram.

Yours very truly, LEONARD LEWISOHN.

L. L."

Exhibit 134, letter of September 20, 1895, Simon H. Stern to Lewisohn Brothers, as follows:—

741 "Stern & Rushmore, Attorneys & Counsellors, 40 Wall Street, New York.

Simon H. Stern.
Charles E. Rushmore.

SEPTEMBER, 20TH, 1895.

DEAR SIR: Referring to your favor of the 3rd of June last I beg to enclose herewith my check for $8600 to cover third and fourth payments for my interests in the Old Dominion Syndicate as they then existed. Kindly acknowledge receipt of same. If you consider any adjustment of interest necessary please let your bookkeeper make a calculation and send it to me, but inasmuch as I anticipated some of the payments it seemed to me it could not make much difference one way or the other. Please also send me such certificates of stock as I am entitled to.

Yours truly, SIMON H. STERN.

Messrs. Lewisohn Brothers, City."

Exhibit 135, letter of Simon H. Stern to Lewisohn Brothers, dated October 4, 1895, as follows:—

"DEAR SIRS: I beg to acknowledge your two favors of even date and certificate No. 349 for 1200 shares of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company stock. I propose now only to acknowledge receipt of the same and to return to you as requested the receipts Nos. 1A, 17A, 80A and 84A, but will write you further in relation to this matter in a day or two.

Yours truly, SIMON H. STERN.

Messrs. Lewisohn Brothers, City."

Exhibit 136, letter dated October 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to John Stanton, as follows:—

"OCT. 4TH, 1895.

John Stanton, Esq., City.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed we hand you Certificate N. 361 for 400 shares capital stock of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting 742 Company, against your subscription to the Syndicate of $5,000—in exchange for which please hand bearer the official receipts which you now hold.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

Rid/F."

Exhibit 137, letter dated October 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Simon H. Stern, as follows:—

"OCT. 4TH, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, 40 Wall Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Herewith we beg to hand you Certificate No. 349 for 1200 shares Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company's capital stock, against your subscription of $15,000 to the Syndicate. Please hand bearer receipts Nos. 1A, 17A, 80A and 84A in exchange for above and oblige.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

Rid/F.

P. S.—Since writing the previous letter annexed hereto, the 1200 shares have come in, and we are sending them to you herewith as above mentioned."

Exhibit 138, letter of October 5, 1895, Executors of the Will of A. W. Spencer, by William A. Gaston, Attorney, to Lewisohn Brothers, as follows:—

"Gaston & Snow, Attorneys & Counsellors-at-Law,
8 Congress Street, Room 4.

BOSTON, October 5, 1895.

Messrs. Lewisohn Brothers, Mr. Adolph Lewisohn, Manager, 81-83 Fulton Street, New York.

DEAR SIRS: The executors of the Will of Mr. Spencer have this day received your letter of October 4th, 1895, and have received Certificate No. 368 for 800 shares of the capital stock of the 743 Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company. We understood we were to receive from you on account of Mr. Spencer's subscription to the Old Dominion Syndicate more than the 800 shares which we have just now received. In your note you mention the terms of subscription. We have not seen the terms of subscription and would be very much obliged to you if you will kindly send us a copy of the same. Mr. A. S. Bigelow is at present out of the city and when he returns we have no doubt he will be able to explain our position to us and give us accurate information as to what amount of shares the estate of Mr. Spencer is entitled to.

Deferring therefore to see Mr. Thomas Nelson and to deliver to him the stock in accordance with your request, we remain

Very truly yours,

EXECUTORS OF THE WILL OF
A. W. SPENCER,
By WILLIAM A. GASTON, Attorney."

Exhibit 152, letter of December 4, 1895, Simon H. Stern to Jesse Lewisohn, as follows:

"DECEMBER 4TH, 1895.

DEAR JESSE: Mr. Root and I had a serious talk to-day in relation to your suggestion made last evening that we accept 600 shares of the Old Dominion Mining Company's stock, and call the matter ended.

While we do not agree with some of your views, nevertheless, we are deeply impressed with what you said concerning your father's wishes in the matter, and there is just this about it; that inasmuch as your father does wish that we should take the 600 shares and consider the thing closed, we will accept it so far as the shares are concerned. There is this one thing, however, which you must do, because it is perfectly right and proper to do, and because I know very well that your father does not wish to get from us anything which we are entitled to have. We paid you $15,000, that being five per cent of the amount which it was then thought L. Bros. would invest. It turns out now, after the matter is all over, that all you did invest was $285,000. Therefore, instead of paying you $15,000 for a five per cent interest, all that we should have paid you was $14,250, and of course it is clear that we are entitled in addition to the 600 shares, to receive a check from you for $750. Kindly send me the 600 shares and the check for $750 to-morrow, during the morning if possible, because Root is going away to-morrow night, and I want to fix up some things with him.

Yours truly,

SIMON H. STERN.

Jesse Lewisohn, Esq., City."

744 Exhibit 162 letter of April 29, 1895, from Leonard Lewisohn to J. Morris Meredith, as follows:

"APRIL 29, 1895.

Mr. J. Morris Meredith, care Messrs. Meredith & Grew, 15 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of the 27th instant at hand.

I am very glad that you have given me the particulars. I will state how the matter occurred with Mr. Stanton. He called at my office here on last Thursday, and in conversation with him I might have answered some of his questions too frankly, as Mr. Stanton always acts so very nicely; but I shall take your advice and be more guarded in future. Hoping to hear from you soon again, I remain,

Yours very truly, LEONARD LEWISOHN.

P. S.—I am trying to get the copper market up to ten cents, and after that hope to get it even higher.

L. L."

Exhibit 174, letter of June 21, 1895, Leonard Lewisohn to A. W. Spencer, as follows:

"JUNE 21, 1895.

Mr. A. W. Spencer, 53 State Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: First and second payments on the $10,000 subscription to Old Dominion Syndicate will amount to the following:

14% on $10,000	$1,400 00
28⅝% on $10,000	2,866 67
Interest from May 28 to June 22, 25 days at 5%	14 81
Total	$4,281 48

Yours truly, LEONARD LEWISOHN.

Per —— ——."

Per —— ——."

Exhibit 187, letter of July 24, 1895, to Simon H. Stern, as follows:

745 "Mr. Simon H. Stern, City.

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new Company at their par value of $25. per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the new Company as proposed.

As a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and, the amount of your subscription being $15,000, you can, if you like, have six hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $15,000.)—in addition to which a further six hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25 a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the six hundred shares first mentioned instead of receiving back the $15,000 which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours,

—— ——."

Exhibit 231, being three double pages Ledger No. 476 and 304, entitled "Old Dominion Copper Company Syndicate," marked "Exhibit 231, May 12, 1906."

Exhibit 232, two double pages, respectively Ledger 536 and Ledger 420, entitled "Old Dominion New Subscription Account," marked "Exhibit 233, May 12, 1906."

Exhibit 233, two double pages, respectively Ledger 479 and Ledger 484, entitled "Old Dominion Syndicate Sub-No. 2," marked "Exhibit 233, May 12, 1906."

Exhibit 258, letter of June 25, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Charles F. Brooker, as follows:

"JUNE 25TH, 1895.

Mr. Charles F. Brooker, c/o Coe Brass Manufacturing Company, Torrington, Ct.

DEAR SIR: The first and second payments on your Five thousand dollars subscription to the Old Dominion Syndicate are now due, as follows:

14% of $5,000	$700 00
28⅔% of $5,000	1,453 33
Interest from May 28th to June 26th—29 days at 5% p. a.
Total amount of first and second payments	$2,141 92

746 The third payment of 28⅔rds per cent will be due August 25th; and the fourth and last payment of 28⅔rds per cent will be due September 24th, with interest at the rate of 5% per annum from May 28th.

Very truly yours, LEWISOHN BROTHERS.
General Manager.

J. R."

Exhibit 267, letter July 12, 1895, Jacob H. Schiff to Leonard Lewisohn, as follows:

"Kuhn, Loeb & Co.
27 & 29 Pine Street.

NEW YORK, July 12th, 1895.

DEAR MR. LEWISOHN: If Mr. Beaman has informed you that the Northern Pacific Underwriting Syndicate is now being formed, he certainly knows more about it than I do. The fact is that so far the proposed combination between the Northern Pacific and Great Northern is very far from having become perfected. I am not aware that we shall have anything to do with the formation of the Syndicate when it is to be formed; in fact, I have not even yet asked for an interest for ourselves, since I am convinced there is no such thing as a Syndicate as yet, nor will be for some time.

I thank you very much for your offer of a participation in the Syndicate which purchases the Old Dominion Copper Mining Shares, but as I have as yet too much money locked up in outside things, I prefer not to avail of your kind offer.

Thanking you, I am,

Yours very truly, JACOB H. SCHIFF.

Leonard Lewisohn, Esq., 81 Fulton St., City."

Exhibit 273, letter of July 24, 1895, to Charles J. Brooker, as follows:

JULY 24th, 1895.

Charles J. Brooker, Esq., Torrington, Ct.

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take 747 shares in the new Company at their par value of $25 per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the new Company, as proposed.

As a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and, the amount of your subscription being $5,000., you can, if you like, have two hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $5,000.)—in addition to which a further two hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25. a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the two hundred shares first mentioned, instead of receiving back the $5,000, which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours, ——— ———."

Exhibit 276, letter of July 25, 1895, to E. Hawley, as follows:—

"JULY 25, 1895.

Mr. E. Hawley,

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate having requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new Company at their par value of $25 per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the New Company as proposed, as a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and the amount of your subscription being $10,000, you can, if you like, have four hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $10,000)—in addition to which a further four hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25 a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the four hundred shares first mentioned instead of receiving back the $10,000 which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours, ——— ———."

748 Exhibit 288, letter of August 6, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to L. Behrens & Sons, as follows:—

"Per St. Louis

Aug. 6, 1895.

Messrs. L. Behrens & Sohne, Hamburg.

Dear Sirs: No doubt you know that copper has advanced considerably lately, and the prospects are rather for a still higher than a lower market. This condition of things has made some of the copper mining enterprises particularly prosperous, and we thought it no harm to direct your attention to the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., which has lately been organized, although the mine had been successfully worked since a number of years; but the Company is now in particularly good condition, owing to large developments which have recently been made and the better transportation facilities, thus enabling the Company to produce their copper lower than ever before and in much larger quantities. The prospect for regular and good-sized dividends is very promising, and some of the leading houses in Europe, like Messrs. N. M. Rothschilds & Sons of London, have lately taken some interest in this Company and bought some of its shares. The shares are quoted, at present, at 83¼, and are likely to be considerably higher soon. If you should wish to interest yourself in this Company and buy some of its shares, please cable us, and we may be able to offer you some of the shares; or, if you prefer, of course you could inquire or buy through other sources. They are dealt in principally in Boston, like the shares of most other copper mining companies. The shares of the Boston & Montana Co., in which we are largely interested, have advanced from $16, 2 years ago, and from $25, about a year ago, to about $100, per share now. We are the agents for the sale of the products of these various companies, as you probably know.

T. H."

Yours very truly,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

A. L."

Exhibit 296, letter of August 20, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to C. S. Henry & Company, as follows:—

749 "August 20, 1895.

Messrs. C. S. Henry & Co., London.

Gentlemen: Enclosed we send you sale note for the 200 shares of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., stock sold to Messrs. Lazarus Sons at $29. Please hand it to them if you agree with same.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Exhibit 305, letter of August 26, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers, to C. S. Henry & Company, as follows:—

"Per Havel.

AUG. 26, 1895.

Messrs. C. S. Henry & Co., London.

DEAR SIRS: In conformity with our reading of your cable gram received to-day, we have booked Mr. G. A. Jamieson for 500 shares of stock of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., at $30., less 5%. Please advise us if this is correct, and oblige,

Yours very truly,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

T. H."

Exhibit 315, letter of September 12, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers, to Sally Mainz, as follows:—

S. S. Lucania."

"SEP. 12TH, 1895.

Mr. Sally Mainz, Hamburg, Germany.

DEAR SIR: We beg to confirm sale to you, by our Mr. Leonard Lewisohn of two hundred (200) shares of stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, at twenty-nine dollars ($29) a share, as per statement herewith.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

Enclo.

Rid-F."

750 Exhibit 335, letter October 1, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Waldemar Caspary, as follows:—

OCT. 1, 1895.

Mr. Waldemar Caspary, 502 Broadway, City.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your check for $31,000. for the purchase of 1,000 shares of stock of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., which we have credited to your account.

Yours very truly,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

H. E."

Exhibit 363, letter October 10, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to A. Iselin & Company, as follows:—

"OCTOBER 10TH, 1895.

Messrs. A. Iselin & Co., 36 Wall Street, City.

GENTLEMEN: We herewith hand you Certificate No. 385 for 500 shares Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. capital stock for account of Banque International, Paris, against payment of $13,500. The certificate is in the name of G. A. Brocknell, whose endorsement we guarantee.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS."

CHARLES F. BROOKER, sworn for complainant.

Direct examination by Mr. MCCLENNEN:

Q. 1361. You reside where?

A. Ansonia, Conn.

Q. 1362. I show you certificate No. 369, for 200 shares of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company in the name of Charles F. Brooker, dated October 3, 1895: is the signature to the endorsement on the back in your handwriting?

A. That is my handwriting.

[Offered in evidence and marked "Complainant's Exhibit 495, May 12, 1906."]

751 Q. 1363. What was the first of the negotiations which led to your acquiring this stock?

A. I could not tell you distinctly from memory what the first was.

Q. 1364. What is the first you now recall?

A. If you will let me tell the story in my own way I think I can give you the whole thing. This is eleven years ago, and I have no books or papers connected with the matter, and it is simply a matter of recollection, and if you will allow me to tell the matter as I remember it I will be glad to go on.

Q. 1365. I wish you would.

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. Some time in 1895, I should say it was in the spring, Mr. Leonard Lewisohn or Mr. Adolph Lewisohn, I can't say which, one or the other, and perhaps both, suggested to me taking an interest in what they called Old Dominion matters, and I agreed to take a $5000 interest in the matter, or the syndicate, or whatever it was they called it. I don't remember; but I agreed to take a $5000 interest, which I did, and the understanding in the matter was that the property had cost $1,000,000, and they proposed to capitalize the company at $2,500,000, and the money we put into it was to be paid back and we were to have an equal amount of stock. That was done. I paid my money, whether I did it all at once or in instalments I don't remember, and have no account of it, but I paid the money and got it back; afterwards I got a certificate for 200 shares of stock, and when I got the certificate I noticed that the company was capitalized for $3,750,000, which I noticed to be different, and I made some inquiry about it and was informed by whomever the powers in authority were that they had concluded to make it $3,750,000 instead of $2,500,000. I accepted it without demur on the ground that I was asked to go into the company and the money I made was because I was asked, and I saw no reason for me to make any row about it; therefore I accepted it. That is all I know about it. Afterwards I sold my stock at whatever the price was; if I remember right, something like $18 or $20 a share, and got out of it. That is the history of my connection with it, and really all I know about it.

[Defendant objects to the answer as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

Q. 1366. Do you remember, after discovering that the corporation was capitalized at $3,750,000 instead of $2,500,000, having a conversation with Leonard Lewisohn?

[Objected to as incompetent and immaterial.]

752 A. I don't remember any particular distinct conversation with Leonard Lewisohn about it or Adolph. I might have asked them what the capitalization was and why it was different from what it started originally. I presume I did, and they told me for some reason or other they made it $3,750,000 instead of $2,500,000. I asked Mr. Bigelow at one time the same question, and he told me that there were expenses connected with the thing which they had not thought of in the first place, and they had concluded to make it $3,750,000, and they did.

[Answer objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

Q. 1367. Did they say what had been or was to be done with the 50,000 shares?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. My recollection about that is more or less indistinct, but I should say that Mr. Bigelow said to me that that was divided up between him and Leonard Lewisohn. I should say that was the statement in connection with it.

Q. 1368. Do you remember whether or not you asked Adolph Lewisohn and he referred you to Leonard?

[Objected to as leading, incompetent, and immaterial.]

A. I could not say whether I asked Adolph first or Leonard first.

Q. 1369. Do you remember whether Leonard referred you to Mr. Bigelow?

A. I don't think he ever did. I don't remember that he ever did.

Q. 1370. Do you remember any conversation on this subject with Albert S. Bigelow, in which he said something to the effect that it was none of his damned business?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and leading.]

A. No, I remember this conversation with Albert Bigelow in connection with the matter.

Q. 1371. What is that?

[Objected to as immaterial, incompetent, and irrelevant.]

A. It may be what you have in mind, and what you have in mind you have gathered from what I told Mr. Smith one day in a conversation at that gentleman's office, and which I had no reason to suppose he would repeat, but he evidently has. I told Mr. Bigelow, 753 when asking him a question—and I remember it because Mr. Smith said that I said it to him—I asked Bigelow and he said if that question had been asked him by some people sitting in that chair he would say it was none of their damned business, but that with me it would be different; and that is probably what you have in your mind and what Mr. Smith possibly brought to you about a confidential conversation which he failed to observe.

[Answer objected to as incompetent and not responsive, and motion to strike out latter part of same.]

Q. 1372. Have you any way of fixing how long it was, before you put in your first money, you had had your conversation with Mr. Lewisohn relating to this subject of capitalization?

A. I have no way of fixing that at all. I have no record of it. This is eleven years ago, and the papers I had at that time have been destroyed.

Q. 1373. I show you a letter of Lewisohn Brothers to you of June 25, 1895, Exhibit 258, and ask you if that would assist you in stating anything about the date of the conversation?

A. No, only it gives me the date on which this letter is written.

Q. 1374. Would it enable you to state whether or not your conversation was before or after that letter? I mean the conversation in which the amount of capital was stated.

A. No, it would not assist me at all.

Q. 1375. Were you given any information as to the laws of the state that this $2,500,000 corporation was to be organized under?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. Nothing more than I have given.

Q. 1376. In view of the objection which Mr. Hemenway has interposed to your answer, I will ask you to state now the conversation which you had with Mr. Bigelow, without reference to what you have said about it to any one else?

A. My recollection of the conversation is, as I said before, that while in Mr. Bigelow's office I made some inquiry as to the amount of its capitalization, and I should say he said to me that "some people sitting where you do I would tell them it was none of their damned business, but that it was different with you," and the capitalization was made $3,750,000, because they found that there were expenses and so on which they did not count on in the beginning, and it was finally made $3,750,000, instead of $2,500,000.

Q. 1377. And in that conversation did he say what was done with the additional 50,000 shares?

A. He said, if I remember correctly, that it was divided between himself and Leonard Lewisohn.

754 NEW YORK, May 23, 1906.

[Hearing resumed this day.]

[Present: The Commissioner and Messrs. McClennen, Hemenway, and Lauterbach.]

SIMON H. STERN, sworn for complainant.

Direct examination by Mr. MCCLENNEN:

Q. 1378. Will you kindly state your full name?

A. Simon H. Stern.

Q. 1379. And you reside where?

A. In the city of New York.

Q. 1380. You are a practising attorney in the city of New York?

A. Yes; I am a member of the firm of Stern & Rushmore.

Q. 1381. Do you recall the bringing out of the Old Dominion in 1895?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. 1382. What was it that first came to your attention in connection therewith?

[Objected to by Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Lauterbach as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.]

A. I first heard of it in a conversation with Mr. Leonard Lewisohn.

Q. 1383. What was that conversation?

[Same objection, and also the special objection that Mr. Lewisohn is dead.]

A. Mr. Leonard Lewisohn asked me to deliver him a certain number of shares of the stock of the Merced Mining Company in consideration of transferring to me an interest to the extent of 5 per cent which the firm of Lewisohn Brothers were to have in a syndicate which it was about acquiring of the entire property of the Old Dominion Company, I think, of Arizona.

Q. 1384. Do you recall whether there was any one else who took part in that conversation, or was present at it?

A. No one was.

Q. 1385. Can you fix the date of that conversation approximately?

A. Possibly by reference to some of my papers [referring to papers]: in April or May of 1895.

Q. 1386. Did Mr. Lewisohn say anything to you with reference to the way in which it was proposed to handle this property?

[Same objection.]

A. He did.

755 Mr. LAUTERBACH: And I would like it understood that I object to any conversation with Mr. Lewisohn on the ground that he is dead.

Q. 1387. What did he say?

A. He said that he and Bigelow of Boston had acquired large interests in the Old Dominion Mining Company and that they were negotiating for the balance of the interest, the Keyser interest, as I recollect it, of Baltimore, and he thought I would be benefited very much indeed by getting an interest in his interest in the enterprise. He may have said "proposition" and not "enterprise."

Q. 1388. Was the arrangement between you and him in writing?

A. Not the arrangement I made with him. We did not go into details. He told me his son Jesse would see me on the subject, he being extremely busy at the time, and it was a hasty talk.

Q. 1389. And all that you have said was done in one conversation, was it?

A. All in one conversation.

Q. 1390. Do you recall anything more of what was said in the conversation?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. Yes, he started out by saying that I ought to let his firm have a certain number of shares of the Merced Mining Company stock at the exact cost of it to me on the ground that before I had purchased it I had asked him for advice, as to whether or not it would be a good thing for me to purchase. I told him that was a most absurd proposition, inasmuch as when I went to him for advice he said he could not advise me, but that if I would turn over my whole subscription for the Merced stock he would take it off my hands. He said, "Of course, I am in a different situation than you are. I go into these things and I win or lose. I lose on one thing and gain on another and it is my business, but you are a lawyer, and this is not your line of business and you may consider that it is unwise to take any chances, therefore I can't give you any advice"—oh, that was in the first interview. I did have two interviews with him. He telephoned me one day and wanted me to give up, I think, 600 shares of Merced mining stock on the ground that he had advised me, and in the second interview I have related what took place.

Q. 1391. Do you think of anything further that occurred?

A. That is all that ever occurred that I can recollect at the moment with Leonard Lewisohn, because he said he would send his son Jesse to me and he would arrange the business with me.

756 Q. 1392. Did Leonard Lewisohn say anything in either of those interviews as to how it was proposed to work out the profit, if any?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. He said that when they acquired the Keyser interest they were going to form a new company and give it a very successful management.

Q. 1393. Did he inform you what amount of capital the company was proposed?

A. He did not.

Q. 1394. Did you subsequently have a conversation with Jesse Lewisohn?

A. I did.

Q. 1395. Where did that occur?

[Same objection.]

A. I had several conversations with Jesse Lewisohn. I think the first was at the Lawyers' Club where Mr. Root, he, and I took luncheon together.

Q. 1396. What, as far as you recall, was said in that interview?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. He started out by telling me that I had not pleased his father. That he was afraid that his father felt aggrieved at my refusal to give him my shares of Merced Mining Company stock at cost to me of the same, saying, that his father was an extremely important man and had many opportunities to favor his friends and that I should have done precisely what the old gentleman had asked me to do without any discussion or argument. I told him that his father, whom he alluded to usually as the "old gentleman" had asked me to do an absurd thing: that there was not the slightest merit in the suggestion that I make him a handsome present of money; that he came very near discouraging me from going into the thing at all by the manner he had treated the subject when I first spoke to him, and I asked him to drop the subject, because it annoyed me. He then began to dicker with me about getting some of my shares of Merced at cost for a 5 per cent interest in the Old Dominion Mining Company scheme with which his firm was connected with Mr. Bigelow. We finally agreed on a lesser number than he had asked for and the document, the original of which I have present, was signed by his firm, and is dated New York, May 31, 1895.

757 Q. 1397. Do you remember whether or not it was signed on that day?

A. That I do not. My best recollection is it was taken away by Jesse Lewisohn and then returned to me by mail; but that I don't really recollect. It may have been returned by messenger boy. I know I got it back.

Q. 1398. Do you know within how near a time to that date it was?

A. I don't remember the date, but I do remember that it was a very short time indeed when I received the document back after I handed it to Jesse Lewisohn.

Q. 1399. May I see the document?

A. You may [producing same].

Mr. McClennen: I offer the document referred to by the witness in evidence as an exhibit.

Mr. Hemenway: I object to the admission of this paper on the ground that so far as Mr. Bigelow is concerned and so far as the issues in this action are concerned, it is incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

The paper is marked "Exhibit 496," and is as follows:

"NEW YORK, May 31, 1895.

For and in consideration of the sum of One Dollar and of other good and valuable considerations we have agreed and do hereby agree with Simon H. Stern that he shall be entitled to an interest equal to five per cent of such interest as we have at present or shall acquire hereafter in the enterprise known at present as The Old Dominion Mining Company of Arizona. Our present investment therein partially paid for and to be paid for hereafter amounts to about $300,000.

LEWISOHN BROTHERS."

Q. 1400. What is the next thing that occurred so far as you now recall after the making of this agreement?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. The next thing that happened was the receipt by me of a letter from Messrs. Lewisohn Brothers and signed by Adolph Lewisohn and Jesse Lewisohn of date June 3, 1895.

[Letter offered in evidence.]

[Objected to on the same grounds.]

The letter is marked "Exhibit 197" and is as follows:

758 "Lewisohn Brothers, 81-83 Fulton Street, New York.

Cable Address: Lohengrin.

P. O. Box 1247.

NEW YORK, June 3, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, 40 Wall Street, New York.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your favor of the first instant we would inform you that the first payment on account of the $15,000 interest you have in the Old Dominion Syndicate was due on the 28th ultimo amounting to $2,100. This first payment is for 14% of the $15,000. The second payment is for 28⅝% due July 26th or $4,300; therefore the total amount of the first and second payment is $6,400, for which you may send us your check, and the amount of the third and fourth payments you can send on your return from Europe.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
A. LEWISOHN, General Manager.
JESSE LEWISOHN.

Third payment 28⅝% and 5% interest is due August 25, 1895. Fourth payment 28⅝% and 5% interest is due September 24, 1895."

The entire letter is typewritten except the words "A. Lewisohn" and "Jesse Lewisohn," and it is written on the printed letterhead of Lewisohn Brothers.

Q. 1401. Have you with you any copy of the letter of June 1 to which this appears to be a reply?

A. I have not a copy of that letter with me, but I can produce it, I have no doubt.

Q. 1402. Have you any recollection of how long a time elapsed between the time of your conference with Leonard Lewisohn and the time of your coming to an actual agreement on paper, as appears by this exhibit of May 31, 1895?

A. It was a short time. The Lewisohns were very eager to get my Merced stock, and, as I recollect it, it was appreciating in the market.

[The letter is objected to as improper and not responsive.]

759 Q. 1403. By "a short time" do you mean a matter of days or weeks?

A. Oh, a few days.

Q. 1404. Now going on. After the letter of June 3, what is the next you had to do with the matter?

[Objected to as immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent.]

Q. 1404½. The next was the receipt of a letter, addressed to me at my office dated July 24, 1895 [producing same].

[Offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Letter marked "Exhibit 498," and is as follows, being written on the printed letterhead of Lewisohn Brothers:—

"81—83 Fulton Street,

Cable Address: Lohengrin, P. O. Box 1247, New York.

JULY 24TH, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, City.

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new Company at their par value of $25 per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the new Company as proposed.

As a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and, the amount of your subscription being $15,000., you can, if you like, have six hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $15,000)—in addition to which a further six hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25. a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the six hundred shares first mentioned instead of receiving back the $15,000. which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours,

LEONARD LEWISOHN,
ADOLPH LEWISOHN, Mng."

760 WITNESS: When this letter came to my office I was in Europe.

Q. 1405. What is the next?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. The next thing was the receipt at my office, either by me personally or by my representative, I can't now recall whether I had returned from Europe at that time or not, of a letter dated September 20, 1895 [producing same].

[Offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Letter marked "Exhibit 499," and is as follows, same printed letterhead, and dated:—

SEPTEMBER 20TH, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, 40 Wall Street, City.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed we hand you official receipts Nos. 80 and 81 covering third and fourth payments against your subscription of $15,000 to the Old Dominion Syndicate. The amount of interest due from May 28th to date at 5% per annum is One hundred and twenty-four Dolalrs and eighty-two cents ($124.82) which please remit at your convenience and it will close your subscription.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS.

J. L. A. LEWISOHN, General Manager.

N. B.—On reference to your letter of June 3rd you will note interest therein charged on first and second payments and above interest only applies to third and fourth payments aggregating $8,600."

[All typewritten except the words, "A. Lewisohn" and "J. L.," which are in handwriting.]

Q. 1406. Have you the answer to the letter of July 24, Exhibit 498?

A. Yes, sir [producing same].

[Letter offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Marked "Exhibit 500," and is as follows:—

"DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 24th inst. to Simon H. Stern, Esq. relative to the matter of the Old Dominion Syndicate 761 and the allotment of shares in the new company has been received. I have Mr. Stern's instructions to notify you, and I hereby do so, that he desires that his subscription should remain and that he should receive the stock to which he will be entitled as per your favor referred to and pursuant to the agreement heretofore made between Lewisohn Brothers and himself relative to the Old Dominion enterprise, it being understood that the acceptance of the option contained in your letter of the 24th is to be of course without prejudice to the original agreement with Mr. Stern referred to. Very truly yours,

CHARLES E. RUSHMORE.
For Simon H. Stern.

Leonard Lewisohn, Esq.,
Adolph Lewisohn, Esq., New York City."

Q. 1407. Who is Mr. Rushmore?

A. He was my partner, and attorney, in fact.

Q. 1408. Now after the letter of September 20, Exhibit 499, what was the next thing that occurred?

[Same objection.]

A. A letter of October 4, 1895 [producing same].

[Offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Marked "Exhibit 501," being on the same printed letterhead, and is as follows:—

"OCT. 4TH, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, 40 Wall Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Herewith we beg to hand you Certificate No. 349 for 1200 shares Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company's capital stock, against your subscription of $15,000, to the Syndicate.

Please hand bearer receipts Nos. 1A, 17A, 80A and 84A in exchange for above and oblige,

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS.
ADOLPH LEWISOHN,
General Manager.

Rid/f

P. S.—Since writing the previous letter annexed hereto, the 1200 shares have come in, and we are sending them to you herewith as above mentioned."

762 Q. 1409. What amount of money did you, in fact, pay to Lewisohn Brothers in this matter?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. June 4, $6400; September 20, $8724.82; a total of $15,124.82.

Q. 1410. After the letter of October 4, what is the next?

[Same objection.]

A. In the way of letters or conversations?

Q. 1411. Either; letters or conversations.

A. Here is another letter I received dated October 4 [producing same].

[Offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Marked "Exhibit 52," and is as follows. It is written on the same printed letterhead and dated,—

"NEW YORK, October 4th, 1895.

Mr. Simon H. Stern, 40 Wall Street, New York.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of yours of October 3rd. We directed our Boston friends a few days ago to issue the 1200 shares stock which you are entitled to under the subscription. We expect to receive the stock to-day or to-morrow, when we will send the stock to you promptly. In regard to balance, as our Mr. Jesse Lewisohn has already informed you, we are entitled to about 12,000 shares, so you will get 5%, 600 extra, which will be sent to you as soon as received. The reason that we could not tell you the exact amount of these shares is that it has not been determined yet exactly how much of the shares has to be given to the party who brought about the deal, and our Boston friends besides may not know, and we are abiding by their action. Trusting this information will be satisfactory, we remain

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS.
ADOLPH LEWISOHN,
General Manager."

Q. 1412. In this letter reference is made to information already given you by Mr. Jesse Lewisohn; have you any recollection relative to that matter?

A. Yes.

763 Q. 1413. Did you have some conversation with Jesse Lewisohn?

A. I did.

Q. 1414. What was the conversation?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

A. I asked him the meaning of it and said that I could not understand how his firm could claim that I was only entitled to 1200 shares of stock being 5 per cent of the syndicate, and I related to him things I had heard concerning the original capitalization that was contemplated, and the reason of it, and I said, "This don't look right, and it doesn't satisfy me, and I want to get a detailed account of the interest of Lewisohn Brothers in the Old Dominion Mining Company." He promised me that at one time, but he never gave it to me, nor anybody else connected with Lewisohn Brothers, and I am ignorant to this day as to the final result of Lewisohn Brothers' participation in that syndicate, nor how they worked out the details.

[The answer of the witness is objected to on the ground that it is a commentary by him and not responsive.]

Q. 1415. Did Jesse Lewisohn or Lewisohn Brothers ever furnish you the account?

[Same objection.]

A. They did not. It was promised me several times by Jesse

Lewisohn, although they assured me at the time it was absolutely accurate.

Q. 1416. Did you ever have any conversation with either Leonard or Adolph Lewisohn on this subject?

A. I did not.

Q. 1417. Were you ever informed, from any source, as to the amount of stock received by Lewisohn Brothers or Leonard Lewisohn in this transaction before the beginning of the present suits?

[Objected to as immaterial, incompetent, and irrelevant.]

A. I was.

Q. 1418. When did you get that information?

[Same objection.]

A. In December, 1895, the early part thereof, Jesse Lewisohn informed me that an accurate calculation of my 5 per cent interest in that syndicate amounted to a certain number of shares, I think 600, and then in a letter of December 5, signed on behalf of Lewisohn Brothers by Mr. Adolph Lewisohn, general manager, 764 Q. 1419. Have you that letter?

A. Yes, and I was again informed [producing letter].

[Letter offered in evidence. Same objection.]

Marked "Exhibit 503," and is as follows, being written on the same letterhead and dated December 5, 1895:—

"Mr. Simon H. Stern, City.

DEAR SIR: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of December 4th and send you herewith accordingly 600 shares of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company stock in full settlement of your entire interest in the Old Dominion Mining Company matter. Please acknowledge receipt of enclosure on the accompanying form, and oblige

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
ADOLPH LEWISOHN,
General Manager.

Q. 1420. Your letter of December 4, referred to in Exhibit 503, has already been put in evidence as Exhibit 152, on page 187 of the testimony, and in that you refer to Jesse Lewisohn's suggestion that you accept 600 shares. Will you relate the conversation referred to?

[Same objection.]

A. Substantially it was that he asserted that that was all I was entitled to as my syndicate interest, and I told him I did not believe him. That I wanted an account, and he told me that his father was ill—I don't know whether I told him I would see his father or not on the subject, but I did not believe him at all, and I expected to get from his father the truth. He begged me very hard not to disturb his father. He said his father was a sick man, and that he would look into it again, and protested very warmly that there wasn't anything in the world he would not do for me, if he could; that they would rather decide a doubt against themselves than against me.

Q. 1421. Now subsequent to that time, and up to the time of the beginning of these suits in October, 1902, had you received any further information on the subject?

[Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.]

765 A. None whatever.

Q. 1422. From any source?

A. From no source.

Q. 1422. Does what you have testified to cover substantially all of your connection with this matter in 1895?

A. Substantially, yes. I met Jesse Lewisohn frequently. We were in the neighborhood, and met him at Delmonico's and luncheon places, and he used to have talks with me, and the burden of his song was usually that I was going to do very well. He was a very cheerful young man.

In the course of taking depositions before Howland Twombly, Esq., notary public, at 161 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass., October 31, 1907.

Appearances:

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., for the plaintiff.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., and Eugene Treadwell, Esq., and J. Wells Farley, Esq., for the defendants.

George C. Burpee, stenographer.

Correspondence Introduced by Defendants.

Mr. Hemenway: There was produced at the taking of depositions in New York pertaining to these cases, a list of papers which were examined by counsel for plaintiffs (they being produced by the defendants' counsel) and a list marked "Exhibit A, B, D," was produced, numbered from 1 to 494. I will now, on behalf of the defendants, offer in evidence certain letters that were then identified. And the first letter that I will offer of that evidence is numbered 22, Lewisohn to Belches. (To Mr. Farley.) Will you read that letter?

[It was agreed between counsel that in place of the witness reading this and other letters to be offered, the stenographer should copy into the record the letters introduced as evidence.]

[The letter numbered 22 is as follows:]

"June 5th, 1895.

Mr. J. W. Belches, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir: The first instalment of 11 per cent., of your subscription of Five thousand dollars to the Old Dominion Syndi-766 cate, is now due. Kindly therefore remit us the amount of $700, to cover the first instalment, at your convenience, and oblige.

The subsequent payments will be as follows:

2nd instalment,	July 26th:	.....	28 2/3%	$1,433 33
3rd do.	Aug. 25th:	.....	do.	$1,433 33
4th do.	Sep. 24th:	.....	do.	$1,433 34

To the second, third and fourth instalments interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum will have to be added.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: The next letter is No. 181, Lewisohn to Belches.

Mr. TREADWELL: You have stated that wrongly, Mr. Hemenway, it is Belches to Lewisohn.

[The letter numbered 181 is as follows.]

"BOSTON, July 15, 1895.

Messrs. Lewisohn Bros., New York.

GENTLEMEN: We enclose herewith check for $4,328.67 amt. due on $5,000 block Old Dominion to pay in full. We understood you allowed us but $5,000, but your telegram gives figures on $10,000 block undoubtedly. Which is correct? We think the new stock will be quickly taken—have ourselves already booked several subscriptions.

Resp'y,

J. W. BELCHES & CO."

Mr. HEMENWAY: Then Nos. 158 and 159.

Mr. TREADWELL: Mr. Hemenway, I will call your attention that one of those is a copy of the other.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Is not one a carbon?

Mr. TREADWELL: No, it is not a carbon, it is a copy, marked "copy."

Mr. HEMENWAY: If they are identically the same, we will put in only 158.

[The letter numbered 158 is as follows:]

767 "The Old Dominion Copper Company in Account with Baltimore Copper Smelting & Rolling Co.

Dr.

To Balance June 1st		$3,512.62
" draft from Globe		$2,500.00
" June Expenses Baltimore		$1,316.68
" draft from Globe	$1,700.00
	621.30
		$1,078.70
" June Salaries, Globe Supt.	300.00
Asst. Supt.	200.00
		$500.00
		$8,938.00

Cr.

By overcharge a/cs collected—
Southern Pacific Company	$571.30
H. C. Frick Company	134.50
	$705.80
" cash from L. Lewisohn	$8,232.20
		$8,938.00"

Mr. HEMENWAY: 142 and 143, Keyser to Lewisohn.

Mr. TREADWELL: No. 142 is with enclosures. The second page of No. 143 is out of order. The second page will be found after No. 148.

[The letters numbered 142 and 143 are as follows:]

"BALTIMORE, Nov. 2nd, 1895.

Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, New York City.

DEAR SIR: We have your favor of the 1st, enclosing Ladenburg-Thalman & Co.'s receipt for $8,000 in full settlement of their claim against me. I am also advised by my Counsel that the details connected with the dismission of the suit have been settled and I now have the pleasure of sending you herewith Draft on New York for $1,263.52 in settlement of all matters open between us as shown in the accompanying statement, which I trust will explain themselves.

The first statement shows the winding up of your affairs in connection with the Old Stock-holders of the Old Dominion 768 Copper Company, in which statement you will note that they paid to the Baltimore Copper S. & R. Co. $8,232.20 in settlement of the balance due that Company as of June 1st, and the amounts advanced by that Company to the Old Dominion Copper Company for expenses, etc., after June 1st, in accordance with our understanding at the time.

The second statement is of the Old Dominion Copper Company in account with the Baltimore Copper S. & R. Co., which will tie in with the books of the former Company sent at your request to Boston. I also enclose papers from Globe, Vouchers, etc., covering the various items paid for the account of the Old Dominion Copper Co. as shown in the statement.

Trusting this will be found in order, I remain,

Yours very truly,

WM. KEYSER,
Per R. BRENT KEYSER.

Leonard Lewisohn in Account with Old Stockholders, Old Dominion Copper Company.

Cr.

By Ladenburg, Thalman settlement	$8,000.00
" Balance due as per William Keyser's letter of June 20th, 1895	$1,495.72
	$9,495.72

Dr.

To Cash paid Baltimore Copper S. & R. Company, a/c Old Dominion Copper Company	$8,232.20
To Check herewith	$1,263.52
		$9,495.72

"BALTIMORE, Nov. 6th, 1895.

Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Replying to your letter of the 4th instant, you wi find that I sent you a statement of the Old Dominion Copper Co pany's affairs, separate from any relations we had together, havi had the B. C. S. & R. Company pay all money for their accoun If you will, therefore, turn over to the Old Dominion Copper Co pany the statement of the account between it and the Baltimo Copper S. & R. Co., which I sent you, and have this statemer posted into its books, it will, I think, enable you to understand th matter fully.

769 Referring to the explanation requested in regard to th gross amount being charged on the pay-rolls for June, yo will find that these statements, also, tie in with the Old Dominio Copper Company's books. You will remember that the transfer the property was made by a change of stockholders, and that as fa as the books of the Company are concerned, no change took plac You state that you have no voucher for the balance due to the Balt more Copper S. & R. Co. June 1st—$3542.62. This balance appea upon the Old Dominion Copper Company's ledger as a credit to th B. C. S. & R. Co. as of that date.

In regard to the June vouchers for salaries of Superintendent an Asst. Superintendent at Globe, I would state that you would prob ably find them at Globe, as they have not been sent to us here. Yo must remember that you took charge there on June 20th, and a payments, etc., after that date were attended to by your own people we merely paying their drafts as an accommodation to you. W held the papers which they sent us from time to time, until the 2n instant, when we forwarded on everything that had been receive

Yours very truly,

WM. KEYSER."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 60.

Mr. TREADWELL: No. 60 is from William Keyser to Leonar Lewisohn.

[The letter numbered 60 is as follows:]

"The Old Dominion Copper Mining Company of Baltimore City.
Office, Keyser Building, German and Calvert Sts.

BALTIMORE, June 20th, 1895.

Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, New York City.

DEAR SIR: I hand you herewith the balance sheet of the Old D minion Copper Company as of June 19th, 1895. This, of cours does not include any of the expenditures at Globe since June 1st. You will note that the only claim against the Company, shown by the balance sheet, is a loan by the

Baltimore Copper Smelting & Rolling Company.....		$3,542 62
This offsets the Cash at Globe, June 1st.....	$131 10 and the Overcharge Account of.....	705 80
		2,046 90
Leaving a balance of.....		$1,495 72

770 which balance, we are to make good to you, personally, either in cash or by credits allowed us under our agreement. We are, also, to make good to you the $705.80 overcharge account, if the money should not be collected from the Railroad Companies.

Yours truly,

WM. KEYSER.
p. p. R. BRENT KEYSER."

Mr. HEMENWAY: And No. 124.

Mr. TREADWELL: This is from Lewisohn Brothers to R. Brent Keyser, dated August 12, 1895.

[The letter numbered 124 is as follows:]

"AUG. 12TH, 1895.

Mr. R. Brent Keyser, Baltimore, Md.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your favor of the 10th, we herewith return your letter from Mr. Louis Walker and the requisition for July.

We will be obliged to you if you will pay the expenses and, as you say, take all these unsettled financial matters up at one time.

We note in the requisition 'expenses Joseph Campbell, $600, account of the old management.'

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: Now No. 172.

Mr. TREADWELL: That is dated June 5, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to John Stanton, Esq.

[The letter numbered 172 is as follows:]

"JUNE 5TH, 1895.

John Stanton, Esq., City.

DEAR SIR: The first installment of 14 per cent., of your subscription of Five thousand dollars to the Old Dominion Syndicate, is now due. Kindly remit us therefore the amount of $700 to cover the first installment, at your convenience, and oblige.

The subsequent payments will be as follows:

771 2nd installment, July 26th; 28 2/3% $1,433 33
3rd do. Aug. 25th; do. $1,433 33
4th do. Sep. 24th; do. $1,433 34

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager.

J. R.

To the second, third and fourth installments interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per ann. will have to be added."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 136.

Mr. TREADWELL: That is dated October 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to John Stanton.

[The letter numbered 136 is as follows:]

OCT. 4TH, 1895.

John Stanton, Esq., City.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed we hand you Certificate #361, for 400 shares capital stock of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, against your subscription to the Syndicate of $5,000.—in exchange for which please hand bearer the official receipts which you now hold.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 183.

Mr. TREADWELL: Dated July 19, 1895, Leonard Lewisohn to John Stanton.

[The letter numbered 183 is as follows:]

"NEW YORK, July 19th, 1895.

Old Dominion Syndicate.

DEAR SIR: The second installment of 28⅔rds per cent. of your subscription of $5000.00 to the Old Dominion Syndicate, is called for payment July 26th instant.

Your pro-rata amount is 1433.34 ..... $1433 34 and, adding interest at 5% p. a. from May 28th last 11 94

The total sum called for on second instalment is .. $1445 28

Very truly yours,

LEONARD LEWISOHN,
Per JESSE LEWISOHN.

John Stanton, Esqr."

772 Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 364.

Mr. TREADWELL: Charles F. Brooker to Lewisohn Brothers, dated October 10, 1895.

[The letter numbered 364 is as follows:]

"TORRINGTON, CONN., U. S. A., Oct. 10, 1895.

Messrs. Lewisohn Bros., New York City.

GENTLEMEN: On my return this morning, I have yours of the 5th inst. enclosing check for $2,123.05, as stated by you, in settlement of the Old Dominion Syndicate account, which I find to be correct, and very satisfactory, and herewith enclose official receipt as requested.

I also have with the same enclosure, Certificate #369 for 200 shares Old Dominion stock—for all of which I am very much obliged.

Very truly yours,

CHAS. F. BROOKER."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 356.

Mr. TREADWELL: Lewisohn Brothers to Charles F. Brooker, dated October 5, 1895.

[The letter numbered 356 is as follows:]

"OCT. 5, 1895.

Mr. Chas. F. Brooker, Torrington, Conn.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed please find certificate No. 369 for 200 shares of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company's stock made out in your name; also statement showing a credit balance of $2,123.05, being your first and second payments on subscription — the syndicate, less interest on third and fourth payments, for which amount we enclose our check, receipt of which please acknowledge, and oblige,

Yours very truly,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 258.

Mr. TREADWELL: Lewisohn Brothers to Charles F. Brooker, dated June 25, 1895.

[The letter numbered 258 is as follows:]

773 "JUNE 25TH, 1895.

Mr. Charles F. Brooker, c/o Coe Brass Manufacturing Company, Torrington, Ct.

DEAR SIR: The first and second payments on your Five thousand dollars subscription to the Old Dominion Syndicate are now due, as follows:—

14% of $5,000.	$700 00
28¾% of $5,000.	1,433 33
Interest from May 28th to June 26th—29 days at 5% p. a.	8 59
Total amounts of first and second payments	$2,141 92

The third payment of 28¾rds per cent. will be due August 25th; and the fourth and last payment of 28¾rds per cent. will be due September 24th, with interest at the rate of 5% per annum from May 28th.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 273.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated June 24, 1895, Thalmann to Charles J. Brooker.

[The letter numbered 273 is as follows:]

"JULY 24TH, 1895.

Chas. J. Brooker, Esq., Torrington, Ct.

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new Company at their par value of $25 per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the new Company, as proposed.

As a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and, the amount of your subscription being $5,000, you can, if you like, have two hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $5,000) —in addition to which a further two hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25 a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the two hundred shares first mentioned, instead of receiving back the 774 $5,000, which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours,

—— ——."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 275.

Mr. TREADWELL: A letter dated July 25, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to H. Wallerstein.

[The letter numbered 275 is as follows:]

JULY 25TH, 1895.

H. Wallerstein, Esq., City.

DEAR SIR: We beg to confirm that we have subscribed for your account for five hundred (500) shares of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company's stock at $25 a share, which we expect will be delivered about October 1st, when one payment will be required.

Please confirm.

Very truly yours,

LEWISOHN BROTHERS,
General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 291.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated August 6, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to H. Wallerstein.

[The letter numbered 291 is as follows:]

AUGUST 6TH, 1895.

Mr. H. Wallerstein, c/o Mr. D. Wallerstein, City.

DEAR SIR: The following will give you a little idea of the prospects of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company.

This mine, under the name of the Old Dominion Copper Company, has been in operation for the last 14 years, making copper right along called the Old Dominion copper containing about 97½ per cent. pure copper. This copper has been sold mostly to France and Germany, and some to England of late years; therefore the brand is known all over. It is a very pure copper.

The ores from which this copper is made are mostly carbonates, which ores are materially better than the sulphates, which is the product of the Montana mines. The sulphate ores have first 775 to be concentrated, which costs quite something, and the plant itself is very costly indeed; then it has to be roasted in order to get the impurities out, like arsenic, sulphur, etc.; then, after it is roasted, it has to be made into a matte of about 45 to 50 per cent. copper.

Now, these carbonate ores, of which the Old Dominion mines has enormous quantities opened up now, are ready to be taken out at a moment; and there is quite a lot on the dump. They have simply to be thrown into a blast furnace and 97½ per cent copper is made without any concentrating or roasting. Naturally it is much cheaper to produce and needs nothing like such an expensive plant.

The new company, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, has all the furnaces and everything ready for making a larger production, and we have $500,000 in cash in the treasury of the company, to be used to add new furnaces and make the production even larger. There is no question about it that the company will be able to declare dividends within six months.

We are not at present making much copper as the railroad will be in Globe, at the mines, sometime late this autumn. The railroad is now 60 miles away—to which distance it was only finished a little while ago from a former distance of 120 miles.

The old company has always made money and made copper very cheap, even hauling in coke 120 miles and bringing out the copper the same distance by mule teams, which was naturally very expensive and on which we will effect an enormous saving.

We believe that the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company will produce cheaper copper than any other copper mine in this country—including the Calumet & Hecla, Anaconda and Boston & Montana.

We expect to have a report from the different Engineers who have examined the mine carefully a month or two ago, shortly, and we can then give you further particulars.

Very truly yours, LEWISOHN BROTHERS.

General Manager."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 134.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated September 20, 1895, Simon H. Stern to Lewisohn Brothers.

776 [The letter numbered 134 is as follows:]

"SEPTEMBER 20TH, 1895.

DEAR SIRS: Referring to your favor of the 3rd of June last I beg to enclose herein my check for $8600 to cover the third and fourth payments for my interests in the Old Dominion Syndicate as they then existed. Kindly acknowledge receipt of same. If you consider any adjustment of interest necessary please let your bookkeeper make a calculation and send it to me; but inasmuch as I anticipated some of the payments it seemed to me it could not make much difference one way or the other.

Please also send me such certificate of stock as I am entitled to.

Yours truly, SIMON H. STERN.

Mess. Lewisohn Brothers, City."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 94.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated July 12, 1895, A. W. Evarts to Leonard Lewisohn.

[The letter numbered 94 is as follows:]

"NEW YORK, July 12, 1895.

DEAR MR. LEWISOHN: I enclose deed from you to the Old Dominion C. M. & S. Co. The certificates of organization and the appointment of an agent required by Arizona law to be filed before any business can be done in that territory went by last night's registered mail to be filed & I requested telegraph notice to be sent of their filing which should reach here by Thursday of next week. It would be better not to execute this deed from you to the company until these papers are filed—but if you are to be away for any length of time it can be executed and left by you with me to be delivered later when the deed from the Baltimore Co. is delivered.

If you conclude to execute today, please have two witnesses and acknowledge before a Notary Public who should affix his seal.

Yours very truly, A. W. EVARTS.

Leonard Lewisohn, Esqr., 81 Fulton St."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 95.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated July 12, 1895, to Allan W. Evarts.

777 [The letter numbered 95 is as follows:]

"JULY 12, 1895.

Allen W. Evarts, Esq., 52 Wall Street, City.

DEAR SIR: Please find enclosed herewith deed from me to the Old Dominion Copper Smelting & Mining Co., which has been executed in accordance with the directions contained in your favor of even date.

Yours very truly, —— ——."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 276.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated July 25, 1895, to E. Hawley.

[The letter numbered 276 is as follows:]

"JULY 25, 1895.

Mr. E. Hawley.

DEAR SIR: A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate having requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new Company at their par value of $25 per share, instead of having the amount of their subscription returned to them from the proceeds of sale of stock in the new Company as proposed, as a subscriber to the Syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request; and the amount of your subscription being $10,000, you can, if you like, have four hundred shares of stock in the new Company (instead of the return of your $10,000)—in addition to which a further four hundred shares in the new Company (equalling the amount of your subscription at $25 a share) will be allotted to you.

If you wish to avail yourself of the option of taking the four hundred shares first mentioned instead of receiving back the $10,000 which you subscribed to the Syndicate, you must notify me in writing on or before Saturday next the 27th instant, after which date this option will positively expire.

Very truly yours, —— ——."

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. 244.

Mr. TREADWELL: Letter dated May 24, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Adolph Lewisohn.

[The letter numbered 244 is as follows:]

"NEW YORK, May 24th, 1895.

Adolph Lewisohn, Esq., London.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Meredith got back from Baltimore yesterday and had a conference of a couple of hours' duration with Mr.
778 Keyser, but is none the wiser as to whether this gentleman intends to let us have his two-sevenths of the Old Dominion or not. He intimates that if we make it a different Company with a higher capitalization he would probably not remain in; but he has not decided and is not compelled to decide for sixty days. Having three Directors out of five, they control; and we would have to get one of these Directors on our side—otherwise they would have the running of the Company until next February, when a Meeting will be held and new Directors appointed.

We will have to take our chances on this matter, and we hope he will act fairly.

Mr. Lieberman of Arizona is one of the Directors, we understand, and Mr. Leonard Lewisohn believes we will be able to win him over.

Mr. Simpson also promised to help us in gaining our point there, and it is probable that this matter will right itself in course of time, as it is not likely that Keyser will be very mean when there is not much for him to gain thereby.

Very truly yours, LEWISOHN BROTHERS.
General Manager."

Stipulation.

It is agreed that the deposition of this witness shall be taken stenographically; also that either party may use this deposition when filed.

Deposition of Joseph F. Costello.

JOSEPH F. COSTELLO, being first duly sworn, in answer to interrogatories propounded by J. WELLS FARLEY, Esq., counsel for the defendants, the witness deposes and says.—

Q. 1. What is your full name?
A. Joseph F. Costello.
Q. 2. Where do you live?
A. Dorchester; 31 East street.
Q. 3. What is your present occupation?
A. I am a reporter for the "Boston News Bureau."
Q. 4. What are these two books that I now show you, marked on the outside, "Boston News Bureau, Vol. 17, July 1st, 1895, to Sept 31, 1895," and "Boston News Bureau, Vol. 16, Jan. 1, 1895, to June 30, 1895," respectively?
A. Those are two bound volumes of the "Boston News Bureau" summaries.
779 Q. 5. Where did you find them?
A. Those came from our vault.
Q. 6. By whom were you directed to bring them here?
A. Mr. Herbert M. Cole.
Q. 7. Who is Mr. Herbert M. Cole?
A. He is the manager in the absence of Mr. C. W. Barron.
Q. 8. Where is Mr. Barron?
A. Where is he now?
Q. 9. Yes.
A. I do not know where Mr. Barron is.
Q. 10. Is he present at or absent from the office?
A. He is absent from the office.
Q. 11. Will you turn to the issue of Saturday, May 25, 1895, and, looking on the last page of that issue (the pages not being numbered), read, or see that I read correctly, the item in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.]

Mr. HEMENWAY: This evidence is offered simply for the sake of showing the publicity of these transactions.

Mr. BRANDEIS: The admissibility of the evidence for any purpose is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The syndicate that holds an option on five-sevenths of the Dominion copper mine of Arizona will also take the other two-sevenths as soon as arrangements can be made. The syndicate that has taken hold of this property comprises only five or six parties, and there is no intention of placing any stock on the market."

Q. 12. Will you now turn to the issue of Wednesday, May 29, 1895, and, looking on the first page thereof, read the item in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The Syndicate that holds an option on five-sevenths of the Old Dominion Copper Mining Co. of Arizona closed the same yesterday and will probably later take the other two-sevenths controlled by Mr. Kaiser of the Baltimore Smelting Co. and his friends.

780 Mr. Dodge of Phelps, Dodge & Co. while a large holder or Arizona copper mines securities, is not interested in the Old Dominion.

No plans in regard to the mine have been formulated as yet. The mine is already equipped with machinery.

This mine in no way controls the Arizona copper outputs as reported. Arizona last year produced 44,000,000 lbs. of copper, of which Old Dominion produced about 4,000,000 lbs. Its largest production in one year was 7,500,000 lbs."

Q. 13. Will you now turn to the issue of Friday, May 31, 1895, and, looking on the last page thereof, read the item in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The purchase of the Old Dominion copper mine has been concluded, and property has passed into the hands of the Bigelow-Lewisohn syndicate."

Q. 14. Will you now turn to the issue of June 13, 1895, and, looking on the first page thereof, read the item in regard to the Old Dominion Copper Company?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion Copper Co.

Boston—The Sears building people have received final word that the minority interests of the Old Dominion Copper Co. will sell the last two-sevenths of the property at the price paid for the major interest."

Q. 15. Will you now turn to the issue of June 20, 1895, and looking on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to the Old Dominion Copper Company?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

781 "Old Dominion.

Boston—Payment was made today to the Old Colony Trust Co. for the two-sevenths interest in the Old Dominion Co. held by Baltimore people.

Boston—$2000, or 2%, has been bid for a $10,000 subscription to Old Dominion Copper Co."

Q. 16. Will you now turn to the issue of June 24, 1895, and, looking at that issue of June 24, 1895, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—We understand that the Old Dominion Copper Co. will be reorganized with capital stock of 100,000 shares, par value $25."

Q. 17. Will you now turn to the issue of June 25, 1895, and, looking at that issue of June 25, 1895, on the first page, read the item that there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—Nothing has been actually done by the trustees of the Old Dominion Copper Co. as yet regarding the organization or capitalization of the company."

Q. 18. Will you now turn to the issue of July 9, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Tuesday, July 9, 1895, read the item that there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—It is not true that Mr. Lewisohn took one-half of the Old Dominion Copper Co. subscription. He took one-half of the five-sevenths, but Boston not only took one-half of the five-sevenths but two-thirds of the two-sevenths.

It is understood that there will be 150,000 shares of the 782 par value of $25 in the new Co. although this is not yet settled, in fact the concern is not yet a public affair and subscriptions are non negotiable.

It is a fact, however, that Boston will have the larger interest in the property and it is understood that Hon. Moses T. Stevens of North Andover and Hon. Joseph G. Ray of Franklin will be directors in the new company, and also Henry M. Whitney of Boston."

Q. 19. Will you now turn to the issue of July 10, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Wednesday, July 10, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item that there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—New York interests are bidding a premium of 75% for Old Dominion subscriptions and it is figured that subscribers will get their money all back which would make their stock left all gain.

Good judges say that the Old Dominion can produce copper cheaper than any mine in this country. It is believed that if the mine has railroad facilities it can lay down copper in New York at 4c. per pound.

The Old Dominion has always been a paying property. It has paid as high as 20% on its capital stock when its ore had to be carted 120 miles."

Q. 20. Will you now turn to the issue of July 11, 1895, and, looking at that issue, on the first page thereof, read the item that there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The subscribers of the Old Dominion Copper Co. will probably receive back their money and 40,000 shares in the new organization. There will be offered for subscription 60,000 shares at $25 per share; 40,000 shares to furnish the $1,000,000 paid to original subscribers and 20,000 shares to furnish $500,000 working capital."

Q. 21. Will you now turn to the issue of July 12, 1895,
783 and, looking at that issue of Friday, July 12, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The following were elected yesterday directors of the 'new' Old Dominion Copper Co.: A. S. Bigelow, Thos. Nelson and Henry M. Whitney of Boston, A. W. Evarts of New York, Jos. G. Ray of Franklin, Leonard Lewisohn of New York, Edgar Buffum of New Jersey. A. S. Bigelow, president, and Thos. Nelson, treasurer. It was necessary in order to obtain a quorum to make Mr. Evarts a director, but he will be succeeded by Moses T. Stevens."

Q. 22. Will you now turn to the issue of July 19, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Friday, July 19, 1895, and looking on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—A small lot of Old Dominion sold at 30 this morning. Of the 150,000 shares of this company, 20,000 shares have been sold at 25 to give the corporation a working capital of $500.00."

Q. 23. Will you now turn to the issue of July 20, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Saturday, July 20, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The Old Dominion subscriptions will be allotted about Aug. 1."

Q. 24. Will you now turn to the issue of July 22, 1895, and, looking at that issue for Monday, July 22, 1895, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

784 A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The following letter has been issued to the Old Dominion syndicate:

'A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion Syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new company at their par value of $25, in lieu of the money which they originally advanced, and which was to be repaid to them from the proceeds of the sales of the new stock. As a subscriber to the syndicate you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request. If you wish to avail yourself of this opportunity, you must notify me in writing on or before Aug. 1, 1895, after which date this option will positively expire.

A. S. BIGELOW."

Q. 25. Will you now turn to the issue of July 25, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Thursday, July 25, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to the Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—Members of the original syndicate in the Old Dominion subscription are very generally taking advantage of the option accorded them to take the new stock."

Q. 26. Will you now turn to the issue of August 3, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Saturday, August 3, 1895, on the last page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to the Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—Subscriptions to the Old Dominion copper shares at $25 per share are understood to have exceeded 100,000 shares. As all the members of the syndicate elected to keep their stock in preference to parting with it at $25 per share, the subscribing brokerage houses will get nothing outside of their syndicate subscription.

785 Of the 20,000 shares taken at $25 per share for working capital by the original purchasing syndicate a small amount may be surrendered to friends of the Co., but there is no placing of the stock abroad and practically no allotment on the public subscription."

Q. 27. Will you now turn to the issue of the 6th of August, and, looking at that issue of Tuesday, August 6, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to the Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—Mr. Lewisohn estimates that the Old Dominion will in time be as large a producer of copper and as valuable a property as the Boston & Montana. He says it can produce copper at as low a cost as the Montana.

When Mr. Lewisohn secured through Mr. Meredith of Meredith & Grew the option upon five-sevenths of the Old Dominion property from the Simpson estate upon the basis of $1,000,000, the Baltimore Smelting people owning two-sevenths of the property claimed to have an option upon the five-sevenths upon the basis of $800,000, and were very much disappointed when they found they had lost the property."

Q. 28. Will you now turn to the issue of the 7th of August, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Wednesday, August 7th, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The parties in interest who first proposed to take all the 20,000 shares Old Dominion stock, issued for working capital, have finally agreed to give up the same and consequently there will be little scaling down of the public subscription."

Q. 29. Will you now turn to the issue of September 19, 1895, and, looking at that issue of Thursday, September 19, 1895, on the first page thereof, read the item which there appears in regard to Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons as above stated.]

786 A. The item is as follows:

"Old Dominion.

Boston—The corporate organization of the Old Dominion Copper Co. was completed yesterday at a meeting of the directors, and $500,000 in cash put into the treasury of the new company, although Mr. Hyams just back from the mines reports that he cannot see where more than $50,000 can be expended for the improvement of the property at the present time.

The report from Globe, Arizona, that the company had purchased $350,000 worth of machinery is not true. Only a $750 boiler has thus far been ordered.

Taking the books of the old company as a basis, and adding only the reduction in expenses already made, although many more are contemplated, the cost of the Old Dominion Co.'s copper laid down in New York and sold cannot be above 7½c., and the present price for pig copper is 10⅝c."

Q. 30. How long have you been with the "Boston News Bureau?"

A. Since the 19th of September, 1904. I had been there three years on the 19th of last September.

JOSEPH F. COSTELLO.

[No cross-examination.]

[Recess until 2 P. M.]

Subscribed and sworn to this 5th day of November, 1907, before me,

[SEAL.] HOWLAND TWOMBLY,
Notary Public.

Stipulation.

It is agreed that the deposition of this witness shall be taken stenographically; also that either party may use this deposition when filed.

Deposition of Thomas H. O'Neil.

THOMAS H. O'NEIL, being first duly sworn, in answer to interrogatories propounded by Alfred Hemenway, Esq., counsel for the defendants, the witness deposes and says:

Q. 1. What is your full name?
A. Thomas H. O'Neil.
Q. 2. What is your business?
A. I am a reporter for the "Boston Herald."
787 Q. 3. This bound volume of the files of the "Boston Herald," "July and August, 1895," is produced by you, is it not?
A. Yes, sir.
Q. 4. Where did you get this volume?
A. From the "Boston Herald" news room.
Q. 5. Now will you turn to the issue of Friday, July 19, 1895, and read to us what is said about the Old Dominion Company on page 5 of that issue?

[Objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.]

Mr. HEMENWAY: This evidence is offered simply for the sake of showing the publicity of these transactions.

Mr. BRANDEIS: The admissibility of the evidence for any purpose is objected to as incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial.

A. "Old Dominion (new) stock was quoted 26 and 30 bid privately. It now transpires that the recapitulation as previously understood $2,500,000 is $1,250,000 below the actual. The Herald is always pleased to understate the truth when the exact truth is not stated through ignorance of the full truth. The amendment of supposed fact merely punctuates the comment made upon this subject. The $1,000,000 of 'water' in the capital stock is swollen to a 'flood' of $2,250,000, and it is understood that the original promoters take this added $1,250,000 to themselves. The case stands this way:

Original capital, 25,000 shares at 20	$500,000
Purchasers paid for same 40 a share	$1,000,000
Capitalized same for 150,000 shares at 25	$3,750,000
Put into pockets of purchasers, 50,000 shares at 25	$1,250,000
Gone to subscribers of $1,000,000 purchase money 40,000 shares at 25	$1,000,000
Sold to public 60,000 shares at 25	$1,500,000

And a premium is now bid of 1 to 5 per share for the stock of a company formerly capitalized for $500,000 and considered well sold for $1,000,000 a few days ago, but now recapitalized for 750 per cent. of its former par value and 375 per cent. of the purchase price. What will be the fruit of such financial sowing? What but the inevitable fruit of speculative financiering? It is said that New York took a large amount of the 60,000 shares sold to the public, and that Mr. Leonard Lewisohn stood ready to give his check for the whole block."

788 Q. 6. In what column does that what you have just read appear?

A. In the column headed "Financial."

Q. 7. Is that the morning edition?

A. It is the morning edition.

Q. 8. By whom were you directed to bring this file of newspapers here?

A. By W. H. Ford, the day editor of the "Herald."

Q. 9. Will you now turn to the issue of the "Boston Herald" of Friday morning, July 26, 1895, and read from the third page, in the financial column, what is said about Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. "Old Dominion stock was $28\frac{3}{4}$, and sales, while 1 per cent. was reported bid to call it at 31 within 60 days. It is said that members of the original syndicate in the Old Dominion subscription are very generally taking advantage of the option accorded to them to take the new stock. By original syndicate is meant the subscribers to the $1,000,000 paid for the stock of the original company, not the ground floor syndicate which arranged for the deal and voted itself a fee of $1,250,000 par value. Now, the $1,000,000 syndicate had the option of receiving back the $1,000,000 with a bonus of another $1,000,000 par value, to wit, 40,000 shares of stock, or subscribing for 40,000 more shares at par, 25, and receiving 40,000 shares as a bonus. It is said that the members are generally elected to turn the original subscription into stock, which is scarcely amazing. The 80,000 shares will cost the syndicate $1,000,000, or $12\frac{1}{2}$ per share, and this stock is now quoted at $28\frac{3}{4}$—a premium, of $3\frac{3}{4}$—before it is issued. Now, this $1,000,000 syndicate is believed to include the ground floor or sub-cellar syndicate which took to itself the fee, or bonus, or whatever the fitting name, of 50,000 shares, par value $1,250,000. The members of the $1,000,000 syndicate, who subscribed, say, $10,000 and took stock instead of the money in repayment, receives 400 shares for his money and 400 shares as a practical bonus, 800 shares in all, at a cost of $12\frac{1}{2}$ per share. But if he was also in the lower stratum syndicate he gets 500 shares additional, or 1300 shares in all, at a cost of $10,000 for the lot, say about 7 11/16 per share. Here, then, are two classes of shareholders paying $12\frac{1}{2}$ and 7 11/16, respectively, for the new Old Dominion stock. Then there is that other class buying the balance of the 60,000 shares, of which the $1,000,000 syndicate takes 40,000 at 25 per share. Three classes of shareholders, therefore, will exist, the sub-cellar, the ground floor 789 and the attic classes, holding certificates costing in the ratio of 7 11/16, 12½ and 25; or, to express it in dollars, $7.69, $12.50 and $25."

Q. 10. Will you turn to the issue of the "Boston Herald" of September 20, 1895, and, from the financial column on page 5, read any comment upon Old Dominion?

[Objected to for the reasons above stated.]

A. "The Old Dominion Copper Company has completed its reorganization. Agent Hyams sees no need of expending more than $50,000 on improvements, for the present. The story that $350,000 worth of machinery had been purchased is wrong. A boiler to cost $750 is the limit of orders placed to date.

If only $50,000 of money is required for Old Dominion improvements, why was a capital stock of $500,000 multiplied to $3,750,000 and cash equal to the old capital stock put into the treasury? New stock was offered at 25 today. It is not unlikely that a pool will take this stock in hand and put it up to enhance the profits of subscribers who may wish to unload. The first sign of such purpose is seen in the following paragraph:

One-fourth of one per cent. was bid in the local board today to call 1000 shares of Old Dominion at 30 within 30 days."

[No cross-examination.]

THOMAS H. O'NEIL.

Subscribed and sworn to this 6th day of November, 1907.
Before me:
[SEAL.]

HOWLAND TWOMBLY,
Notary Public.

CHARLES H. ALTMILLER, recalled.

CHARLES H. ALTMILLER, having previously been sworn, and having previously testified, being recalled by counsel for the defendants for further cross-examination, in answer to interrogatories propounded by J. Wells Farley, Esq., of counsel for defendants, further deposes and says:

X 216. What is your full name?
A. Charles H. Altmiller.
X 216½. You have been previously sworn in this case?
A. Yes, sir.

X 217. Will you first produce the deed from Leonard 790 Lewisohn to the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of certain mining claims?

A. [Deed produced.]

Mr. FARLEY: I will ask to have this deed marked.

Mr. BRANDEIS: A copy of it had better go in. Have it marked, and a copy made to go in.

Mr. FARLEY: It is agreed that the original deed may be marked, and that a copy shall be submitted to be copied into the record, the copy to be an absolute copy.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Mr. Burpee had better take the deed and make a copy of it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Not only a copy of the deed, but of the endorsements, when it was recorded, and so forth.

[The original deed, dated July 12, 1895, was marked "Defendants' Exhibit A, G. C. B., October 31, 1907;" and a copy of the deed is as follows:]

"This Indenture made the twelfth day of July in the year One thousand eight hundred and ninety five Between Leonard Lewisohn of the City, County and State of New York party of the first part and Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey party of the second part.

Witnesseth: that the said party of the first part for and in consideration of the sum of One hundred dollars and of other good and valuable considerations the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged hath granted, conveyed, bargained, sold, released and forever quitclaimed and doth by these presents grant, convey, bargain, sell, release and forever quit-claim unto the said party of the second part its successors and assigns all the right, title, interest and estate of the said party of the first part in and to all the following described premises, situate, lying and being in the County of Gila, Arizona Territory, viz:

1st. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 267, Lot No. 45, situated in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

2nd. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 268, Lot No. 46, in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

3rd. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion
791 Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 269, Lot No. 51, in Globe Mining District Gila County, Arizona.

4th. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1885, in the United States Land office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 384 Lot No. 54 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

5th. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company, Deed recorded in Book 1, of Deeds of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining:

To Have and To Hold all and singular the said premises together with the appurtenances and privileges thereto incident unto the said party of the second part its successors and assigns forever.

In Witness Whereof the said party of the first part hath hereunto set his hand and seal the day and year first above written.

LEONARD LEWISOHN. [SEAL.]

In the presence of,

JOSEPH RECHERT.
SIDNEY RIDDLESDORFFER.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
City and County of New York, ss:

Before me —— ——, a Notary Public of the State of New York residing in the City and County of New York duly commissioned and sworn on the twelfth day of July eighteen hundred and ninety five personally appeared Leonard Lewisohn known to me to be the person whose name is subscribed to the foregoing instrument and acknowledged to me that he executed the same for the purpose and consideration therein expressed.

Given under my hand and seal of office the day and year last above written.

JOHN F. FOX.
[SEAL.] Notary Public, New York County.

792 [Endorsements.]

Dated July 12th, 1895.

Leonard Lewisohn
to
Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company.

TERRITORY OF ARIZONA,
County of Gila, ss:

I, G. M. Allison, County Recorder in and for said Gila County, Do Hereby Certify, that the within instrument of writing, was filed at the request of J. A. Parnall, Supt. on the 18 day of Jany. A. D., 1896, at 10 minutes past 4 o'clock P. M., and duly recorded at Page 116, Book 3, Records of Deeds to Mines, Gila County, Arizona Territory.

[Seal Gila County, Arizona, Recorder.]

G. M. ALLISON,
County Recorder.

X 218. Will you also produce the deed from the Old Dominion Copper Company to the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of certain mining claims?

A. [Deed produced.]

Mr. FARLEY: The next paper produced by Mr. Altmiller is a deed to be marked "Defendants' Exhibit B," this being a deed from the Old Dominion Copper Company to the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, dated December 28, 1895.

[This deed is marked "Defendants' Exhibit B, G. C. B., October 31, 1907," and a copy of the deed follows:]

"This Indenture made the 28th day of December in the year One thousand eight hundred and ninety five Between The Old Dominion Copper Company, of Baltimore City, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Maryland, party of the first part and Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of New Jersey, party of the second part Witnesseth:

That the said party of the first part for and in consideration of the sum of one hundred dollars and of other goods and valu-793 able considerations, the receipt is hereby acknowledged hath granted, conveyed, bargained, sold, released and forever quit-claimed and doth by these presents grant, convey, bargain, sell, release and forever quit-claim unto the said party of the second part its successors and assigns all the right, title, interest, and estate of the said party of the first part in and to all the following described premises situate, lying and being in the County of Gila, Arizona Territory, viz:

First. The Globe Mine, patented by the United States Government to B. W. Reagan on the 18th day of October 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona, on the 19th day of November 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Second. The Globe Ledge Mine, patented by the United States Government to Benjamin W. Reagan on the eighteenth day of October 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona, on the nineteenth day of November 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Third. The Copper Jack Mill Site, of which the location is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 311, and to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site, and upon which the Smelting Works, formerly owned by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Co. are situated.

Fourth. The Globe Mill Site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 311, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site.

Fifth. The Globe Ledge Mill Site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 310, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site.

Sixth. The Southeast Globe Mine, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 312 and reference is hereby made to said records for a fuller description of said Mine.

Seventh. All of that certain Mining Claim known as the Interloper, in Globe District, County of Gila, Territory of Arizona, and recorded in Globe District Records, on pages 116 and 117 in Book 3, reference to which will more fully show, being the same property conveyed to the said party of the first part by William Key-794 ser by deed bearing date of June 27th 1888, and recorded as pages 14-16, Book 3 Records of Deeds to Mines, Gila County, Arizona Territory.

Eighth. The Fraction Mine, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 569, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Ninth. The Alice Mine or Lode, located October 10th, 1875, by A. R. Hammond and J. W. Reed, and notice of location recorded in Book 1, page 131, Globe District Mining Records (now a part of the Records of Gila County) and relocated February 28th 1879, and notice of location recorded in Book 5, Globe District Mining Records (now a part of the Records of Gila County) on pages 184 and 185, said Mine or Lode being more particularly described in the last mentioned notice of location, as follows, to wit: Commencing at this monument of stones in a gulch, being the center of South-west end of claim, and upon which this notice is posted; thence South-east 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence North-east 1400 feet to a monument of stones; thence North-west 300 feet to a monument of stones; being the center of the Northeast end of claim; thence Northwest 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence Southwest 1400 feet to a monument of stones under a tree; thence Southeast 300 feet to the place of beginning, being the same mining claim conveyed to Michael H. Simpson now deceased, by deed of the Globe City Mining Company, dated July 1st 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds to Mines Book 2, page 227 et seq:

Tenth. The Mining Claim called and known as the Hypatia Mine situate, lying and being in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Territory of Arizona, and more particularly described in the notice of location recorded at page sixty six (66) Book 2, Records of Mines, Gila County Records, to which record reference is made for a more definite description of said Mine; said Mine was formerly known as the South-west Alice Mine, being the same mining claim conveyed to said Michael H. Simpson, now deceased, by deed of William H. Cook, dated November 18th, 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds Book 2, page 305.

Eleventh. Any and all other pieces or parcels of real estate mines, mining rights and claims situate, lying and being in Arizona Territory or elsewhere, which are or may be owned by or on behalf of the party of the first part or in which it is or may be interested; it being the purpose and intent of this indenture to grant and convey to the party of the second part, all the mines, lands, real estate and interest therein of every kind and nature whatsoever and 795 wheresoever situated, which the party of the first part now owns or is entitled to and to which it may at any time hereafter become entitled to.

Together with all and singular the tenements, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wise appertaining.

To have and to Hold all and singular the said premises, together with the appurtenances and privileges thereto incident unto the said party of the second part its successors and assigns forever.

In Witness Whereof the said party of the first part hath caused these presents to be signed by its President and its corporate seal to be hereunto affixed and attested by its Secretary, the day and year first above written.

THE OLD DOMINION COPPER CO.
[SEAL.] By A. S. BIGELOW, President.

Attest:
THOMAS NELSON, Sec'y.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS,
County of Suffolk, City of Boston, ss:

Before me Clarence H. Bissell, a Notary Public duly commissioned and sworn on this twenty eighth day of December eighteen hundred and ninety five, personally appeared A. S. Bigelow and Thomas Nelson to me known and known to me to be the President and Secretary respectively of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, who being by me first duly sworn did depose and say: that they were respectively the President and Secretary of said Company; that they knew the corporate seal affixed to the foregoing instrument was such corporate seal and had been so affixed by authority of a resolution of the Board of Directors of said Company and that they had subscribed said instrument by like authority.

In Witness Whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal the day and year last above written.

CLARENCE H. BISSELL,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.

[Endorsements.]

Dated Dec. 28th, 1895.

The Old Dominion Copper Company
to
Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company.

Deed.

796 TERRITORY OF ARIZONA,
County of Gila, ss:

I, G. M. Allison, County Recorder in and for said Gila County, Do Hereby Certify, that the within instrument of writing, was filed at the request of J. A. Parnall, Supt. on the 18 day of Jan'y A. D., 1896, at 15 minutes past 4 o'clock P. M., and duly recorded at Page 448-52, Book 3, Records Deeds to Mines Gila County, Arizona Territory.

[Seal Gila County, Arizona, Recorder.]

G. M. ALLISON,
County Recorder."

X 219. From where did you produce these deeds?

A. From our box.

X 220. Will you now produce the check book of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company,—the first check book which that company has?

A. [Check book produced.]

X 221. Let me ask you in regard to the method of keeping the books of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company at the time this check book was kept, that is, from July 12, 1895, and thereafter. What method did you have of keeping a record of the persons from whom cash was received?

A. Well, it was entered on the debtor side of the check book.

X 222. Was that the only method?

A. That was the only method.

X 223. As I understand you, then, the entries on the stub of this check book represent the original entries of persons from whom cash was received, and the amount in cash received from those persons?

A. Yes.

X 224. Did you formerly, in answer to Mr. Hemenway, submit a list, testify to a list, of the names of persons appearing on the first page, the debit side of that check book?

A. Yes, I think I did.

X 225. Will you examine the list which appears on page 42 of your testimony, and say if that is the list then submitted by you?

A. It is.

X 226. Noticing that list as it appears in testimony, did you then omit to state the number of shares of which you had a memorandum in your check book?

[Plaintiff's counsel objects to the use of the words "omit to state," because the list furnished on page 42 of the testimony referred to by defendants' counsel, was a list, in which the witness was requested to give all the dates of payments by parties, by whom payments were made, and the amounts of the payments, the figures presenting the items from which this aggregate of $485,450 is made up.]

797 A. Well, I suppose so. I cannot remember, it is so long ago.

X 227. Will you again look at that list, and see whether or not you did not omit to enter the $1000 received from Lewisohn Brothers?

[Objected to and withdrawn.]

X 228. I will ask you whether, in your previous testimony, you did state the number of shares in response to the interrogatory just referred to by counsel for the plaintiff?

A. No.

X 229. I will ask you whether in your testimony as it appears on page 42 you stated or mentioned the sum of $1000 cash received from Lewisohn Brothers?

A. I do not know whether it is here or not.

X 230. No, I mean on that page,—page 42.

A. No.

X 231. Is it correct, then, to state that, to give a complete transcript of the first page of the stub of your check book, there should be added to the entries as appearing on page 42 of your testimony, the fact that Lewisohn Brothers paid $1000 cash for 40 shares at $25 per share to qualify directors?

A. No. It was put in suspense account, it was not payment for stock, it was money loaned, money advanced.

X 232. Please answer the question; will you read the first entry on the stub of your check book?

A. "July 12, 1895. Suspense account. Received from Lewisohn Brothers for 40 shares, $25 a share, to qualify directors."

X 233. Will you please explain where you find "Suspense Account"?

A. In lead pencil.

X 234. Written slanting across the entry?

A. That is right.

X 235. Then that is an entry which should be added to give a complete list as appearing on the stub of the persons from whom cash was received as shown by the check book?

A. No, I do not think so. I do not think it appears in this list at all.

X 236. It should be added?

A. No, it should not. It was advanced at that time, and the money was returned to him later.

X 237. I understand that, but I am referring to the list.

A. Well, it should not go into it.

X 238. Well, there was $1000 received from Lewisohn Brothers for 40 shares, was there not?

A. Yes, there was at that time.

X 239. Now have you totaled the number of shares which were given, or issued, according to the memoranda on the check book to the parties appearing at those places?

A. No.

X 240. Will you prepare that list, including the 40
798 shares issued in return for the payment from Lewisohn Brothers, and total the same and submit it as soon as you can complete it [handing witness a paper]?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Well, if you will do that; what Mr. Farley wants is a list of them.

A. Yes, certainly.

X 241. You are willing to take this as correct?

A. Yes.

X 242. Now, Mr. Altmiller, will you turn to the stub of your check book, to the entry which shows the amount of money received for shares of stock sold through Stackpole & Gay, and will you read the entry which appears on the stub of the check book under date of September 21, 1897?

A.—

125 shares of treasury stock at 28¼	3,515 63
450 at 28	12,600 00
Total	16,115 63
Less commission	71 88
Leaving a balance of	16,043 75

X 243. Then will you read the entry which immediately follows that, under date of September 23?

A.—

Sept. 23, Sold through Stackpole & Gay 10 shares treasury stock	$275 00
Less commission	1 25
Total	$273 75

X 244. Now there is one other entry. Will you read the entry which appears on the stub of your check book under date of October 8, 1897?

A. —.

Sold through Stackpole & Gay 1 share of treasury stock	$25 00
Less commission	25
Total	$24 75

Marked in lead pencil "Interest account."

X 245. Now will you total the number of shares as per those entries which appear to have been sold through Stackpole & Gay?

A. 586 shares.

799 X 246. Will you now turn to the entry under date of January 1, 1896? Will you now read the entry which appears on the credit side of the check book under date of January 16, 1896; so far as I am concerned, referring only to the entry "Amount due from Buffum," etc.?

A. "Less amount due from Edgar Buffum for 4 shares of stock, $100."

X 247. Let me ask you what that entry which you have just read refers to?

A. That, as near as I can remember, is 4 shares of those 40 shares that appeared under July 12, 1895, in suspense account, Lewisohn Brothers.

X 248. Is that entry of $100 which you have just read a credit given to Lewisohn on his bill, as appears from the check book?

A. No, it is a charge to Lewisohn.

X 249. Now will you read the rest of the entry?

A.—

"Jan. 16, 1896, Lewisohn Brothers due per account rendered 10,393 83
Add amount received T. Hopkins..... 6 00

Making 10,399 83
Less amt. due from Edgar Buffum..... 100 00

Making a balance of..... 10,299 83"

X 250. And that $10,299.83 represents a check paid or sent to Lewisohn Brothers?

A. It does.

X 251. And the amount of that check was reduced by $100 by reason of this charge on account of money due from Edgar Buffum?

A. Yes.

X 252. Now, taking the shares for which you, according to the stub of your check book on the first two pages, received cash, including the 40 shares sold to Lewisohn Brothers, and adding the shares sold through Stackpole & Gay, and also adding those four shares which were charged to Lewisohn in accordance with the entry you have just read, is it not so, that the total number thus purchased would be 20,780?

A. Well, I have not done it myself; I checked you up the other day, followed you, and believe it is correct.

X 253. Have you any doubt of it?

A. No, I have no doubt of it.

X 254. Now will you, from the stub of the check book, state the several amounts paid out to J. S. Kendall, D. M. Anthony, and M. Luce, stating the dates, and reading the entries in each case?

A. "Sept. 28, 1895, Suspense account, J. S. Kendall. He took 600 shares and $5000 for 200 shares which he did not take—$5000."

X 255. Let me ask you whether that $5000 represents a check paid to Kendall?

A. I suppose so.

800 X 256. According to your entry does that represent cash for 200 shares of stock which he did not take?

A. Yes.

X 257. Now will you turn to D. M. Anthony? Here is one—Arthur D.——

A. "Oct. 1, 1895, Albert E. Hardy, Suspense, money instead of stock, $2000."

X 258. And the amount of $2000 represents a check paid to Hardy?

A. Yes.

X 259. And, according to your entries, for stock which he did not take?

A. I suppose so. I did not make these entries.

X 260. I ask you, according to the entries?

A. Yes, according to the entries it probably was.

X 261. Take the next entry.

A. "Oct. 1, 1895, H. H. Anthony, Suspense, money instead of stock, $5000."

X 262. And that represents a check paid to Anthony?

A. Yes.

X 263. And for 200 shares of stock which he did not take?

A. That is not stated.

X 264. Now M. Luce.

A. "Oct. 31, 1895. Check to B. C. W. Co. on account of subscription of M. Luce to Water Company bonds, $7500."

X 265. And that $7500 represents a check paid to the water company according to the direction of Luce?

A. It is not stated so on the check book here; it says, "check to B. C. W. Co."

X 266. On account of subscription of M. Luce. Have you any doubt that represents——

[Objected to.]

X 267. Do you know what that entry purports to mean?

A. Yes.

X 268. What does it mean?

A. Well, it was—Mr. Luce made a subscription to the water-company bonds, and instead of paying it direct to Mr. Luce, instead of paying this check directly to Mr. Luce and he paying to the water company, it was money turned over directly to the water company by the Old Dominion.

X 269. Are there any other entries which show money paid in lieu of stock which was not taken; if so, what are they?

A. I do not think so. I think those are all.

X 270. Now I will ask you to turn to the list showing persons from whom cash was received, on stubs 1 to 27 of the check book, and ask you whether Foote & French appear in that list?

A. They do.

X 271. For how many shares?

A. 100 shares.

X 272. And if H. T. Coe appears on that list?

A. Yes.

X 273. And for how many shares?

A. 280.

801 X 274. And if J. T. Herrick appears on that list?

A. Yes.

X 275. For how many shares?

A. 100.

X 276. And if Hy. F. Woods appears on that list?

A. Yes.

X 277. For how many shares?

A. 100.

X 278. Does Cannon, Oswald S. ——?
A. Camman, I guess it is.
X 279. For how many shares?
A. 15.
X 280. Does D. W. Cheever appear on that list?
A. Yes.
X 281. For how many shares?
A. 25.

Mr. FARLEY: I think it would be just as well, now, Mr. Brandeis, with your approval, to correct that which I called your attention to this morning. I went over it the other day, with Mr. Altmiller the other day.

X 282. On page 63 of your deposition, in answer to Int. 82, you stated that certificate No. 82 was transferred, or a portion thereof was transferred, to various parties, and among those parties, in your answer as taken down, appears J. T. Howe for 100 shares. Ought not that to be J. T. Herrick?
A. Yes, it ought.
X 28. In your answer as taken down appears Oswald N. Conman for 15 shares. Ought not that to be Oswald N. Camman?
A. Yes.

Mr. FARLEY: Now we reach a point at which the tracing of these shares can be done from the testimony, so I am going ahead in that way and see if there is any trouble about it.

X 284. Now I will ask you from what original certificate the shares to Foote & French, H. T. Coe, J. T. Herrick, Henri F. Woods, Oswald N. Camman, and D. W. Cheever came?
A. I do not know.

Mr. FARLEY: I want to put in now, in view of that answer, the three certificates, one for 100,000 shares, one for 30,000 shares, and one for 20,000 shares.

Mr. BRANDEIS: They are already in, are they not?
Mr. FARLEY: Yes.
Mr. BRANDEIS: Why don't you turn to them in the record?
Mr. FARLEY: The defendant at this point calls the witness' attention to certificate No. 71 and the stub thereof, for 100,000 shares, to certificate No. 72 and the stub thereof, to certificate No. 73 and the stub thereof, which were put in evidence during his former examination and referred to at pages 59 and 60 of his testimony.

X 285. And I will ask you whether those three certificates did not include the total 150,000 shares of the stock of the Old Dominion Company?
A. I do not remember.
Mr. BRANDEIS: Look at them. Can you tell by looking at them?
802 The WITNESS: I can tell by looking at them.
Mr. BRANDEIS: Well, then, do so.
THE WITNESS: [Examining pages referred to.] Yes, they do.

X 286. Then it is true, is it not, that all shares of stock subsequently issued must, by tracing back, come from those original certificates, either No. 71, No. 72, or No. 73, if they are traced through mesne transfers?

A. Yes, I suppose so.

X 287. Refreshing your recollection from your deposition, it is true, is it not, that No. 71 was issued for property purchased?

A. Yes.

X 288. And that No. 72 was issued for property purchased?

A. Well, I do not remember.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Then you will have to take the certificates.

THE WITNESS: Well, this is a copy, and there is nothing marked on the certificate.

Mr. FARLEY: Plaintiff's counsel admits, if it be an admission, that the stock was issued for property.

X 289. And it is true, is it not, that certificate No. 73 was issued for cash, or was issued?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Everybody concedes that, I suppose.

A. Yes, sir.

X 290. Bearing in mind, then, that all subsequent certificates must be traceable to one of those three, namely, 71 for 100,000 shares, 72 for 30,000 shares, and 73 for 20,000 shares, and refreshing your recollection by examining page 63 of your deposition, will you state whether or not those shares to which I have referred, namely, the shares of Foote & French, H. T. Coe, J. T. Herrick, Henri F. Woods, Oswald L. Camman, and D. W. Cheever, did not come from certificate 82?

A. It is so stated here, and this is taken from the records. I do not know about the transferring part of it.

X 291. Refreshing now your recollection from any means at hand, can you now state from what original certificate, 71, 72, or 73, the shares of Foote & French, H. T. Coe, J. T. Herrick, Henri F. Woods, Oswald N. Camman, and D. W. Cheever came?

A. No. 82.

X 292. No, no; from what original certificate; from 71, 72 or 73?

A. They did not come from either of those.

X 293. No, no——

A. You want to know where that No. 82 came from?

X 294. Yes.

A Balance of certificate No. 71. It came from No. 71.

803 A. 295. Refreshing now your recollection from any means at hand, can you now state from what original certificate, 71, 72, or 73, the shares of Foote & French, H. T. Coe, J. T. Herrick, Henri F. Woods, Oswald N. Camman, and D. W. Cheever came?

A. No. 71.

X 296. Now I will ask you from which of those original certificates the 40 shares issued to directors came?

A. Four shares from No. 75, 4 shares from No. 76, 4 shares from No. 77, 16 shares from No. 78, 4 shares from No. 79, 4 shares from

No. 80, 4 shares from No. 81. They came from certificate No. 71: is that what you mean?

X 297. Yes. I will now ask you from what certificate the 4 shares issued to Buffum came?

A. No. 71.

X 298. I will now ask you whether or not the 200 shares sold by Stackpole & Gay, to which you have referred in your previous testimony, did not come also from certificate No. 71?

A. No.

X 299. Did they not come originally from certificate No. 71, through certain mesne transfers?

A. No. I don't know about that. Yes, I suppose they did.

X 300. You see, Mr. Altmiller, instead of having the certificates, but looking at this testimony, you can figure it up as you please. If you want to use the originals here, why, let them be produced. Of course they are in your possession.

A. Well, I suppose they did.

X 301. Well, did they or did they not?

A. Well, they did.

Mr. BRANDEIS: That appears so, does it?

The WITNESS: No, it don't. Well, they must have.

X 302. Will you now examine the records and determine?

A. [Answer postponed until the next session.]

X 303. Now will you turn to the stub of your check book, and tell us where the so-called syndicate account appears?

A. Yes.

X 304. Will you read that entry?

A.—

Jan. 6, 1896. Check from J. M. Meredith		$202.32
" " " "		1,500.00
Total		1,702.32
Also Ditto		20.98
Also Luce		665.56
Also Coram		665.55
804 Also L. L.		2,528.85
Also T. N.		665.56
A. S. B.	665.55
Acct. Barron	1,000.00
	1,665.55
Less	420.00
Leaves a balance of		1,245.55

X 305. What do those entries represent?

A. It is not stated.

X 306. What do they purport to represent, according to your best belief?

A. The proportion of payments made to the Old Dominion on account of syndicate account.

X 307. Do those entries represent payments received from various parties, as indicated in your answer?

A. Yes.

X 308. Does the entry "1000 account Barron" represent money paid by Mr. Bigelow?

A. Yes.

X 309. Now will you read the pencil memorandum below on the stub of your check book?

A.—

"Suspense account. Paid..... $18,526.01
Received..... 6,493.87

Balance..... 12,032.14"

X 310. What is the total of the entries of receipts which you spoke of in your previous answer?

A. $7,493.87.

X 311. What is the total of the entries that you referred to in your previous answer?

A. $7,493.87.

X 312. Now if you exclude the entry of "$1000, account Barron," what does that net?

A. $6,493.87.

X 313. Now, referring again to your pencil memorandum, which you have previously read, is that the same amount that appears by that pencil memorandum to have been received?

A. Yes.

X 314. And what does the entry immediately above that pencil entry of $6,493.87, and marked "Paid" $18,526.01, refer to?

A. Refer to?

X 315. Yes.

A. Various payments.

X 316. What was the entry of those payments; what were they in each case?

805 A.—

Jan. 1. Evarts, Choate & Beaman's bill..... $7,689.66
Lewisohn Bros., Jan. 16..... 10,299.83
G. M. Hyams..... 436.52
Edgar Buffum,—Lewisohn Bros., paid acct. Edgar Buffum..... 100.00

X 317. So that the pencil total, as I understand you, represents the total of the items under date of January 1, 1896, a payment of $7,689.66, Evarts, Choate & Beaman's bill; a payment under date of January 16, 1896, a bill of Lewisohn of $10,399.83, and the payment under date of January 20, 1896, to G. M. Hyams, for expenses, with a deduction of $436.52?

A. Yes.

X 318. Now deducting that entry of the amount received, $6493.87, what balance did that leave?

A. $12,032.14.

X 319. What is the further entry, if any, of that balance, or to what book was it posted?

A. It went into the cash book and from there into the ledger.

X 320. Well, will you get the first cash book?

A. I have got the wrong book here.

X 321. Well, omitting until tomorrow morning the entry in the cash book, will you turn to the ledger and find where the balance is posted?

A. On page 18, on the debit side, under suspense account, "1896, January, cash page 11, $12,032.14."

X 322. Is that on page 18 of the ledger, under the heading "Suspense account"?

A. Yes.

X 323. Now will you state what items on the credit side balance that entry on the debit side of $12,032.14, including in your answer, if it is necessary to explain the account, any other entry on the debit side?

A. Under date of August, 1895, "Cash, $300," on the debit side of the ledger, makes a total of $12,332.14.

X 324. On the debit side?

A. On the debit side. The entries opposite, on the credit side, are:—

Aug. 18, 1895,	By mine agent.....	$353.51
Sept.,	By mine agent.....	20
July,	By cash.....	1,000.00
Sept.,	By cash.....	6.00
Feb. 1896,	By mine agent.....	10,972.43

A. 325. Now, taking in turn each one of those items, what was that entry of cash $300, on the debit side?

A. Amount paid N. S. Berry, salary in full to date, August 7, 1895.

806 X 326. And that appears under date of August 7?

A. Yes.

X 327. And Berry was at that time, what? What position did Berry at that time hold?

A. I do not remember.

X 328. Refreshing your recollection, was not he the superintendent at the mines in Arizona?

A. I think so.

X 329. And that, therefore, represents the payment of salary to Berry. For what period was that salary due, do you know?

A. I don't know.

X 330. Do you know what salary he was then receiving?

A. No, I do not; I do not remember.

X 331. Now, taking up the other items that appear on the credit side in their order, what does the entry of "$353.51, by mine agent," represent?

A. I will have to refer to the journal. Under date of August, 1895, "Amount of cash turned over from Old Dominion Copper Company, transferred to Boston books, $353.51."

X 332. That, then, represented cash paid to the new Old Dominion Company from the old Old Dominion Company?

A. I suppose so.

X 333. Have you any doubt of it?

A. I would not swear to it; I think so.

X 334. That is your best information?

A. Yes.

X 335. Now will you take the next item of 20 cents, "by mine agent"?

A. "Sept., 1895, amount of cash turned over from Old Dominion Copper Company, transferred to Boston office, 20 cents."

X 336. That means the same thing?

A. Yes.

X 337. Now the next item?

A. That comes on a cash book which I have not got here.

X 338. And so for the next two items you will have to refer to a cash book which you have not now with you?

A. Yes. Under February, 1896, "Salaries, &c., paid previous to August 1, 1895, transferred to mine books, $10,972.42."

X 339. So that the entry on the credit side, under the date of February, "Mine agent, $10,972.43," is posted to page 3 of the ledger, the heading being "January, 1896," on the ledger page?

A. Yes.

X 340. And this is under the date of February, 1896?

A. Yes.

X 341. And it appears that that entry represents money paid for salaries prior to August 1, 1895?

A. It is so stated.

X 342. And this book which I a moment ago referred to as a ledger, is in fact what?

A. A journal.

[Adjourned to Friday, November 1, 1907, and resumed.]

807 X 343. Now, Mr. Altmiller, reverting to the question in regard to the source of certain stock certificates which I was asking you about yesterday, I will now ask you whether or not 200 of the shares endorsed to and sold through Stackpole & Gay did not come by certain mesne transfers out of certificate No. 71 for 100,000 shares?

A. Yes, sir.

X 344. Yesterday you testified that the 40 so-called directors' shares were taken out of certificate No. 71?

A. Yes, sir.

X 345. I will now ask you whether it is not true that 36 of those 40 shares were not ultimately endorsed to and sold through Stackpole & Gay?

A. It is.

X 346. And that the remaining 4 shares stood in the name of Buffum and were paid for by a charge on the bill of Lewisohn to which we referred yesterday?

A. Correct.

X 347. Now yesterday you testified in regard to the entry on the stub of your check book which showed that $1000 had been received from Mr. Bigelow on the so-called "Account Barron?"

A. Yes.

X 348. I will now ask you what that entry referred to?

A. That is an off-set to the $1000 paid by Lewisohn Brothers in the first place.

X 349. It represented, then——

A. 40 shares of stock at $25 a share.

X 350. Did it not also represent $1000 received from Mr. Bigelow?

A. Yes.

X 351. So that, added to the amount of cash received, as shown by the sales of Stackpole & Gay, and the amount received from the various subscribers, as shown on the stub of your check book, should be added $1000 received from Mr. Bigelow on so-called "Account Barron?"

A. That is correct.

X 352. Will you turn to that entry of "$1000 Account Barron?" So far as you can tell, under what date was that $1000 received?

A. January 6, 1896.

X 353. Now, if you will, turn back to the cash book, to the suspense account, which we were examining yesterday. Now yesterday I asked you what the item on page 18 of the ledger, in suspense account, on the credit side, called "July, by cash, $1000," represented, and you then stated that, not having your cash book, you would defer your answer. Have you now the cash book?

A. Yes, I have.

X 354. Will you now state what that item of $1000 represents?

A. Well, it is posted to page 2 of the cash book, to suspense account, Lewisohn Brothers, $1000.

X 355. Does not that represent cash received from Lewisohn Brothers?

A. It does.

X 356. Now will you state what entry on the credit side in suspense account in the ledger, called "September, by cash, $6," represent?

A. "Suspense account, Lewisohn Brothers, $6."

808 X 357. And that also represents cash received from Lewisohn Brothers?

A. It does, indirectly; it belonged to T. Hopkins, but it represented so much increase of the assets paid by Lewisohn Brothers.

X 358. Have you that list of items which made up the balance of $12,032.14 entry on the debit side, plus the $300? You had it on paper yesterday?

A. Yes.

X 359. Now I will ask you whether or not this is not an accurate statement of what is shown by that account: That account shows that $12,032.14 which, according to the check book, appears to have been still owed for certain bills on account of the syndicate, and also $300 paid by the Old Dominion Company to Berry, who was then agent at the mines, for salary accrued, prior, at least, to August 7, 1895, is balanced by charges or credits which represent either cash received from the old company or from Lewisohn Brothers, or cash paid out for expenses at the mines prior to August 1, 1895?

A. Yes, it does.

Redirect-examination.

[On redirect-examination, in answer to interrogatories propounded by E. F. McClennen, Esq., of counsel for the plaintiff, the witness further deposes and says:]

Q. 360. Mr. Altmiller, you have stated this morning that of the 586 shares sold to or through Stackpole & Gay in September, 1897, 200 came out through several mesne transfers from certificate 71 for 100,000 shares originally issued in the name of Dumaresq. Is it not a fact that the 200 shares in question were those for which certificates had been made for 100 shares each to Sanborn and A. R. Anthony?

A. It is.

Q. 361. Is it a fact that Sanborn was, or purported to be, a signer of the subscription agreement of July 18, 1895, Exhibit 10, and did not purport to be a signer of the syndicate agreements of May and June, Exhibits 3, 4, 5, and 6?

A. Yes.

Q. 362. Is it a fact that Annie R. Anthony, or A. R. Anthony, does not appear as a signer of the syndicate agreements Exhibits 3, 4, 5, and 6?

A. Yes.

Q. 363. Mr. Altmiller, is it true that the 586 shares sold by Stackpole & Gay in September, 1897, was composed of these shares:

36, which had been part of 40, which had stood in the names of the original directors;

50, certificate B3, issued to Goodale;

100, A13, issued to O. N. Pierce;

100, A5, issued to Eldredge;

809 100, A4, issued to Bartholomew;

100, issued in the name of G. E. Sanborn;

100, issued in the name of A. R. Anthony?

A. Do you want me to look through the records?

Q. 364. I think we are both agreed on that, and I think you can safely answer yes.

A. Yes.

Q. 365. Is it true that Pierce, Eldredge, Bartholomew, Goodale, and Sanborn all appear as signers of the subscription agreement of July 18, Exhibit 10, and do not appear as signers of the syndicate agreement, Exhibits 3, 4, 5, and 6?

A. Yes.

Q. 366. Is it true that the shares which had stood in the names, as stated in the question before, of Pierce, Eldredge, Bartholomew, and Goodale came, by various mesne transfers, out of certificate 73 for 20,000 shares issued to Nelson?

A. Yes.

Q. 367. You stated yesterday that certificate 73 was issued for cash. Is the cash to which you referred that set out on pages 11 and 12 of your original testimony plus the cash ultimately received from Stackpole & Gay?

A. Yes.

Q. 368. To put it in more detail, is this correct: That the moneys received from the subscribers, as appears on pages 11 and 12, amount to $503,750, out of which there was paid out, as appears on page 12, $19,500, leaving $484,250; to which was added $1000, the proceeds of 40 shares of stock to Mr. Barron, $100, the proceeds of 4 shares of stock remaining in the name of Edgar Buffum, one of the directors, and 14,650 being a portion of that received from Stackpole & Gay after deducting a portion of those receipts from Stackpole & Gay which were carried to interest account?

A. Yes.

Q. 369. Making the total sum received $500,000 against the 20,000 shares of stock originally represented by certificate 73?

A. Yes.

Q. 370. Issued in the name of Nelson?

A. Yes.

Q. 371. Mr. Altmiller, have you investigated the accounts of the corporation with a view to determining the receipts and expenditures from 1895 to 1902?

A. Yes.

Q. 372. What were the gross production receipts for the balance of the year 1895, after the corporation acquired the property, and for the whole of the year 1896?

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is objected to as immaterial, incompetent, and irrelevant.

A. $590,963.38.

Q. 373. What were the gross operating expenditures for that period, excepting construction and improvement?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

810 A. $644,656.98.

Q. 374. What was the operating deficit for that period?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $53,693.60.

Q. 375. What were the construction and improvement expenditures?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $61,358.91.

Q. 376. What was the total deficit for this period?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $115,052.51.

Q. 377. Now will you give us the same figures for the year 1897?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A.

Gross receipts from copper, silver, and gold	$201,385 38
Operating expenses, exclusive of construction and improvement	292,555 22
Loss	91,169 84
Construction and improvement	39,811 32
Total deficit	130,981 16

Q. 378. The same for 1898?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A.

Receipts from copper, silver, and gold	$195,000 00
Operating expenses	309,202 49
Loss	114,202 49
Construction	68,406 56
Total deficit	182,609 05

Q. 379. The same for 1899?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A.

Receipts	$985,737 61
Operating	857,583 53
Profit	128,154 08
Construction	93,281 20
Net profit	34,872 88

811 Q. 380. The same for 1900?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A.—

Receipts	$1,594,471.46
Operating	1,152,069.77
Profit	$442,401.69
Construction	36,888.33
Net profit	$405,513.36

Q. 381. From the beginning of the company's operations to the 1st of January, 1901, what were the gross receipts?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Receipts for copper, silver, and gold, $3,567,557.83.

Q. 382. What were the operating expenditures?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Operating expenditures, $3,256,067.99.

Q. 383. What was the net operating profit for the whole period?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $311,489.84.

Q. 384. What were the total construction expenditures?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $299,746.32.

Q. 385. What was the final balance of profit after the deduction of construction expenditures?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $11,743.52.

Q. 386. In the figures that you have given for that entire period what was the tatol amount of the additions shown by the construction account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. $299,746.32.

Q. 387. In the operating expenses as you have given them for the period from the beginning of the company's operations to the 1st of January, 1901, was there any charge for interest on capital?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Of course we received interests on deposits and that was part of the working capital,—if that is what you mean.

812 Q. 388. No, what I mean is, was a charge made as a running expense, for interest upon the capital invested in the business?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Oh, no, no.

Q. 389. Was there included in that expense account any charge for depreciation?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

Q. 390. Was any charge made to operating expenses by reason of the diminishing of the property by reason of the taking out of the ore?

[Here the numbers of interrogatories skip from 390 to 400. The text of the deposition is complete.]

GEORGE C. BURPEE,
Stenographer.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as immaterial, incompetent, and irrelevant.

A. No.

Q. 400. In giving the gross receipts for the entire period, have you included the value of the ore on hand and unsold on the 1st of January, 1901?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 401. Mr. Altmiller, was a division between operating expenses and construction expenses, as you have given them, from year to year, made as you have now stated them, upon the books, from year to year?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. They were, with the exception that stocks on hand to the value of $275,000 do not appear on the books.

Q. 402. That is, you have included in that statement that asset which does not appear on the books?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. It does not appear on the books,—stocks on hand January 1, 1901, to the value of $275,000.

Q. 403. In the three and one-half years from the beginning of operations by this company, that is, from the middle of 1895 up to January 1, 1899, was the operating deficit charged off on the books through profit and loss account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes, it was charged off.

813 Q. 404. Was the expense for this same period for construction also charged off on the books through profit and loss account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 405. So that, if I understand you correctly, the books for the period ending January 1, 1901, do not show any increase of assets by reason of the moneys that had gone into the account called construction account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and also as leading.

A. No.

Q. 406. In view of the objection to the preceding question as being leading, will you state what, according to the books of the company now before you, was the apparent effect upon the assets of the company as they stood January 1, 1901, by reason of the sums which had gone into the construction account as you have stated it?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Namely, the $299,746.32——

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Referred to in your preceding answer.

[Question as amended read by the stenographer.]

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. They were reduced by the sum of $263,256.48.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 407. You mean that the profit and loss debit appeared as $263,256.48?

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. 408. Will you explain how you arrive at the difference between this profit and loss debit of $263,256.48, appearing on the books, and the balance of profit for the whole period ending January 1, 1900, which you gave as $11,743.52?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. The stocks on hand January 1, 1901, were not entered on the books—valued at $275,000, were not entered on the books at that time.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 409. And this $11,743.52 of profits is the balance of profits after deducting from this the sum of $275,000, stocks on hand, the $263,256.48 of deficit as appearing on the books, is it not?

814 Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 410. And it is a fact, is it not, that on the books of the company there was charged off to profit and loss, as a part of the expense of conducting the business, not only the items of construction for the period prior to January 1, 1899, but also those items of construction testified to by you made in the years 1899 and 1900?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. 411. I notice that while the total receipts, as given by you, for the entire period from the beginning of the company to January 1, 1899, of $3,567,557.83 appear on the report of A. S. Bigelow, president, Exhibit 14 of his deposition of April, 1903, the sum appearing in that report as the gross cost of production at mine and smelter and electrolytic refining, and all expenses of handling copper, such as freight, copper charges, commission, and expense account, is given as $2,714,596.67; whereas your item for that period is $3,256,067.99. Will you explain wherein is the difference of $541,471.32?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. At the time that this report was made up, the report for the year ending January 1, 1900, the report to the stockholders dated April 1, 1901, this amount was charged off for reasons such as extra developments, shut-downs, and so forth.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 412. Is there any entry anywhere upon the books of account of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of the item of $541,471.32 deducted in the report to the stockholders from the account of the operating expense for that period, as appearing on the books, and as testified to by him?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 413. Are there any items upon the books of account of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company from which an aggregate difference of $541,471.32 can be arrived at?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. 414. I notice that you have stated as the construction total from the beginning of the operations of the company to January 1, 1901, $299,746.32, and that the item in the report of Mr. Bigelow as president, on April 3, 1901, Exhibit 14 of his deposition in April, 815 1903, gives the item for construction and improvement account and development work at the Globe and Continental mines as $841,217.64. What is the explanation of the difference of $541,471.32?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. It is the amount which was deducted from operating expenses, and charged to construction, improvement, etc., expense.

Q. 415. Was there at any time any entry made upon the books of the corporation showing the transfer of the $541,471.32 of operating expenses, which had already been charged off on the books through profit and loss account in each year, into construction account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Not during this period.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 416. How was the amount of $541,471.32, which was taken out of the operating expenses and appears in the annual report to the stockholders, dated April 3, 1901, as part of construction and development expenses arrived at?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I do not remember.

Q. 417. Have you any recollection in regard to the making up of that item of $841,217.64?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. After conversation with either Mr. Ladd or Mr. Hyams, that was arrived at. That is all the reason I can state.

Q. 418. Have you any recollection in regard to what took place at the time that that figure was arrived at and inserted in the annual report to the stockholders?

A. No, I have not.

Q. 419. Are there any data whatever upon the books of account of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company for the period ending January 1, 1901, which show any charges for construction and improvement account and the development work at the Globe and Continental mines other than those items aggregating $299,746.32, which you have already testified to?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as being not a deduction from the books; and that the items themselves ought to be shown by the books.

A. No.

816 Q. 420. In giving for each year for the period ending January 1, 1901, the total operating charges, have you added together several separate accounts as appearing upon the books of the company?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 421. What are the accounts which enter into that total operating charge for each year, as given by you? State what they are as you go along.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Mining expense which includes all work at the mine, underground extra development, and so forth; expense account, consisting principally of expenses here in the East; copper charges, covering commission for sales of copper; insurance and various small items in connection with the same; transportation, which includes freight on copper shipments East; refining charges, which includes the expense of refining pig and matte shipments; tax account, which includes New Jersey and Massachusetts taxes; and interest charges, which includes interest on advances on copper accounts, loans, and so forth.

Q. 422. That is, you mean interest on advances made by selling agents or on money borrowed by the company?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 423. Does the item of mining expense, the account of mining expense which you have given, include all of the expenses of any kind at the mine, include any development work?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 424. Including that, but not excepting construction. That is true, is it?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial and irrelevant.

A. Yes, that is true.

Q. 425. Now is there upon the books of the company in the mining expense account anything which could enable you, or any one examining the books, to determine what part, if any, of that expense was devoted to what is called development work?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. You refer to those books here?

Q. 426. These books here.

A. No.

(By Mr. McCLENNEN:)

Q. 427. Is there on the books any charge on account of construction, improvement, or development work, except such as is 817 included in the mining-expense account which you have mentioned, except the construction account to which you have referred?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 428. But it is a fact, is it not, that for the years ending the year 1895, 1896, and 1897, all expenditures for construction were charged off through the books to mining expense?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No, no; it was carried as capital account and then charged off.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Strike that out.

Mr. HEMENWAY: No, let it stand.

Q. 429. It is a fact, is it not, that during the years 1895, 1896, 1897, and 1898, the items of construction or improvement as given by you aggregating $169,576.79, which had been carried to capital account, were charged off to profit and loss?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 430. And at the end of the year 1899, the amount of $93,281.20, representing the construction and improvement in that year, was charged off to profit and loss?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. 431. What was done at the end of the year 1900 with the amount $36,888.33, which you have testified represents the construction and improvement account for the year 1900?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. It was charged off to profit and loss.

(By Mr. McCLENNEN:)

Q. 432. Was there upon the books up to the 1st of January, 1901, any account of construction, improvement, and development work other than the construction account, the sum of which you say was charged off to profit and loss, at the end of the year 1898, for the two and one half years then ending, and charged off at the end of 1899, ar at the end of the year 1900, for the year then ending?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

Q. 433. Mr. Altmiller, what were the gross receipts, operating expense, profit or loss, construction and improvement expense, and final profit or loss, for the year 1901, given in the same way that you gave them for the earlier years?

818 Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I will have to work that out. The gross receipts from copper, silver, and gold for the year ending December 31, 1901, were $1,276,979.83

Total expense	1,163,140.42
Profit from production	113,839.41
Less special construction and improvement on account of development work at Globe and Continental mines	72,179.98
Surplus for the year.....	$41,659.43

Q. 434. I notice that the figures that you have just given for the year 1901 conform to the figures appearing in the report to the stockholders for the year 1901, Exhibit 15, of the deposition of A. S. Bigelow, given on April 10, 1903. Have you any recollection of the facts which led to making this report up in accordance with the books, whereas the other one was not made up in accordance with the books?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No, I have not.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. 435. Does the item of $72,179.98 appearing in the report for the year 1901, ending December 31, 1901, as special construction and improvement and development work at Globe and Continental mines, include any item except the items which appear upon the books of the company as construction and improvement account?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. One item of $824.95, real estate and property account.

Q. 436. That is, the $72,179.98 is made up of two items appearing upon the books, construction, and improvement, $71,355.03, and real estate and property account, $824.95?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

(By Mr. McClennen:)

Q. 437. In the keeping of the books for the year 1901, was the character of the items of expenditure which were put into the construction and improvement account and the mining-expense account, respectively, any different from what they had been in those two accounts during the preceding period of about five years and a half?

Mr. Hemenway: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

819 Recross-examination:

[On recross-examination, in answer to interrogatories propounded by J. Wells Farley, Esq., of counsel for the defendants, the witness further deposes and says:]

X 438. Mr. Altmiller, in answer to Mr. McClennen's question, you stated that the total amount received, less the $19,500 paid back in cash checks was $500,000; and you stated that was made up of the item of $503,750, less $19,500, giving a remainder of $484,250, to which was then to be added $1000 received from Bigelow, account Barron, $1000, by charge to Lewisohn's bill, and $14,650, being the amount received from sales of stock by Stackpole & Gay, less premium. Did you not omit, in that answer, the fact that the cash account should first have been increased by $1000, cash received from Lewisohn Brothers, which $1000 was balanced by the $1000, the amount paid to Lewisohn on the bill he rendered? The substance of my question being whether or not your cash account should not show, in addition to the items you mentioned, $1000 received from Lewisohn Brothers, the same being balanced by $1000 they paid?

A. Yes, that would probably be the correct way to make the item up; I simply left it out as an offset. You mean that should be $20,500 deducted and add $1000 to the receipts?

X 439. Speaking in terms of money, $20,500 received and $1000 paid out?

A. Yes.

X 440. Now in your answer to Mr. McClennen, speaking of the constitution, so to speak, of the 586 shares sold through Stackpole & Gay, there is nothing to in any way qualify your original statement, is there, that 36 of those shares, being part of the directors' shares, came from certificate 71, and 200 more thereof, being shares coming via Samborn and Anthony, also coming from certificate 71?

A. I do not understand what you mean.

X 441. You have no reason to qualify your original statement, which was, in substance, that 236 of the 586 shares sold by Stackpole & Gay can be traced back to certificate 71 as their origin?

A. Yes, I have.

X 442. Well, if so, what is it?

A. Well, certificates No. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 were made out in the directors' names; they were surrendered, and certificates 8, 10,

4, 11, 12, 13, and 14 were issued in their places; those certificates were again surrendered, and certificates 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, and 81 were issued in their places; 75, 76, 77, 80, and 81 were again surrendered, and No. 466 for 36 shares was issued in place of them, No. 78 for 4 shares being retained by Edgar Buffman; this 820 certificate 466 was split up into certificates for 25, 10, and 1 shares, and sold through Stackpole & Gay.

X 443. Have you now completed your answer?

A. As far as that is concerned.

X 444. Well, wherein does that answer qualify the original statement you made?

A. These came originally from certificate No. 71.

X 445. Well, did they not?

A. They did.

X 446. Then it does not qualify it, does it?

A. Why, you asked me if they did not come from that.

X 447. Well, in spite of this explanation and history of these shares which you have just given me, it is still true, is it not, that 36 of the 586 shares sold through Stackpole & Gay are traceable to certificate 71?

A. Yes.

X 448. And it is still true that 200 shares of that 586 are also traceable to certificate 71?

A. Yes.

X 449. It is still true that 540 shares, for which you appear to have received cash, according to the list on the stub of your check book, are traceable also to certificate 82, which came from certificate 71?

A. Yes.

X 450. I will now ask you—turn to your check book if necessary—if the Old Dominion Copper Company paid any sums of money on account of mining expense incurred prior to August 1, 1895, except that $300 check to Berry? If so, what were those payments?

A. $10,972.43.

X 451. What have you to show that the Old Dominion Company paid that sum which you have just stated in your answer?

A. Well, it is a balance; it is a balance of the syndicate account, made up of various items of receipts and expenditures.

X 452. Is it not charged off as balancing an amount still due by the syndicate?

A. It is.

X 453. I now repeat my question: what have you to show that the Old Dominion Copper Company of New Jersey paid that amount, except by charging it off against that bill?

A. Well, the books will show that. There are various items.

X 454. I will ask: have you any check, voucher, memorandum, or other paper which shows who in the first instance paid the money constituting the sum of $10,972.43, referred to in your answer?

A. The vouchers are on file somewhere; I don't know where they are, whether they are here.

X 455. Is it not true that every single payment made by the Old Dominion Copper Company of New Jersey appears on your check book or cash book?

A. Yes.

821 X 456. Will you now turn to any check or any number of checks which will show that the Old Dominion Copper Company of New Jersey made one or many payments which aggregate that sum of $10,972.43 and show me how you trace them from the checks into the entry in your ledger?

A. Checks were paid as follows:—January 16, Lewisohn Brothers, $10,399.83; January 20, G. M. Hyams, $436.12; January 22, Edward C. Perkins, $1000; January 9, 1896, Evarts, Choate & Beaman, $7689.66. That makes a total of $19,526.01. Then we received syndicate receipts under date of January 6 of $7493.87; which leaves a balance of $12,032.14. Now from that is deducted journal entries of the amount of cash on hand at the mines, August, 1895, $353.51; September, 20 cents; deduction of July, 1895, cash, which is the Lewisohn payment, $1000, and under date of September, 1895, $6; total, $1359.71; leaving a balance of $10,673.43; to that add $300 paid to Berry, August, 1895, makes a total of $10,972.43. Do you want to know what was done with them?

X 457. No, I now want you to answer my question. You have now explained very carefully what we have previously been over, that the balance appearing on the debtor side of your ledger, on page 18, was balanced by certain entries, and you have again recounted those items; you explained that "by mine agent," when it first appears, was money turned over to you——

A. Not here, it was at the mine.

X 458. You have explained that the other items were money that you, in one way or another, or your company, received.

A. Yes.

X 459. You, in your previous examination, told me that this entry of $10,972.43 represented money paid out for salaries prior to August 1. I then asked you, in my previous interrogatory, if you could show me where and how that money had been paid, and you undertook to do so.

A. Yes.

X 460. I will now ask you if that money was paid by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey; and if so, when and how, and in what items?

A. I have explained it to you just now, and I can tell you why that entry was made on the journal calling it salaries and so forth.

X 461. But isn't it true that it would be in exact conformity with all the other entries on that ledger if that had been money paid out for the benefit of the Old Dominion Company, in cash, prior to August 1, 1895?

A. It was not paid out for the benefit of the company.

X 462. How do you know it was not?

A. Because it don't say so on these books here.

X 463. Not paid out by you nor by your company, but 822 paid out by others for your company for the benefit of the property which came into your company?

A. It was paid out for various purposes.

X 464. By whom was it paid out?

A. Well, by Lewisohn Brothers, paid out by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company.

X 465. Show me one entry which shows the original payment of any item entering into that.

A. Here it is right here, Lewisohn and Perkins.

X 466. But you have already accounted for this in making up your total of $18,000, which was owed by the syndicate. You have shown that was charged once, and I will ask you to explain, if that money was paid out by the Old Dominion Copper & Smelting Company, how it appears on the credit side of the ledger, whereas the other payments which were made by them appear on the debit side of the account?

A. Well, that is the amount paid out, $12,332.14 was the amount paid out.

X 467. And that was the amount that was, in some form or other, received by them to be credited as a receipt?

A. No, no, it was not a receipt, that is the excess of expenditures.

X 468. Is it not true that the debit side of your ledger, page 18, shows money paid by the Old Dominion Copper Company?

A. Yes.

X 469. Is it not true that the credit side of your ledger purports to show moneys received?

A. Yes.

X 470. Either received in cash or money paid for your benefit?

A. Yes.

X 471. How, then, do you explain that this item of $10,972.43 was a payment by the Old Dominion Copper Company and not in some form a receipt?

A. Why, it shows on the debit balance of the suspense account that it has been paid out for various purposes, and that item simply I have charged up to the mine on the books to balance the account. It is not a receipt; I should call it an expense account.

X 472. Now will you turn to the entry in your journal or cash book from which that ledger entry is posted?

A. I will. I have simply got the expense off our books here; it is balance of expenses, mining expense account, transferred to mine books, debtor to mine agent, $10,972.43.

X 473. Who paid the mine expenses prior to August 1, 1895?

A. That I do not know.

X 474. Well, did the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey? If so, show one payment, with the exception of the one payment to Berry.

A. I have not got anything to show.

X 475. Have you anything in any book to show; if so, what; anything in your possession, except the item of $300 to Berry, 823 which shows a payment of the mine expenses of the Old Dominion Copper Company prior to August 1, 1895?

A. That is not put down as a mine expense.

X. 476. Or any expense, salaries, or anything of that nature?

A. No.

X 477. Or any vouchers?

A. Well, I do not know if it is included in that Lewisohn bunc or not.

X 478. Is this not true, then, so far as you know, that that entr may represent, and probably does represent from its position an constitution, payments made by others for mine expense prior t August 1, 1895?

A. I do not know.

X 479. Now, turning to your testimony in regard to the min reports and accounts—and I wish to ask these questions de bene and by asking them in no way waive our objection to the line o questioning pursued by counsel for the plaintiff,—is it not true tha your testimony in regard to the difference between this report o April 3, 1901, which purported to cover the net and gross result of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company from th formation of the company to January 1, 1901, that the net result o your testimony in regard to that difference is simply this: tha $541,000, approximately, was taken from operating expenses an added in this report to construction account?

A. Yes.

X 480. So that the total result and the total summing up remain absolutely the same?

A. Correct.

X 481. The only difference being that what, according to you calculation, should be charged as operating expenses appears in thi report as charged as part of the item charged to construction ac count?

[Counsel for plaintiff objects to the use of the word "calcula tion."]

A. Not what the books show; the books show it is chargeable the other way. The report was made up one way, and the books show the other way.

X 482. To change the account in conformity with your state ment, then,—is it not so,—that the difference between this report and the books of the company, as shown by your answers, is simply that $541,000, approximately, has been taken from the item of operating expenses——

A. Mining expenses.

X 483. —the item of mining expenses in the books, and included in the total charged to construction account in the report?

A. Yes.

X 484. And the sum of the two accounts in the books and in the report is identical?

A. Yes.

X 485. You testified, in answer to Mr. McClennen or Mr. Brandeis, that you made up these figures?

A. Yes.

824 X 486. Did you also keep the books?

A. Yes; I had charge of them.

X 487. And you testified that Mr. Ladd or Mr. Hyams spoke to you, and it was the result of that conversation that you made them up in this way?

A. Yes.

X 488. Did Mr. Bigelow speak to you about it?

A. Well, possibly he, in signing the report, might have mentioned it.

X 489. No, no, not possibly, I ask you whether he did, to your personal, absolute knowledge?

A. I do not remember.

X 490. Or did Mr. Lewisohn?

A. No.

X 491. Leonard Lewisohn?

A. No.

——— ———.

Subscribed and sworn to this — day of ———, before me:

——— ———.

Notary Public.

Order Appointing Commissioner.

In the above-entitled case, at the hearing of the same before Mr. Justice Sheldon, it is ordered, under the provisions of Chancery Rules, No. XXXV., at the request of the defendant, that Bates Torrey be, and he hereby is, appointed commissioner to take the evidence in said case, to be reported to the full court.

By the court:

WALTER F. FREDERICK,
Assistant Clerk.

December 10, 1907.

Report of Commissioner on Proceedings in Court, December 10, 1907.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is agreed that the two cases were tried together; that was the fact, but it does not appear on the record.

Second. That the originals of the exhibits referred to in the evidence may be shown to the full court on the hearing of any appeal.

Third. That the objections to the admission of evidence made by the parties, respectively, and noted by the magistrate on the taking of the several depositions read at the trial, were not waived by the parties, but that such evidence was admitted de bene, and all the rights of the parties are saved. And that, the full court consenting, the cases may be argued together. That is agreed.

SHELDON, J.: Yes.

825 Mr. HEMINGWAY: Now there is one other suggestion that occurs to me while sitting here, just as this last did on hearing the previous case; and that is, whether any order should or could be made by your Honor in reference to the consolidation of the record of the two cases.

SHELDON, J.: I think, now that I have ordered a separate decree in each case, it would be too late, and therefore I do not think they should be consolidated. The questions are the same, and undoubtedly there would be no difficulty before the full court in having them argued together.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I would ask this with regard to the record that goes to the full court, whether it is possible?

SHELDON, J.: I suppose you could have an agreement of both parties, that as the evidence is the same in both cases the evidence and findings of the court be printed in only one case, as they are the same in both; it would be an useless expense, of course, to print all the evidence in duplicate.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: One thing occurs to us, in view of these special statements in the record, and that is the matter of the objections to the admissibility of the evidence. It is improbable in a record of 1400 pages some one question may not have gotten in that does not quite conform to the requirements of the evidence. It is quite improbable that any such answer as that has affected the finding of your Honor. It is obvious that this case ought not to go to the full bench, except to raise questions which are really——

SHELDON, J.: As an appeal is on the evidence, if any evidence I have considered is incompetent the full court would on the appeal consider the case without regard to that evidence; the appeal is on the evidence, so I do not see how it would make any special difference in the effect of excluding any evidence before me if it should be held to be incompetent. The only thing I can see would happen is that, on considering the evidence left, the full court might come to a different conclusion on the evidence.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: It is suggested that it appear on the record the fact that none of the specific objections to the specific questions were, in fact, called directly to your Honor's attention.

SHELDON, J.: Well, I think some of them were.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: With the exception of those which appear on the record as having been called to your attention.

826 Mr. HEMENWAY: It was understood that in order to save time it should be admitted de bene, and Mr. McClennen read without referring at all to the deposition, skipping that portion.

SHELDON, J.: I thought the evidence would be printed on the appeal, and the record would show what was called to my attention and what was not; it was understood by both parties that the evidence received de bene was not to be received with any waiver of objection to its admissibility.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That is undoubtedly true. The decrees have been seen by Mr. Hemenway, and I understand his position to be simply that he does not consent to it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I object to them most strenuously; if you will permit me to state my position exactly.

SHELDON, J.: As not conforming to my findings and order?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I did not intend to say anything in regard to it, if your Honor please; I suppose the decrees are very short.

SHELDON, J.: You object to my findings?
Mr. HEMENWAY: Absolutely.
SHELDON, J.: You may read them, Mr. McClennen.
[Mr. McClennen reads the decrees.]
Mr. HEMENWAY: Before the entry of the decree Mr. Burpee was the commissioner in the case. He is not present to-day, but the stenographer of the court is, and I ask that he be appointed commissioner.
SHELDON, J.: He may be appointed a commissioner under the rule to write out these proceedings. The decree is not to be entered until the record is transcribed.

BATES TORREY,
Commissioner.

Filed December 10, 1907.

Copy.
Attest:

——— ———, Clerk.

827 Deposition of Cleveland H. Dodge.

Taken before me, Mark J. Kätz, a notary public in and for the state of New York, at the office of Phelps, Dodge & Company, No. 99 John street, in the city of New York, this 22d day of October, 1907, at 11.30 a. m., pursuant to consent by and between the attorneys for the respective parties hereto.

OCTOBER 22, 1907, 11.30 a. m.

Appearances:

Louis D. Brandeis, counsel for complainant.
Alfred Hemenway, Edward Lauterbach, and Eugene Treadwell, counsel for defendants.

It is hereby consented that the testimony of Cleveland H. Dodge be taken before Mark J. Kätz, a notary public in and for the state of New York, to be filed and used in both of the actions of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Albert S. Bigelow, in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and in both the actions wherein the same company is complainant against Frederick Lewisohn et al., in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

CLEVELAND H. DODGE, a witness produced and sworn on behalf of the defendants, testified as follows:

Direct examination by Mr. LAUTERBACH:

Q. Mr. Dodge, what is your full name, age, and occupation?
A. My name is Cleveland H. Dodge; my age is forty-seven; and my occupation is that of a merchant.
Q. And a member of what firm?
A. The firm of Phelps, Dodge & Company.

Q. The firm of Phelps, Dodge & Company were stockholders, were they not, in the corporation known as the United Globe Mines, a New York corporation, the mines being situated in Arizona?

A. I am not so sure whether the firm was a stockholder; the individual members were.

Q. Including yourself?

A. Yes.

Q. And you remained such owners, did you not, until the time of a turning over of the shares of stock to another corporation?

A. Yes.

Q. The transferee of the stock was the Old Dominion Company of Maine, was it not?

A. Yes, I think so.

828 Q. At about the time of this transfer did you know of the existence of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Do you know whether or not, at about the same time that the Old Dominion Company of Maine became the transferee of your stock it also became the transferee of some of the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes, it did.

Q. The Old Dominion Company of Maine became the transferee of the whole of the stock of the Globe Company, did it not?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I am not sure whether it was all of it; it was practically all of it.

Q. And is that true as to the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company,—that it became practically the owner of it?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. A very large percentage;—a large majority of the stock of the New Jersey company; it is a matter of record.

Q. You were interested in the formation of the Maine company, were you not?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. Were there negotiations that preceded the formation of the Maine company and the disposal of your stock to that company?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Certainly.

Q. Can you recall with whom they were carried on?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I think Mr. Charles S. Smith of Boston was the person with whom these negotiations were had.

Q. What was his relation to any of the companies I have mentioned?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. He was president of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey.

Q. Do you recall that any one else was interested in conducting the negotiations?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Plenty of others were interested.

829 Q. Was there any one else who conducted the negotiations that led up to the acquisition by the Maine company of the properties?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. We came in contact with Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, counsel of the company, at that time; it was those two gentlemen that we saw in connection with the negotiations.

Q. Do you recall that General Maxwell Woodhull was interested?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Oh, yes.

Q. Did you have any knowledge, prior to the conclusion of the transfer to the Maine company of your stock, of a claim pending in the Massachusetts and New York courts by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company as complainant and Mr. Bigelow as defendant in the Massachusetts court, and the estate of Leonard Lewisohn in the New York courts?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes, I did.

Q. Did you know the general character of the claim that was involved in those actions?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. Will you state, as nearly as you can, your knowledge of its character?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. As I recollect it, it was a claim against Mr. Bigelow and the estate of Mr. Lewisohn for having turned over to the company certain claims which the company subsequently did not consider as valuable as they were originally put in at; that was the general character.

Q. In whose favor did you understand that claim to exist before the transfer was effected—the legal claim—the transfer of your stock to the Old Dominion Company of Maine?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. The legal claim, if any, existed in the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey.

Q. Did it continue to exist in the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey after the acquisition of such of the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey as the Old Dominion Company of Maine acquired?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

830 A. Of my own knowledge, I do not know.

Q. Did you know at about the time of this transfer o consolidation or acquisition by the holding company, the Maine company, that the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey had divested itself of that claim to a trustee or trustees or to persons other than itself?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant; objected to, further, as leading, and further objected to as assuming conditions and statements which are not in accordance with facts.

A. I heard such was the case.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Answer objected to as irresponsive and as a statement of hearsay.

Q. From whom did you hear it, Mr. Dodge?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. To the best of my recollection I heard it from Mr. Charles S. Smith and from Mr. Brandeis.

Q. Did you have any conversation with Mr. Charles S. Smith concerning this claim?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I am not sure that I personally had.

Q. Were you present at any time when a conversation concerning it was had in your hearing with Mr. Charles S. Smith or Mr. Brandeis?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. Will you state, as nearly as you can recollect it, the nature of that conversation.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. As I recollect it, Mr. Lauterbach, these facts which we have been speaking of were mentioned and the members of our firm thought it as well that they, as new stockholders in the consolidated company, should not have any part in these lawsuits.

Q. And how did you understand, from that conversation, that the consolidated company could be relieved of having any part in the result of these litigations?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as assuming facts which do not exist; among other things, that there is or was a consolidated company.

A. It was suggested that the claim be segregated, and, as I recollect it, put in trust in such a way that the old stockholders of the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey should participate 831 in anything that should be derived from these claims, but that the stockholders of the Old Dominion Company of Maine, which I call the consolidated company, should have no participation in them.

Q. You mean what by the term "consolidated company" which you have used?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. The consolidation of the New Jersey company with the United Globe Mines, forming the Old Dominion Company of Maine.

Q. The Old Dominion Company of Maine is the company which you referred to as the consolidated company?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. In fact what was it, rather than a consolidation; the Old Dominion Company of Maine?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. It was a holding company.

Q. Holding a majority of both stocks?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

941

A. Yes.

Q. To whom, then, as you understood it, were the proceeds, if any, of these litigations to go after their segregation of which you have spoken?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as asking for hearsay and asking for conclusions as to matters of law and contents of written instruments, if any.

A. As I understood it at the time, these proceeds were to be enjoyed by the stockholders of the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey.

Q. The then existing stockholders?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Or their successors.

Q. The Maine company were the successors of the existing stockholders, were they not?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes, but what I meant by "successors" was successors to rights that may have existed at the time. I forget how the transaction took place; there were trust certificates which entitled them to proceeds of these litigations; I mean successors to the trust certificates.

Q. Have you any of these certificates?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No, not to my knowledge. Personally I haven't any.

Q. So that, if I understand you correctly, the proceeds, if any, of these litigations would go, not to the stock of the New Jersey company held by the holding company of Maine, but would go to the holders of these trust certificates?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and calling for hearsay contents of written instruments, inference as to matter of law, and as leading and misleading.

A. That was my understanding.

Q. For what reason was this segregation made?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. It was an old matter in which we had no personal interest, and we did not care to be interested in it. When I say "we" I mean the stockholders of the United Globe Mines.

Q. Do you know who the trustees were in the trust certificates that you have mentioned?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I don't remember.

Q. Do you know by whom they were designated?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No, I do not.
Q. By Mr. Smith?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I don't know.
Q. Or by Mr. Brandeis?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I don't know that either did.
Q. Do you, perhaps, recall that Mr. Smith was one of the trustees?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I would not swear to it.
Q. To the best of your recollection?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. I really do not know.
Q. You had no further interest in the matter after the segregation?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No; I, of course, knew at the time, but being ancient history I really do not remember who they were.
Q. Do you recall by whom the expenses of the litigation after the consolidation, as you call it, had been effected, were to be borne?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as calling for hearsay.

A. No, I do not know.
Q. Do you recall that they were to be borne by the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as calling for hearsay.

A. No.
Q. Or were they still to be imposed as a burden upon the assenting stockholders of the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as calling for hearsay.

A. What do you mean by "assenting stockholders," Mr. Lauterbach?
Q. Those who transferred their stock to the holding company.

A. No, my general recollection was it was to be borne by the holders of the trust certificates.

Cross-examination by Mr. BRANDEIS:

Q. Mr. Dodge, it is a fact, is it not, that whatever arrangement of any kind may have been made in regard to the prosecution of these suits was embodied in written instruments?

A. As I recollect it, yes.

Q. Have you been an officer, or director, of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

A. I don't think so; no, I have not,—the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey, no.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, Mr. Dodge, that all negotiations and arrangements leading up to the acquisition by the Old Dominion Company of Maine of the interest in the United Globe Mines formerly owned by members of the firm of Phelps, Dodge & Company were conducted by your counsel, Mr. William Church Osborne?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes, certainly.

834 Q. It is also a fact, is it not, that you personally have never been present at any of the directors' meetings of the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey?

A. No, I never have.

Q. And you have not, at any time, examined the records of the directors' meetings of the Old Dominion Company of New Jersey?

A. No, I have not.

Q. It is a fact, is it not, that at a time some months prior to the formation of the Old Dominion Company of Maine there had been a plan of a real consolidation of the United Globe Mines with the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey, and that that plan was later abandoned?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. And is it not a fact that the talk of segregating certain assets of the New Jersey company was a suggestion made at the time of, and with special reference to, the plan of consolidation?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Redirect examination by Mr. LAUTERBACH:

Q. But this segregation continued to be a feature of the substituted plan, did it not?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Certainly.

Q. Do you know where the instruments, or written documents to which you have referred in answer to Mr. Brandeis' question, are?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No, I do not.

Q. Have you seen them?

A. Which documents do you mean?

Q. I mean those that Mr. Brandeis asked you about,—whether the arrangement to which you have referred, of the segregation of the claims, was not embodied or formulated in a written instrument or instruments, and you said yes; those are the instruments to which I refer.

A. I do not think I have seen the instruments; as I recollect it, a circular was sent to the stockholders embodying the general plan, but I do not think I saw the actual instruments.

Q. Were you a director, or are you a director, of the Maine company?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

835 Q. And have been since its organization?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. As such director are you advised of the proceedings of the directors of the New Jersey company, the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant, and as calling for hearsay.

A. We have a general knowledge of what transpires in their meetings, but not in connection with the trust.

Q. But in respect of other matters?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. Yes.

Q. And all other corporate matters?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. There is no actual record of the meetings read at the meetings of the Maine company, but we have a general knowledge of what transpires.

Q. But not of the prosecution of these actions?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

Q. No interest is taken in those by the Old Dominion Company of Maine?

Mr. BRANDEIS: Objected to as incompetent, immaterial, and irrelevant.

A. No.

CLEVELAND H. DODGE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 25th day of October, 1907.

[SEAL.]

MARK J. KATZ,
Notary Public, New York County,
State of New York.

Dr. Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

1895.			Ledger Folio.
May 6	To	Cash. J. M. Meredith	476 C 173		2,000 00
28	"	" Globe National Bank	" " 205		48,000 00
"	"	" A. S. Bigelow	" " "		1,000 00
June 30	"	Expense	" " 95	50 00
					50 00
18	"	Cash. Travelling exp's L. L. Evarts	" " 233		67 60
29	"	" Typewriter expenses	" " 247		10 00
July 1	"	" Note due with Old Colony Trust Co. Aug. 26	" " 251		204,761 67
	"	" interest on above from May 28 to July 26 35 d at 5%	" " "		995 36
8	"	" note due Sept. 25, 95	" " 263		204,761 67
	"	" interest 42 days at 5%	" " "		1,194 44
	"	" Incorporation New Jersey, Evarts, Choate & B	" " "		750 00
	"	" James Colquhoun	" " "		52 25
9	"	" for deposit	" " "		1,660 00
	"	" services Old Colony Trust Co	" " "		700 00
	"	" G. M. Allison, C. M. Bruce & Y. Cohen	" " 265		195 60
22	"	" Stamp E. A. Tucker & Co	" " 285		40
Aug. 31	"	Transfer Old Dom. Copper Co	304 " "	525 00
Dec. 31	"	Transfer Balance Old Dominion Syndicate #2	" 349	209,395 69
					209,920 69
		Carried forward			$675,459 68

61—191

COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY.

953

PAGE BOUND VERTICAL IN BOOK

Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

1895.	Ledger 476.					Folio.		Cr.
May 17	By Cash, A. S. Bigelow.....					C 188		1,000 60
28	" C. S. Henry, 1st installment on subscription			$5,000	14%	H241	700 00
	Rosalie Lewisohn	1st	"	$1,000 00	14%	"	140 00
	Leonard Lewisohn chl'dn	1st	"	5,000 00	"	"	700 00
	Jesse Lewisohn	1st	"	10,000 00	"	"	1,400 00
	S. Rosenstamm,	1st	"	2,000 00	"	"	280 00
	Mrs. Eliza Rechat,	1st	"	2,000 00	"	"	280 00
	G. M. Hyams,	1st	"	2,800 00	"	"	3,920 00
	Leonard Lewisohn,	1st	"	169,428 33	"	"	23,719 97
	Adolph Lewisohn,	1st	"	84,714 17	"	"	11,859 98
	Theo. Armstrong,	1st	"	3,000 00	"	"	420 00
	Austin M. Purvis,	1st	"	2,000 00	"	"	280 00
								43,699 95
June 6	A. S. Mayer,	1st	"	10,000 00	"	C 218	1,400 00
	Jno. Stanton,	1st	"	5,000 00		"	700 00
	J. W. Belches & Co.	1st	"	5,000 00		"	700 00
7	C. C. Beaman,	1st	"	10,000 00		"	1,400 00
14	S. H. Stern,	1st	"	15,000 00		"	2,100 00
"	" "	2nd	"	15,000 00	28⅔	"	4,300 00
July 13	Cash, Refund Old Colony Trust Co.....			.....		270	175 00
								10,775 00

EXHIBIT 231—Continued.

Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

CR. (Continued.)

11	½ note paid Old Colony Trust Company July 1.	$204,761.69	100	102,380 83
"	" " " " " " July 8.	.....	"	102,380 84
"	⅔ note paid W. Kayser July 2.....	$81,905	"	54,602 33
"	⅔ " " " " 8.....	$81,905	"	54,602 33
					313,966	33
15	Cash, Refund Old Colony Trust Co.....	.....	C 272	.....	350	00
	Carried forward.....				$369,791	28

838

1895.

DR.

Brought forward.....	675,459	68
Carried forward.....	$675,459	68

EXHIBIT 231—Continued.

839 Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

Cr.

CR.

1895.		Brought over						369,791 28
						Folio
July	16.	Cash J. W. Belches, Balance subscription on	$5,000			274		4,300 00
	23.	" Jno. Stanton 2d pay't " 28⅔ " on	$5,000			284		1,433 34
	25.	" E. Hawley, " " " " " on	$10,000			286		2,866 65
	26.	" Chr. C. Beaman, " " " " " on	$10,000			290		2,866 67
	"	" A. J. Meyer, " " " " " on	$10,000			"		2,866 67
		Ledger.
Jul.	30.	By C. S. Henry, 2d pay't 28¾% on		5,000 00		1,433 33
	"	Theo. Armstrong, " "		3,000 00		860 00
	"	A. M. Purvis, " "		2,000 00		573 34
	"	Rosalie Lewisohn, " "		1,000 00		286 67
	"	Ch'dn of Leonard Lewisohn, "		5,000 00		1,433 33
	"	Jesse Lewisohn, " "		10,000 00		2,866 67
	"	Sam Rosenstamm " "		2,000 00		573 33
	"	Elisa Rechert, " "		2,000 00		573 34
	"	G. M. Hyams, " "		28,000 00		8,026 67
	"	Leonard Lewisohn " "		169,428 33		48,569 45
	"	Adolph Lewisohn " "		84,714 17	H270	24,284 72
								89,480 85
Aug.	1.	Jno. Stanton, 3 & 4 " "		5,000 00	C302			2,866 67
	29.	Chr. E. Beaman, 3d call on			" 334			2,866 67

EXHIBIT 231—Continued.

Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

CR. (Continued.)

26.	C. S. Henry,	3d pay't 28¾% on	5,000 00	H282	1,433 33
"	Ch'dn of Leon. Lewisohn,	" "	5,000 00	"	1,433 33
	Theo. Armstrong,	" "	3,000 00	"	860 00
	A. M. Purvis,	" "	2,000 00	"	573 34
	Rosalie Lewisohn,	" "	1,000 00	"	286 67
	Jesse Lewisohn,	" "	10,000 00	"	2,866 67
	Sam Rosenstamm,	" "	2,000 00	"	573 33
	Elisa Rechert,	" "	2,000 00	"	573 34
	Carried forward					479,338 81

840

DR.

1895.	Brought over	675,459 68

841

$675,459 68

EXHIBIT 231—Continued.

Old Dominion Copper Co. Syndicate.

CR.

1895.	Brought over					479,338 81
Aug. 26.	G. M. Hyams, 3d pay't 28¾% on	28,000 00	H282	8,026 67
	Leonard Lewisohn, " "	169,428 33	"	48,569 45
	Adolph Lewisohn, " "	84,714 17	"	24,284 72
					89,480 85
Aug. 31.	Transfer to Old Dominion Co		J476			2,825 85
Sep. 20.	Simon H. Stern 3d & 4th pay't sub	15,000 00	C360			8,600 00
24.	A. J. Meyer, 4th pay't, 28⅝% on	10,000 00	" 368			2,866 66
26.	C. C. Beaman " "	10,000 00	" 370			2,866 66
	Ledger 304.
24.	By C. S. Henry, 4th int. 28⅝% on	5,000 00	J301	1,433 34
	Theo. Armstrong	3,000 00	"	860 00
	Austin M. Purvis	2,000 00	"	573 32
	Rosalie Lewisohn	1,000 00	"	286 66
	Children of Leonard Lewisohn	5,000 00	"	1,433 34
	Jesse Lewisohn	10,000 00	"	2,866 66
	Sam Rosenstamm	2,000 00	"	573 34
	Elisa Rechert	2,000 00	"	573 32
	G. M. Hyams	28,000 00	"	8,026 66
	Leonard Lewisohn	169,428 33	"	48,569 46
	Adolph Lewisohn	84,714 17	"	24,284 75
					89,480 85
						$675,459 68

PAGE BOUND

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

DR.

1895.						Folio.
		Ledger 536.
Sep.	25.	To Cash 50 shares Old Dom.		27	Cash	369	1,356	25
	"	" " " 50 " " " "		26½	"	"	1,331	25
	"	" " " 200 " " " "		29	"	"	5,825	00
	"	" " " 100 " " " "		28	"	"	2,812	50
	"	" " " 400 " " " "		30	"	"	12,050	00
	"	" " " 10 " " " "		29	"	373	291	25
	"	" " " 100 " " " "		26½	"	367	2,662	50
	"	" " " 100 " " " "		"	"	369	2,662	50
	17.	" C. S. Henry, carrying Aug. 1
		Bought 200 at 29 $5800.....	$5800
		Sept. 13 sold 200 at 26½.....	5325
		Differ.....			Jl.	300	475	00
		Ledger 420.
	25.	" A. M. Whitney 400 shares Old Dom....		27½	"	302	11,000	00
	30.	" L. Nachman, 1% Comm. on 500 shares.			"	303	500	00
	30.	" E. L. Oppenheim 200 shs.....		25	"	305	5,000	00
Oct.	1.	" Chas. F. Brooks 250 " subscription..		26½ + %	"	322	5,050	20
	4.	" C. S. Henry & Co. Comm. 250 shs. at 50c			"	324	125	00
	21.	" " " " 2000 " " 4 /–			"	327	975	00
	3.	" Cash 45 shs. Old Dom.....		29	Cash	381	1,311	26

EXHIBIT 232—Continued.

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

DR.

26.	"	C. S. Henry & Co.	200 shs.	Old Dom..	$25\frac{1}{2}$ + $\frac{1}{8}$ Com.	Jl.	322	5,325	00
16.	"	Cash	25	" " " ..	22	Cash	403	556	25
25.	"	"	250	" " " ..	21	"	413	5,281	25
29.	"	"	100	" " " ..	19 + Com.	"	417	1,912	50
"	"	"	50	" " " ..	$18\frac{1}{2}$	"	417	931	25
"	"	"	100	" " " ..	$18\frac{1}{2}$	"	"	1,862	50
"	"	"	50	" " " ..	$18\frac{1}{2}$	"	"	931	25
31.	"	"	100	" " " ..	$17\frac{1}{2}$ + $\frac{1}{8}$	"	419	1,762	50
"	"	"	100	" " " ..	$18\frac{1}{2}$ + $\frac{1}{8}$	"	"	1,862	50
"	"	Difference on 1000 shares sold at $25\frac{1}{2}$ Collected at 27.....				Jl.	318	1,500	00
Nov. 7.	"	Commission on 200 shs. Paris.....				"	420	105	89
		Carried forward						75,458	60

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

CR.

1895.							Folio.
		Ledger 536.
Aug.	1.	By Cash	200 shs.	Old Dom.	25		C—		5,000 00
	26.	" "	400 "	" "	27	50			11,000 00
Sep.	30.	N. M. Rothschild Son	1000 "	" "	29		J301	29,000 00
	"	Waldemar Company	500 "	" "	30		"	15,000 00
	"	" " "	500 "	" "	32		"	16,000 00
	"	Ladenburg, Thalman	400 "	" "	25		"	10,000 00
	"	S. Nachman	500 "	" "	30		"	15,000 00
	"	E. S. Oppenheim & Co.	2000 "	" "	25			50,000 00
								————	135,000 00
	24.	Sally M. Manz	200 "	" "	29		J302		5,800 00
	"	E. Lastate	500 "	" "	30		"		15,000 00
		Ledger 420.
	25.	A. M. Whitney	600 "	" "	27	50	"		16,500 00
	"	" "	400 "	" "	"		"		11,000 00
	30.	S. Lazarus Son	200 "	" "	29		"		5,800 00
	"	C. S. Henry	400 "	" "	30		"		12,000 00
	"	" "	100 "	" "	25		"		2,500 00
Oct.	1.	H. Wallenstein	500 "	" "	25		J324		12,500 00
	2.	J. D. Probst	400 "	" "	"		"		10,000 00
	7.	Lawyer Teutsch	250 "	" "	27		"		6,750 00
	8.	C. S. Henry & Co.	200 "	" "	30		"		6,000 00
	1.	A. Vogel	25 "	" "	25		"		625 00
	"	" "	25 "	" "	"		"		625 00

EXHIBIT 232—Continued.

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

CR. (Continued.)

"	Rose Rosenbaum	25	"	"	"	"	"	625	00
"	Bella "	25	"	"	"	"	"	625	00
"	Ike "	25	"	"	"	"	"	625	00
"	Doc. "	25	"	"	"	"	"	625	00
"	Sam. "	40	"	"	"	"	"	1,000	00
"	Baron de Hirsch	2000	"	"	"	30	"	60,000	00
"	Capt. Couch	200	"	"	"	12 50	"	2,500	00
"	T. Wolfson	20	"	"	"	"	"	250	00
"	Edgar Buffon	20	"	"	"	"	"	250	00
"	Theo. Gaden	20	"	"	"	"	"	250	00
	Carried forward							322,000	85

EXHIBIT 232—Continued.

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

DR.

844

		Brought over							75,458 60
1895.		Ledger 420.						Folio.
Nov.	1.	To Cash	400	shares		Cash	423	10,000 00
	2.	" "	100	"	18 Com.	"	425	1,812 50
	6.	" "	50	"	17½ + ⅛	"	427	881 25
	7.	" "	100	"	17¼	"	429	1,737 50
	8.	" "	50	"	15	"	431	756 25
	10.	" 5% Comm. on	200	" London		Jl.	332	300 00
	12.	" Cash	115	"	15	Cash	437	1,739 37
	16.	" "	50	"	17	"	443	856 25
Dec.	11.	To A. A. Fishl	150	shs. Old Dom.	16⅜	Jl.	340	2,456 25
Nov.	26.	C. M. Hyams	760	" " "	26	"	342	19,760 00
Dec.	3.	Cash	100	" " "	15¾	Cash	463	1,587 50
	19.	Jesse Lewisohn	593	" " "	25 68	Jl.	345	15,235 82
	"	5% Comm. on	500	" London		"	"	661 77
Nov.	"	Proceeds of	2000	" Old Dom.	30	"	"	60,000 00
Dec.	19.	Lewisohn, Adolph Lewisohn	6845	" " "	Avge. 27.52	Jl.	346	188,401 38
								381,644 44

EXHIBIT 232—Continued.

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

845

CR. (Continued.)

1895.								Folio.
		Ledger 420.	Brought over,							322,850 00
Oct.	1	C. W. Welch	20	shs.	Old	Dom.	12 50		J324	250 00
	"	W. Faint	20	"	"	"	"		"	250 00
	"	S. Radlostorffer	20	"	"	"	"		"	250 00
	"	H. L. Curey	20	"	"	"	"		"	250 00
	"	J. A. Albrecht	20	"	"	"	"		"	250 00
Oct.	1	By T. Wolfson	25	shs.	Old	Dom.	25	Jl.	324	625 00
	"	Edgar Buffon	25	"	"	"	"	"	"	625 00
	"	H. L. Casey	50	"	"	"	"	"	"	1,250 00
	"	McCoy	25	"	"	"	Gratis
	"	Cyril Henry	100	"	"	"	"
	"	Sam Lewisohn	20	"	"	"	"
	10	A. J. Stern	500	"	"	"	27	"	325	13,500 00
	"	Banque International	500	"	"	"	"	"	"	13,500 00
	29	C. S. Henry	100	"	"	"	19¾	"	"	1,987 50
	30	Mrs. Annie Wolfson	15	"	"	"	18	"	"	271 87
	23	G. M. Hyams	100	"	"	"	21	"	"	2,100 00
	24	" " "	100	"	"	"	19	"	"	1,900 00
	26	" " "	100	"	"	"	18½	"	"	1,850 00
	29	" " "	100	"	"	"	"	"	"	1,850 00
	"	Common	400	"	above			"	"	50 00

EXHIBIT 232—Continued.

Old Dominion New Stock Subscription A/C.

CR.

	"	C. S. Henry & Co.	200	"	Old Dom.	26½ ÷ ⅛	Jl.	313	5,325	00
Nov.	7	Comm. on 400 shares					"	329	50	00
	"	Transfer to Wm. Faint	10	"	"	17	"	"	171	15
	26	G. M. Hyams	270	"	"	24	"	342	6,480	00
		Ledger 421.
Dec.	5	Cash	15	"	"	16	Cash	464	240	00
	11	C. S. Henry overcharge	2 /—on	800	shs.		Jl.	342	390	00
	19	Jesse Lewisohn	233	shs.		22 87	"	345	5,328	62
	"	Interest recovered from C. F. Brooks					"	"	50	20
									381,644	44

EXHIBIT 233.

Old Dominion Syndicate Sub. #2.

846

DR.

1895.		Ledger 479.
Jun.	18	To Cash	C233			40,722 22
	"	" "	"235			102,708 07
	20	" Interest paid Louis G. Schiffer	J259	15 17
	"	" " " H. W. Spencer	"	14 82		29 99
July	1	" note due Aug. 26 discounted Wm. Keyser	C251	81,905 00
	"	" interest on above from May 28 30d@5%	"	409 52
	8	" note due Sept. 25th	C263	81,905 00
	"	" interest 42 days at 5%	"	477 78		164,697 30
	16	" Transfer 1st & 2d payment 42⅜ on 5000 E. L. Oppenheimer & Co.	J269			2,133 33
	"	" " 1-2-3-4 paym't of 2500 paid by D. L. Wallerstein	"			2,500 00
Aug.	14	" Aloa Arow, 1 & 2d pay't on subsc. 1,000 42⅜%	"284			426 67
	1	" D. W. Wallerstein, entry reversed				2,500 00
	15	" Jacob Cohen, Transfer	J285			2,500 00
July	1	" Chas. F. Brooks, reverse				2,133 33

EXHIBIT 233—Continued.

Old Dominion Syndicate Sub. #2.

DR. (Continued.)

		Ledger 484.
Sept.	1	" Interest G. E. Oppenheim is credited Aug. 26....	1451 25	J300	17 92 should have been.....	1433 33
		Carried forward.....				320,368 83

EXHIBIT 233—Continued.

Old Dominion Syndicate Sub. #2.

847

CR.

			5,000 00	J259	2,133 33
1895	Ledger 479		5,000 00	"	2,133 33
Jun. 20.	By Chas. F. Brooks, 1 & 2 payt 42⅔%.....		1,000 00	"	426 67
"	Children of Adolph Lewisohn 42⅔%.....		25,000 00	"	10,666 67
"	Sam'l Lewisohn, 1 & 2 payt.....		44,238 33	"	9,170 00
"	Lewisohn Bros. " "			"	4,585 55
"	Leonard Lewisohn, " " ⅔ of.....					29,115 00
"	Adolph Lewisohn, " " ⅓			J234		5,015 75
"	L. G. Schiffer full payment.....			"240		4,281 48
24.	A. W. Spencer.....		5,000 00	"250		2,133 33
July 1.	C. F. Brooks, 1 & 2 payt 42⅔% sub.....			C254		2,866 67
5.	A. W. Spencer, 3d payment.....			"266		1,400 00
10.	1st payment, 14% on subs. $10,000.....			"270		2,866 67
11.	last " " " " "		2,000 00	"		853 34
"	A. A. Evarts, 1 & 2 payt subs.....			J271		2,133 33
16.	E. L. Oppenheim & Co. 1 & 2 installmt.....			"272		2,500 00
26.	D. Wallerstein, Subscription to Syndicate....		1,000 00
Aug. 14.	Aloa Arow 1 & 2 pyt on subs. 42⅔%.....			"284		426 67
15.	Jacob Cohn, " " " " "		2,500 00	"285		1,066 66
2.	D. Wallerstein, full payt of subscription.....			C302		2,500 00
24.	A. J. Mayer, 3d payt 28⅔%.....			"326		2,866 67
26.	E. L. Oppenheim 3d payt		5,000 00	"330		1,451 25
27.	E. O. Hawley, " " "		10,000 00	"		2,866 66

EXHIBIT 233—Continued.

Old Dominion Syndicate Sub. #2.

CR. (Continued.)

	Ledger 484
26.	Allan W. Evarts, " " "	.....	2,000 00	"332			573 33
"	Chas. J. Brooker, " " "	.....	5,000 00	J282	1,433 33
"	Children Adolph Lewisohn "	.....	5,000 00	"	1,433 33
"	Sam Lewisohn, " " "	.....	1,000 00	"	286 67
	Carried forward.....				3,153 33		64,916 81

848

DR.

	Brought over,				320,368 83
1895	Ledger 486
Sep. 30.	To amount credited Twice as payt D. Wallerstein		J303.		1,066 66
"	" Readjustment of Jacob Cohn ac.....		" "		1,066 65
					322,502 14

EXHIBIT 233—Continued.

Old Dominion Syndicate Sub. #2.

CR.

1895
	Brought over			3,153 33		64,916 81
Aug. 26.	Lewisohn Bros 3d payt 28⅔%.....	25,000 00	J282	4,013 32
"	Leonard Lewisohn " " "	21,492 22	"	6,161 11
"	Adolph Lewisohn, " " "	10,746 11	"	3,080 55
"	Aloa Arow, " " "	1,000 00	"	286 67
						16,694 98
"	Jacob Cohn, " " "	2,500 00	J283			716 66
Sep. 23.	Allan W. Evarts last payt 28⅔% sub. on.....	2,000 00	"366			573 33
"	L. E. Oppenheim " " "	5,000 00	"			1,433 34
"	E. W. Hawley, " " "	10,000 00	"			2,866 67
24.	C. F. Brooker 4 installment sub.....	5,000 00	J300	1,433 34
"	Children Adolph Lewisohn "	5,000 00	"	1,433 34
"	Sam Lewisohn, " " " ..... Ledger 484	1,000 00	"	286 66
24.	By Jacob Cahn, 4th installment sub.....	2,500 00	J300	716 67
	Aloa Aron, " " "	1,000 00	"	286 67
	Leonard Lewisohn " "	21,492 22	"	6,161 11
	Adolph Lewisohn " " "	10,746 11	"	3,080 56
	Lewisohn Bros, " " "	14,000 00	"	4,013 32
						17,411 67
Sep. 30.	Cancel entry July 16 D. Wallerstein.....		J303			2,500 00
	" " Aug. 15 L. Bros.....		"			2,500 00
Dec. 31.	Transfer to Old Dominion Syndicate # 1....		J349			209,395 69
"	Interest collected from Sundry Subscribers...		"			3,492 99
						322,502 14

850 EXHIBIT C.

Memorandum.

Commenced searching files 4 P. M., February 25th.

Bigelow, Nelson, Bissell	January 1 to June 30
Bigelow, Nelson, Bissell	July 1 to December 31
Attorneys	January 1 to June 30
"	July 1 to December 31

Quit 5:30 P. M.

Resumed search 7:15 P. M.

Outgoing Letters	January 1 to January 10
	January 11 to January 20
	January 21 to 31
	February 1 to 14
	February 14 to 28
	March 1 to 15
	March 15 to 30
	April 1 to 15

Quit 9:30 P. M.

February 26th. 4:20 P. M.

Outgoing Letters—	April 15 to 30
	May 1 to 15
	May 16 to 31
	June 1 to 10

Quit 5:50

Resumed 7:05.

Outgoing Letters—	June 11 to 20
	June 21 to 30
	July 1 to 10
	July 11 to 20
	July 21 to 31
	Aug. 1 to 10
	Aug. 11 to 20
	Aug. 21 to 31

851 February 27th. 7:10 P. M.

Outgoing Letters— Sept. 1 to 10
Sept. 11 to 20
Sept. 21 to 30
Oct. 1 to 10
Oct. 11 to 20
Oct. 21 to 31
Nov. 1 to 10
Nov. 11 to 20
Nov. 21 to 30
Dec. 1 to 15
Dec. 16 to 31
Miscellaneous File 1893 to 1897

Quit 11 P. M.

February 28th. 2:05 P. M.

Letters Received—

A to Ba to Bl
January 1 to March 1
March 1 to May 25
May 25 to June 30
July 1 to Oct. 1

Quit 5 P. M.

March 1st. 1:55 P. M.

" A Ba to Bl
Oct. 1 to Dec. 31
Bo to By
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
C
January to March
May to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
D
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
852 E and F
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
G
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31

Quit 5:20 P. M.

March 1st—continued, 7:30 P. M.

Letters Received—

Ha to He
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
Hi to J
Jan. 1 to June 30
Hi to J
July 1 to Dec. 31
K
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
L
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
Ma to Me
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31 M—
Me to My
Jan. 1 to June 30
N O P
Jan. 1 to May —
June
July 1 to Oct. 15
Oct. 15 to Dec. 31

Quit 11:05

March 2nd, 2:40 P. M.

" Q to R
Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
853 Sa to Sh
January to June
Si to Sy
January to June
Si to Sy
July 1 to Dec. 31

Quit 5:20 P. M.

Resumed 7:15 P. M.

Letters Received—

T U V
Jan. to June
W to Z
January to June
Brokers— June 30th—
July 1 to December 31
Banks— January 1 to June 30
July 1 to December 31

Telegrams Received—
January 1 to May 1
June
July 1 to November 1
Nov. 1 to December 31

Quit 10:30 P. M

March 3rd—3:10 P. M.

New England Electrolytic Copper Co.
January, February and March
April, May and June
October, November and December
Record of Purchases—
N. E. Elec. Copper Co.
December 1, 1894 to September 30/95
Outgoing Letters—
N. E. Elec. Copper Co.
April to December, 1895
Weight Returns— January to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31
N. J. Meetal Refining Co.—1895
Penn. Salt Mfg. Co.—
April to December—

Quit 6:30 P. M

854 March 3—continued—7:15 P. M.

Letters Received—
Sa to Sh—
July 1 to December 31
T U V
July 1 to Dec. 31
W Z
July 1 to Dec. 31.
Ansonia Refining Co.—
January to June—
July 1 to Dec. 31.
Factory Letters— Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31.
Bills of Lading— Jan. 1 to June 30
July 1 to Dec. 31

F. L. R

By JOHN STOCKETT: Commenced search—March 2nd 6 P. M.

N. E. Elec. Copper Co.—
Foreign Statements—
Outgoing Telegrams—

Stopped at 10 P. M

March 3rd, 9:50 A. M.

Telegrams to 5 P. M.
File contracts—6 P. M.
Foreign letters from C. S. Henry to 9:40 P. M.

March 4th—

Incoming Foreign Letters 9:50 A. M. to 4:30 P. M.
Copper Wire Contracts, Order Bills, etc.—8:15 P. M.

By H. A. Asendorf—Tuesday March 3rd—6:20 P. M.

Receipt Files— January to June
July to December
Salesmen— January to June.
July to December
Assay and Weights—Jan. to June.
July to Dec.
855 L. I. & T. Co. 1895—
Mont. Ore Purchasing Co.—Jan. to June.
European Invoices—January to December 1895—
A. Morris—Penn. Salt Mfg. Co.—Jan. to June—1895
Ansonia Refining Co.—Freight Bills—Jan. to May 1895
Pawtuckett Tolls
Slate—1892 to 1895
Freight Claims—
Penn. Lead Co. December 1895.
Purchases—
January to July
Drafts—January to October—1895.
Stenographers' Letters—January—1895.
New Eng. Elec. Copper Co. 1895.
Lewisohn Imp. and Trading Co. July to December 1895.
T. O. C. Copper Wire July 1 to Dec. 31.
" Foreign Metal Contracts—Dec. 1895 to Dec. 1896—Assays—1895
T. O. C.—January to June 1895
Bills January to March 1895—March to May, 1895. June, and July to September. — Sept. —. to Nov. — Dec.
Cables—1895. Jan. 1 to Apr. 11—June 30—July to Oct.—Nov. to Dec.—

Quit 9:30 P. M.

Exhibit 501 was a certified copy of the certificate of organization of the complainant corporation. The text of it appears on pages 412–415 of this printed record.

Exhibit 504 is a printed copy of the record in the Court of Appeals of New York in the case of Blum v. Whitney, containing the papers on appeal by leave from a judgment of the appellate division affirming an interlocutory judgment sustaining the demurrers to the bill of complaint which is as follows:—

856 Complaint. Supreme Court, New York County.

EDWIN BLUM, on Behalf of Himself and all Other Stockholders of the Distilling Company of America Similarly Situated, Plaintiff, against
HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY, as Executor of the Last Will and Testament of William C. Whitney, Deceased; Thomas F. Ryan, Robert A. C. Smith, Peter A. B. Widener, William L. Elkins, Thomas Dolan, Frederick P. Olcott, Anthony N. Brady, Hugh J. Grant, Frederick S. Flower, Samuel W. Ehrich, John I. Waterbury, Samuel M. Rice, Edson Bradley, George R. Sheldon, Howard J. M. Cardeza, P. Lewis Anderson, Henry D. Macdona and Distilling Company of America, Defendants.

The plaintiff, for his third amended complaint, complains and alleges, upon information and belief, as follows:

I. That the Distilling Company of America is a foreign stock corporation organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey on or about July 11, 1899, and the plaintiff is a stockholder therein, holding 2,800 shares of the common stock thereof of the par value of $100 per share, and brings this action on behalf of himself and all other stockholders therein. The plaintiff is a resident of the City and State of New York, and the Distilling Company of America has its principal business office and place of business in the City, County and State of New York, and a large portion of its property has been since the time of its organization and still is situated in the State of New York; and the individual defendants, with the exception of defendants Widener, Dolan and Elkins, are residents of the State of New York, and the acts hereinafter set forth were committed and performed in the State of New York.

II. That on the 22d day of June, 1899, and at all the times hereinafter set forth, the following corporations existed and were doing business, each of them having many stockholders, many of said stockholders being stockholders in several of said companies, viz.:

(a). The American Spirits Manufacturing Company, hereinafter called the Manufacturing Company, a corporation incorporated August 22, 1895, and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with an issued capital stock of $35,000,000, viz.:
857 350,000 shares of the par value of $100 per share, of which $7,000,000 is 5 per cent. non-cumulative preferred stock and $28,000,000 common stock; and that the objects for which said corporation was formed were to manufacture, sell and distribute spirits and other alcoholic products.

(b) The Standard Distilling and Distributing Company, hereinafter called the Standard Company, incorporated June 27, 1898, and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an issued capital stock of $21,000,000, viz.: 240,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, of which $8,000,000 is preferred stock, entitled to a cumulative quarterly dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and $16,000,000 common stock; and that the objects for which said corporation was formed were to manufacture, sell and distribute spirits and other alcoholic products.

(c) The Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, hereinafter called the Kentucky Company, incorporated February 3, 1899, and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an issued capital stock of $29,000,000, viz.: 290,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, of which $10,500,000 is preferred stock entitled to a cumulative quarterly dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, $18,500,000 common stock, and that the objects for which said corporation was formed were to manufacture, sell and distribute Bourbon and Kentucky and other whiskies and spirits and other alcoholic products.

(d) The Spirits Distributing Company, hereinafter called the Distributing Company, incorporated January 6, 1896, and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an issued capital stock of $6,500,000, viz.: 65,000 shares of the par value of $100 each, of which $1,250,000 is first preferred stock entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum, $1,575,000 second preferred stock entitled to non-cumulative dividends at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum and $3,675,000 common stock; and that the objects for which said corporation was formed were to sell and distribute spirits and other alcoholic products. That said common stock of said Distributing Company was and still is owned by said Standard Company above named.

The plaintiff will refer hereafter to said companies together as the "Constituent Companies."

III. That at the times hereinafter mentioned, the defendant Samuel M. Rice was president of said Manufacturing Company, president of said Kentucky Company, first vice-president of said Standard Company, and a director of each of said "Constituent Companies," the defendant Edson Bradley was vice-president and a director of said Kentucky Company, a director of said Manu-
858 facturing Company, and a director and a member of the Executive Committee of said Standard Company, the defendant George R. Sheldon was president and director of said Standard Company, and a director of said Kentucky Company, the defendant Howard J. M. Cardeza was vice-president and a director of said Manufacturing Company, and one Thomas H. Wentworth, of the City of New York, was the secretary and director of said Manufacturing Company, and secretary of said Kentucky Company, and one N. E. D. Huggins was the secretary of said Standard Company and of said Distributing Company, and the firm of Moran, Kraus & Mayer of the City of Chicago were general counsel for all of said "Constituent Companies," and the New York offices of all of said "Constituent Companies" were at 27 William street, New York City.

IV. That the defendants, Samuel M. Rice, Edson Bradley, George R. Sheldon and Howard J. M. Cardeza, being officers and directors of the said "Constituent Companies," as hereinbefore set forth, and William C. Whitney and the defendants Ryan, Smith, Widener, Elkins, Dolan, Olcott, Brady, Grant, Flower, Ehrich, Waterbury,

Anderson and Macdona, being persons of influence in the financial circles of New York City, and able to procure money for the putting through of large financial schemes, confederated together, in or about the summer of 1899, to make for themselves a secret profit at the expense of the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies," hereinbefore mentioned, and at the expense of the Distilling Company of America and its stockholders and this plaintiff, and to that end formed the scheme of consolidating said "Constituent Companies" and other companies by the formation of the Distilling Company of America as a stockholding corporation for the purpose of acquiring the stock of said "Constituent Companies"; and in order to do so without any risk or expense to themselves, and to insure the success of their scheme, before actually incorporating the defendant the Distilling Company of America they formed the plan of requesting the stockholders of the various "Constituent Companies" to deposit their certificate of stock with a depository named by them, with the intention of incorporating the Distilling Company of America, to acquire and take over such stock, after sufficient stock had been deposited to insure the success of the scheme. It was part of their scheme that after said stock had been deposited they would cause the Distilling Company of America to be incorporated and issue a portion of the stock thereof to the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" who had deposited their stock under the plan, and a large portion of the stock of the Distilling Company of America remaining they would take and appropriate to their own use, without paying any consideration to the said Distilling Company of America therefor, and said scheme was carried out by the said 859 William C. Whitney and the defendants Ryan, Smith, Widener, Elkins, Dolan, Olcott, Brady, Grant, Flower, Ehrich, Waterbury, Rice, Bradley, Sheldon, Cardeza, Anderson and Macdona as hereinafter set forth.

V. In pursuance of said scheme, the said William C. Whitney and the defendants Ryan, Smith, Widener, Elkins, Dolan, Olcott, Brady, Grant, Flower, Ehrich, Waterbury, Rice, Bradley, Sheldon, Cardeza, Anderson and Macdona, obtained an option from the stockholders of the Hannis Distilling Company, a corporation upon about ninety-five per cent. of the stock of said corporation; that the capital stock of said Hannis Distilling Company was $1,000,000, and the said Whitney and others procured an option thereon to purchase the same for the sum of $1,500,000 in cash and $250,000 in preferred stock, and $250,000 in common stock of the Distilling Company of America, a corporation not then formed, but to be organized, as hereinbefore set forth, and the said Hannis Distilling Company, and the stock thereof was not worth more than the said sum of $1,500,000. Thereafter the said persons above mentioned employed and constituted P. Lewis Anderson and Henry D. Macdona, two of the defendants, their agents, associates and representatives, to carry out said scheme, and thereafter and on or about June 22, 1899, the said P. Lewis Anderson and Henry D. Macdona, of the City of New York, designating themselves and hereinafter referred to as the "organizers," proposed to the stockholders of the said "Constituent Companies" respectively, by printed prospectus and proposed agreement, dated June 21, 1899, and by simultaneous and continued advertisement in the public press, dated June 20, 1899, but beginning June 22, 1899, and by a notice sent to all the stockholders of the said "Constituent Companies" at the instance of the defendants hereinbefore named as officers thereof, the following plan, viz.: That the said "organizers" would organize a corporation to be known as the Distilling Company of America, with an authorized capital of $55,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $70,000,000 common stock, which the "organizers" would use in acquiring for the Distilling Company of America the capital stock of the said "Constituent Companies" by exchanging the stock of the Distilling Company of America, when issued, for the stock of the said "Constituent Companies" and for the purchase for the Distilling Company of America of certain rye distillery properties, and for an additional working capital of $1,500,000, as therein set forth, leaving in the treasury of the new company for future purposes $23,750,000 of its preferred stock and $23,750,000 of its common stock; and they invited and requested the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" to co-operate with them therein, and to subscribe for the stock of the Distilling Company of America by depositing the stock of the "Constituent Companies" with the Central Trust Company for the purpose of being exchanged for the stock of the Distilling Company of America 860 when formed. The basis proposed by the "organizers" for the exchange of the stock of the "Constituent Companies" for that of the stock of the Distilling Company of America to be organized was as follows:

(a) Holders of stock of the Manufacturing Company to exchange their stock by depositing the same with the Central Trust Company of New York, and receive for each share of the $7,000,000 of the Manufacturing Company's preferred stock 50 per cent. of the par value thereof in preferred stock of the said Distilling Company, and for each share of the $28,000,000 Manufacturing Company's common stock 25 per cent. of the par value thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company of America.

(b) Holders of the stock of the Kentucky Company to similarly deposit their stock and to receive for each share of the $10,500,000 preferred stock of the Kentucky Company 85 per cent. thereof in preferred stock and 15 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company, and for each share of the $18,500,000 common stock of the Kentucky Company 70 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company.

(c) Holders of stock of the Standard Company to similarly deposit their stock and receive for each share of the $8,000,000 preferred stock of the Standard Company 85 per cent. thereof in preferred stock and 15 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company 85 per cent. thereof in preferred stock and 15 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company, and for each share of the $16,000,000 common stock of the Standard Company 60 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company.

(d) Holders of stock of the Distilling Company to similarly deposit their stock and receive for each share of the said Distilling Company $1,250,000 6 per cent. first preferred stock 80 per cent. thereof in preferred and 20 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company, and for each share of the $1,575,000 two per cent. second preferred stock of the Distributing Company, 20 per cent. thereof in preferred and 20 per cent. thereof in common stock of the said Distilling Company.

That $3,675,000 common stock of said Distributing Company being owned by the Standard Company, no proposition in relation thereto was made by said "organizers." The defendant further announced in their said prospectus that they would purchase for the said Distilling Company of America at least 95 per cent. of the common stock of the Hannis Distilling Company of Philadelphia and Baltimore, which was engaged in the business of manufacturing rye whiskies, the St. Paul Distillery, situated in St. Paul, Minnesota, also engaged in manufacturing rye whiskies, and supply to the said Distilling Company at least $1,500,000 in cash. The said pro-

861 pectus did not state that the said William C. Whitney and the individual defendants hereinbefore mentioned had an option on or were interested in the Hannis Distilling Company or its stock, or the amount that it was contemplated they should be paid for their said interest, or that they intended to make a profit out of the sale of the said Distilling Company of America for their option on the stock of the said Hannis Distilling Company; nor did the said William C. Whitney or any of the said defendants at any time or in any way state that they were interested in said Hannis Distilling Company or its stock and intended to cause the said Distilling Company of America to acquire the same from themselves, but they fraudulently concealed the same from the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies," and caused the same to be acquired by the Distilling Company of America at the direction of their own agents and representatives as directors, as hereinafter set forth.

Said prospectus further proposed that the stock of the several "Constituent Companies" hereinabove named should be deposited with the Central Trust Company of New York, on or before June 30th, 1899, which should deliver the same to the State Trust Company of New York, upon receiving from the latter the said shares of the Distilling Company of America, it being provided that said "organizers" should make said exchange through said State Trust Company. A copy of the said prospectus and agreement is hereto annexed, marked "Exhibit A" and made a part hereof.

That the proposition of said "organizers" was not made on their own behalf alone, but was the proposition of and was made with the knowledge and at the instance and request of the said Samuel M. Pice, Edson Bradley, George R. Sheldon and Howard J. M. Cuneza, who were directors and officers of said "Constituent Companies," as above set forth; William C. Whitney, Robert A. C. Smith, Peter A. B. Widener, William L. Elkins, Thomas Dolan, Frederick P. Olcott, Anthony N. Brady, Hugh J. Grant, Frederick S. Flower, Samuel W. Ehrich and John I. Waterbury, all of whom collectively will be referred to hereinafter as the "Syndicate."

VI. That accompanying said prospectus issued by the "organizers," the directors of said "Constituent Companies," including the defendants Rice, Bradley, Cardeza and Sheldon, caused to be issued by said "Constituent Companies" and mailed to each stockholder a circular dated June 20th, 1899, signed by the secretaries of said respective "Constituent Companies," and by Moran, Kraus & Mayer, the counsel of all of said "Constituent Companies," wherein it was stated that the proposed plan had received the approval of the officers and directors of each of the "Constituent Companies," a copy of which circular is hereto annexed, marked "Exhibit B" and made a part hereof, and the advertisement mentioned in paragraph V hereof as having been made in the public press was the same as said Exhibit B except that the last paragraph of Exhibit B was omitted from the advertisement, and the advertisement was signed at the end as follows: "Central Trust Company of New York, by F. P. Olcott, President; The State Trust Company, by Walter S. Johnston, President," and thereupon a large number of the stockholders of the said "Constituent Companies," induced thereto by relying upon the statements, propositions and good faith of said "organizers" and of the respective boards of directors of said "Constituent Companies," and believing from the statements made in said prospectus and said circular and said advertisement that all the subscribers to the shares of said Distilling Company of America were being and would be treated alike and equally, and relying upon the good faith of the said "organizers" and of the various directors of said "Constituent Companies" to fully and truly state to them all facts touching their interests which they or any of them might know, and honestly and to fully advise them in the premises; and relying upon the good faith and duty of said George R. Sheldon, Samuel M. Rice, Edson Bradley and Howard J. M. Cardeza, as officers and directors of said "Constituent Companies," as aforesaid, and of the aforesaid general counsel, and believing that the said plan was simply a plan for the consolidation of the various corporations mentioned therein for the mutual benefit of their respective stockholders deposited their respective holdings and subscribed for the stock of the Distilling Company of America; that the holders of the stock of said "Constituent Companies," to the amount of over 90 per cent. of said stocks, so deposited their stock under said plan, and they would not have so deposited their stock under said plan and subscribed for the stock of the Distilling Company of America, had they known the facts herein set forth, and which were then known to the "organizers," and to the members of said "Syndicate," and by them willfully concealed from said stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" and subscribers to the stock of the Distilling Company of America.

862

VII. That thereafter, more than a majority of the stock of each of the said "Constituent Companies" having been deposited under the said plain prior to July 7, 1899, the said William C. Whitney and the other defendants, just above mentioned being assured of the success of the said scheme did on the 11th day of July, 1899, through the said "organizers," who acted for and under the direction of the said "Syndicate" cause to be incorporated under the laws of the State of

New Jersey, the said Distilling Company of America with the capital aforesaid. The incorporators of the said Company mentioned in the certificate of incorporation were George E. P. Howard, Francis R. Foraker and Walter S. Dryfoos, who were employees of the firm of Root, Howard, Winthrop & Stimson, the attorneys for the 863 said William C. Whitney and the said individual defendants.

On the following day (July 12, 1899) the said incorporators held their first meeting and elected a board of directors, consisting of the following persons, who were also the agents and employees of the said "Syndicate" and their attorneys, and as employees and representatives acted solely under their instructions: George E. P. Howard, Francis R. Foraker, Walter S. Dryfoos, Roland B. Harvey, David J. Gallert, Lester A. Pyatt, David Nelson, Hoyt F. Spooner, Raymond G. Shipman, Rudd C. Rann and L. W. Ahrens. That on the same day (July 12, 1899), the said board of directors, thus elected and constituted by the said "Syndicate" received in the form of a proposed contract dated July 12, 1899, a proposition from P. Lewis Anderson and Henry D. Macdona, the "organizers" of the said Distilling Company of America under said prospectus, and two of the defendants herein, and the agents and representatives of the other defendants, to deliver to the said Distilling Company of America the stock of the "Constituent Companies" deposited under the said plans hereinbefore set forth, and 95 per cent. of the stock of the Hannis Distilling Company and $1,500,000 in cash in exchange for $31,250,000 of the preferred stock and $46,250,000 of the common stock of the said Distilling Company of America, except such proportion thereof as they caused to be reserved in the treasury of the said Distilling Company to be exchanged for the stock of such stockholders of said "Constituent Companies" as had not deposited their shares under said prospectus; and said proposed contract drawn up by the attorneys for said "Syndicate" at their request and presented to the said Distilling Company of America at the first meeting of its directors by the said P. Lewis Anderson and Henry D. Macdona, two of the defendants herein and the agents and representatives of the others was by a vote of the said directors hereinbefore mentioned, who were also the employees, agents and representatives of the "Syndicate" accepted, and the president and secretary of the company were authorized by said Board of Directors to execute the said contract and to carry it out by the issuance of the stock of the Distilling Company of America; and the said contract was thereafter executed and performed, and the stock of the Distilling Company of America was issued in the amount mentioned in said contract, and the St. Paul Distillery was not included in said contract and was not acquired by the Distilling Company of America.

VIII. That the said "organizers" acting for and on behalf of the said "Syndicate," thereupon received $31,250,000 of preferred and $46,250,000 of common stock, being the entire issued capital stock of said Distilling Company of America, and on receiving said entire issued capital stock of said Distilling Company, viz.
864 $31,250,000 of preferred and $46,250,000 of common stock, thereupon caused to be transferred on the books of the company $20,540,000 of the preferred and $32,890,000 of the common stock to the Central Trust Company, which distributed the said stock to the holders of stocks of the said "Constituent Companies" who had subscribed under said prospectus for stock of said Distilling Company, and out of the balance, viz., $10,710,000 preferred and $13,360,000 common, they caused to be transferred to George H. Jarden, William Brice, Ephraim Brice and John McGlynn, as a committee of stockholders of the Hannis Distilling Company, $250,000 of the preferred and $250,000 of common stock (less 2½ shares of each kind of stock which they caused to be transferred nominally to said State Trust Company in partial exchange for ten shares of the Hannis stock, which were directors' qualifying shares), and the remainder thereof they caused to be transferred to the said Whitney and the defendants Ryan, Smith, Widener, Elkins, Dolan, Olcot, Brady, Grant, Flower, Ehrich, Waterbury, Rice, Bradley, Sheldon, Cardeza, Anderson and Macdona, and their agents and employees.

IX. On or about June 22, 1899, the stocks of said "Constituent Companies" were reasonably worth and were selling at about the following prices, respectively:

The said Standard Company on the New York Stock Exchange for $64 for each share of the preferred and $17 for each share of the common stock; the Manufacturing Company on said New York Stock Exchange for $32 for each share of preferred stock and $11 for each share of the common stock; the Kentucky Company on the open market in New York for $61 for each share of the preferred and $18 for each share of the common stock, and the said Spirits Distributing Company for $60 and $20 for each share of the first and second preferred stock respectively, and that said stocks were of such value at the time of the formation of the Distilling Company of America, as hereinbefore set forth; that, according to the terms of such deposit and subscription contained in said prospectus, and according to the then market value of the stock so deposited by the stockholders of said "Constituent Companies," they subscribed for and received stock of the Distilling Company of America at and for the price of about $65 for each share of the preferred and $35 for each share of the common stock of the said Distilling Company of America, and the stock of the said Distilling Company of America sold in open market at about said respective prices when first issued, to wit, July, 1899, and for some time thereafter. The highest price at which the stocks of the said Distilling Company of America have sold have been about $70 per share for each share of the preferred stock and about $35 for each share of the common stock. The plaintiff alleges, however, that the capital stock of the Hannis Distilling Company, the amount of which was wil-
865 fully and fraudulently suppressed in said prospectus, although the amount of all the "Constituent Companies" was fully stated therein, consisted of only $1,000,000, and that the price paid by the said "organizers" as the agents and representatives of the members of said "Syndicate," and by the members of said "Syndicate" for said stock of said Hannis Distilling Company on or about July 13, 1899, was only $1,500,000 in cash and $250,000

par value, of preferred stock, and $250,000 par value, of common stock of said Distilling Company of America, and the said Hannis Distilling Company and the stock thereof was not then and never has been worth more than the said sum of $1,500,000; but nevertheless the said "Syndicate" caused to be issued to themselves $10,460,000 of the preferred stock and $13,110,000 of the common stock of said Distilling Company of America for a sum of money not exceeding $3,000,000. That the amount paid by the members of said "Syndicate," that is about $3,000,000 for said $10,460,000 of preferred and $13,110,000 of the common stock of said Distilling Company of America was equal to about $20 for each share of the preferred stock and less than $10 for each share of the common stock of said Distilling Company of America, as against $65 for the preferred and $35 for the common stock of said Company paid by the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies," yielding by this transaction to the said "Syndicate" a profit in fraud of the "Constituent Companies" and of the said Distilling Company of America and its stockholders of about $45 per share on upwards of 100,000 shares of the preferred stock of the said Distilling Company of America, and $25 per share on upwards of 130,000 shares of the common stock thereof appropriated and acquired by them as aforesaid, being an aggregate fraudulent profit of $7,750,000, which amount is still due and owing by them to said Distilling Company of America.

That said profit and issue of said stock to said "Syndicate" was in fraud of the right of the stockholders of the said "Constituent Companies" and of said Distilling Company and of its stockholders, including the plaintiff.

That the price of the stock of said Distilling Company of America, as the result of the taking by the said Whitney and others of so much stock without consideration, has declined in open market from about $65 per share for the preferred and $35 per share for the common, at which the same sold in July, 1899, and at which prices respectively the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" subscribed therefor at the time of the formation of said Distilling Company of America to a price of $17 per share for the preferred and $4 per share for the common.

X. Plaintiff further alleges that the entire scheme for the formation of said Distilling Company of America herein set forth 866 was not a legitimate business operation intended for the benefit and improvement of the business of said "Constituent Companies" and the profit of its stockholders, but was purely a stock jobbing operation conceived and executed in the manner hereinbefore set forth by said "Syndicate," in order that they might, without the knowledge and consent of the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies," and of the Distilling Company of America and its stockholders, appropriate to themselves a large amount of the stock of said Distilling Company without paying any consideration therefor, and in fraud and derogation of the rights of the stockholders of said "Constituent Companies" and of the said Distilling Company of America and of the stockholders thereof. The plaintiff further alleges that neither at the time of the issuance of the prospectus and circular and the making of the advertisement, hereinbefore mentioned, nor at the time of the execution or performance of the contract dated July 12, 1899, referred to in Paragraph VII. hereof, nor at any time did the defendants Anderson and Macdona, and the other members of said "Syndicate" defendants herein, own any shares of stock in the Distilling Company of America, and they did not have any of the stock of said Distilling Company to sell, and simply formed the plan hereinbefore set out for the purpose of getting the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" to join them in the consolidation in such a way as to enable them secretly and by concealing their own interest therein, to take a large profit from the organization of said Distilling Company of America. The said Whitney, Ryan and others, members of said "Syndicate" never revealed to the stockholders of the "Constituent Companies" or to the Distilling Company of America, or to its stockholders or its board of directors or officers or to any one, except to themselves, that they intended to make any profit, or that they did make a profit, or that they or any of them had any interest in the Hannis Distilling Company or its stock, or that they or any of them had an option on the stock of the Hannis Distilling Company; and the Distilling Company of America has never ratified the taking of the said stock by them. The said William C. Whitney and the other individual defendants hereinbefore mentioned have sold a large portion of the said stock, and have never accounted to the Distilling Company of America for any portion thereof. That the actual plan contemplated and actually carried out by the said "organizers" and said "Syndicate" in organizing said Distilling Company of America, was to secure subscription by stockholders of said "Constituent Companies" to the capital stock of the Distilling Company of America to enable the members of said "Sydicate" to secure a secret profit at the expense of the stockholders of said "Constituent Companies" and said Distilling Company of America and its stockholders, and that said agreement and prospectus issued to the stockholders of said "Constituent Companies" 867 was a mere form to enable said "organizers" and "Syndicate" to secure said subscriptions and thus enable them to secure said secret profit. That it was part of the plan of said "organizers" and said "Syndicate" when they issued said prospectus to the stockholders of said "Constituent Companies," and when they caused said Distilling Company of America to be organized, to turn their large secret stock profit into money by selling the stock to the public, and thus get into the Distilling Company of America other stockholders in place of themselves and their representatives, and that they have sold a large proportion of said secret stock profit to the public.

XI. That the plaintiff herein did not learn of the facts herein set forth until the month of June, 1903, and that as soon thereafter as he could be advised by counsel and in said month of, 1903, and before the commencement of this action, the plaintiff, being at that time a stockholder in the Distilling Company of America, duly and fully informed the said distilling company and its said board of directors of all the facts herein set forth, and duly demanded of the board of directors of said company, and the said company; that the said board of directors take and institute on behalf of the Distilling Company of America, and cause it to take and institute, and that said company take and institute legal proceedings against the said William C. Whitney, Ryan, Smith, Widener, Elkins, Dolan, Olcott, Brady, Grant, Fowler, Ehrich, Waterbury, Rice, Bradley, Sheldon, Cardeza, Anderson and Macdona, to make them account to the Distilling Company of America for the said preferred and common stock of the said company which they had taken and retained as a secret profit as aforesaid, and without paying the defendant company any consideration therefor, and the said Distilling Company of America and its directors have, before the commencement of this action, refused and neglected, and still refuse and neglect to bring the said legal proceedings, or any proceedings whatsoever. The defendant Samuel M. Rice is president of the Distilling Company of America, and he and Edson Bradley, as plaintiff is informed and believes, are directors of and members of the Executive Committee of said Distilling Company, and it would be useless to expect them to cause said company to sue the defendants herein; and said refusal was fraudulent and unwarranted and made simply because the defendants Rice and Bradley and friends of theirs and the other defendants are officers in said company and in control of its operations and policies.

XII. That on or about February 2, 1904, William C. Whitney died in the City of New York, leaving a last will and testament wherein he appointed Harry Payne Whitney, who resides in the City of New York, sole executor thereof, and thereafter such proceedings were had in the Surrogate's Court of Nassau County 868 that on or about March 5, 1904, the said will was duly admitted to probate in said Court by the Surrogate of Nassau County, and letters testamentary were thereupon issued out of said Court by said Surrogate to Harry Payne Whitney, as executor of the last will and testament of the said defendant William C. Whitney, and the said Harry Payne Whitney thereupon duly qualified as such executor, and is now such executor.

Wherefore, the plaintiff, on behalf of himself and all other stockholders of the Distilling Company of America, prays for judgment as follows:

First. That the defendants be ordered, directed and compelled to account to the defendant the Distilling Company of America for each and all of said $10,460,000 of preferred stock and $13,110,000 of common stock retained by them as a secret profit as aforesaid, and any other stock or money retained by them as a secret profit.

Second. That the defendants be ordered, directed and compelled to account to the defendant corporation for all of the stock issued at the time of the organization of the company.

Third. That a Referee be appointed with power to state an account of the amount of said stock and money that the defendants have received and for what they have received them, the amount of said stock that they still have, and the amount of said stock that they have sold and the price received therefor, and the prices at which the stock of the said defendant company has been sold, both by the company and at public sale, and the market value of the stock of said defendant company at such time after the incorporation of said company as the market value can be determined, and the amount of damage and loss suffered by the Distilling Company of America by reason of the transactions hereinbefore set forth, and that the amount determined to be due to be directed to be paid into the treasury of the said company by the defendants.

Fourth. That the defendants be ordered, directed and compelled to pay the costs and disbursements of this action.

Fifth. That the plaintiff have such other and further relief as to the Court may seem just in the premises.

McELHENY & BENNETT,
Attorneys for Plaintiff, 15 William Street, New York City.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Edwin Blum, being duly sworn says: That he is the plaintiff in the above entitled action; that the foregoing third amended 869 complaint is true to his own knowledge, except as to those matters therein stated to be alleged upon information and belief, and as to those matters he believes it to be true.

EDWIN BLUM.

Sworn to before me this 20th day of April, 1905.

WM. M. BENNETT,
Notary Public, N. Y. Co.

EXHIBIT A.

Deposit Agreement.

Whereas, P. Lewis Anderson and Henry D. Macdona, both of the City and State of New York, hereinafter called organizers, propose to create under the laws of the State of New Jersey, or of some other State to be approved by the counsel of the organizers, a corporation to be known as the Distilling Company of America (or some other name satisfactory to the organizers), hereinafter called the Corporation, the object of which Corporation shall be, among other things, the manufacture, sale, distribution and warehousing of whiskey, spirits and alcohol, which Corporation shall have an authorized capital stock of one hundred and twenty-five million dollars ($125,000,000.00), consisting of fifty-five million dollars ($55,000,000) of preferred stock, evidenced by five hundred and fifty thousand (550,000) shares of seven per cent. (7%) cumulative preferred stock and seventy million dollars ($70,000,000) common stock, evidenced by seven hundred thousand (700,000) shares of common stock. The charter of the corporation shall contain such other provisions as the organizers and their counsel may approve; and

Whereas, There have heretofore been organized and are now in existence in the following companies:

(a) American Spirits Manufacturing Company (hereinafter called Manufacturing Co.), organized under the laws of New York, having an issued capital stock of seven million dollars ($7,000,000.00) five per cent. (5%) non-cumulative preferred stock, and twenty-eight million dollars ($28,000,000.00) common stock;

(b) Kentucky Distillers and Warehouse Co. (hereafter called Kentucky Co.), organized under the laws of New Jersey, having an issued capital stock of ten million five hundred thousand dollars ($10,500,000.00) seven per cent. (7%) cumulative preferred stock, and eighteen million five hundred thousand dollars ($18,500,000) common stock;

870 (c) Spirits Distributing Company (hereinafter called Distributing Co.), organized under the laws of New Jersey, have an issued capital stock of one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($1,250,000.00) six per cent. (6%) cumulative preferred stock; one million five hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars $1,575,000) two per cent. (2%) non-cumulative second preferred stock, and three milion six hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars ($3,675,000.) common stock; all of said common stock being now owned by the Standard Distilling and Distributing Company hereinafter referred to;

(d) Standard Distilling and Distributing Company (hereinafter called Standard Co.), organized under the laws of New Jersey, having an issued capital stock of eight million dollars ($8,000,000) seven per cent. (7%) cumulative preferred stock, and sixteen million dollars ($16,000,000) common stock;

Whereas, The organizers contemplate that the Corporation shall acquire and become the owner of at least a majority of the entire issued capital stock of the Manufacturing Co., of the Kentucky Co., and of the Standard Co., and each of them, and shall also acquire and become the owner of at least a majority of the entire issued preferred stock of the Distributing Co; and

Whereas, The organizers contemplate that the Corporation shall acquire and become the owner of either the rye properties hereinafter named or of the entire capital stock (less such nominal number of shares as shall be necessary to qualify directors thereof) a certain other Company which may be organized (which other Company is hereinafter called Rye Co.), and which Rye Co., if organized, shall acquire by purchase or otherwise become the owner of the following rye distilling properties:

(a) At least ninety-five per cent. (95%) of the entire capital stock of Hannis Distilling Company of Philadelphia and Baltimore; and

(b) St. Paul Distillery; and

Whereas, The organizers further contemplate that the Corporation shall be furnished with a cash working capital of at least one million five hundred thousand dollars ($1,500,000); and

Whereas, The organizers contemplate that the Corporation shall retain in its treasury enough of its preferred and common stock with which to enable it to acquire, if in its discretion it should so decide (but without any obligation so to do), by exchange or purchase, or otherwise, all of the remaining stock of the Manufacturing Co., of the Kentucky Co., of the Standard Co., and of the preferred stock of the Distributing Co., upon the same or a similar basis to that herein provided for the acquisition of said majority stock of the Manufacturing Co., of the Kentucky Co., of the Standard 871 Co., and of said majority preferred stock of the Distributing Co.; and

Whereas, the organizers further contemplate that in addition to so much of its preferred and common stock that is to remain in the treasury of the Corporation for the acquisition by the Corporation of the remaining stock of the Manufacturing Co., of the Kentucky Co., of the Standard Co., and of the preferred stock of the Distributing Co., as hereinbefore recited, the Corporation shall also retain in its treasury for future purposes twenty-three million seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($23,750,000) of its preferred stock, and twenty-three million seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($23,750,000) of its common stock; and

Whereas, It is further contemplated that the organizers shall, as a purchase price, receive from and be paid by the Corporation thirty-one million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($31,250,000) of its preferred stock, and forty-six million two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($46,250,000) of its common stock for all of the said issued capital stock of the Manufacturing Co., for all of the said issued capital stock of the Kentucky Co., for all of the said issued capital stock of the Standard Co., and for all of the said issued preferred stock of the Distributing Co., and for said one million five hundred thousand dollars ($1,500,000) cash working capital, and for said rye properties or the entire capital stock of said Rye Co., less the directors' qualifying shares aforesaid, and that for every said share of said stock of the Manufacturing Co., the Kentucky Co., the Standard Co. and the Distributing Co., not turned over and transferred by the organizers to the Corporation, there shall be deducted and retained by the Corporation from said purchase price an appropriate amount of the preferred and common stock of the Corporation, calculated upon the basis hereinafter specified; and

Whereas, For the purpose of carrying out this agreement, the Central Trust Company of New York (hereinafter called Trust Company) is hereby designated and made the Depository hereunder; and

Whereas, The undersigned are respectively the holders and owners of the certain number of preferred and common shares of said Manufacturing Co., of the Kentucky Co., of the Standard Co., and of the preferred stock of the Distributing Co., set opposite their respective names; and

Whereas, The undersigned are willing and desire to sell, transfer and assign their said respective shares to the organizers, for and in consideration and upon the basis of exchange hereinafter specified;

Now, therefore, in consideration of the premises and in further consideration of the sum of one dollar ($1.00) to each of 872 the undersigned by the organizers in hand paid, the receipt of which by each of the undersigned is hereby respectively acknowledged, the undersigned do hereby severally, but not jointly, agree to and with the organizers as follows:

I. The undersigned do hereby severally agree to sell to the organizers and do deposit with the Trust Company, properly indorsed in blank, and bearing the proper revenue stamps, certificates representing certain of the preferred and common shares of the Manufacturing Co., the Kentucky Co., the Standard Co. and of the preferred shares of the Distributing Co., the amount of which is designated opposite their respective names. The Trust Company shall issue appropriate temporary negotiable receipts evidencing such deposits.

II. For each of said preferred shares and each of said common shares so deposited hereunder, the undersigned respectively shall be entitled to receive from the Central Trust Company when this agreement shall have become operative and when and as the new securities shall have been received by said Trust Company, the following:

For every said preferred share of the Manufacturing Co. fifty per cent. (50%) thereof in preferred stock of the Corporation;

For every said common share of the Manufacturing Co., twenty-five per cent. (25%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said preferred share of the Kentucky Co. eighty-five per cent. (85%) thereof in preferred stock and fifteen per cent. (15%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said common share of the Kentucky Co. seventy per cent. (70%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said preferred share of the Standard Co. eighty-five per cent. (85%) thereof in preferred stock and fifteen per cent. (15%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said common share of the Standard Co. sixty per cent. (60%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said share of first preferred stock of the Distributing Co. eighty per cent. (80%) thereof in preferred stock and twenty per cent. (20%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation;

For every said share of second preferred stock of the Distributing Co. twenty per cent. (20%) thereof in preferred stock and twenty per cent. (20%) thereof in common stock of the Corporation.

873 III. This agreement shall not become binding, operative and effective unless there shall have been deposited hereunder with the Central Trust Company or under similar agreements certificates representing a majority of the entire issued capital stock of the Manufacturing Co., Kentucky Co., Standard Co., and of each of them, and of the preferred stock of the Distributing Co.

The Central Trust Company may, in its discretion, in lieu of the actual deposit with it of certificates for shares, accept an agreement in writing to make such deposit upon five days' notice from the Trust Company so to do; and the deposit when made shall be deemed to have been made within the time limited or extended as herein provided. In computing a majority of stock to render this agreement operative there shall be included any and all shares as to which obligations to deposit the same shall be accepted by the Trust Company.

IV. When this agreement has become binding, operative and effective, the Central Trust Company shall deliver to The State Trust Company all of the stock deposited hereunder upon the Central Trust Company receiving from The State Trust Company shares of stock of the Corporation adequate and sufficient to pay the said purchase price of the stock so deposited hereunder.

V. June 30, 1899, is hereby designated as the date of the expiration of the time for the deposit of the shares hereunder, but such time may be extended, not exceeding thirty days thereafter by agreement between the organizers, the Central Trust Company and The State Trust Company; and in case The State Trust Company shall not within thirty days after said June 30, 1899, or after the expiration of any extended time, notify the Central Trust Company that the organizers are ready to complete the purchase of the shares so deposited hereunder, the shares deposited hereunder, shall be returned by the Central Trust Company without charge to the depositor of the same respectively, or to the holders of said receipts upon the surrender to the Central Trust Company of said receipts duly endorsed.

VI. For the purpose of convenience copies of this instrument may be signed, and when so signed all of such copies shall be considered as originals, and signatures thereto shall be considered the same as though appended to one copy thereof.

VII. The deposit with the Central Trust Company of shares hereunder shall have the same force and effect as though the one making such deposit signed this instrument.

Dated New York, June 21, 1899.

874 EXHIBIT B.

To the Stockholders of American Spirits Manufacturing Company, Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, Spirits Distributing Company and Standard Distilling and Distributing Company:

An agreement has been lodged with The State Trust Company contemplating the formation of The Distilling Company of America with an authorized capital stock of $55,000,000 seven per cent. (7%) cumulative preferred stock and $70,000,000 common stock which the organizers propose shall be applied towards the purchase of the capital stock of the above-mentioned companies, and certain rye distillery properties, and for an additional working capital of $1,500,000, leaving in the treasury of the new company for future purposes $23,750,000 of its preferred stock and $23,750,000 of its common stock.

The basis proposed by the organizers for the purchase of the stock of the above mentioned companies is as follows:

For preferred stock of the American Spirits Manufacturing Company, 50 per cent. of preferred stock of the new company.

For common stock of the American Spirits Manufacturing Company, 25 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For preferred stock of the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, 35 per cent. in preferred stock and 15 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For common stock of the Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, 70 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For first preferred stock of the Spirits Distributing Company, 30 per cent. in preferred stock and 20 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For second preferred stock of the Spirits Distributing Company, 20 per cent. in preferred stock and 20 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For preferred stock of the Standard Distilling and Distributing Company, 85 per cent. in preferred stock and 15 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

For common stock of the Standard Distilling and Distributing Company, 60 per cent. in common stock of the new company.

A deposit agreement has been lodged with the Central Trust Company of New York, and the stockholders of the existing companies desiring to avail of the benefits of that agreement are requested to deposit their certificates with the Central Trust Company and receive deposit receipts therefor. The time within which to deposit shares of stock under the agreement will expire on June 30, 1899.

The said deposit agreement will not become operative until 875 & 876 the owners of a majority of the issued capital of the American Spirits Manufacturing Company, Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company, and Standard Distilling and Distributing Company, and of the issued preferred stock of the Spirits Distributing Company shall agree to sell their holdings upon the above basis.

A number of the large shareholders have already signed the deposit agreement and the proposed basis of sale has received the approval of the officers and directors of each of the companies. The legality of the plan has been approved by the general counsel of all of the existing companies.

Copies of the deposit agreement may be obtained from the Central Trust Company of New York, of No. 54 Wall Street, New York, and The State Trust Company, of No. 100 Broadway, New York.

It is intended that the stock retained in the treasury of the new company will in due course be applied to the purchase of other rye distilleries and towards the procurement of a further working capital of three million five hundred thousand dollars ($3,500,000). The foregoing, with the present working capital of the existing companies will make an aggregate working capital of over ten millions dollars ($10,000,000).

New York, June 20, 1899.

T. H. WENTWORTH.
Secy. American Spirits Mfg. Company.
T. H. WENTWORTH.
Secy. Kentucky Distilleries and Warehouse Company.
N. E. D. HUGGINS.
Secy. Spirits Distributing Company.
N. E. D. HUGGINS.
Secy. Standard Distilling and Distributing Company.

MORAN, KRAUS & MAYER, Counsel.

Copy.
Attest,

——— ———, Clerk.

8767 ALPHABETICAL INDEX.

		Page.
Abbott from Keyser	1895, June 17	98
Altmiller to Bigelow	1902, June 12	205
" "	14	411
Anthony from ——	1895, May 27	75
" Nelson	Oct. 1	550
to Nelson	2	549
Bacon & Burpee from Hyams	1903, June 19	322
Barron to Nelson	1895, Oct. 22	61
Beaman from Lewisohn Brothers	May 6	14
to Keyser	June 14	274
from Lewisohn Brothers	28	172
" " "	28	152
" " "	28	740
" " "	28	28
Behrens & Sons from Lewisohn Brothers	Aug. 6	748
Beliches from Lewisohn Brothers	June 5	765
to Lewisohn Brothers	July 15	766
Berray from Bigelow	10	199
" "	13	200
Bigelow from Lewisohn	May 15	71
" Meredith	16	600
to Lewisohn	16	71
from Smith	24	87
" Meredith	25	76
" "	25	601
" Smith	27	87
" Lewisohn	28	229
" Reckert	June 3	78
" Lewisohn Brothers	4	736
to Reckert	4	79
" Smith	8	86
from Lewisohn	10	79
8767
Bigelow to Woodhull	1895, June 11	88
" Lewisohn	11	80
from Lewisohn Brothers	11	80
to Stevens	12	94
" Woodhull	12	93
from Lewisohn Brothers	12	81
" Lewisohn	12	81
to Wheeler (telegram)	12	92
" Brown	12	93
" Randall	12	95
from Woodhull (telegram)	13	89
" Lewisohn	13	82
" Woodhull	13	89
" "	13	90

	" Lewisohn		13	738
	" "		14	82
	" Woodhull (telegram)		14	91
	to Woodhull		15	92
	" Lewisohn Brothers		15	83
	from Lewisohn Brothers		15	84
	to Lewisohn		15	85
	" "		15	195
	from Lewisohn Brothers		17	85
	" " "		17	739
	" Lewisohn		18	96
	" Lewisohn Brothers		18	97
	" " "		18	97
	" Lewisohn		18	99
	" Lewisohn Brothers		18	100
Bigelow and Lewisohn from Colquhoun and Hyams			18	237
Bigelow to Lewisohn Brothers			19	101
	" Lewisohn		20	102
	from Lewisohn		21	103
	to Woodhull		24	503
	" Whitney	July	5	104
	from Hodge		8	105
876*iii*
Bigelow to Berray		1895, July	10	199
	" Old Dominion		11	181
	" Hodge		12	105
	from Sturgis		12	108
	to Berray		13	200
	" Woodhull		15	116
	" Williams		16	111
	" Mead		17	112
	" Fenno		17	112
	from Field		17	113
	" Herrick		17	113
	to Sturgis		17	120
	" Lundberg		17	122
	" Field		18	112
	" Herrick		19	113
	" Woods		19	114
	from Woodhull		19	118
	Circular Letter to Old Dominion Syndicate		19	125
	from Wallerstein		20	123
	" Herrick (telegram)		20	113
	" Sturgis (telegram)		20	121
	" " "		21	121
	to Sturgis		22	121
	from Woodhull		22	118
	to Woodhull		22	117

	" Goodale		22	122
	" Wallerstein		22	123
	from Field		22	132
	" Thayer		23	116
	" Evarts		23	281
	to Woodhull		24	117
	from Spaulding		24	133
	to Lewisohn		24	108
	from Prendergast		25	124
	" Grout		25	115
	to Spaulding (per Chrimes)		26	114
8766
Bigelow	to Williams	1895, July	26	114
	" Grout		26	115
	from Woodhull		26	119
	to Williams		26	111
	from Connor		26	125
	" Webster		26	125
	to Woodhull (telegram)		26	504
	from Brown		27	132
	to Thayer		29	115
	from Woodhull		29	120
	" Pierce		29	133
	" Hollis		29	133
	" Metcalf		30	134
	" Manning		31	134
	to Woodhull		31	116
	from Lewisohn		31	109
	to Lewisohn	Aug.	2	126
	from Sturgis		3	130
	to Goodell		5	128
	from Grout		5	128
	" "		5	128
	" Wood		6	129
	to Sturgis		7	129
	" Grout		7	128
	" Woodhull		7	504
	Circular Letters as to allotment of stock from list of July 18		13	134–5
	from Foote & French		15	131
	" Sturgis		17	130
	" Brown		19	131
	" Capen		20	132
	to Brown		21	130
	from Brown		22	131
	to Sturgis		22	130
	" ——		23	26
	from McKenzie		24	132
	" Crosby		25	132

876*v*

Bigelow to Lewisohn	1895, Aug.	29	126
" Mossman	Sept.	12	131
" Lewisohn		18	126
from Lewisohn Brothers		27	394
" Evarts, Choate & Beaman	1895, April	28	469
to Woodhull		30	508
" "	June	19	508
" Stockholders	1901, April	3	245
from Altmiller	1902, June	12	205
" "		24	411
" Brandeis	July	16	207
to Brandeis	Aug.	2	210
from Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter		6	211
" Brandeis	Sept.	4	212
" "		10	213
to Brandeis		10	213
from Brandeis		11	214
to Brandeis		11	215
from Brandeis		12	216
Bigelow and Lewisohn Estate from Old Dominion		12	217
Brandeis, L. D., to Bigelow	July	16	207
from Chrimes		21	207
to Lewisohn		24	209
from Lewisohn	Aug.	1	209
" Bigelow		2	210
Brandeies, Dunbar & Nutter to Bigelow		6	211
Brandeis to Lewisohn, Executor	Sept.	4	211
" Bigelow		4	212
from Lauterbach		9	212
to Bigelow		10	213
from Bigelow		10	213
to Bigelow		11	214
from Bigelow		11	215
to Bigelow		12	216
from Hyams		12	218
to Lauterbach	1903, Feb.	4	631

876*w*

Brooker from Lewisohn Brothers	1895, June	25	745
" " "		25	773
" Thalman	July	24	773
" Lewisohn Brothers	Oct.	5	772
to Lewisohn Brothers		10	772
from ——		24	746
Brown from Bigelow	June	12	93
to Bigelow	July	27	132
" "	Aug.	19	131
from Bigelow		21	130
to Bigelow		22	131

Cammann to Old Dominion			17	131
Capen to Bigelow			20	132
Caspary from Lewisohn Brothers		Oct.	1	750
Chrimes to Brandeis	1902,	July	21	207
Colquhoun and Hyams to Bigelow and Lewisohn	1895,	June	18	237
Colquhoun to Lewisohn Brothers		July	3	468
Connor to Bigelow			26	125
Crosby to Bigelow		Aug.	25	132
Dewey to Nelson		Sept.	18	561
from Nelson			23	562
Evarts from ——		July	5	101
" Lewisohn			5	740
to Lewisohn			12	776
from ——			12	777
to Bigelow			23	281
Evarts, Choate & Beaman to Nelson		Dec.	6	281
" "			9	281
" "			18	282
" Bigelow	1896,	April	28	469
Fenno from Bigelow	1895,	July	17	112
Field to Bigelow			17	113
from Bigelow			18	112
to Bigelow			22	132
Foote & French to Bigelow		Aug.	15	131
Garland from Lewisohn Brothers		June	21	18
876vii
Gaston, Attorney, to Lewisohn Brothers	1895,	Oct.	5	742
Goodell from Bigelow		July	22	122
" "		Aug.	5	128
Grout to Bigelow		July	25	115
from Bigelow			26	115
to Bigelow		Aug.	5	128
" "			5	128
from Bigelow			7	128
to Nelson		Sept.	13	555
" "			17	558
from Nelson			21	556
to Nelson			23	560
" "			25	557
from Nelson			27	558
" "			27	559
Hawley from ——		July	25	747
" ——			25	777
Henry & Company from Lewisohn Brothers		Aug.	6	15
" " "			20	749
" " "			26	749
Herrick to Bigelow		July	17	113
from Bigelow			19	113
to Bigelow (telegram)			20	113

Hodge to Bigelow			8	105
from Bigelow			12	105
Hollis to Bigelow			29	133
Hyams from Lewisohn Brothers		May	6	13
" " "			16	14
Hyams and Colquhoun to Bigelow and Lewisohn		June	18	237
Hyams from Lewisohn Brothers		July	3	278
" " "		Nov.	26	280
to Lewisohn	1896,	Jan.	13	313
" Brandeis	1902,	Sept.	12	218
" Bacon & Burpee	1903,	June	19	322
Iselin from Lewisohn Brothers	1895,	Oct.	10	750
Keyser to Lewisohn		May	14	273
876*viii*
Keyser from Meredith	1895,	May	17	599
" "			20	600
" "			25	602
" Lewisohn Brothers		June	3	168
" " "			3	736
to Lewisohn (telegram)			11	81
from Lewisohn			13	737
to Lewisohn			13	737
from Beaman			14	274
to Lewisohn			17	97
to Abbott			17	98
" Old Colony Trust			17	98
" Lewisohn			19	274
" Old Colony Trust			19	275
" Lewisohn			20	275
" "			20	769
" "		July	2	278
" "			2	279
from Lewisohn Brothers		Aug.	12	770
to Lewisohn		Nov.	2	767
" "			6	768
Lauterbach to Brandeis	1902,	Sept.	9	212
from Brandeis	1903,	Feb.	4	631
Lewisohn to Meredith	1895,	April	29	744
from Meredith			29	587
" "			30	589
" "			30	268
" "		May	1	591
" "			1	269
" "			6	270
" "			6	593
Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams			6	13
" Beaman			6	14
Lewisohn from Meredith			7	271
" "			7	597
" Simpson			13	276

876*x*

Lewisohn from Keyser	1895, May	14	273
" Simpson		14	276
to Bigelow		15	71
from Bigelow		16	71
" Meredith		16	597
Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams		16	14
Lewisohn from Meredith		17	598
Lewisohn Brothers to A. Lewisohn		24	169
" "		24	603
Lewisohn Brothers to A. Lewisohn		24	777
from Meredith		25	601
Lewisohn to Bigelow		28	229
Lewisohn Brothers to Keyser	June	3	168
" "		3	736
" Stern		3	758
" Bigelow		4	736
" Belches		5	765
" Stanton		5	770
Lewisohn to Bigelow		10	79
from Meredith		10	272
" "		10	618
" Bigelow		11	80
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		11	80
Lewisohn from Keyser (telegram)		11	81
Lewisohn Brothers to Meredith		11	272
Lewisohn from Meredith		12	271
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		12	81
Lewisohn to Bigelow		12	81
" "		13	82
" Keyser		13	737
from Keyser		13	737
to Bigelow		13	738
" "		14	82
Lewisohn Brothers from Bigelow		15	83
to Bigelow		15	84
Lewisohn from Bigelow		15	85

876*x*

Lewisohn from Bigelow	1895, June	15	195
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		17	85
Lewisohn from Keyser		17	97
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		17	739
Lewisohn to Bigelow		18	96
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		18	97
" "		18	97
Lewisohn to Bigelow		18	99
Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow		18	100
from Bigelow		19	101

Lewisohn from Keyser		19	274
" "		20	769
from Bigelow		20	102
" Keyser		20	275
to Bigelow		21	103
" Spencer		21	744
Lewisohn Brothers to Garland		21	18
" Brooker		25	745
" "		25	773
" Beaman		28	172
" "		28	152
" "		28	740
" "		28	28
Lewisohn from Keyser	July	2	278
" "		2	279
Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams		3	278
from Colquhoun		3	168
Lewisohn to Evarts		5	740
Lewisohn Brothers to Old Colony Trust		8	160
Lewisohn to Old Dominion		11	186
Lewisohn from Evarts		12	776
Lewisohn from Schiff		12	746
Lewisohn Brothers from Belches		15	766
Lewisohn to Stanton		19	771
from Bigelow		24	108
to Stern		24	759

876*ei*

Lewisohns from Stern	1895, June	24	760
Lewisohn Brothers to Wallerstein		25	774
Lewisohn to Bigelow		31	109
from Bigelow	Aug.	2	125
Lewisohn Brothers to Behrens & Sons		6	748
" Wallerstein		6	774
" Henry & Company		6	15
" Keyser		12	770
" Henry & Company		20	749
" " "		26	749
Lewisohn from Bigelow		29	126
Lewisohn Brothers to Mainz	Sept.	12	749
Lewisohn from Bigelow		18	126
Lewisohn Brothers from Stern		20	741
" "		20	776
to Stern		20	760
" Bigelow		27	394
" Caspary	Oct.	1	750
from Stern		4	741
to Stanton		4	741
" "		4	771
" Stern		4	742
" "		4	761

" "		4	762
" Brooker		5	772
from Spencer Executors		5	742
" Gaston, Attorney		5	742
to Iselin		10	750
from Brooker		10	772
Lewisohn from Keyser	Nov.	2	767
" "		6	768
Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams		26	280
Lewisohn, Jesse, from Stern	Dec.	4	743
Lewisohn Brothers to Stanton		5	628
from Stanton		5	628
to Stern		5	764

876*cii*

Lewisohn from Hyams	1896, Jan.	13	313
Lewisohn Brothers to Nelson	1897, Sept.	23	396
Lewisohn from Brandeis	1902, July	24	209
to Brandeis	Aug.	1	209
Executor, from Brandeis	Sept.	4	211
Lewisohn Brothers from Meredith (telegram)		7	263
Lundberg to Nelson	1895, July	16	122
from Bigelow		17	122
Mainz from Lewisohn Brothers	Sept.	12	749
Manning to Bigelow	July	31	134
McKenzie to Bigelow	Aug.	24	132
McLeod to Nelson	Sept.	18	572
from Nelson		23	572
" Nelson		27	573
to Nelson		28	574
Mead from Bigelow	July	17	112
Meredith from Lewisohn	April	29	744
to Lewisohn		29	587
" "		30	589
" "		30	268
" "	May	1	591
" "		1	269
" "		6	270
" "		6	593
" "		7	271
" "		7	597
" Bigelow		16	600
" Lewisohn		16	597
" "		17	598
" Keyser		17	599
" "		20	600
" Bigelow		25	76
" Lewisohn Brothers		25	601
" Bigelow		25	601
" Keyser		25	602
" Lewisohn	June	10	272

876xiii

Meredith to Lewisohn	1895, June	10	618
from Lewisohn Brothers		11	272
to Lewisohn		12	271
" Lewisohn Brothers (telegram)		?	263
Metcalf to Bigelow	July	30	134
Mossman from Nelson		17	121
" Bigelow	Sept.	12	131
Nelson from Lundberg	July	16	122
to Mossman		17	124
from Woodhull		27	119
to Woodhull	Aug.	6	528
from Woodhull		7	523
from Grout	Sept.	13	555
" Grout		17	558
" Wood		17	534
to Woodhull		18	203
" "		18	316
from Dewey		18	561
" Stocker Brothers		18	567
" McLeod		18	572
" Smith		18	577
to Grout		21	556
" Swift		23	547
" McLeod		23	572
from Grout		23	560
to Dewey		23	562
" Stocker Brothers		23	567
" Smith		23	578
from Swift		24	547
" Grout		25	557
from Stocker Brothers		26	569
to Grout		27	558
" "		27	559
" Stocker Brothers		27	568
" McLeod		27	573
" Smith		27	578

876xiv

Nelson from McLeod	1895, Sept.	28	574
to Anthony	Oct.	1	550
from Anthony		2	549
" Pierce		5	470
to Pierce		9	470
from Barron		22	61
" Evarts, Choate & Beaman	Dec.	6	281
" " " " "		9	281
" " " " "		18	282
" Lewisohn Brothers	1897, Sept.	23	396
Old Colony Trust Company from Keyser	1895, June	17	98
" "		19	275
" Lewisohn

Brothers		July	8	160
Old Dominion from Lewisohn			11	186
" Bigelow			11	181
" Cammann		Aug.	17	131
to Lewisohn Estate and Bigelow	1902,	Sept.	12	217
Pierce to Bigelow	1895,	July	29	133
" Nelson		Oct.	5	470
from Nelson			9	470
Prendergast to Bigelow		July	25	124
Randall from Bigelow		June	12	95
Reckert to Bigelow			3	78
from Bigelow			4	79
Schiff to Lewisohn		July	12	746
Simpson to Lewisohn		May	13	276
" "			14	276
Smith to Bigelow			24	87
" "			27	87
from Bigelow		June	8	86
to Nelson		Sept.	18	577
from Nelson			23	578
" "			27	578
Spaulding to Bigelow		July	24	133
from Bigelow			26	114
Spencer from Lewisohn		June	21	744
876//
Spencer Ex'rs. to Lewisohn Brothers	1895,	Oct.	5	742
Stanton from Lewisohn Brothers		June	5	770
" " "		Oct.	4	741
" " "			4	771
" " "		Dec.	5	628
to Lewisohn Brothers			5	628
from Lewisohn		July	19	771
Stern from Lewisohn Brothers		June	3	758
"		July	24	745
" Lewisohn			24	759
to Lewisohns			24	760
" Lewisohn Brothers		Sept.	20	741
" " "			20	776
from Lewisohn Brothers			20	760
to Lewisohn Brothers		Oct.	4	741
from Lewisohn Brothers			4	742
" " "			4	761
" " "			4	762
to Jesse Lewisohn		Dec.	4	743
from Lewisohn Brothers			5	764
Stevens from Bigelow		June	12	94
Stocker Brothers to Nelson		Sept.	18	567
from Nelson			23	567
to Nelson			26	569
from Nelson			27	568

Sturgis to Bigelow	July	12	108
from Bigelow		17	120
to Bigelow (telegram)		20	121
" " "		21	121
from Bigelow		22	121
to Bigelow	Aug.	3	130
from Bigelow		7	129
to Bigelow		17	130
from Bigelow		22	130
Swift from Nelson	Sept.	23	547
to Nelson		24	547

876*cci*

Thalman to Brooker	1895, July	24	773
Thayer to Bigelow		23	116
" "Bert"		24	116
from Bigelow		29	115
Wallerstein to Bigelow		20	123
from Bigelow		22	123
" Lewisohn Brothers		25	774
" " "	Aug.	6	774
Webster to Bigelow	July	26	125
Wheeler from Bigelow (telegram)	June	12	92
Whitney from Bigelow	July	5	101
Williams from Bigelow		16	111
to "Bert"		24	133
from Bigelow		26	111
" "		26	111
Wood to Bigelow	Aug.	6	129
Henry, from ——		7	129
Wood to Nelson	Sept.	17	531
Woodhull from Bigelow	June	11	88
" "		12	93
to Bigelow (telegram)		13	89
" "		13	89
" "		13	90
" " (telegram)		14	91
from Bigelow		15	92
" "		24	503
" "	July	15	116
to Bigelow		19	118
" "		22	118
from Bigelow		22	117
" "		24	117
to Bigelow		26	119
from Bigelow (telegram)		26	504
to Nelson		27	119
" Bigelow		29	120
from Bigelow		31	116

876*xvii*

Woodhull from Nelson	1895, Aug.	6	528
to Nelson		7	523
from Bigelow		7	504
" Nelson	Sept.	18	203
" "		18	316
" Bigelow	1896, April	30	508
" "	June	19	508
Woods from Bigelow	1895, July	19	114

876*xviii*

Chronological Index.

		Page.
1895, April 29.	Lewisohn to Meredith	744
29.	Meredith to Lewisohn	587
30.	" "	589
30.	" "	268
May 1.	" "	591
1.	" "	269
6.	" "	270
6.	" "	593
6.	Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams	13
6.	" Beaman	14
7.	Meredith to Lewisohn	271
7.	" "	597
13.	Simpson " "	276
14.	Keyser " "	273
14.	Simpson " "	276
15.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	71
16.	Meredith " "	600
16.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	71
16.	Meredith " "	597
16.	Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams	14
17.	Meredith to Lewisohn	598
17.	" Keyser	599
20.	" "	600
24.	Smith to Bigelow	87
24.	Lewisohn Brothers to A. Lewisohn	169
24.	" "	603
24.	" "	777
25.	Meredith to Bigelow	76
25.	" Lewisohn Brothers	601
25.	" Bigelow	601
25.	" Keyser	602
27.	—— to Anthony	75

876*xix*

1895, May 27.	Smith to Bigelow	87
28.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	229
June 3.	Reckert to Bigelow	78

	3.	Lewisohn Brothers to Keyser	168
	3.	" "	736
	3.	" Stern	758
	4.	" Bigelow	736
	4.	Bigelow to Reckert	79
	5.	Lewisohn Brothers to Belches	765
	5.	" Stanton	770
	8.	Bigelow to Smith	86
	10.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	79
	10.	Meredith to Lewisohn	272
	10.	" "	618
	11.	Bigelow to Woodhull	88
	11.	" Lewisohn	80
	11.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	80
	11.	Keyser to Lewisohn (telegram)	81
	11.	Lewisohn Brothers to Meredith	272
	12.	Bigelow to Randall	95
	12.	Altmiller to Bigelow	265
	12.	Meredith to Lewisohn	271
	12.	Bigelow to Stevens	94
	12.	" Woodhull	93
	12.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	81
	12.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	81
	12.	Bigelow to Wheeler (telegram)	92
	13.	Woodhull to Bigelow (telegram)	89
	13.	Lewisohn " "	82
	13.	Woodhull " "	89
	13.	" "	90
	13.	Lewisohn to Keyser	737
	13.	Keyser to Lewisohn	737
	13.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	738
	14.	" "	82
	14.	Woodhull to Bigelow (telegram)	91
876*xx*
1895, June	14.	Beaman to Keyser	274
	15.	Bigelow to Woodhull	92
	15.	" Lewisohn Brothers	83
	15.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	84
	15.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	85
	15.	" "	195
	17.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	53
	17.	Keyser to Lewisohn	97
	17.	" Abbott	98
	17.	" Old Colony Trust	98
	17.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	739
	18.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	96
	18.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	97
	18.	" "	97
	18.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	99
	18.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	100

	18.	Colquhoun and Hyams to Bigelow and Lewisohn	237
	19.	Bigelow to Lewisohn Brothers	101
	19.	Keyser to Lewisohn	274
	19.	" Old Colony Trust	275
	20.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	102
	20.	Keyser to Lewisohn	275
	20.	" "	769
	21.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	103
	21.	" Spencer	744
	21.	Lewisohn Brothers to Garland	18
	24.	Bigelow to Woodhull	503
	25.	Lewisohn Brothers to Brooker	745
	25.	" "	773
	28.	" Beaman	172
	28.	" "	152
	28.	" "	28
	28.	" "	740
July	2.	Keyser to Lewisohn	279
	2.	" "	278
	3.	Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams	278
876*xxi*
1895, July	3.	Colquhoun to Lewisohn Brothers	468
	5.	Bigelow to Whitney	104
	5.	—— to Evarts	104
	5.	Lewisohn to Evarts	740
	8.	Hodge to Bigelow	105
	8.	Lewisohn Brothers to Old Colony Trust	160
	10.	Bigelow to Berray	199
	11.	Lewisohn to Old Dominion	186
	11.	Bigelow to Old Dominion	181
	12.	" Hodge	105
	12.	Sturgis to Bigelow	108
	12.	Schiff to Lewisohn	746
	12.	Evarts to Lewisohn	776
	12.	—— to Evarts	777
	13.	Bigelow to Berray	200
	15.	" Woodhull	116
	15.	Belches to Lewisohn Brothers	766
	16.	Bigelow to Williams	111
	16.	Lundberg to Nelson	122
	17.	Bigelow to Mead	112
	17.	" Fenno	112
	17.	Field to Bigelow	113
	17.	Herrick to Bigelow	113
	17.	Bigelow to Sturgis	120
	17.	Nelson to Mossman	121
	17.	Bigelow to Lundberg	122
	18.	" Field	112
	19.	" Herrick	113
	19.	" Woods	114

	19.	Woodhull to Bigelow	118
	19.	Bigelow Circular Letter to Old Dominion Syndicate	125
	19.	Lewisohn to Stanton	771
	20.	Wallerstein to Bigelow	123
	20.	Herrick to Bigelow (telegram)	113
	20.	Sturgis to Bigelow (telegram)	121
	21.	" " "	121
876*xxii*
1895, July	22.	Bigelow to Sturgis	121
	22.	Woodhull to Bigelow	118
	22.	Bigelow to Woodhull	117
	22.	" Goodale	122
	22.	" Wallerstein	123
	22.	Field to Bigelow	132
	23.	Thayer to Bigelow	116
	23.	Evarts to Bigelow	281
	24.	Thayer to "Bert"	116
	24.	Bigelow to Woodhull	117
	24.	Spaulding to Bigelow	133
	24.	Williams to "Bert"	133
	24.	—— to Simon H. Stern	745
	24.	—— to Brooker	746
	24.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	108
	24.	Lewisohn to Stern	759
	24.	Thalman to Brooker	773
		Stern (by Rushmore) to Lewisohns	760
	25.	—— to Hawley	747
	25.	Prendergast to Bigelow	124
	25.	Grout to Bigelow	115
	25.	Lewisohn Brothers to Wallerstein	771
	25.	—— to Hawley	777
	26.	Bigelow to Williams	111
	26.	" Spaulding	114
	26.	" Grout	115
	26.	Woodhull to Bigelow	119
	26.	Bigelow to Williams	111
	26.	Conner to Bigelow	125
	26.	Webster to Bigelow	125
	26.	Bigelow to Woodhull (telegram)	501
	27.	Woodhull to Nelson	119
	27.	Brown to Bigelow	132
	29.	Bigelow to Thayer	115
	29.	Woodhull to Bigelow	120
	29.	Pierce to Bigelow	133
876*xxiii*
1895, July	29.	Hollis to Bigelow	133
	30.	Metcalf to Bigelow	134
	31.	Manning to Bigelow	134

	31.	Bigelow to Woodhull	116
	31.	Lewisohn to Bigelow	109
Aug.	2.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	126
	3.	Sturgis to Bigelow	130
	5.	Bigelow to Goodell	128
	5.	Grout to Bigelow	128
	5.	" "	128
	6.	Wood to Bigelow	129
	6.	Lewisohn Brothers to Behrens & Sons	748
	6.	" Henry & Company	15
	6.	Nelson to Woodhull	528
	6.	Lewisohn Brothers to Wallerstein	774
	7.	Bigelow to Sturgis	129
	7.	—— to Henry Wood	129
	7.	Bigelow to Grout	128
	7.	Woodhull to Nelson	523
	7.	Bigelow to Woodhull	504
	12.	Lewisohn Brothers to Keyser	770
	13.	Bigelow Circular Letter as to allotment of stock from list of July 18	134–5
	15.	Foote & French to Bigelow	131
	17.	Cammann to Old Dominion	131
	17.	Sturgis to Bigelow	130
	19.	Brown to Bigelow	131
	20.	Capen to Bigelow	132
	20.	Lewisohn Brothers to Henry & Company	749
	21.	Bigelow to Brown	130
	22.	Brown to Bigelow	131
	22.	Bigelow to Sturgis	130
	23.	" ——	26
	24.	McKenzie to Bigelow	132
	25.	Crosby to Bigelow	132
	26.	Lewisohn Brothers to Henry & Company	749
	29.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	126

876xxiv

1895, Sept.	10.	Nelson to Pierce	170
	12.	Bigelow to Mossman	131
	12.	Lewisohn Brothers to Mainz	749
	13.	Grout to Nelson	555
	17.	" "	558
	17.	Wood to Nelson	534
	18.	Bigelow to Lewisohn	126
	18.	Nelson to Woodhull	203
	18.	" "	316
	18.	Dewey to Nelson	561
	18.	Stocker Brothers to Nelson	567
	18.	McLeod to Nelson	572
	18.	Smith to Nelson	577
	20.	Stern to Lewisohn Brothers	741
	20.	Lewisohn Brothers to Stern	760

	20.	Stern to Lewisohn Brothers	776
	21.	Nelson to Grout	556
	23.	" Swift	547
	23.	" McLeod	572
	23.	Grout to Nelson	560
	23.	Nelson to Dewey	562
	23.	" Stocker Brothers	567
	23.	" Smith	578
	24.	Swift to Nelson	547
	25.	Grout " "	557
	26.	Stocker Brothers to Nelson	569
	27.	Nelson to Grout	558
	27.	" "	559
	27.	" Stocker Brothers	568
	27.	" McLeod	573
	27.	" Smith	578
	27.	Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow	394
	28.	McLeod to Nelson	574
Oct.	1.	Lewisohn Brothers to Caspary	750
	1.	Nelson to Anthony	550
	2.	Anthony to Nelson	549
876*xxv*
1895, Oct.	4.	Stern to Lewisohn Brothers	741
	4.	Lewisohn Brothers to Stanton	741
	4.	" Stern	742
	4.	" "	761
	4.	" "	762
	4	" Stanton	771
	5.	Pierce to Nelson	470
	5.	Spencer Executors to Lewisohn Brothers	742
	5.	Gaston, Attorney, to Lewisohn Brothers	742
	5.	Lewisohn Brothers to Brooker	772
	9.	Nelson to Pierce	470
	10.	Lewisohn Brothers to Iselin	750
	10.	Brooker to Lewisohn Brothers	772
	22.	Barron to Nelson	61
Nov.	2.	Keyser to Lewisohn	767
	6.	" "	768
	26.	Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams	280
Dec.	4.	Stern to Jesse Lewisohn	743
	5.	Lewisohn Brothers to Stanton	628
	5.	Stanton to Lewisohn Brothers	628
	5.	Lewisohn Brothers to Stern	764
	6.	Evarts, Choate & Beaman to Nelson	281
	9.	" "	281
	18.	" "	282
1896, Jan.	13.	Hyams to Lewisohn	313
April	28.	Evarts, Choate & Beaman to Bigelow	469
	30.	Bigelow to Woodhull	508
June	19.	" "	568

1897, Sept.	23.	Lewisohn Brothers to Nelson	396
1901, April	3.	Bigelow to Stockholders	245
1902, June	12.	Altmiller to Bigelow	205
	24.	" "	411
July	16.	Brandeis to Bigelow	207
	21.	Chrimes to Brandeis	207
	24.	Brandeis to Lewisohn	209
Aug.	1.	Lewisohn to Brandeis	209
876*xxvi*
1902, Aug.	2.	Bigelow to Brandeis	210
	6.	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Bigelow	211
Sept.	4.	Brandeis to Lewisohn, Exr	211
	4.	" Bigelow	212
	9.	Lauterbach to Brandeis	212
	10.	Brandeis to Bigelow	213
	10.	Bigelow to Brandeis	213
	11.	Brandeis to Bigelow	214
	11.	Bigelow to Brandeis	216
	12.	Brandeis to Bigelow	216
	12.	Old Dominion to Bigelow and Lewishon Estate	217
	12.	Hyams to Brandeis	218
1903, Feb.	4.	Brandeis to Lauterbach	631
June	19.	Hyams to Bacon & Burpee	322

The following are without date:

Bigelow to Brown	93
Meredith to Lewisohn Brothers (telegram)	263

876*xxvii* INDEX OF EXHIBITS BY NUMBER.

Page.

Under "New York Correspondence:"

No.	4.	Letter of May 6, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Hyams	13
	5.	" " " " " " " " Beaman	14
	15.	" " " 16, " " " " Hyams	14
	289.	" " Aug. 6, " " " " Henry & Co.	15
	256.	" " June 21, " " " " W. Garland	18

Referred to in Altmiller testimony:

No.	501.	Certified copy of organization of O. D. C. M. & S. Co. 412-415
	502.	Corrected list O. D. C. M. & S. Co. 45-57
	503.	Letter of August 23, 1895, Bigelow to — 26

Annexed to deposition of Albert S. Bigelow:

No.	1.	Option from Simpson estate to Meredith 220
	2.	Revised option 221
	3.	Subscription paper 224
	4.	" " 225
	5.	" " 226
	6.	" " 228
	7.	Letter from Lewisohn to Bigelow with agreement annexed 229
	8.	Original Keyser agreement 231

9. Plan of procedure 232
10. Subscription list 233
13. Report of Messrs. Hyams and Colquhoun 237
14. Report to stockholders (circular) 245
15. " " " (pamphlet) 247
16. Old Dominion Syndicate account 256
17. A. S. Bigelow Old Dominion Investment account 257
18. Text of the meeting of June 17, 1895 258
19. " " " " " June 20, 1895 259
20. Agreement 262
21. Telegram, Meredith to Lewisohn Brothers 263
22. Certificate of Incorporation of Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City 263

876*a-xviii* Annexed to deposition of Godfrey M. Hyams:

No. 2A. Assignment Meredith to Leonard Lewisohn 318
7A. Option signed by Lewisohn 318
11. Old Dominion Copper Company statement 319
12. Indemnity bond 320
23. Substitute 322
24. Table showing price of copper May, 1895, to April, 1902 324
25. Division of certificate No. 73 324
26. " " " " 81 327

Annexed to deposition of Charles H. Altmiller:

No. 1. Records of stockholders and directors' meetings 412
2. Bill for services of Evarts, Choate & Beaman 462
3. " " " " Edward C. Perkins 464
4. Account of Lewisohn Brothers, with vouchers 465
5. Letter of April 28, 1896, Evarts, Choate & Beaman to Bigelow 469
6. " " Sept. 10, 1895, Nelson to Pierce 470

Complainant's Exhibits of December 14, 1905:

No. 4. Check, Stocker Brothers to Nelson 568
8. Check, A. H. McLeod to Nelson 573
6. Check, Walter P. Smith to Nelson 577

Annexed to John Stanton's answers to written interrogatories:

No. 1. Letter of December 5, 1895, Stanton to Lewisohn Brothers ... 628
2. " " " " " " Lewisohn Brothers to Stanton ... 628

Following deposition of Henry A. Root:

No. 18. Letter of June 3, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Keyser 736
20. " " " 4, " " " " " Bigelow 736
36. " " " 13, " " " " Keyser 737
38. " " " 13, " Keyser to Leonard Lewisohn 737
39. " " " 13, " Leonard Lewisohn to Bigelow 738
43. Agreement to form Old Dominion Syndicate June 15, 1895 738
45. Letter of June 14, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Bigelow 739
67. " " " 28, " Leonard Lewisohn to Beaman 740
81. " " July 5, " " " " Evarts 740
134. " " Sept. 20, " Stern to Lewisohn Brothers 740
135. " " Oct. 4, " " " " " 741
136. " " " 4, " Lewisohn Brothers to Stanton 741

876*a-xix*

No. 137. Letter of Oct. 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Stern 742
138. " " " 5, " Spencer Ex'ors to Lewisohn Bros 742
152. " " Dec. 4, " Stern to Jesse Lewisohn 743

162,	"	" April 29,	"	Leonard Lewisohn to Meredith		744
174,	"	" June 21,	"	" " " Spencer		744
187,	"	" July 24,	"	to Simon H. Stern		744
258,	"	" June 25,	"	Lewisohn Brothers to Brooker		745
267,	"	" July 12,	"	Schiff to Leonard Lewisohn		746
273,	"	" " 24,	"	to Charles J. Brooker		746
276,	"	" " 25,	"	" E. Hawley		747
288,	"	" Aug. 6,	"	Lewisohn Bros. to Behrens & Sons		748
296,	"	" " 20,	"	" " " Henry & Co.		748
305,	"	" " 26,	"	" " " " " "		749
315,	"	" Sept. 12,	"	" " " Mainz		749
335,	"	" Oct. 1,	"	" " " W. Caspary		750
363,	"	" " 10,	"	" " " Iselin & Co.		750
496,	Agreement of May 31, signed by Lewisohn Brothers					757
497,	Letter of June 3, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Stern					758
498,	"	" July 24,	"	Leonard Lewisohn to Stern		759
499,	"	" Sept. 20,	"	Lewisohn Brothers to Stern		760
500,	"	from Rushmore, for Stern, to Lewisohns				760
501,	"	of Oct. 4, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Stern				761
502,	"	" " 4,	"	" " " " "		762
503,	"	" Dec. 5,	"	" " " " "		764

Under "Correspondence introduced by Defendants:"

No. 22,	Letter of June 5, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Belches					765
181,	"	" July 15,	"	Belches & Co. to Lewisohn Bros.		766
158,	Old Dom. Copper Co. in acct. with Balt. Cop. S. & R. Co.					767
142,	Letter of Nov. 2, 1895, Keyser to Lewisohn					767
143,	"	" " 6,	"	" " "		768
60,	"	" June 20,	"	" " "		769
124,	"	" Aug. 12,	"	Lewisohn Brothers to Keyser		770
172,	"	" June 5,	"	" " " Stanton		770
136,	"	" Oct. 4,	"	" " " "		771
183,	"	" July 19,	"	Lewisohn to Stanton		771
364,	"	" Oct. 10,	"	Brooker to Lewisohn Brothers		772

876*x*x*

No. 356,	Letter of Oct. 5, 1895, Lewisohn Brothers to Brooker					772
258,	"	" June 25,	"	" " " "		772
273,	"	" July 24,	"	Thalman to Brooker		773
275,	"	" " 25,	"	Lewisohn Brothers to Wallerstein		774
291,	"	" Aug. 6,	"	" " " "		774
134,	"	" Sept. 20,	"	Stern to Lewisohn Brothers		776
94,	"	" July 12,	"	Evarts to Leonard Lewisohn		776
95,	"	" " 12,	"	to Allan W. Evarts		777
276,	"	" " 25,	"	" E. Hawley		777
244,	"	" May 24,	"	Lewisohn Bros. to A. Lewisohn		777

Annexed to deposition of Charles H. Altmiller, recalled:

Defendant's Exhibit A, original deed, July 12, 1895		790
" " B, deed, O. D. Co. to O. D. C. M. & S. Co.		792
Exhibit 231, three double pages Ledger 476 and 304		836
232, two double pages Ledger 536 and 420		842
233, two double pages Ledger 479 and 481		846
C, Memorandum of time spent searching files		850
504, Copy of record Blum v. Whitney in N. Y. Court of Appeals		856

876*x*x*i INDEX OF MEETINGS OF DIRECTORS AND STOCKHOLDERS.

	Page.
Old Dominion Company of Baltimore City, June 17, 1895	258
" " " " " " " 29, 1895	259
" " " " " " July 11, 1895	183

Incorporators and Stockholders	Old Dominion	C. M. & S.	Co.,	July	9,	1895	412
Directors	"	"	"	"	"	"	11,	1895	422
"	"	"	"	"	"	"	24,	1895	428
"	"	"	"	"	"	Sept.	18,	1895	429
Stockholders	"	"	"	"	"	"	18,	1895	433
Directors	"	"	"	"	"	Nov.	24,	1897	433
"	"	"	"	"	"	Dec.	16,	1897	436
Stockholders	"	"	"	"	"	April	5,	1899	436
Directors	"	"	"	"	"	May	10,	1899	438
Stockholders	"	"	"	"	"	June	15,	1899	440
Directors	"	"	"	"	"	Feb.	13,	1900	443
"	"	"	"	"	"	Mar.	2,	1901	454
Stockholders	"	"	"	"	"	April	3,	1901	455
Directors	"	"	"	"	"	"	10,	1901	457
"	"	"	"	"	"	Oct.	17,	1901	459
"	"	"	"	"	"	Mar.	4,	1902	460
"	"	"	"	"	"	"	25,	1902	461

Albert S. Bigelow:	Page.
Deposition	68–266
Reading of deposition	2–6
Direct examination	68–150, 199–220
Cross-examination	150–167, 197–199
Redirect examination	168–197
Exhibits annexed to deposition	220–266
Godfrey M. Hyams:
Deposition	266–329
Reading of deposition	6–7
Direct examination	266–295, 304–317
Cross-examination	295–304
Exhibits annexed to deposition	318–329
Joseph A. Coram:
Deposition	329–343
Reading of deposition	8
Direct examination	330–343
Galen A. Stone:
Deposition	344–351
Reading of deposition	19
Direct examination	344–351
Charles H. Altmiller:
Deposition	352–470
Reading of deposition	13
Oral testimony	11–12, 19–26

Direct examination 352–411
Exhibits annexed to deposition 412–470

Charles H. Altmiller, recalled:

Deposition 789–824
Cross-examination 789–808
876*xxiii* Redirect examination 808–818
Recross-examination 819–824

William Howard Reed:

Deposition 471–474
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 471–474

Samuel N. Brown:

Deposition 474–477
Reading of deposition 10
Direct examination 474–477
Cross-examination 477

Richard Fairfax Bolles:

Deposition 478–482
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 478–479
Cross-examination 480
Redirect examination 480–481
Cross-examination de bene 481–482

Charles R. Batt:

Deposition 482–484
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 482–484

W. B. Mossman:

Deposition 484–485
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 485

Charles L. Davenport:

Deposition 486–488
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 486–488

Homer V. Snow:

Deposition 488–491
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 488–491

Arthur W. Hale:

Deposition 491–493
876*xxiv* Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 491–493
Cross-examination 493

Samuel B. Capen:

Deposition 494–500
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 494–498
Cross-examination 498–499
Redirect examination 500

Walter A. S. Chrimes:

Deposition 500–532
Reading of deposition 10
Direct examination 500–532

Henry Wood:

Deposition 533–536
Reading of deposition 13
Direct examination 533–536

Stephen M. Crosby:

Deposition 536–539
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 536–539

Edwin M. Dodd:

Deposition 540–541
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 540–541

William A. Rust:

Deposition 542–544
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 542–544

Edwin C. Swift:

Deposition 544–548
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 544–548

David M. Anthony:

Deposition 548–551
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 548–551

876*xxxv* George Marshall Preston:

Deposition 551–553
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 551–553

James F. Ormand:

Deposition 554
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 554

Josiah Grout:

Deposition 555–565
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 555–565

Frank D. Stocker:

Deposition 565–566
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 565–568

Fred B. Stocker:

Deposition 567–571
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 567–571

Angus H. McLeod:

Deposition 571–576
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 571–576

Walter P. Smith:

Deposition 576–580
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 576–580

Joseph S. Bigelow:

Deposition 581–582
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 581–582

Clarence H. Bissell:

Deposition 582–583
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 582–583

876*xxxvi* J. Morris Meredith:

Deposition 584–619
Reading of deposition 7
Direct examination 584–619

William J. Ladd:

Deposition 620–621
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 620–621

Charles S. Smith:

Deposition 621–623
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 621–623

Eugene V. R. Thayer:

Deposition 624
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 624

John Stanton:

Interrogatories and answers 625–628
Reading of deposition 8
Exhibits annexed 628
Objections to interrogatories 629

Walter Lewisohn:

Deposition 630–635, 667–677
Reading of deposition 8
Direct examination 630–635, 667–677

Ferdinand L. Rahaeuser:

Deposition 636–657, 694–708, 724–728
Reading of deposition 9, 10
Direct examination 636–657, 694–708, 724–728

Adolph Lewisohn:

Deposition 657–667
Reading of deposition 8
Direct examination 657–667

876*xxxvii* Frederick Lewisohn:

Deposition 678–690
Reading of deposition 8
Direct examination 678–690

Albert Lewisohn:

Deposition 690–693
Reading of deposition 8
Direct examination 690–693

Edward C. Westervelt:

Deposition 708–711, 719–723
Reading of deposition 9, 10
Direct examination 708–711, 719–723

Jesse Lewisohn:

Deposition 711–718
Reading of deposition 9
Direct examination 711–718

Henry A. Root:

Deposition 729–750
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 729–735
Cross-examination 735–736
Exhibits annexed to deposition 736–750

Charles F. Brooker:

Deposition 750–753
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 750–753

Simon H. Stern:

Deposition 754–765
Reading of deposition 19
Direct examination 754–765

Joseph F. Costello:

Deposition 778–786
Reading of deposition 58
Direct examination 778–786

876*xxxviii* Thomas H. O'Neil:

Deposition 786–789
Reading of deposition 58
Direct examination 786–789

Cleveland H. Dodge:

Deposition 827–835
Reading of deposition 58
Direct examination 827–833
Cross-examination 833–834
Redirect examination 834–835

Allan W. Evarts:

Deposition 26–38
Direct examination 26–33
Cross-examination 33–37
Redirect examination 38

Edward C. Perkins:

Deposition 38–44
Direct examination 38–41
Cross-examination 42–44
Statutes and citations 59–66
Stipulation 66–67
Order appointing commissioner, November 6, 1907 1
Order appointing commissioner, December 10, 1907 824
Report of commissioner on proceedings in court December 10, 1907 824
New York correspondence 13

877 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS:

Supreme Judicial Court.

No. 8098. In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
ALBERT S. BIGELOW.

No. 8099.

SAME
v.
SAME.

Before Braley, J.

Appearances:

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter (Louis D. Brandeis and Edward F. McClennen, Esqs.), Counsel for Complainant;
Alfred Hemenway and J. Wells Farley, Esqs., Counsel for Respondent.

Order Appointing Commissioner.

In the above-entitled cases, at the hearing of the same before Mr. Justice Braley, it is ordered, under the provisions of Chancery Rules, No. XXXV, that Richard H. Jones and John C. Miller be, and they hereby are, appointed commissioners to take the evidence in said cases upon the petition of plaintiff for an injunction to be reported to the full court.

By the Court:

WALTER F. FREDERICK, Clerk.

August 11, 1908, as on August 7, 1908.

878 Edward F. McClennen, Sworn.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. Mr. McClennen, you have been counsel, with other members of the law firm of Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, for the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company in the litigation against Bigelow and against Lewisohn?

A. I have.

Q. And have also been counsel in the litigation undertaken, not only in Massachusetts, but also that in the federal court and the Supreme Court of the United States, and in New Jersey, in the suit there instituted by Mr. Bigelow before the chancellor?

A. I have.

Q. And you are familiar with the course of the proceedings in each of those courts?

A. I am.

Q. Now will you state what that course of proceedings has been and particularly with reference to the course of proceedings in New Jersey, in the suit begun by Mr. Bigelow?

A. Of course most of the course of proceedings, as far as the case in Massachusetts is concerned, is apparent from an inspection of the record of the case here. Some of the things do not appear, and I will refer to them. The case before the full bench was on the printed list for argument in January——

Q. 1908?

A. 1908. At that time I was present at the calling of the list, on January 6, 1908, and Mr. Hemenway said to the court, "I have asked for a postponement of this case until March, so that the other cases the defendant appeals may be argued at the same time;" and the court thereupon announced, through the chief justice, "The court is unanimously of the opinion that the case should be continued, and assigned for the first case at the March sitting." I have inspected the original bill of complaint in New Jersey, and it was——

Mr. HEMENWAY: Wait a moment. You have certified copy of that here, I suppose. If so, I should prefer the certified copy.

Mr. Brandeis says that I may ask a question to clear up matters in your Honor's mind.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. There were two cases pending in the Supreme Court that were heard by Mr. Justice Sheldon?

A. Yes.

Q. And in each of those cases the plaintiff took an appeal?

A. Yes.

Q. And in each of the cases the defendant took an appeal?

A. Yes.

Q. So that there were four cases, and only two of them on the list in January, the appeal of the defendant not having been entered in season, so that——

A. Well, that——

Q. So that wasn't my suggestion that the four cases should 879 be argued together, and that, because of the length of the record which you had ordered printed, it was not ready, and it was impossible to prepare a brief and properly argue the cases at that time?

A. That was substantially your suggestion to the court at that time. The exact fact with reference to the appeals was that we had appealed, and entered the cases, with the entire record, and that the thirty days within which the appeal could be taken by the respondent did not expire until, I think, January 10, and that appeal was taken on the 6th day of January, and the clerk was given this printed slip of the appeal, and that was appended to the record that had already been filed with the clerk of the court for the commonwealth by us. I do not find, Mr. Hemenway—returning to what you asked me about a moment ago—that I have a certified copy of that bill of complaint.

Q. If you have your own office copy——

A. I have an office copy; that is—well, I had several copies made, of which one is the copy attached to the petition filed in this case for the injunction; and, without having compared it word for word, I practically know that that is the text of the bill filed in New Jersey. That bill was filed on the 26th of Febraury, 1908. The first service that I have ever heard of, that came to my attention in any way, was a service on the 28th of February, 1908, of a restraining order and preliminary injunction. The terms——

Q. Filed on the 26th, you say?

A. Filed on the 26th, and the restraining order issued on that day. The service was made on the 28th. The restraining order, I, in the same way, know, without having compared it word for word, was in the terms of the order, a copy of which is also attached to the petition now filed for an injunction. In the present petition the copy which is annexed contains bodily all the exhibits except Exhibit C, and Exhibit C is in fact one of the printed records, pages 1 to 78 of the case as prepared in the county court, and filed before the full bench, or the Supreme Court for the Commonwealth.

Now at the time that this injunction was obtained the office of the company was in Jersey City, and——

(By the COURT:)

Q. New Jersey?

A. Jersey City, N. J., it being a New Jersey corporation. The local counsel for the company, who signed the bill of complaint, had an office in Jersey City, and I have not heard of his having any office elsewhere, and I believe that he has not. The Court of Chancery of New Jersey is presided over by a chancellor, who has as his advisers seven vice-chancellors, who sit in various parts of the state. The vice-chancellor applied to was the one, with one exception, sitting most remotely from Jersey City; and Jersey City is, as I presume the court knows, judicially, the point of approach to New Jersey from this state.

880 On receiving the service of the order of notice and the preliminary restraining order, Mr. Brandeis and I, on February 28, went to New York, and on February 29, which was Saturday, made an application to the vice-chancellor to modify the restraining order sufficiently to permit of the argument of the case. He said that he would hear us on Monday, and we notified counsel; and on Monday, March 2, we had a hearing before him upon the subject of whether the restraining order would be modified. He declined to modify it, but entered an order advancing the case upon the order of notice to the 11th of March. It had previously been returnable upon the 20th of March. On the 11th of March we had another hearing before him on the question of granting the preliminary injunction. He finally granted the preliminary injunction, expressly reserving any opinion as to the merits of the cause. That hearing was participated in by Mr. Brandeis, local counsel, and myself for the company; and Mr. Charles H. Tyler and Mr. Bolles and local counsel in New Jersey for Mr. Bigelow. Mr. Farley, of Mr. Hemenway's office, was also present, I believe, at that hearing. He was either present at that hearing or at the hearing when we sought to have the restraining order modified.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. State who were the counsel, please. You said "local counsel."

A. The local counsel for the company were ex-Judge Collins and William H. Corbin, of the firm of Collins & Corbin. They were not present at both hearings, both of them. One was present at one hearing, and the other was present at the other hearing. Counsel for the complainant were John Gritlin—I have forgotten whether he has a middle initial or not—of Jersey City, ex-Judge Van Syckel and John C. Spooner—I think it is John C. Spooner——

Q. Ex-Senator Spooner, you mean?

A. Ex-Senator Spooner, from——

Q. Wisconsin?

A. Wisconsin, and now a member of the New York bar.

Q. And ex-Judge Van Syckel is ex-Judge Van Syckel of Trenton?

A. I will accept that as the fact. I am not aware of that fact, but I dare say that is so. On April 6——

Q. I am not sure whether you, after stating the names of the counsel for the company, made a sufficient pause, so that it will appear that these were counsel for the defence. Mr. Tyler states that you said "counsel for the company." I wish the stenographer would read what you stated about that.

A. The counsel for the company were Mr. Collins, Mr. Corbin, Mr. Brandeis, and myself; and the counsel for Mr. Bigelow were Mr. Tyler, Mr. Bolles,—Mr. Eames was also present, associated with Mr. Tyler,—ex-Senator Spooner, Mr. Gritlin, and Mr. Van Syckel. I think that covers the entire list.

881 Mr. BRANDEIS: And Mr. Farley?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Mr. Farley was not employed.

The WITNESS. On the 6th of April, or a few days before the 6th of April, we gave notice to the other side of a motion to dismiss the bill of complaint. I have not consulted the New Jersey statutes or rules in detail, but I think I know that a motion to dismiss a bill of complaint is equivalent to a demurrer, and that an order granting it disposes of the case, as far as that court is concerned. That case was argued on the 6th of April before the chancellor, Chancellor Pitney. The prior proceedings had been before Vice-Chancellor Walker.

By Mr. BRANDEIS.

Q. The vice-chancellor sitting with the chancellor?

A. On the 6th of April, when the application was made to dismiss the bill before the chancellor, the vice-chancellor was sitting. I ought to say this also, that by the law there, as I am credibly informed, the constitutional authority is in the chancellor. The legislature has enacted that he may have the advice of certain vice-chancellors appointed by him, the labor being more than one man can perform. The judicial officer is the chancellor. The orders bear the form "advised by" so-and-so, "vice-chancellor," but bear the attest of the chancellor.

At the hearing on April 6 Mr. Charles Corbin argued the case for the company, and Mr. Brandeis and I were present. Mr. Charles Corbin was another Mr. Corbin who was a member of the same firm of Collins & Corbin. The argument for Mr. Bigelow was chiefly by Mr. Van Syckel. Mr. Tyler, I think, was present; Mr. Griffin was present; and Mr. Farley, I think, was not. Mr. Eames, I think, was present. Mr. Spooner, I think, was not present. The chancellor reserved his decision.

In the latter part of July, about the 25th to the 28th, we received a telegram from the chancellor that on the following Tuesday he would enter an order dismissing the bill. The following Tuesday was the 4th of August, and we were present before the chancellor at Morristown on the 4th of August,—Mr. Collins, Mr. Brandeis, and I for the company; Mr. Spooner, Mr. Tyler, Mr. Van Syckel, and Mr. Griffin were there for Mr. Bigelow. The chancellor read his opinion from rough notes that he had before him, largely typewritten, and somewhat written, and he stated to us that he would still make verbal corrections in it. It was an opinion that, with rapid reading, took, I should think, about two hours to read, and it took up the various grounds urged why the bill should not be maintained in New Jersey, and passed favorably, I think, upon all of them.

He first entered an order, of which I have a certified copy, 882 allowing certain verbal amendments to the bill of complaint.

He then entered a decree, of which I have a certified copy, dismissing the bill of complaint——

Q. Won't you read that, Mr. McClennen?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Wouldn't it be best to read the bill itself? I have never heard it read, and have no copy of it.

Mr. BRANDEIS: You mean the bill which——

Mr. HEMENWAY: The bill itself.

The WITNESS: Shall I read the original bill, or the amended bill? There are very slight changes in it, but there are some. I should not like, as a physical matter, to have to read both of them.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I am willing that you should read the amended bill.

The WITNESS: The amended bill is as follows: [reading]

[Amended bill attached to petition for injunction filed August 6, 1908. See Pleadings, printed pages 86–104.]

Mr. BRANDEIS: Proceed.

The WITNESS: After the allowance of that amendment, by the order of which I have a copy, the court entered a decree dismissing the bill and dissolving the injunction, and also declined to consider issuing an interim stay unless upon the terms that Mr. Bigelow would furnish a bond for the payment of such decree as might ultimately be entered in Massachusetts or might be entered in New Jersey. Those terms were declined, and no interim stay was ordered.

In announcing his opinion the chancellor dealt with all these claims that are set out in the bill, and stated in terms that under the laws of New Jersey, they were not well founded, that there was not any difference upon the facts as set out in the finding of Mr. Justice Sheldon between the law of Massachusetts and the law of New Jersey; that, in his judgment, there was no difference in policy; that the case was not to be determined by the policy of New Jersey, but was a transitory matter depending upon the rights between the parties, and to be determined by the law of the forum. He dealt with the question of the effect of the decree dismissing the bill against Lewisohn, the decree entered in accordance with the order of the United States Supreme Court, and stated that it seemed to him (I mean his language was) little short of absurd to contend that that could in any manner be a defence by Mr. Bigelow, but that if it was a defence it was as well a defence in the courts of Massachusetts as in the courts of New Jersey. And in like manner he dealt with the other contentions set up in the bill, and stated that none of them were well founded under the laws of the state of New Jersey. His opinion is a very elaborate one, and replete 883 with citations from the New Jersey authorities, as well as from the authorities from our courts, he adopting, apparently, the decision in the case of Carson v. Dunham, of our own court as being a correct exposition of the law.

It appears, if the New Jersey law as a fact is of any interest to your Honor in this connection, that the state of New Jersey has flatly recognized the principle which has been announced by our court, that the court first taking jurisdiction of a case should keep jurisdiction thereof.

In Home Insurance Co. v. Howell, 24 N. J. Eq. 238, a suit had been brought by an insurance company in New Jersey to obtain a cancellation on account of fraud of policies which had been issued in Illinois to a resident of Illinois, covering property in Illinois. Some evidence was taken in that case. The resident in Illinois subsequently brought a suit in Illinois, in the state court, against the company, to realize upon the policies. The company caused that to be removed to the Circuit Court on account of diversity of citizenship,—the United States Circuit Court,—and the resident of Illinois reserved that case for hearing. Thereupon the insurance company in New Jersey applied in the pending suit to the chancellor in New Jersey to grant a restraining order to prevent the going on with the suit in Illinois. That restraining order was granted. A motion was made to dissolve it, and that motion was denied, and the chancellor said,—

"This Court having the power to hear and determine the subject-matter in controversy, and having first obtained possession of the controversy, is fully at liberty to retain it until it shall have disposed of it. The general rule is that as between courts of concurrent and co-ordinate jurisdiction, (and the Circuit Court of the United States and the State Courts are such in certain controversies—such as that involved in this suit, for example—between citizens of different states) the Court that first obtains possession of the controversy must be allowed to dispose of it, without interference from the co-ordinate court. Riggs v. Johnson County, 6 Wall. 166, 196. In Peck v. Jenness, 7 How. 624, in which it was held, that over a suit pending in a court of Common Pleas of New Hampshire, the District Court of the United States, sitting in bankruptcy could exercise no control either directly or indirectly, by enjoining the plaintiff, the Court said: "It is a doctrine of law too long established to require citation of authorities, that where a court has jurisdiction it has a right to decide every question which occurs in the cause, and whether its decision be correct or otherwise, its judgment, till reversed, is regarded as binding in every other court; and that where the jurisdiction of a court, and the right of a plaintiff to prosecute his suit in it, have once attached, that right cannot be arrested 884 or taken away by proceedings in another court. These rules have their foundation not merely in comity, but in necessity. For if the one may enjoin, the other may retort by injunction, and thus the parties be without remedy, being liable for a process for contempt in one, if they attempt to proceed in the other.'

"Nor does it matter that the policies for instance were issued in another state, upon property in that state, and that the loss occurred there. Where a party is within the jurisdiction of this Court, so that on a bill properly filed here this court has jurisdiction of his person, although the subject-matter of the suit may be situated elsewhere, it may, by the ordinary process of injunction and attachment for contempt, compel him to desist from commencing a suit at law, either in this state or in foreign jurisdiction, and of course from prosecuting one commenced after the bringing of the suit in this court. Mead v. Merritt, 2 Paige, 402. The defendant's suit at law was manifestly commenced after the filing of the bill in this cause. The petition so alleged, and the defendant, in his affidavit, made for use in this motion, and read accordingly, does not deny it.

"The bill prayed an injunction to restrain the defendant from bringing suit at law against the complainants on the policies, although no injunction was applied for on the filing of the bill. If bringing a suit at law was not a contempt of this court, under the circumstances, it surely was a proceeding that this Court will discountenance."

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. That was an abstract from the opinion, I take it?

A. No; that was a quotation that I was reading from the opinion.

Q. That is what I said,—an abstract of the opinion.

A. Well, my only distinction is, it was not my language; it was the language of the court.

Q. That is the way I understand it.

A. The chancellor, in announcing his opinion, stated that if an error had been made by Mr. Justice Sheldon in his findings of fact, that error was correctible upon appeal to the full banch of Massachusetts, and he saw no reason why he should sit to revise the decision of Mr. Justice Sheldon; if Mr. Justice Sheldon had not made an error as to the facts in his finding, then, in his judgment of the law of the state of New Jersey, the decrees entered were warranted by the facts found. I am, of course, not stating his exact language; I can't do it at this length of time; but that was the substance of his opinion upon that subject.

With respect to the other matter, the matter of the application to the New Jersey legislature, I don't know that I have personal knowledge with respect to that matter. I have seen the text of the bill that was before the——

885 Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, one moment.

The WITNESS: —that was before the——

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, one moment. I pray your Honor's judgment.

The WITNESS: I was confining myself entirely to that part that I did have knowledge of.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. Yes. Produce any text of a bill that you know anything about.

A. It is outside the jurisdiction of this court and in the possession, presumably, of the legislative authorities of the state of New Jersey, and I assumed that I was not transgressing the rule in putting in secondary evidence of it, so long as I kept myself within my own knowledge. I have seen the text of the bill, in form, in language, of that attached——

Mr. HEMENWAY: I pray your Honor's judgment on that.

The WITNESS: —of that attached to the petition.

The COURT: Do you object to it?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes.

The COURT: Is it signed by Bigelow?

The WITNESS: It is not signed by Bigelow.

Mr. BRANDEIS: We shall have to connect that by other evidence, your Honor. I think we can do that.

The WITNESS: Mr. Tyler is here.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Mr. Tyler is here.

The COURT: Can you show that the petition for legislation is Mr. Bigelow's petition?

Mr. BRANDEIS: I think we can. Mr. Tyler is here, and undoubtedly will admit the facts.

The COURT: You say the petition is out of the jurisdiction?

The WITNESS: The paper is out of the jurisdiction,—the original paper.

The COURT: The witness says that the document is out of the jurisdiction, and he has examined it and knows its substance.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes. Does he say that it was signed by Mr. Bigelow?

The WITNESS: I say it was not signed by Mr. Bigelow.

The COURT: No; but counsel say that they propose to connect it and show that it was his act. If they do, I think the evidence is admissible; if they do not, I think it is not admissible. They must show, of course, that it is his act.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I would prefer to be heard later as to its pertinency to this case.

The COURT: I will hear you fully later, if it is at all material.

886 Mr. HEMENWAY: I don't make any admission, because I am not in a position to do that.

The COURT: I understand you can't do it, Mr. Hemenway.

Mr. HEMENWAY: But I will state, from what has just been told me, that I don't propose to put in any evidence that Mr. Bigelow was not responsible for that legislation.

The COURT: Go on.

The WITNESS: Other cases in New Jersey which confirm this same principle, that the court of New Jersey——

Mr. HEMENWAY: One moment. That was ruled in, the contents of that.

The WITNESS: Oh, well, the contents is, in terms, as set out in the petition.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Has that bill been read to the court?

The COURT: Do you say that it is a petition for proposed legislation; is that it? It has not been enacted into a statute?

The WITNESS: It has not been enacted into a statute. It was not passed and the legislature has adjourned.

The COURT: Then it is ended, isn't it?

The WITNESS: It is ended, except as we judge of the future only by the past, and it is one of the grounds for our apprehension that we will not remain unmolested in our effort to get judgment in Massachusetts.

The COURT: When was the New Jersey assembly begun; in January?

Mr. HEMENWAY: In January.

The COURT: Well, you offer it upon the ground that it has some tendency to show further resort by Bigelow to the courts?

The WITNESS: Yes; the text indicates that.

The COURT: That was a petition to the legislature by him?

The WITNESS: As the text will show, your Honor, it was a petition to invest the courts of New Jersey with a jurisdiction which the courts of New Jersey do not now possess.

Mr. BRANDEIS: And which they would not exercise if they did possess it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: You speak for the court?

Mr. BRANDEIS: And which I think the chancellor's decision has just shown that they would not exercise if they possessed it.

The WITNESS: Yes; I think the chancellor's opinion did take the ground rather that, while any court of equity might have jurisdiction to do this thing, as a matter of proper decision in equity it would not exercise that jurisdiction.

887 The COURT: Well, it was really for legislation in aid of a suit which was then pending?

The WITNESS: Yes; it certainly was that.

The COURT: So that, if the jurisdiction was doubtful, to put it beyond question by granting to the court further power; and that is all determined by the dismissal of the bill, is it not, except that an appeal from the decision of the chancellor——

The WITNESS: I think that——

The COURT: I do not think that you ought to spend any more time on it.

The WITNESS: There are several other cases in New Jersey, among them being New Jersey Zinc Co. v. Franklin Iron Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 422; Title Guaranty & Trust Co. v. Trenton Potteries Co., 56 N. J. Eq. 441; Shaw v. Frye, 69 N. J. Eq. 321; Minchin v. Second National Bank, 36 N. J. Eq. 436, all in support of the proposition that the second court will not injure the litigant in the first court, unde reircumstances such as are presented in the present case.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. All those cases that you mentioned are set forth in your bill, are they?

A. Yes, sir; they are right in the petition.

The COURT: Well, if there are other facts I think we should go on. I don't think you ought to spend any more time on what is fundamental.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Simply I wanted to be sure that I had got them all down.

The WITNESS: That is all, at the moment. I recall of the facts that fairly come within your question, Mr. Brandeis.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Except so far as they appear of record in this court, of record in the proceedings of this court?

The WITNESS: Yes. I have expressly not stated, except incidentally, anything which appears of record in this court. The full printed record is in this court on file.

Mr. BRANDEIS: I suppose that that record may be considered in evidence. That is all.

Cross-examination.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. In reading the bill you omitted to read Exhibit L. Will you state what Exhibit L was, and if you——

Mr. BRANDEIS: He didn't read any of the exhibits, did he, Mr. Hemenway?

Mr. HEMENWAY: No. That is what I am going to ask him about.

888 A. I don't recall, at the moment, Exhibit L.

Q. Is it the trust agreement?

A. F? Isn't that Exhibit F?

Q. I understood from your rapid reading it was Exhibit L, followed by the Old Dominion receipt.

A. Well, it was, in fact, F.

Q. Well, that is the one I wish, and I would like to have you produce, if you haven't it here, at the next hearing, the original of that, unless you can furnish an exact copy to take the place of the original. Read that, please.

A. Except F is an agreement between the Old Dominion Company, a corporation organized under the laws of Maine, and Charles Sumner Smith and D. Blakely Hoar.

"Whereas, pursuant to a proposal embodied in an agreement signed by F. S. Mosely & Company and others, dated December 30th, 1903, the Old Dominion Company has been organized and is the corporation referred to in said agreement as the Maine Company, and is about to acquire one hundred thousand eight hundred and four (100,804) shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company (hereinafter called the Mining Company); and

"Whereas, by Article First, section 6, of said agreement, it is stipulated that upon such acquisition of stock by said Old Dominion Company, it shall provide for realizing upon certain assets of said Mining Company and the distribution of the proceeds thereof, as in said agreement, to which reference is hereby made, more fully set forth; and

"Whereas Charles Sumner Smith and D. Blakely Hoar (hereinafter called the Trustees) have consented to act as trustees, under a declaration of trust of even date herewith executed by them, for the benefit of said assenting stockholders of said Mining Company referred to in said agreement:

"Now, Therefore, This Agreement Witnesseth:

"First. The Old Dominion Company acknowledges that the assets of the Mining Company referred to in Article First, section 6, of the agreement above referred to, comprise certain claims against one Albert S. Bigelow and against the estate of one Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, on which suits are now pending brought by said Mining Company in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts for the County of Suffolk and in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, together with the other assets enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed marked 'A.'

"Second. Said Old Dominion Company covenants and agrees with said Trustees to use all reasonable efforts:

889 "1. To cause said Mining Company to realize upon said other assets specified in Schedule 'A' in such a manner as said Trustees may from time to time direct, subject, however, to the provisions hereinafter contained.

"2. To cause said Mining Company actively to prosecute said claims above referred to against said Bigelow and against the estate of said Lewisohn, in such manner and through such counsel and attorneys as said Trustees may from time to time request, and upon like request to make any settlement and adjustment of said claims or any of them, subject, however, to the provisions hereinafter contained.

"3. To cause said Mining Company, if and so far as any sums of money are realized from said other assets or from said claims:

(a) To pay all expenses that may have been incurred in realizing on said other assets or said claims, including the repayment of all sums that may have been advanced by said Trustees and the satisfaction of all liabilities that may have been incurred by them in realizing on said other assets or said claims; or authority to do so;

(b) To apply any surplus moneys then remaining to the payment of all debts and unliquidated claims of said Mining Company incurred prior to January 1, 1904, in excess of Twenty five thousand ($25,000) dollars, other than those incurred for new construction;

(c) To reserve such part, if any, as said Trustees may request of any surplus then remaining for use in providing for the further expenses of prosecuting said claims and realizing on said other assets, if and so far as the same have not been finally disposed of and realized on;

(d) To distribute any surplus then remaining as a dividend among its stockholders, if it lawfully may do so, and if it cannot then lawfully make such a dividend to make the same as soon thereafter as any legal impediment is removed.

"Third. The Old Dominion Company agrees to pay over to said Trustees, after making the deductions hereinafter provided for, any and all sums received by it as a stockholder in said Mining Company, or that would have been so received by it if it had at all times remained the holder of the same proportions of the capital stock of said Mining Company outstanding as all the stock in said Mining Company now held and that may hereafter be acquired by said Old Dominion Company bears to the capital stock of said Mining Company now outstanding, whether so received under the foregoing provisions of this agreement or otherwise, so far as each sum is derived from the other assets and claims of said Mining Company herein referred to.

890

"Said Old Dominion Company shall first deduct from sums so payable amounts advanced under this agreement by the Old Dominion Company for expenses, including counsel fees of the Old Dominion Interest, so called, in connection with the proposal and agreement dated December 30th, 1903, above referred to. It shall pay over the balance of sums so payable to the Trustees from time to time as the same are received or would have been received for distribution by said Trustees among the assenting stockholders of said Mining Company and their assigns, but without responsibility on the part of said Old Dominion Company for the application of any sum so paid over.

"Fourth. The Old Dominion Company agrees to use all reasonable efforts, so far as it lawfully may in the performance of Article Second, Section 1, of this agreement, to cause said Mining Company to permit said Trustees in the name and behalf of said Mining Company, but for the purposes set forth in this agreement, to take from time to time all such action as said Trustees shall deem desirable in prosecuting or settling or otherwise realizing on or discounting said claims or any of them, of said other assets or any of them; and to cause said Mining Company from time to time and as often as in writing requested, at the expense of said Trustees so far as any expenditure is required but without charge so far as acts by the officers or employees of the Mining Company or of the Old Dominion Company are concerned, to assist said Trustees in preparing and maintaining any and every suit at law or in equity or other proceedings now pending or that may hereafter be brought to enforce or realize on any of said claims or other assets, and particularly to permit said Trustees to have free access at all reasonable times to the papers and records of said Mining Company relating thereto, and to take for use in any suit or other proceeding any document or books relating to said corporation.

"Fifth. Said Old Dominion Company agrees, in case for any reason it is impossible lawfully to carry out this agreement in the manner hereinbefore provided or any part thereof, to do all that it lawfully and reasonably can do to cause said Mining Company to take such action that said other assets and claims shall be realized on to the best advantage reasonably possible, and the net proceeds thereof as defined in said proposal and agreement distributed among the stockholders in said Mining Company, and all sums received by said Old Dominion Company as a stockholder in said Mining 891 Company or that would have been so received by it had it at all times remained the holder of the same proportion of the capital stock of said Mining Company outstanding that all the stock in said Mining Company now held and that may hereafter be acquired by said Old Dominion Company bears to the capital stock of said Mining Company now outstanding"——

The COURT: What is the object of having that exhibit read? It is utterly impossible for me to grasp it unless I take it and read it myself. It cannot go into the record, because, of course, there is no need of repeating in the record what is already of record as an exhibit.

Mr. HEMENWAY: What is that, your Honor?

The COURT: It will not go into the record, because it is not necessary to put it into the record.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I propose to put it in as an exhibit.

The COURT: You can; but there is no need of having it read. Put it all in as an exhibit. Have it put into the record of the case.

The WITNESS: May I make a suggestion? It is attached to the very petition on which we are proceeding now.

Mr. HEMENWAY: What?

The WITNESS: It is attached to the petition on which we are proceeding now, as an exhibit, so that it is all there.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes. The purpose of it, if your Honor please, is to show that this very suit that is being prosecuted against Mr. Bigelow and the suit that is being prosecuted against Mr. Lewisohn are for the benefit of trustees whose beneficiaries are the owners of certain certificates, and that those certificates are sold daily in the market. That goes to the question of discretion in this case.

The COURT: Discretion in this case, as I understand it, is confined to one branch, which was called to my attention yesterday, as to whether Bigelow should be restrained and enjoined from beginning any more suits similar to the New Jersey suit. That is the only question I have to decide; and I understood that petition to be based upon the grounds, which have already been stated here, that, prior to some of the New Jersey cases, the whole four corners of the litigation were being tried out in proceedings here. That I don't know, of course, until I examine the papers and compare them.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Of course I don't know what was represented or stated to your Honor.

The COURT: Well, I have told you that I am trying that 892 one issue, Mr. Hemenway. I am trying that one issue, whether Mr. Bigelow shall be restrained and enjoined, while this litigation is pending here, from bringing more suits to try in other jurisdictions the same question that is now involved here.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I suppose your Honor refers, by "more suits," to the appeal in the pending suit?

The COURT: I have not said anything about the appeal in the pending suit. That is another and distinct question, as to whether he should be restrained and enjoined from going on in the pending case by perfecting, if he can perfect, an appeal; and on that I do not understand that you are apart at all.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I beg your Honor's pardon?

The COURT: I do not understand that you are apart upon the facts, so far as they relate to what has been done in New Jersey, on the present condition of the record there?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I do not think so, your Honor.

Q. Then the position of the suit, if I may make a brief statement of your testimony, is this: that the bill was filed in February last; that a hearing—a temporary injunction—was allowed; that subsequently a motion to dissolve that temporary injunction was refused; and then a further hearing before the chancellor—was that an appeal, or how did you get before the chancellor?

A. That was not an appeal. The chancellor is the constituted court there. The vice-chancellors are merely his advisers.

Q. Yes. Well, how did you get it before the chancellor? It was you that carried it,—that is, the Old Dominion Company that carried it—before the chancellor? How did you do that?

A. A motion was filed in the case, addressed to the chancellor, to dismiss the bill for want of equity.

Q. Yes. And that motion was heard, and the chancellor has dismissed the bill and refused to continue the injunction, and that order was dated August 3?

A. August 4. That hearing was by the chancellor and the original vice-chancellor, sitting concurrently, and the original vice-chancellor concurred in the final judgment.

Q. Was the vice-chancellor there when this opinion was read?

A. He was not. But the chancellor stated—I have no personal knowledge of this—the chancellor stated that the vice-chancellor concurred in the result, and had expressed no opposition to any principle announced in the opinion.

Mr. BRANDEIS: He sets that out in the opinion.

The WITNESS: Yes; that is set forth there. It is read as being the opinion of the chancellor with the vice-chancellor in concurrence.

893 Q. Well, now, the defendant, or rather the complainant, Mr. Bigelow, appealed?

A. We are not aware whether he has or not. He expressed an intention to do so.

Q. Now what was said about an appeal at that time by his counsel? He was not present, was he?

A. He was not present. Well, a great deal was said from time to time. Undoubtedly enough was said to indicate that there was an intention to appeal, if that covers your question.

Q. Yes. And within what time must that appeal be perfected?

A. Thirty days, I am informed.

Q. Within thirty days?

A. That is, I haven't investigated the subject directly, but I have been so informed by counsel in New Jersey.

Q. And when could that appeal be entered in court in New Jersey? To what court can it be appealed?

A. The appeal is to the Court of Errors and Appeals. That is the court of last resort, as I understand, both on matters of equity and matters of law.

Q. Yes. That is the highest court in the state?

A. That is the court which is presided over by the chancellor who has just rendered this opinion. I am afraid that I can't state the exact thing which is analogous to our entry here.

Q. When do they meet?

A. The Court of Errors and Appeals comes in, we are advised, on the 10th of September next, but we have no knowledge, beyond experience in other cases, as to when these cases will be reached for argument.

Mr. BRANDEIS: If Mr. Hemenway would like to have me state, merely for the information of the court——

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is not necessary.

Mr. BRANDEIS: This is merely as to the date.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, it is the 10th of September, isn't it?

Mr. BRANDEIS: No. The court merely comes in at that time. The appeal is entered, according to Mr. Griffin, to be heard in November, as I understand it.

Q. No other papers, and no other case, has been brought to your attention, other than the appeal of the pending case, has there, on the part of Mr. Bigelow?

A. No. Our apprehension was that there wouldn't be.

Q. Well, of what other suits are you apprehensive? By "you" I mean the corporation that you represent.

A. I am apprehensive of suits the number and place of which will be determined by the ingenuity of counsel, whoever thought of this application to the New Jersey court, and which may be quite as unfounded, and perhaps more unfounded than that in New Jersey. I haven't been able to think of a court where they could legally 894 and properly apply, but before this application to New Jersey was made I should have asserted as a matter of law that there was no court to which they could legally and properly apply. So that my apprehensions are beyond definition.

Q. They are as vague as you state them?

A. Yes. I can say that I have thought of some court to which another application might be made, but I would rather not tell which court that is, with Mr. Tyler present.

Q. I am quite sure Mr. Tyler would like to hear you say it. Perhaps it is beyond my imagination. I would like to have made as an exhibit, and a part of the record, the Old Dominion certificate, as well as——

A. That is attached to our petition also.

Q. Yes. And you admit that both of them are true copies of the originals in the possession of the plaintiff?

A. Oh, yes; for the purposes of this trial we certainly do. I haven't compared them, but I haven't the slightest doubt that they are.

Redirect examination.

(By Mr. BRANDEIS:)

Q. It is a fact, Mr. McClennen, is it not, that at the hearing before the chancellor on Tuesday last, on August 4, counsel for Mr. Bigelow indicated an intention to renew their application for a stay before the Court of Errors and Appeals in New Jersey, upon its convening on September 10?

A. The conversation was so general that it is a little difficult for me to answer. I certainly reached the conclusion that that was their intention, and that there was also a possibility that they might consider another application to the chancellor for a stay meanwhile.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. Well, didn't you state there that there was nothing that you could do before the 10th of September?

A. No.

Q. Nothing of the kind?

A. No.

Q. Well, did Mr. Brandeis state it?

A. No.

Q. Didn't Mr. Collins state it?

A. No.

Q. You make that denial absolute, without any reservation, do you?

A. Yes.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is now 4 o'clock.

The COURT: Mr. Brandeis, I can come in Monday at 2 o'clock. About how much longer do you think your hearing is likely to take?

Mr. BRANDEIS: I should not suppose, your Honor, that it would take a very long time; I mean that I do not suppose that on the question of fact——

The COURT: I am not seeking to limit you. I am only trying to get an estimate of the length of time it will take; that is all.

Mr. BRANDEIS: I should suppose that it could be finished in the afternoon.

895 The COURT: Mr. Hemenway, about how much longer should you think it would take?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I should think it could be finished in two hours. Of course you know that——

The COURT: Oh, I understand. I am not seeking to tie you down. I should suppose that if we ran over into Tuesday morning we could finish by 1 o'clock, at any rate?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I should think so.

The COURT: I should suppose that we could finish Monday afternoon and Tuesday forenoon without much doubt.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I should think so.

The COURT: Well, I think I will come in Monday at 2 o'clock.

Mr. BRANDEIS: Does your Honor make any intimation as to any action by Mr. Bigelow in the meantime? Perhaps a stipulation by counsel that no action will be taken will be satisfactory.

Mr. HEMENWAY: If your Honor please, before answering that question, I will say that I am not in a condition to make any stipulation, but if your Honor can stay us from appealing even if we entered an appeal, you can stay us from going any further, so that no trouble would happen.

The COURT: As I said to Mr. Brandeis, on the record, as the matter came up, as it now stands on the record, I cannot see why you are not fully protected. That is to say, if, to-morrow morning, with this proceeding pending, Mr. Bigelow, or anybody in his behalf,—he is domiciled in Massachusetts, as I understand it,—started proceedings elsewhere, and I came to the conclusion that if I had to decide the case this afternoon, I should decide it with you, I should unhesitatingly grant an injunction restraining him, and his servants, agents, and attorneys, from doing anything of the sort.

[Adjourned to 9.30 o'clock a. m. Monday, August 10, 1908.]

BOSTON, MASS., August 10, 1908—2 p. m.

The COURT: Proceed.

Mr. BRANDEIS: We have no further evidence, your Honor.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Did you produce those papers that I asked for?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: No, I did not. I assumed that it was 896 simply the text that you wanted, and that when we said copies were correct, that was enough. I can send for them if you wish.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes, I shall want them.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: They are in the same terminology as those copies.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is the action of the corporation that I want.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That is attached to the petition.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is an allegation in another case, and I want it as a fact in this case.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: A copy is attached to this very petition.

Mr. HEMENWAY: If your Honor please, the trust deed that Mr. McClennen was reading Friday is attached to this petition, and also a copy of the certificates that have been issued by the corporation. Now what I wish——

Mr. McCLENNEN: What is that?

Mr. HEMENWAY: A copy of the certificate issued by the corporation.

Mr. McCLENNEN: You mean by the trustees.

Mr. HEMENWAY: By the trustees. Now what I would offer to show—they admit that this trust deed was a trust deed made by the corporation——

Mr. McCLENNEN: No.

Mr. BRANDEIS: No, no; the corporation had nothing to do with it.

Mr. McCLENNEN: The trust agreement is between the Old Dominion Company, a corporation organized under the laws of Maine, and Charles Sumner Smith. It has nothing to do with the existing New Jersey Company. The existing company was never a party to it in any way.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think I would like the originals that I asked for, then; or, as Mr. Tyler suggests, if you have a copy of the deposition of Altmiller, perhaps that will answer the purpose. That was taken by Mr. Tyler. We have the interrogatories on one side.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I have a copy of the deposition that Mr. Tyler took. It is attached to the New Jersey record, but it can be read right from that, or taken out. It can be read right in just as well. I am willing to agree that that deposition may be considered in, if that will save any time, if it is deemed to be relevant by the court.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Mr. Farley will read the deposition.

Mr. FARLEY: It is the deposition of Charles H. Altmiller.

"CHARLES H. ALTMILLER, being first duly sworn, in answer to interrogatories propounded by H. EUGENE BOLLES, Esq., counsel for the defendant, deposes and says.—

897 "Int. 1. What is your full name"?——

The COURT: Are you familiar with that deposition?

Mr. FARLEY: To some extent, your Honor.

The COURT: State what the deponent testified to.

Mr. FARLEY: I should hesitate to do so without first refreshing my recollection.

The COURT: How long is the deposition?

Mr. FARLEY: About eight or nine pages.

The COURT: Very well; read it.

Mr. FARLEY: [Reading:]

"Int. 1. What is your full name?

"Ans. Charles H. Altmiller.

"Int. 2. You live where?

"Ans. Townsend, Mass.

"Int. 3. Have you any connection with the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 4. What is your connection with that company?

"Ans. Secretary, treasurer, and director.

"Int. 5. How long have you held all three of those offices?

"Ans. I have held the office of secretary and treasurer since 1902. I do not remember the exact date I was chosen director."——

The COURT: How am I to get any aid from your reading? For what purpose do you put in the evidence?

Mr. FARLEY: Mr. Hemenway requested Mr. McClennen, as I think your Honor will remember, to produce a certain trust agreement and a certificate. The deposition in question covers all the facts now to be presented in relation to those two matters, and is offered, in the first place, in lieu of putting in the original trust agreement and certificate which were requested. As to the bearing of that, we submit that it has several bearings in this issue. In the first place, admitting fully that your Honor has the power to enjoin this defendant as within the jurisdiction, at least potentially, it is a matter in which your Honor has a discretion to exercise, and we submit this evidence for the purpose of showing that the character of the litigation in issue in the principal suits is one which should obtain no aid from your Honor's discretion; that it is at present a suit conducted, not for the benefit—not, at least, for the pecuniary benefit—of the real plaintiff, but a suit in which the cause of action, if any there be, has been segregated in the hands of certain trustees, and is carried on for the benefit of speculators,—speculators who, if the issue is successful, will obtain all, or all but a de minimis proportion, of this recovery, except a large percentage which is to 898 go to the trustees of which a member of the firm appearing for the ostensible plaintiff is one; in other words, that it is a litigation which, if not actually, is practically, champertous.

Further, the deposition will show value, the value of the property and the value of the stock. That has a bearing on the question of whether there is any real detriment to either the plaintiff, the practical plaintiff or the ostensible plaintiff, and that they need no exercise of your Honor's discretion for any protection.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Mr. Farley says, admitting that—that was a promise—if, admitting that, your Honor had the power to enjoin—that is what I wish to be heard upon.

The COURT: Go on.

Mr. FARLEY: In other words, to summarize, this deposition, in place of a more extended examination of Mr. McClennen after the production of the documents that were requested, will show that the present plaintiff in this action, or this action or motion, whatever it may be, now pending before your Honor, and also in the original litigation, has in equity no real standing in court.

The COURT: I am not familiar, of course, with the trial of the case on the merits in this court. I am familiar with the decision on the demurrer. Didn't you try this issue before the single judge?

Mr. FARLEY: No, your Honor.

The COURT: No part of it. Did you try it in New Jersey, or any part of it?

Mr. FARLEY: I do not feel that I should state what took place in New Jersey, as I was present merely in the capacity of advising as to the contents of the record in one of the many cases.

The COURT: Do you understand this to be a new position which you are taking——

Mr. FARLEY: In this court.

The COURT: —as to the fact that the name of the Old Dominion Company is simply used for the benefit, as you say, of a band of speculators?

Mr. FARLEY: In this court, your Honor, absolutely. I should limit that by saying that there are one or two lines in the original record of the case as tried before Mr. Justice Sheldon on which that contention might be based, but on which it was not based, and on which it is, perhaps, doubtful whether it can be fully based.

The COURT: Well, do you claim that your suit in New Jersey was upon that basis, and therefore to enjoin the corporation from being used in this way, permitting its name to be used in this way?

Mr. FARLEY: I do not, your Honor, feel that I should answer that question.

899 The COURT: Why shouldn't you answer a question which is important on an issue which I am to determine?

Mr. FARLEY: I would willingly if I could. I can only plead ignorance as an excuse to your Honor. But I will confer with persons who will, I think, be able to inform me in a moment.

The COURT: No. I think that you should be posted on a question which I think is important if the suggestion which you make is borne out by the facts.

Mr. FARLEY: If your Honor will pardon me a moment I will endeavor to ascertain that fact.

The COURT: No, it is for you to answer. If you can't answer it you may proceed with the reading of the deposition.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I did not understand the question that was asked by your Honor. The question asked was in regard to what was tried, or something of that kind?

The COURT: The question was: Mr. Farley says that the suit in the name of the corporation is simply a suit by a band of speculators, using the name of the corporation for certain purposes. I asked him if that issue was tried before a single judge. He thinks it was not really, though there might be something in the record upon which you could predicate such an assumption. I then asked him whether that issue was tried in New Jersey, and he said that he did not know, because he was not there; and I said that some one ought to be able to tell me whether it had been tried or not, but it would take less time to read the deposition through and see what it says there.

Mr. FARLEY: [Resuming the reading of the deposition of Charles Altmiller:]

"Int. 6. How long have you been treasurer of that company?

"Ans. Since April 7, 1902. I have been secretary and treasurer, as I have said; I do not remember when I was appointed a director.

"Int. 7. As such secretary and treasurer have you the custody of the papers and records of the company?

"Ans. I have.

"Int. 8. Are you familiar with its financial transactions and doings?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 9. Have you now before you the minutes of the directors' meetings of that company?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 10. Are the copies of the records attached to this testimony true copies of the records of the minutes of the meetings of the boards of directors of that company, as they purport to be?

"Ans. Yes.

900 "Int. 11. I now call your attention to the records of the meeting held January 21, 1904, and to a vote passed at that meeting that certain assets named in the vote should be held until the further order of the board as a separate fund, etc., and I will ask you whether or not those assets included the claim in suits in New York against Mr. Lewisohn and in Massachusetts against Mr. Bigelow?

"Ans. No, they did not.

"Int. 12. Will you state what was the total value of the funds so set apart?

"Ans. Well, it is not stated here, but, in round figures, something over $90,000.

"Int. 13. After that meeting were the assets comprising that fund as a matter of fact reduced to cash?

"Ans. They were.

"Int. 14. And were certain expenses with which that fund was charged for the payment subsequently paid out of the fund?

"Ans. Yes. That fund was kept separate and apart, entirely as a bookkeeping matter; as a matter of fact, the money was mingled with other funds of the company, but a separate memorandum account was kept of it, and it was agreed that interest, so far as used for purposes other than those set forth in the vote was charged with certain expenses, a part of which were the expenses of conducting litigation in New York against the Lewisohn estate, and in Massachusetts against Mr. Bigelow, and the expenses of certain litigation against the company in Arizona. In determining the amount to be set apart, the amount of certain other demands against the company had to be first deducted. The fund on December 31, 1907, was $91,657.44. Of this fund $84,557.44 was in cash and is being used by the company for other purposes, and on that amount interest is credited in a memorandum account of this fund at the rate of 6 per cent; the remaining $7000 is represented by 7 per cent school-district bonds, which were in the fund originally and were never sold; on that the company received interest at the rate of 7 per cent.

"Int. 15. What property interests do the trust certificates represent; the trust certificates of the Old Dominion Trust?

"Ans. They represent merely this. The Maine Company has agreed with the trustees of the Old Dominion Trust, so called, that if the Maine Company receives any dividend on its stock in the New Jersey Company, which dividends are derived from certain assets, which consist of this $91,000 fund and the claims against Bigelow and Lewisohn, the Maine Company will pay over to the trustee any such amount as they get in the way of dividend on their holding of the New Jersey Company's stock. The trustees, under their declaration of trust, have agreed that they will divide the amount so received less expenses among the holders of the trust certificates.

901 "Int. 16. In other words, is this not true: that the holders of the trust certificates are not entitled to receive any payments whatever except such as may be ultimately and indirectly derived by them from this fund of $90,000, and from the proceeds of the two suits pending against Mr. Bigelow in Boston, and the two suits pending against the estate of Lewisohn in New York?

"Ans. That is correct.

"Int. 17. Did you know Mr. Leonard Lewisohn in his lifetime, and did you know Mr. Albert S. Bigelow?

"Ans. Yes, I did know them both.

"Int. 18. Since when have you known them, or known of them, as men interested in mining affairs?

"Ans. Since about 1886.

"Int. 19. Were you familiar with their abilities in managing and operating mines?

"Ans. I was.

"Int. 20. You knew, did you not, that they were instrumental in the organization of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

"Ans. I did.

"Int. 21. Now won't you state generally in regard to them, what you know of their experience and ability as owners and operators of mines. And name, if you will, some of the chief mines with which they have been connected.

"Ans. Leonard Lewisohn and Albert S. Bigelow had, prior to the purchase of the Old Dominion properties, in June, 1895, been largely interested in copper-mining companies, and managed and controlled several large copper-mining companies, including the Boston & Montana Mining Company, the Butte & Boston Mining Company, the Tamarack Mining Company, and the Osceola Consolidated Mining Company.

"Int. 22. Will you state whether or not those companies were all well known and successful companies?

"Ans. They were.

"[In answer to interrogatories propounded by Charles H. Tyler, Esq., of counsel for the defendant, the witness further deposes and says,—]

"Int. 23. When did the Maine Company take over the stock of the New Jersey Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company?

"Ans. About January 15, 1904.

"Int. 24. How many shares did they then take over?

"Ans. They took over at that time over 100,000 shares, and a short time afterwards they acquired a large number of additional shares.

"Int. 25. How many shares of the total 150,000 shares have they acquired by exchange?

"Ans. Somewhere in the neighborhood of 143,000 shares.

902 "Int. 26. So that of the original issue of 150,000 shares of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey, the Maine Company owns all but about 7000 shares?

"Ans. To be correct, I think all but about 6200 shares.

"Int. 27. Has the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey, since its stock was thus acquired by the Maine Company, increased its capital stock?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 28. To what extent?

"Ans. By 12,000 shares, making 162,000 shares in all.

"Int. 29. What did the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey receive for those 12,000 additional shares?

"Ans. Well, $50 a share, or $600,000.

"Int. 30. The par being $25 per share?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 31. About when was it sold?

"Ans. About June 1, 1907.

"Int. 32. Was it sold without a commission to an underwriting syndicate readily?

"Ans. Well, we had an underwriting syndicate, but there was no commission.

"Int. 33. So that you readily sold it at twice par?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 34. Now to go back to the Maine Company: will you kindly exhibit the balance sheets of the Maine Company, the Old Dominion Company, for each year since its incorporation?

"Ans. I will. Here they are: they are attached hereto. See page 11-14, inclusive.)

"Int. 35. Will you be good enough to state just the process of exchange of shares of the Old Dominion Company of Maine for shares of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey?

"Ans. What was done was this: Prior to the formation of the Maine Company, a large majority of the stockholders of the New Jersey Company had deposited their stock through F. S. Moseley & Company with the National Shawmut Bank; when the Maine Company was organized, the owner of each share of stock in the New Jersey Company so depositing received in exchange for each share in the New Jersey Company one share of stock in the Maine Company and a certificate for one share in the Old Dominion Trust, so called. The New Jersey stock then went to the Maine Company.

"Int. 36. That is to say, there was an exchange of Maine stock for New Jersey stock, share for share, wasn't there?

"Ans. No, not exactly that. For each share in the New Jersey Company which was turned over to the Maine Company, the holder received in exchange a share of stock in the Maine Company

903 and a certificate for one share in the Old Dominion Trust. Those exchanges were all made in Boston, either at the National Shawmut Bank, the depository of the stock, or were made at our office by the direction of the National Shawmut Bank. Smaller amounts of stock were taken subsequently, and the exchanges were made in such cases at the office of the Maine Company, of which Mr. Smith and I are officers, and where Mr. Smith, one of the trustees under the Old Dominion Trust, has his office.

"Int. 37. Will you kindly exhibit the financial statements of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, and its balance sheets from year to year, and also all the annual reports that have been issued to the stockholders?

"Ans. I do, and here they are. (See pages 15-17, inclusive, on exhibit annexed.)

"Int. 38. Since the Maine Company acquired the majority of the stock of the New Jersey Company, what has been expended by the New Jersey Company in improvement of its property?

"Ans. There was expended between January 1, 1904, and January 1, 1908, $1,875,627.19.

"Int. 39. Where did this money come from that was so expended?

"Ans. The only sources from which the company has received money other than from its earnings during that period were $600,000 from the proceeds of the new stock sold in August, 1907, and the amounts borrowed from time to time by the company. These loans have varied from $240,818 to $796,675.04.

"Int. 40. So that all of this sum of $1,875,627.19 has come from the earnings of the mine itself except the proceeds of the sale of the 12,000 shares of stock, and except the amounts borrowed?

"Ans. Yes, that is correct.

"Int. 41. How much was owed December 31, 1907, for money borrowed?

"Ans. $712,117.60.

"Int. 42. At this time what did you have in the way of cash in the bank or other quick assets?

"Ans. Do you call supplies quick assets, from your way of looking at it?

"Int. 43. Yes.

"Ans. $1,607,999.02.

"Int. 44. This is exclusive of the mine itself, is it?

"Ans. Yes. Besides the amount we had borrowed, we had what shows on the balance sheet, approximately $733,173.18.

"Int. 45. How much of this seven hundred and odd thousand has been paid off since December, should you say; approximately?

"Ans. None of it.

"Int. 46. How much additional real estate or other property has the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company purchased since January 1, 1904?

"Ans. I should think somewhere about $25,000.

"Int. 47. Is this property so purchased since January, 1904?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 48. Had there been any property acquired by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company since 1895, when it was incorporated, to January 1, 1904?

"Ans. Yes, considerable.

"Int. 49. How much?

"Ans. $109,821, it stands on the books.

"Int. 50. How has this money been expended, amounting to $2,352,267.59 since January, 1902, according to your account, up to December 31, 1907?

"Ans. In new plant account.

"Int. 51. What did it amount to on December 31, 1907?

"Ans. On December 31, 1907, it stands at $2,352,267.59.

"Int. 52. How much of this new plant account had been expended to January, 1904?

"Ans. January 1, 1904, we had expended $476,640.40.

"Int. 53. Have you spent, out of earnings, a great deal of money underground since January, 1904?

"Ans. Yes.

"Int. 54. Would that be charged to new plant account?

"Ans. Part of it was: that which went for a new shaft and pumps, for instance.

"Int. 55. But the greater part of it was not?

"Ans. The greater part of it was not.

"Int. 56. How much of it was spent underground?

"Ans. Well, that is something pretty hard to work out and tell; I cannot tell.

"Int. 57. Would it run up to a million dollars?

"Ans. I could not say.

"Int. 58. Well, it is a very considerable amount, isn't it?

"Ans. Yes, it is. It might be well to state, in that connection, that all that is expended underground is in connection with the present and future extraction of ores.

"Int. 59. When did the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company pay a dividend?

"Ans. August 1, 1907.

"Int. 60. What was this dividend?

"Ans. One dollar and a quarter per share. That is the only dividend it has ever paid.

"Int. 61. There are no bonds on the property, are there?

"Ans. No.

"Int. 62. What is the situation with reference to this new 12,000 shares that you have issued; are they entitled to participation in the proceeds, if any, of the lawsuits against Lewisohn and Bigelow?

"Ans. No. Those 12,000 shares are held in large part by the Maine Company, and the balance are held by various persons who availed themselves of an opportunity to subscribe. The holders of those shares, like the holders of other shares of the New Jersey Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, are entitled to receive any dividend that the New Jersey Company may pay. You must distinguish between the stockholders in the New Jersey Company and the stockholders in the Maine Company. The Maine Company itself, being a large stockholder in the New Jersey Company, receives, and must receive, the dividend that the New Jersey Company pays. A holder of stock in the Maine

905

Company of course receives only the dividend that the Maine Company pays. Of course the dividend in the Maine Company may be larger or smaller than the dividend in the New Jersey Company; and it is necessary to distinguish clearly between the stocks of those two companies.

"Int. 63. Are the copies hereto annexed of extracts from the New Jersey records true copies thereof?

"Ans. Yes, they are.

"Int. 64. And the same question with reference to the Maine records?

"Ans. Yes."

Mr. HEMENWAY: Will you let me see the petition in this case? [A document is passed to Mr. Hemenway.] Is this the petition that was filed?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes; that is the petition that is now being heard.

THE COURT: A copy of the bill in New Jersey is annexed to your petition?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, your Honor.

THE COURT: I thought so. And you read from it. I thought it was annexed, but I was not quite sure.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is what I was looking for, if your Honor please.

Mr. McCLENNEN: If your Honor please, if it is of interest to your Honor, I, of course, am in position to state to your Honor precisely what occurred in New Jersey with reference to this matter.

THE COURT: No; I can read the bill; it is in the bill. As it was read Friday I did not get anything more than a mere outline of it. This deposition I suppose I shall have a copy of, the deposition that was read?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

THE COURT: Very well.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I am a little in doubt as to the nature of this petition, and I would like to inquire if it is to be considered as a motion in the cases numbered 8098 and 8099 in equity, or whether it is an original proceeding in order to enjoin us from appearing in the New Jersey court. I think counsel ought to state that be-906 cause—

Mr. McCLENNEN: Well, if anything that I can say will make that clearer I shall be very glad to state it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I had supposed, the numbers not being on the copy that was given to me, that it was an original proceeding, and your Honor will remember that I asked if I would be allowed to put in an answer later, if this was a petition for a temporary injunction.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I suppose that answering the question will be merely construing the petition from my standpoint, but it is entitled with the name of the principal case, and then begins, "The complainant in the above-entitled cases says as follows," and the numbers are upon this copy. It was designed to be a petition asking for incidental relief or protection in the main cases, but not as an independent suit.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Here is a certificate of the result of the case in the United States Supreme Court.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: The paper offered by Mr. Hemenway is a certified copy of the record of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company against Lewisohn. We have no objection to the form of the proof; I presume that it is proper; but we do object to the admission of the testimony as being immaterial matter. If your Honor desires to accept it and rule upon it later, it will be entirely satisfactory to us.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, if your Honor please, you may glance through this to see what it is. I will have it marked. I do not think it is necessary to read it all. It is simply that the demurrer was sustained,—that is the judgment of the Court of Appeals, which was, on certiorari, tried by the full bench at Washington. I might state the Supreme Court sustained the Court of Appeals, and the mandate came down in the usual course the 23d day of July last; and in considering that case it may be convenient for your Honor to have this printed opinion of Judge Holmes in the case.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That is reported, Mr. Hemenway, at 210 U. S. 206.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes. I didn't know but it might be convenient, because we do not all of us carry the reports in our pockets.

[A certified copy of the record of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, is introduced in evidence and marked "Exhibit 1, R. H. J."]

907 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Suffolk County:

Supreme Judicial Court.

In Equity.

No. 8098.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
ALBERT S. BIGELOW.

No. 8099.

SAME
v.
SAME.

Hearing on Matters set up in Supplemental Answers, and for Reversal or Modification of Original Decrees.

Before Hammond, J.

Appearances:

L. B. Brandeis, Esq., E. F. McClennen, Esq., for complainant;
Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Eugene Treadwell, Esq., J. W. Farley, Esq., for Defendant.

Order Appointing Commissioner.

In the above-entitled cases, at the hearing of the same before Mr. Justice Hammond, it is ordered, under the provisions of Chancery Rules No. XXXV, at the request of both parties, that George C. Burpee be, and he hereby is, appointed commissioner to take the evidence in said cases to be reported to the full court.

By the Court:

WALTER F. FREDERICK, Clerk.

September 29, 1908.

908 BOSTON, September 29, 1908.

Evidence.

[George C. Burpee was appointed and sworn as stenographer.]

New York Record.

Mr. FARLEY: The first evidence we offer your Honor is a copy of the New York record. I think perhaps the New York record can well be marked as one exhibit, with the several parts thereof designated as they are in the answer, so that they may be equally well distinguished and may be easily referred to.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I am a little uncertain just what papers have been included in the record. They may be some that may be immaterial and some that are not.

Mr. FARLEY: I think every paper in the New York litigation is in this that I offer as an exhibit.

Mr. McCLENNEN: Then there may be some papers in the proposed offer to which we object as not being part of the record. If I may see that, perhaps I can tell.

The first paper in the record offered to which we object, as not being part of the record, is what purports to be the opinion of Judge Lacombe of the Circuit Court. We believe that opinion is no part of the record, and object to its being introduced.

HAMMOND, J: What do you say, gentlemen?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, if your Honor please, in regard to this matter the course pursued with reference to the testimony, in the taking of this large mass of testimony, was that the objections were made, and Mr. Justice Sheldon, I think, with one or two rare exceptions, admitted everything de bene, stating, when he did so, that if it were admissible it would be before the court, and if not admissible it would be disregarded by them. For that reason, we thought the better way was not to take up time in discussing the testimony.

Mr. McCLENNEN: The difficulty with that arrangement, which was undoubtedly a very reasonable one at the former trial, is that hypothetical questions have been put to a considerable number of gentlemen, members of the New York bar, as we are informed; if this opinion goes in, one hypothesis will be proper; if it stays out another hypothesis will be proper. It is difficult to see how that question can be dealt with unless the opinion is excluded, if it should be; and we think it should be.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is also admissible as evidence of what the New York law is. If there are questions based upon an hypothesis, the question whether the hypothesis is based upon admissible 909 or inadmissible evidence seems to me to strengthen the propriety of admitting the evidence and leaving it for the full court to decide as to its ultimate admissibility; especially, if, as I gather from the ntimation of your Honor, it is proposed that this testimony taken here points to a reservation for the full court.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I think the decisions in New York and the decisions in the federal court both state with positiveness that the opinion is not part of the record. Therefore it is not one of those questions of grave doubt which would warrant the receiving of testimony with a string attached to it.

HAMMOND, J.: I think, under the circumstances under which this case is heard now, I will admit this language de bene, and note your objection and exception.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I should like to make the same objection and save the same exception to the admission of the opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals and the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States.

HAMMOND, J.: I will admit them de bene; if they are finally adjudged to be admissible, they will be considered by the court which is to consider them; otherwise they will be thrown out. I will note your objection to them and your exception to either one of these opinions.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Of course it is not an objection to the full record, but to a part of the record.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand that goes in de bene.

Mr. McCLENNEN: The record is so voluminous that, while it may be that in other respects I should have no objection to it, yet I should like to save, pending the trial, the right to point out any other part to which I object.

HAMMOND, J.: If there is anything in that document which is now being marked as an exhibit to which you want to object after looking it over, you may have the privilege of doing so.

Mr. FARLEY: I understand the entire record is to be marked as one exhibit?

HAMMOND, J.: Consisting of how many pages?

Mr. FARLEY: I hesitate to say, your Honor.

Mr. McCLENNEN: All those papers have a different letter, have they?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, with exception of Exhibit R, which has a number of stipulations and so forth.

[The principal part of the record offered is marked "Exhibit 1, G. C. B., Sept. 29, 1908. In three parts;" and each of the two subsidiary sections is marked "Part of Exhibit 1, Sept. 29, '08, G. C. B."]

910 Mr. FARLEY: It is understood, if your Honor please, that that is the record of the first suit, but we offer it in evidence not only for the first suit, but the second.

HAMMOND, J.: The effect of it will be considered hereafter.

Mr. HEMENWAY: To make it clear that these two cases were being tried together. All the evidence in the case is so taken.

Mr. FARLEY: Perhaps it would be too nearly interminable to read the entire (New York) record. The course of procedure is outlined in the supplemental answer.

HAMMOND, J.: I do not think it is necessary to read this record to me now. It contains the allegations and various proceedings, which finally ended in the dismissal of the bill. Unless the other side desires to have it read, I do not think it is necessary to read it. It may be referred to.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I think we would prefer that it should not be read.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, then it goes in, and that is all there is to it. You only put in one record, and that is the record of the 30,000 share suit in New York?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

[The New York record, Exhibit 1, will be found attached to the defendant's amended answer.]

Previous Testimony.

Mr. FARLEY: I suppose there is no question but what, the decrees having been vacated, and this hearing bearing upon the whole matter, although limited by the rescript to the supplemental answer, the defendant is to have the use of all the evidence heretofore introduced by him, as well as the present evidence now to be introduced? If there be any doubt about it, I should like to raise that question.

HAMMOND, J.: My understanding is, from hearing the rescript read, that this case is sent down for the purpose of hearing and taking such additional evidence upon those answers as the parties desire to put in; do you understand that when the evidence is all taken, then, in connection with the findings of Judge Sheldon—not the evidence before him, but the findings—then the case will be decided?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor. There might be possibly some question raised as to whether, in entering new decrees, the defendant could have the advantage, not only of the present evidence, but of the past; also as bearing on this particular question in issue under the supplemental answer, there are portions of the evidence heretofore taken that are relevant to this. We wish to reserve the 911 right to take advantage of that portion which is specifically applicable to this issue, and of all portions as applicable to the general issue.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, I will not decide on that now. I should not decide any way upon that without hearing the other side. I do not see how that question is involved now.

Mr. FARLEY: I merely want to put in a caveat, so that we may not be held to have waived the right to use the previous evidence, or to have rendered it unavailable.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is always a great deal easier to meet a question in the concrete. There are certain allegations in this answer. One of the allegations is that there was participation in the defence of these suits in common. It will appear by the evidence already in the case that Mr. Treadwell, the associate of Mr. Lauterbach, who were counsel of record in New York, was present in this court and took part in the trial, and his name appears in the printed evidence that was taken. It is not necessary to go back and recall that testimony and put it in now.

HAMMOND, J.: You propose to put that in that is not already in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Will you please repeat your question? I was interrupted.

HAMMOND, J.: I supposed we were now upon the documentary part of the case, and I thought if you were on that, it would be hardly necessary now to consider this other question which you have in mind.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Not while the documentary evidence is being considered; certainly not.

HAMMOND, J.: I think, therefore, I will consider that when it comes up in the regular offering of testimony.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Shall we offer the testimony that is already in the case?

HAMMOND, J.: Do you think we can decide that question now, while we are considering the documentary evidence?

Mr. HEMENWAY: It might demand consideration, perhaps.

HAMMOND, J.: What testimony do you offer now?

Mr. HEMENWAY: If the testimony that is already in the case is not in for all purposes, then I should have to go through and pick out the portions.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, it is a mere matter of time in discussing this matter. If you want a ruling upon that question, and if you get it now, it will aid in the conduct of the case. I am ready to rule upon it now. What do you now ask to have done? To have considered the evidence that is already in as in on the question of the answer so far as material, and not inconsistent with the findings of Judge Sheldon?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes.

912 HAMMOND, J.: Now that raises it.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: We see no objection to that, except the one that we want to know what is being offered. There are twelve hundred pages of testimony, more or less, and included in that there can be but very little.

HAMMOND, J.: Now is there any objection to marking it upon the record and indicating to the other side what of the evidence that is already in you offer as bearing upon the questions raised in this answer?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think we can do that.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well. Such parts of the evidence as either side claims to bear upon the questions raised by this answer, not inconsistent with the finding which has been made by Mr. Justice Sheldon, may go in; each party to indicate to the other what part they rely on; is that satisfactory?

Mr. HEMENWAY: If it is not, we can come again, if your Honor please.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, in general terms, we will consider that to be the situation.

Deposition of Charles T. Terry.

Mr. FARLEY: If the court please, we will now proceed with the reading of the depositions. The first deposition is that of Charles T. Terry. I take it that the course of proceeding is that these depositions should be opened. We then ask that they be filed and then we put them in evidence. They have not been filed, as they only arrived this morning.

[The deposition of Terry was opened and filed by the clerk.]

Mr. FARLEY: I take it your Honor does not care to have me read the formal parts of the deposition. I will say of all of these depositions that we offer them as the opinions of experts, who, I believe, qualify by their answers as to what is the New York law, as to the effect of the Lewisohn decree as bearing on actions against Mr. Bigelow of the same, or substantially the same, nature as those now pending before this court.

HAMMOND, J.: That is, the bearing there, you mean?

Mr. HEMENWAY: The bearing there; and, in pursuance of the constitution, it stands the same here.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand; but you are only proceeding on the New York law?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes, they are all on the New York law; and the statute, combined with court usage, is the law of the state.

913 Mr. FARLEY: This is the deposition of Charles T. Terry. I will read the interrogatories and the answers, as applicable one to the other.

[The objections of counsel for plaintiff to the interrogatories to Terry and to the answers made by him were orally stated; subsequently the objections to interrogatories were formulated to apply to the same interrogatories put to Terry and other deponents, and in the case of Terry are substituted for the oral objections; the objections to answers vary according to the answers of the several deponents.]

Mr. FARLEY: [Reading:]

"Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

"A. Charles Thaddeus Terry; forty-one; 62 East Fifty-eighth street, New York city.

"Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

"A. Lawyer; 100 Broadway, New York city.

"Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

"A. In the year 1893, in the state of New York. I have been engaged in the practice of law continuously for fifteen years in the state of New York, and some twelve or fifteen other states, and I was for six years a member of the firm of C. H. & J. A. Young & Terry.

"Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial, or other public or official, positions you hold, or have held.

"A. I have for five years held an appointment by successive governors of the state of New York—the office of commissioner for the state of New York on the uniformity of legislation throughout the United States.

"Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

"A. For fifteen years I have been successively lecturer upon law subjects in the Law School of Columbia University in the city of New York, assistant professor, and professor; held the chair in contracts in that law school. The subjects which I have taught in Columbia law school cover a rather wide range in law and equity in addition to the course in contracts, which is given four hours 914 each week during the whole scholastic year. I have been engaged in suits, during the course of my practice, in various states of the United States, and in the federal courts in New York state and in other states. In the course of my work as instructor in the Columbia law school I have had to investigate and give instruction on the subject of the effect of former adjudications and of estoppel by judgment, and in that connection have examined and given instruction with reference to the laws in the state of New York.

"Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 6th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first.]
915 "[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. Its effect would be to bar such action, and, in the language of the decisions, operate as an estoppel by judgment, for the reason that, under the doctrine of res adjudicata, a judgment under the law of the state of New York binds not only the actual parties to litigation, but also those who are in privity with such parties; and in the case of persons jointly interested in and jointly concerned in the transaction which is the subject of a suit, a judgment relating to one of such persons, does, under the law of the state of New York, bind and affect the other, in such a state of facts as assumed in this interrogatory.

"Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 7th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, 916 namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there has been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. It would operate as a bar to the action or as an estoppel by judgment, for the reasons stated in the answer to the 6th interrogatory, and for the additional reason, based upon the theory of the doctrine of res adjudicata, which is that, in order to put at rest litigation, a determination once made by a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the persons, binds all those who are identified in interest with the parties to the suit, equally with such parties to the suit where such identity of interest arises from the relationship of principal and agent, master and servant, trustee and cestui que trust, or a precisely and thoroughly joint interest with no variation of facts relating to those so jointly interested respectively.

"Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 8th interrogatory, on the ground that it assumes that the copies shown are the record of the case, whereas, in fact, they contain also copies of the opinion of the court, which are not a part of the record.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. I have.

"Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in 917 the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

"A. I have.

"Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 10th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there has been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

918 "A. It would be a complete defence in bar of the action on the doctrine of res adjudicata or estoppel by judgment.

"Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewis-ohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 11th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. In my judgment, these additional facts would affect the question in that they would be a piece of evidence, and a strong piece of evidence, going to show the identity in interest of Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Lewisohn, that the joint interest of each of those gentlemen was precisely the same in the venture and that each of them so regarded it; otherwise these additional facts would not affect the question.

919 "Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 12th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there had been participation on the part of the other in the defense of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered. It assumes that the plaintiff had knowledge of the participation in the defence,—of which knowledge there is not evidence and can be none.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. Not at all.

"Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree 920 and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 13th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision of the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

921 "A. It would be a bar to the action, operate as a complete defence on the doctrine of res adjudicata, and would operate as an estoppel by judgment.

"Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not determined by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, and the prayers thereof, relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 14th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other 922 alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision of the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. Its effect would be to bar the action and operate as a complete defence on the doctrine of res adjudicata, for the reason that under the facts assumed in the interrogatory, the exact identity in interest, so far as the causes of action referred to are concerned, of Bigelow and Lewisohn is clearly established, and a judicial determination as to one of them with respect to that cause of action would necessarily bind or inure to the benefit of the other, as the case might be.

"Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 15th interrogatory, on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court 923 was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. My answer is the same as my answer to the 11th interrogatory.

"Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant,

Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

"[The plaintiff objects to the 16th interrogatory on the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced, and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern District of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of what there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered. It assumes that the plaintiff had knowledge of the participation in the defence,—of which knowledge there is no evidence, and can be none.]

924 "[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. My answer to this interrogatory is the same as my answer to the 12th interrogatory.

"Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

"[The plaintiff objects to the 17th interrogatory on the ground that it is inadmissible for the various reasons assigned for the inadmissibility of the several questions referred to in this, namely, 6th to 16th, inclusive.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"A. I have already done so."

Mr. FARLEY: That is the end of the direct interrogatory. I will state, without reading them, that Mr. McClennen's objections were duly taken to the same interrogatories which he has objected to upon the hearing.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: The cross-interrogatories the plaintiff puts de bene without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon.

Cross-interrogatories.

"X. 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case, to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

"A. Yes, as far as such law is applicable.

"X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicato and not ex contractu?

"A. That is a general principle of the law of the state of New York.

"X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

"A. Yes.

"X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

"A. Yes.

"X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing 925 the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

"A. Yes.

"X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

"A. Yes.

"X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

"A. Yes.

"X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

"A. I think not. At least, not necessarily.

"X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

"A. I think not.

"X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

"A. There is a general proposition of the law of New York to that effect.

"X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

"A. Under some states of facts it is the law of New York that an estoppel by judgment would ['must' in pencil] be mutual; under other states of facts it has been laid down in decisions by the highest court in the state of New York that a judgment of estoppel need not be mutual.

"X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

"A. Judgment by estoppel need not be mutual in such cases as those contemplated by the court in the case of the Portland 926 Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, reported in 158 Fed. Rep. p. 63, one of which is that —

"'In actions of tort such as trespass if the defendant's responsibility is necessarily dependent upon the culpability of any who was the immediate actor and who in an action against him by the same plaintiff for the same tort has been adjudged not culpable, the defendant may have the benefit of that judgment as an estoppel, even though he would not have been bound by it, had it been the other way.'

"And the same principle would apply to any set of instances where the same reason would be found.

"X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

"A. Yes.

"X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?"

HAMMOND, J.: I understand that question to be, in substance, that if this complainant prevailed against Lewisohn, then, on the state of facts which is alleged here, Bigelow would have been barred from any defence.

Mr. FARLEY: I understand that to be one of the possible interpretations of the question.

Mr. McCLENNEN: If my construction is of any importance, that was the intention of the question.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, that is the view of the question that I got from the hasty reading of it. I don't know that there is anything else about it.

[Mr. Farley continues to read the deposition:]

"A. Yes.

"X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered, and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, 927 operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

"A. On the proposition that a former judgment in a controversy in res adjudicata, as to all matters necessarily determined therein, both in respect to the parties to the former action and to their privies, and is a bar to any further litigation as to the matters determined therein, the following:—

Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351.
Jordan v. Van Epps, 85 N. Y. 436.
Smith v. Smith, 79 N. Y. 634.
Clemens v. Clemens, 37 N. Y. 59.
Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Doty v. Brown, 4 N. Y. 71.
Griffin v. L. I. R. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 452.
C. P. P. & M. Co. v. Walker, 114 N. Y. 7.
Hymes v. Estay, 116 N. Y. 509.
Thompson v. Saunders, 118 N. Y. 257.
Reich v. Cochran, 151 N. Y. 127.
Earle v. Earle, 173 N. Y. 482.

"Upon the further proposition that the defendant Bigelow occupies in respect to the suit brought in the Circuit Court for the Second Circuit such relation to the parties therein as to give him the benefit of the decree in that action, dismissing the complaint of the plaintiff:—

People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235, affirmed 71 N. Y. 527.
Williams et al. v. Barkley, 165 N. Y. 48.
Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Emma Silver Mining Co., 7 Fed. Rep. 401.
Doremus v. Root et al., 23 Wash. 710.
Featherstone v. N. & C. Turnpike, 71 Hun. 109, and editor's note to 23 Wash. 710, found in 54 L. R. A. 649.

"X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered, and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation, without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

928 "A. The same authorities as above cited; and see my answer to the 11th direct interrogatory.

"X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered, and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

"A. The same as cited in my answer to the 15th cross-interrogatory; and see my answer to the 11th direct interrogatory.

"X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

"A. There is some loose language in some decisions intended by the court to apply only to the specific facts before the court, which were not the facts, nor similar to the facts, in the case at bar, nor which could be construed to cover the case at bar, but the clear weight of authority in the law of the state of New York, as is the clear weight of reason also, is that the decision in favor of Lewisohn would be a bar to an action brought against Bigelow in the state of New York on the same facts.

"[The plaintiff moves that the last portion of the answer be stricken out as not responsive to the interrogatory.]

"[The court overruled the motion, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

"A. I do not now recall them and, as stated in my last preceding answer, they are not authorities relating to the case at bar, but merely loose statements or general statements relating to the specific facts of the case in which the utterances are found.

"[The plaintiff moves, in view of the answer, that the deposition be stricken out, as showing that the witness has not been qualified upon the question, and he not being able to recall even the names of the cases tending to the opposite conclusion.]

"[The court overruled the motion, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in sup-

929 port of the view that there was, by the law of New York, no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

"A. In my judgment, all the arguments, both as a matter of reason and logic and as a matter of law, in the decisions of the state, are in favor of the proposition that the judgment in favor of Lewisohn would be a bar to an action by the same plaintiff against Bigelow in the courts of the state of New York, and I firmly believe that there are no good arguments, either in logic or reason or based upon any decisions in the New York law, which could be adduced to the contrary, and none such have been suggested to me by defendants's counsel, nor have I thought of any, except that I have prepared myself to state what, to my mind, are clear distinctions between the class of cases of which the case at bar is one, and some decisions which I thought might be cited on the other side.

"[The plaintiff objects to the answer to the 20th cross-interrogatory, and moves that the first part of the answer be stricken out as not responsive.]

"[The court overruled the motion, allowed the answer to stand and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

"A. As stated above, there are no such arguments.

"X 22. What, in your opinion, constitues privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

"A. By 'privity,' as used in the law of New York, whether in decisions or otherwise, I understand to be meant either identity of interest in the subject matter or interest by succession or by some other relationship, whether the identity of interest arises from the fact of joint undertaking or transaction or whether such succession or relationship be by virtue of the relation of trustee and cestui que trust, principal and agent, master and servant, assignor and assignee or the like, and I mean by 'the like,' such relationship as would (going back to the first phrase) mean, in spirit and in substance, the identity of interest.

"X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

"A. I have assumed, and do consider, that Mr. Bigelow was in privity with the defendants in that suit in the sense and spirit in which the word 'privity' is used in the cases and in the law of the state of New York.

"X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in the case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors 930 beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

"A. I consider that Bigelow had, in the suit against Lewisohn, a very vital interest of defeating the plaintiff in that suit, because he was aware, or should have been aware, that a judgment against Lewisohn's executors in that suit would be fatal to him in an action against him upon the same facts.

"X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

"A. In my judgment if in the suit against Lewisohn's executors the plaintiff had been successful, the only matter to be litigated in an action upon the same facts against Bigelow in the state of New York would be the character of the relief to be decreed by court, the amount of damages, etc.; because the cause of action would have been determined in the previous suit and would have become res adjudicata.

"X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estopped by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

"A. The question means nothing to me as it stands.

"[The plaintiff objects to the answer to Cross-Int. 26, and moves that the deposition be stricken out because the witness has disqualified himself to express an opinion upon such a serious question, or because he has sought to evade the question.]

"[The court overruled the motion to strike out, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

"A. See my answer to Cross-Int. 25, and also my answer to the 26th.

"X 28. In determining whether there was any estopped in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

"A. No.

"X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a cotrespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

"A. No.

"X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

"A. If the action is brought in form upon the joint obliga-931 tion of the two, a decision in favor of the defendant joint tort feasor will be a bar to an action against the other brought similarly on the joint obligation.

"[The plaintiff objects to the answer as not responsive, asks that it be stricken out, and makes the same motion in regard to the entire deposition.]

"[The court overruled the motion to strike out, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estopped only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estopped must be mutual?

"A. This question involves two separate questions, both of which I have heretofore answered. As to the mutuality question, I have answered this interrogatory in my answer to Cross-ints. Nos. 11 and 12, and the former part of this question I have answered in my answer to direct Int. 15. This former part of the question I have answered also in my answers variously to the direct interrogatories.

"[The plaintiff objects to the answer to the 31st cross-interrogatory as not responsive, and moves to strike out the deposition as a whole on the ground that the witness has not answered the question.]

"[The court overruled the motion to strike out, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

"A. No, I think not.

"X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

"A. I have assumed that the transactions involved in the suit made the interest of Bigelow and Lewisohn identical in all respects, that their interest in the contract to sell was identical, that they were both parties to those contracts; and it makes no difference whether one considers that Lewisohn was acting as principal for Bigelow in part, or that he was acting as trustee for Bigelow in part, or that the relations of the two men were reversed, and that Bigelow was acting as agent or trustee, because all of those elements are involved in their relationship under the facts as assumed in these interrogatories?

"[The plaintiff objects to the answer as not responsive.]

"[The court overruled the objection, admitted the answer, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for 932 Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

"A. My answer to Cross-int. 33 is also in answer to this interrogatory.

"[The plaintiff moves that the deposition be stricken out, as this question has not been answered.]

"[The court overruled the motion, allowed the answer to stand, and saved the exception of the plaintiff.]

"X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that, in action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

"A. There may be such cases.

"X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

"A. All that were called for by those interrogatories and all that occurred to me at the time such interrogatories were put to me.

"X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinion or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

"A. I repeat here my answer to the last preceding interrogatory.

"X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

"A. Yes.

"X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

"A. No.

"X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

"A. I neither saw any of the cross-interrogatories which have now been administered to me nor had the slightest intimation what they, or any of them, was to be in form or in substance in any manner whatsoever; and I learned them only when each of them was put to me subsequently just before I gave my answers to them.

"X 41. Have you since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories 933 or in your answers thereto?

"A. I spent not to exceed five minutes in the office of Honorable Martin L. Stover on the 23d instant., and spoke to him not at all about the subject matter of the interrogatories except to ask him whether he had read over copies of the direct interrogatories which were to be administered to us, and received his reply that he had examined them, and we commented upon the length of the interrogatories. Apart from that, my answer to the question is 'No.'"

CHARLES THADDEUS TERRY.

In the presence of

WILLIAM A. FERGUSON,
Notary Public, New York County, No. 167.

HAMMOND, J.: Are your interrogatories the same in the other depositions?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor, both direct and cross they are identical in all the depositions. That is true, is it not, Mr. McClennen?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: How many depositions have you?

Mr. FARLEY: We have twelve here.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, gentlemen, will you step this way a moment?

[Counsel confer with the court at the bench.]

HAMMOND, J.: This case may be suspended until Friday. On Friday you come in with the depositions and they will then be admitted, with your objections and such others as the other side may have.

I understand these depositions are to be now filed?

Mr. HEMENWAY: No, your Honor, not yet; for the reason that we are entitled to look at them. We may not want to file them after we have read them; but the probability is that we shall.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, you will find out by to-morrow morning?

Mr. McCLENNEN: I really think we should be getting these depositions instanter. I think we ought to proceed as fast as if we were here.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand these depositions are to be looked at by counsel now and filed as rapidly as possible, and I don't see why they cannot be filed as early as to-morrow at 12 o'clock.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think they can, but it takes almost as long to read them with the eye as it does with the voice. All that I 934 can say is that I will deal in good faith.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I am perfectly willing to go to Mr. Hemenway's office for them as fast as they read them.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Certainly, as fast as we read them.

HAMMOND, J.: The case goes over to Friday, October 2, 1908.

FRIDAY, October 2, 1908.

HAMMOND, J.: [After motions had been disposed of.] I will take up the first case.

The CLERK: Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow.

Mr. HEMENWAY: If your Honor please, in that case we have had copies of the depositions made and have submitted them to counsel for the complainant; and I understand that they are having typewritten their objections, and they will also indicate them in the originals. The originals have not yet been returned from their office, and therefore I suppose that, constructively, what we can do is to send for them.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I have sent for them; they will be here in a few moments.

Mr HEMENWAY: So when the original deposition gets here—we will assume its presence now—I will put in the deposition of Guy Fairfax Cary. I will also put in the deposition of James Byrne. I will also put in the deposition of Edward W. Hatch. I will put in the deposition of Charles F. Brown. I will put in the deposition of Martin L. Stover. I will put in the deposition of John B. Stanchfield. I will put in the deposition of William A. Keener. I will put in the deposition of Peter B. Olney. I will put in the deposition of William H. Wadhams. I will put in the deposition of Denis O'Brien. The depositions which we are endeavoring to get, of Alton B. Parker and of John G. Milburn, have not yet arrived. I will put them in when we get them.

Mr. McCLENNEN: And that of Francis Lynde Stetson; what is your conclusion with reference to that?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I have not offered it.

HAMMOND, J.: Now I assume there are some objections to these depositions.

Mr. HEMENWAY: In regard to these objections, I am told that the objections are being put into typewriting and will be submitted later.

935 Mr. McCLENNEN: I shall have a copy to hand to the commissioner and one to Mr. Hemenway.

HAMMOND, J.: You have the right to put in your objections when you please.

Mr. McCLENNEN: As to these later depositions, no objections have been made to the answers. As to the questions, a uniform objection has been made as the question has been put to the witness, and I assume that in making up the record those respective objections may be put against each question, and repeated each time.

HAMMOND, J.: Will all your depositions, Mr. Hemenway, take in the whole list of interrogatories which appeared in the first deposition?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: And you, Mr. McClennen, want the objections which you made to the interrogatories there to apply to the same interrogatories here?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: Have you any additional objections?

Mr. McCLENNEN: I have put the objections to each deposition in the same form.

HAMMOND, J.: Then it is not worth while to encumber the record by repeating those; but such additional objections as you care to make you may state as the questions are put; if you have any particular objection which will be common to all the answers to some of the questions, you can make that.

Mr. McCLENNEN: There is none such. I assume as the record is printed the objection ought to be repeated so that the court will have before it what the record is.

HAMMOND, J.: The court will be at liberty to understand what the objection is.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I should not want to be responsible for the feeling of the court when it had to refer back to different pages to find the objection.

HAMMOND, J.: My own idea would be that those objections which are common to all the depositions could be stated once, and that would be enough. I do not think the other members of the court will criticise that way of making up the record; they are more anxious to have a record which contains what it should contain, than to have it extended.

Designation of Previous Evidence.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Mr. Farley will make a statement in regard to the evidence that has already been taken.

HAMMOND, J.: The stenographer may take down what you 936 say in regard to that.

Mr. FARLEY: May it please the court, it was suggested at the last hearing that we should call attention to those portions of the evidence previously taken which we should contend were applicable to the issues raised in these supplemental answers. There are two issues which we conceive are raised by the answers to which that evidence applies. One is what we contend to be the entirety of the entire transaction and its inseverability. In relation to that, we do not feel that there is any particular portion of the evidence which we can exclude. Our contention is that it is an entire transaction, and that the entire evidence shows that, and we have assumed that the evidence already in was in for all purposes. So on that issue we wish to rely on all the evidence as showing the non-severability of the transaction. Beyond the evidence to be used for that purpose for the contention of the defendant, I think the only portions of the record and evidence which we wish to call attention to are those portions wherein it appears that New York counsel participated in the trial, the hearing, the argument, and the taking of the evidence. For instance——

HAMMOND, J.: Where?

Mr. FARLEY: Here, in all the hearings in which the depositions were taken, and, if not in all, in practically all. For instance, the evidence will show, I think, that at the taking of almost all of the depositions, either Mr. Lauterbach, who is counsel in both cases, or Mr. Treadwell, who is his representative, was present; that in several instances Mr. Lauterbach examined the witnesses; in some cases, Mr. Treadwell; then, at the actual hearing before Mr. Justice Sheldon, that Mr. Treadwell, representing Mr. Lauterbach, was present, that he signed, as I understand, an amendment to the pleadings as of counsel, and that he examined at least one of the witnesses.

HAMMOND, J.: Signed what?

Mr. FARLEY: He signed the amended pleadings as of counsel.

HAMMOND, J.: What, in this case?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, sir.

HAMMOND, J.: As counsel for whom?

Mr. FARLEY: As counsel for Mr. Bigelow. The record will show that in one instance he participated in an argument which arose in regard to an amendment to the plaintiff's bill, and that he was throughout both counsel of record and counsel participating in the hearing here. These facts as spread upon the record and evidence are scattered throughout it, and it would be a long task to refer to the specific pages, and would make, I think, more difficulty than to present it in the present form. So we ask that for this purpose those portions of the whole evidence be considered.

937 Mr. McCLENNEN: If your Honor please, one of the very reasons why we are desirous of having pointed out what they say may bear on this issue is this: We never have tried the issue that we are now trying. Matter which might have been of not the slightest consequence, or highly objectionable, might have been admitted in the course of the other trial; no one would care to take the time to go out and discuss it, and it might now be assumed to be material. If it was assumed by one side to be material, we should have the opportunity to test the question by making objection to it if we thought it was objectionable. There are many things that are mere trifling matters of typing that might be thought to have a bearing now that were of absolutely no importance then. If they are to be pressed, we ought to have an opportunity either to object to them for their inadmissibility or to introduce evidence explaining them, if they require explanation, or to introduce evidence in opposition to them if they are not in accordance with the fact. That may become important.

Mr. FARLEY: If your Honor please, I am a little at a loss to know which portion of the statement or suggestion which I have made Mr. McClennen's statement refers to. If, as I understand it, he intends to state that the issue of the entirety of the transaction has not heretofore been in issue, I can only say that I think the most cursory examination of the pleadings and the argument will show that that was one of the defendant's contentions.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, with a view to what?

Mr. FARLEY: With a view to almost every other issue which can arise in the case, and the remedy to be given by this court, the right of the plaintiff to recover at all.

HAMMOND, J.: But not with a view to its bearing in an action against one?

Mr. FARLEY: It may be, as confined to that specific pleading, not, but the entirety of the transaction goes to every possible issue.

HAMMOND, J.: To every point raised in the case?

Mr. FARLEY: The entirety was raised, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: It comes up now, does it not, that there was no question of estoppel or the effect of a prior judgment? There was no question as to estoppel prior to this amended answer, I take it.

Mr. FARLEY: No, your Honor. But if your Honor will allow me to state the way it previously arose, I think it will indicate that it is almost identical in its application.

HAMMOND, J.: You may state that, although I think I understand what you will say on that question.

938 Mr. FARLEY: The question of entirety was raised at the hearing and in the argument before Mr. Justice Sheldon to show that the two transactions must stand or fall together, and could not be separated as the plaintiff claims. Now that is exactly the purpose, and the only purpose.

HAMMOND, J.: I do not understand what you mean by your statement that "they must fall together;" do you mean there could be no intervening——

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: That is what you mean?

Mr. FARLEY: No, sir, it is not joined.

HAMMOND, J.: Then I do not understand.

Mr. FARLEY: The plaintiff sought to divide the transaction, and as to one portion of the transaction claimed recission; as to the other portion it claimed no recission, but claimed damages or profits, or whatever they may be called. We contended at the original hearing that recission, if there were any remedy, was the only possible remedy, and that if recission was granted it could not rescind one portion and allow the other to remain.

HAMMOND, P.: This question of entirety had reference to these transactions?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: And they were all one?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: That was with reference to the transactions themselves?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor. And that is the only way we now raise the question of entirety. We said at the previous hearing that if the plaintiff did not rescind one he could not rescind the other. We say now, if this is a bar in one action, it is in the other, if they are entire, and we contend that they are; they must stand on this issue, as well as on the other, together.

HAMMOND, J.: That is, the entirety depends on whether it must be considered as one transaction?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: And that was involved before, as you claim?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: Do you want the evidence of entirety to apply to any other issue than that?

Mr. FARLEY: No, except if I understand your suggestion, we now wish it to apply to our contention that, not only on the issue before raised, if the decrees are to be redrawn, but also on this point, 939 that if it is to be a bar in one action it is equally a bar in the other, because they are linked inseparably together. If I have now stated myself clearly, that is the only way.

HAMMOND, J.: Is there a judgment with reference to both of these separate parts that you speak of as parts of one transaction; that is, is there a judgment in favor of the plaintiff there on the 30,000 shares and on the 100,000 shares, or only on one?

Mr. FARLEY: I can answer that only by saying this: the plaintiff's bill in the first suit here sets forth both transactions in New York, but the prayers for relief are confined to the matters for which relief is here sought by the first bill, disclaiming relief as to the other transaction. We contend the whole transaction is involved as he set it forth, but he disclaims in his prayer his relief as to the other portion.

HAMMOND, J.: What other portion?

Mr. FARLEY: That portion which he here asks and there asks relief for as to the 100,000 share transaction.

HAMMOND, J.: I may be a little dull about it, but, as I understand these bills, they want to get relief for both the 30,000 shares and the 100,000 shares transactions. What I ask you is whether the bill filed in New York asks for relief for the 30,000 shares and the 100,000 shares transactions.

Mr. FARLEY: No, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: It asks relief only for the 30,000 shares?

Mr. FARLEY: For the 30,000 shares.

HAMMOND, J.: And that is the one in which judgment was granted in favor of the defendant?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: Now you, having no estoppel in New York expressly in the 100,000 shares transaction, claim that the judgment on the 30,000 share transaction involves this, the transaction being there, and that the judgment for the defendant as to the 30,000 shares, ipso facto, is judgment for the defendant as to the 100,000 shares?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: And you say that has bearing on the point you claim that the transactions were alike?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes, alike and inseverable.

HAMMOND, J.: And on that you want to get in this evidence in the case as tried before Judge Sheldon?

Mr. FARLEY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: And you contend that whatever evidence was there on that point is applicable to the contention you make here?

940 Mr. FARLEY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: So much for that. Now what about the other?

Mr. FARLEY: Well, about the other, it was not a fact in issue—that is, the participation; it is merely we now claim that there was participation throughout this trial.

HAMMOND, J.: Did they participate in any way except as counsel for Bigelow?

Mr. FARLEY: As to that, we shall introduce further evidence; and as part of that evidence of participation we say that the appearance of New York counsel and their participation here, is already apparent on the face of the record and the evidence, having once been put in, should now go in on that point as bearing on this question. Of course, we can now introduce independent testimony; but I take it Mr. McClennen will admit the facts that Mr. Treadwell was here and that Mr. Lauterbach was here.

HAMMOND, J.: I suppose it may be claimed that he was here in the capacity of counsel.

Mr. McCLENNEN: That is one of the reasons why I thought we ought to have the specific parts of the record indicated. There would not be any question but what Mr. Eugene Treadwell, a New York lawyer, appeared in court at the time the case was tried on its merits.

Mr. HEMENWAY: And that it was the same Mr. Treadwell?

Mr. McCLENNEN: And that he was the same Eugene Treadwell who, at another time and in another court, had appeared for another client, and had argued a case there. Thus far there would be no difference. But when a record of fourteen hundred pages is offered as if it were a record of an entire transaction, as bearing on this issue, I don't know how we can know what really is being offered. Take this first question of the entirety of the original transaction; at once there is confusion. Your Honor limited the amount of the record that could be introduced by the words that nothing would be allowed here inconsistent with Mr. Justice Sheldon's findings. Mr. Justice Sheldon has made findings and decrees by which he has established that there were two transactions so separate that he has given two separate decrees in two separate suits based upon those transactions. Now if we do not know exactly what is offered, at once there is going to be very serious difficulty in determining what is in this record for the purpose of this matter of prior communication.

HAMMOND, J.: I have not read Mr. Justice Sheldon's findings in these cases; perhaps I ought to have read them.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It seems to me that a mere statement of 941 the case would make our position perfectly clear as to the evidence already in the case. We do not ask to have that stricken out; they do not ask, on the other side, to have any portion of it stricken out. Therefore, on an appeal of this case upon a reservation, or however it goes up, all the evidence will go up; but, as it seems to me, they are asking a ruling in substance, by their argument, that no part of the evidence already taken shall apply to the amended or supplemental answer. Of course, as broadly as that, they cannot expect that that will be granted. They the suggestion is that we point out the parts we think applicable to the matters in the supplemental answer. When we come to point it out, taking page by page, and there being some eight hundred printed pages of testimony, it would take a long time to sift out that in order to determine its applicability. Now what they claim is, what they desire is, just the same as in a charge given to a jury, that you have got to indicate those portions to which you object, and cannot object to the whole charge. Now they cannot object to the whole evidence; but when they ask us to point out these different pages of testimony, and sift out that which is absolutely immaterial, it imposes upon us a great deal of labor, it seems to me, because one of the facts alleged in the supplemental answer is that it was an entire transaction. Now the evidence as to its entirety runs through all these pages of evidence. Of course there are pages that are immaterial, and that can be stricken out. Therefore we thought our general designation, relying upon it in the general way stated by Mr. Farley, was enough for their purposes. Otherwise, it would take days to do it.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: It seems to me most surprising for Mr. Hemenway to suggest that we are asking to have anything stricken out. If this record now printed is part of this case for the purposes of this issue, it is; it does not require any affirmative action from your Honor. But this was started by Mr. Hemenway saying that they desired to have it considered part of this case. We say if it takes some affirmative action to make it part of this case, if it is not part of the case already of its own force, if it takes some affirmative action, your Honor ought not to take that affirmative action until the particular parts are called to the court's attention; if it is nothing more than that the record is there before the court anyway, and the court cannot help seeing it, why then there is nothing to be said by your Honor or any one of us; but if they want to do this thing which they characterized as having a particular part of the printed record considered as part of the present record, then I say your Honor should not take that action, but should limit the portion of the record that should be considered, as far as it is within your Honor's province, to those things which they now specifically point out, so that we may have a chance to consider those parts of the record in the light of the issue upon which they are now presented.

942 Mr. HEMENWAY: It seems to me that the answer to that is simply that if the evidence is admitted in the trial of a cause, if it is applicable to any issue, there it is for that purpose; if it is not, it is of no use.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, my understanding of this case, at the present stage of it, is that is was tried before a single justice who came to certain conclusions and stated them; in those decisions he ordered a decree; from that there was an appeal; the appeal carried the propriety of the decree up to the full court upon all the evidence, which is open there for counsel to argue, upon all the evidence and the pleadings then in this case, whether that decree should stand or should be modified in any way. Then it was suggested by counsel for the defendant that there were certain proceedings which had taken place in a case in New York, which had not taken place until after this appeal, which they deemed to be material and vital to the question, and they asked to have an opportunity to have the decree vacated in order that they might file an additional answer setting up this new matter, and if the answer was filed, and they might be heard upon the allegations of it. The answer was filed, and the case is now here to be heard upon those allegations, that the decree should be vacated, that the facts found by the single justice are not to be disturbed, and that this trial is to be raised simply by this answer, with the idea that finally the whole matter was to come before the full court; not generally, I take it, but one way or the other; but the general idea is that finally the whole evidence was to go to the full court and the case there be decided by them as on appeal from a decree on wrong facts, upon all the evidence, with the findings of Justice Sheldon standing. Now I think that no action is needed by this court, by me at this time, with reference to this question of whether the evidence shall be selected now as applicable to the issues of this answer. My idea about it would be that the evidence in the case already in is to be considered by the court on the allegations of this answer, except that no conclusion is to be drawn inconsistent with the conclusions which Mr. Justice Sheldon drew as to the others. Now under that idea I do not think there is any need here of any order in this matter; but if there be need for an order, if it be necessary for the defendant to here put in the evidence which has been already put in which they think is applicable to this case, then I see no answer to Mr. McClennen's claim that, if it be necessary, the evidence should be specified; but I don't think it is necessary.

Mr. HEMENWAY: In regard to one matter, as to the findings of Mr Justice Sheldon; as I understand the case, Mr. Justice Sheldon's findings stand just as though we were to appeal from them now.

HAMMOND, J.: Exactly.

943 Mr. HEMENWAY: Exactly. And the basis of that rescript was that this whole case was not to be opened.

HAMMOND, J.: I don't see the need for any order one way or the other about that.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I do not know that there is any need of an order in regard to it, and I didn't think there was until I heard the argument of the plaintiff. I brought the question up by suggesting it, and it was at a time that I did not know but that we would argue the whole case here.

HAMMOND, J.: I think we should all agree that it would be useless work to argue the whole case here.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think so myself. I would like, if I could, to finish the case to-day, but I have not my evidence here, and I should like it to go over until Monday, when I will specify for him the portions upon which I rely as applicable to this issue.

HAMMOND, J.: I should say it would have to stand, no matter what objection he now makes.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I do not see anything else to do.

HAMMOND, J.: Do either one of you think that there is any need of any order whatever about this?

Mr. HEMENWAY: No, your Honor, I do not think there is need of any order, but in view of what the counsel for the plaintiff has said, perhaps it would be a little wiser in me to point out the testimony.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well.

Mr. HEMENWAY: And I will have it when we finish the case.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well, that may be done, then. I do not believe that the amount of labor will be very great.

Mr. HEMENWAY: What day could we go on and finish the case?

HAMMOND, J.: I assumed we were going on to-day to finish it. Have you anything more that you want to put in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes, there will be some oral evidence.

HAMMOND, J.: Are you prepared to put it in to-day?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I am not prepared to-day.

HAMMOND, J.: Could you be prepared by Monday?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I should be glad if it could go over until Wednesday.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Mr. Brandeis has to go away pretty soon, and he is going to be away until November.

944 Mr. HEMENWAY: Call it Tuesday.

HAMMOND, J.: How long do you think you will take with your oral evidence?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I do not think we will take, with the oral evidence, over an hour.

HAMMOND, J.: What do you say, Mr. McClennen?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I do not know what the oral evidence is to be. We should not have any oral evidence, I do not suppose, if the other side had not. I should think we might go on Monday if your Honor is to be here. I supposed that the oral evidence would go in to-day.

HAMMOND, J.: I supposed we were going to finish to-day; at the same time, I do not think it ought to make much difference. I should prefer to go on Monday. Can you get ready for Monday?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Perhaps on Monday at 2 o'clock.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, I will hear you Monday at 2 o'clock.

Depositions.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The original depositions are all here now.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand they have been filed.

Mr. HEMENWAY: No, they have not been filed; they are to be filed.

HAMMOND, J.: Mr. Clerk, will you file the depositions which are now handed to you? I do not know whether you have used them all or not, or whether you intend to.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Well, with the exception of Mr. Stetson's, they have all been introduced now as far as they have been returned.

The CLERK: Do you wish to take them out any further?

Mr. HEMENWAY: No.

[Following are the depositions introduced by Mr. Hemenway at page 934. The objections of the plaintiff to the direct interrogatories are the same as those incorporated in the deposition of Charles T. Terry, which commences at page 913. They are introduced here in consolidated form, will not be repeated, but will be referred to in the depositions hereafter printed as commencing at page 945; objections to the answers to cross-interrogatories, if any, will be found in the text of the deposition.]

945 Memorandum of Objections Made to the Respective Questions to the Following Witnesses.

Alton B. Parker,
James Byrne,
John G. Milburn,
John B. Stanchfield,
Guy Fairfax Cary,
William H. Wadhams,
Martin L. Stover,
Edward W. Hatch,
Peter B. Olney,
Charles T. Terry,
Charles F. Brown,
William A. Keener,
Denis O'Brien.

To the 6th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the sui against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of th other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of Nev York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds o demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the othe was brought first.

To the 7th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompeten and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and in competent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence and which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume ma terial facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissin 946 the bill of complaint in the federal court for the souther district of New York was upon the merits. It does not a sume that there had been a prior decree against the other allege promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits.
does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to th same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a cou having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the oth was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal cou was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or th the suit against the other was brought first.

To the 8th interrogatory:

It assumes that the copies shown are the record of the ca whereas, in fact, they contain also copies of the opinions of t court, which are not a part of the record.

To the 10th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompete and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and competent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume mater facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of co plaint in the federal court for the southern district of New Yo was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the cla against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there h been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit agai him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and th these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other.
does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demur in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, name the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other brought first. It assumes the action against the second person being in New York.

To the 11th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrevelant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill 917 of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered.

To the 12th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered. It assumes that the plaintiff had knowledge of the participation in the defence,—of which knowledge there is not evidence and can be none.

948 To the 13th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York.

To the 14th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York.

To the 15th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced; and it fails to assume 949 material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be offered.

To the 16th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent, and calls for an answer which is immaterial, irrelevant, and incompetent. It assumes facts in which there is no evidence, and of which no evidence can be introduced, and it fails to assume material facts, namely, it assumes that the decree dismissing the bill of complaint in the federal court for the southern district of New York was upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decree against the other alleged promoter, sustaining the claim against him upon the merits. It does not assume that there had been a prior decision by the court of last resort in the suit against him, overruling a demurrer to the same bill of complaint, and that these decisions were in a court having jurisdiction of the other. It does not assume that the other was not a resident of New York, or subject to its jurisdiction, or that one of the grounds of demurrer in said suit in the federal court was for want of parties, namely, the absence of the other, or that the suit against the other was brought first. It assumes the action against the second person as being in New York. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of the other in the defence of the suit in the federal court. It also assumes that there has been participation on the part of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn,—of which there is no evidence and of which no evidence can be offered. It assumes that the plaintiff had knowledge of the participation in the defence,—of which knowledge there is no evidence and can be none.

950 To the 17th interrogatory:

On the ground that it is inadmissible for the various reasons assigned for the inadmissibility of the several questions referred to in this, namely, 6th to 16th, inclusive.

There should be inserted,—

"The court overruled each objection, admitted the question, and saved the exception of the plaintiff."

Deposition of Guy Fairfax Cary.

The deposition of Guy Fairfax Cary, taken in behalf of the defendant Bigelow, and filed by his counsel, subject to the objections and exceptions of counsel for the complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be found at pages 945–950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Guy Fairfax Cary; I am twenty-nine years old, and reside at No. 54 Park avenue in the borough of Manhattan, city of New York.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am an attorney at law, and my place of business is at No. 59 Wall street in the borough of Manhattan, city of New York.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar in the state of New York in December, 1904, and have since practised in this state. I am a member of the firm of Cary & Robinson, whose office is at No. 59 Wall street in this city.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I have not held official position.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I am engaged in general practice, involving the conduct of litigated cases in the state and federal courts in New York 951 and elsewhere, and I have previously, in my practice, had occasion to examine carefully the rules governing the application of the doctrine of res adjudicata and of estoppel by judgment. In preparation for the evidence which I am giving in these causes I have very carefully examined the decisions in this state on those matters.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted: exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. Under the law of the state of New York, the decree would absolutely bar any recovery by the complainant in the substantially identical action brought against the other promoter in the courts of this state.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets 952 forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The decree being a final adjudication of a court of competent jurisdiction upon the merits of the transaction out of which both causes of action spring, its effect would be to absolutely bar any recovery by the complainant in the substantially identical actions against the other promoter in the courts of this state.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I have.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said
953 action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. Such decree and record under the laws and usages of the state of New York would be an absolute defence to both proceedings.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. They have some tendency to support the answer given to the preceding interrogatory as further exhibiting the community of interests between Bigelow and Lewisohn.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. The fact here assumed is in line with the facts assumed in the 11th interrogatory, and also has some tendency to support my answers to the 10th and 11th interrogatories.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of 951 the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th intrrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-956.

A. The decree and record, if pleaded as assumed, would conclude the plaintiff and afford an absolute defence to the defendant in a proceeding in New York corresponding to No. 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof; assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the 955 Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof, relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts, and the prayers thereof, relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. Assuming the further facts here stated, the decree and record, if pleaded as assumed, would also conclude the complainant, and afford an absolute defence to the defendant in a cause in New York corresponding to No. 8099 in Massachusetts.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatries?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. These additional facts would have some tendency to support my answers to the 13th and 14th interrogatories.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949-950.]

956 A. The further fact here assumed is in line with the facts stated in the 15th interrogatory, and would have some tendency to support my answers to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to Ints. 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 650.]

A. I have already partially stated my reasons for my answers to the interrogatories named. The conclusions reflected in my answers are based upon the following considerations:

An examination of the bills in the Massachusetts suits against Mr. Bigelow and in the New York suits against Mr. Lewisohn's executors reveals that the suit relating to the 30,000 share transaction in each jurisdiction and the suit relating to the 100,000 share transaction in each jurisdiction are to all intents and purposes respectively, identical, the only differences being in the parties defendant and in the fact that the absence of Mr. Bigelow from the New York jurisdiction is stated in the Lewisohn bills and the absence of Mr. Lewisohn from the Massachusetts jurisdiction is stated in the Massachusetts bills, and in some minor formal differences. These bills reveal that Bigelow and Lewisohn were joint actors throughout the transactions complained of. The complainant's language is that they conspired together to acquire to themselves the alleged unlawful profits. It sufficiently appears that Lewisohn either occupied the relation to Bigelow of a trustee, agent, or joint adventurer,—and I am inclined to think that if their relationship were the subject of judicial consideration in this state it would be defined as that of joint adventurers for a particular enterprise. We have, then, at the outset, an identity of subject matter of the two litigations, an identity in the form of the bills and in the relief prayed for, and a relation of privity between the defendants. This being so, and their relation to the complainant corporation being the same, it is impossible that a liability should rest upon the one, growing out of their joint acts, while the other went free. There cannot be two rules of law applicable to one and the same state of facts.

Turning now to the result of the litigation in New York, we find that, while the litigation in Massachusetts is still pending, a final decree upon the merits is rendered in favor of the New York defendant. The court rendering the decree was undoubtedly one of competent jurisdiction, and the effect of the decree, according to well-settled principles, must be to bind and estop the parties to the litigation and their privies as to all matters covered by the 957 adjudication or necessarily involved in the litigation leading thereto in all cases where the same matters are sought to be again brought into question. It follows from this, and from the relation of privity between Bigelow and Lewisohn, that if Bigelow was sued in this jurisdiction on matters which have been adjudicated upon in the Lewisohn suit, he would be entitled to the benefit of the Lewisohn decree, not merely as setting up a precedent which the New York state court would be likely to follow in accordance with the doctrine of stare decisis, but he would be able to avail himself of the decree as an absolute defence in the nature of an estoppel by judgment in the suit against him. The general principle sometimes stated, that an estoppel of this character can exist only where the estoppel would be mutual, cannot be invoked to defeat this conclusion. The general principle is open to certain well-marked exceptions, and has been so limited in this state. I refer, in this connection, to the cases of Stamp v. Franklin, 141 N. Y. 607, and People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; and also to the case of Portland Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 63.

The remaining question to be considered is the effect of the Lewisohn decree on a suit against Mr. Bigelow in this jurisdiction based upon so much of the transaction as is comprised in the so-called 100,000 share suits. The language of the bills of complaint leaves no room for doubt that, though these matters are sued upon separately, they are really parts of one entire transaction. It follows, therefore, that Mr. Bigelow could avail himself of the decree against the one suit as fully as against the other.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. In considering the law of the case to be applied to the facts, the court might conceivably overrule its prior decision when the case came up on demurrer, but, as a practical matter, the doctrine of stare decisis would generally prevent this result, and therefore, subject to this limitation, my answer is that there is such a principle of the law of this state.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. Generally speaking, there is no right of exoneration or contribution in New York between defendants jointly and 958 severally liable ex delicto, but this can only be stated as a general rule applicable to ordinary cases of joint tort feasors and is subject to the exception that there may be such right or rights where the liability arises by operation of law from acts innocently intended and free from moral turpitude and not involving wilful wrongdoing.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. If the question refers to Massachusetts and if there were no Lewisohn decree, there would, of course, be a prima facie liability upon Bigelow in the present state of the litigation in Massachusetts; but I assume that the question refers to New York, and my answer is that, if there were no Lewisohn decree, Bigelow's liability would be an open question until determined by our courts, and while I do not think he would be held liable in this state upon the transactions revealed by the bills, I have, of course, considered the possibility of such liability in connection with any general examination of the questions involved in these suits.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. Yes, I have considered this feature of the case.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes, I have considered this feature also.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes, I have also considered this.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes; I make the same answer as to the preceding interrogatory.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that 959 liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. Interpreting as well as I am able the Massachusetts decision, I understand that its effect is to impose on Bigelow a liability arising out of an equitable tort, so called. Whether, under our law, an equitable liability for the breach of an equitable duty would be a joint and several liability would depend upon the inherent nature of the transactions involved in a given case, and I know of no decision in this state determining the nature of such a liability as that sought to be imposed by the Massachusetts decision, and I cannot, therefore, give a definite answer to the question whether or not a liability of the character referred to would be held to be a joint and several liability under the law of New York.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. What I have said in answer to the preceding interrogatory upon the question whether such liability would be joint and several applies equally here; but with regard to the additional question, as to whether the liability would be ex delicto or not, I desire to say this: An equitable liability for the breach of an equitable duty might well be referred to as a liability ex delicto in the sense that any breach of duty, equitable or legal, as distinguished from breach of a purely contractual obligation, involves dereliction, but a breach of an equitable duty might impose a liability in the absence of intentional wrongdoing or moral turpitude. In the absence of any decision of our courts known to me on the facts analogous to the facts assumed in this interrogatory, I am unable to state definitely whether our courts would denominate a liability of the character referred to as a liability arising ex delicto.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. There is such a general principle of our law, but it is subject to limitations and exceptions.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. Yes.

X. 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. Estoppels need not be mutual in cases analogous to Portland Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 960 63, and the case of Emma Silver Mining Co. in 7 Fed. Rep. Other instances are referred to in the cases of Stamp v. Franklin, 144 N. Y. 607, and People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235. There is also a class of cases where there exists a right of contribution or exoneration between the defendants in the respective suits.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Under the facts assumed, I am in doubt whether Bigelow would have been estopped to deny his liability in another suit by a decree against Lewisohn in the first suit, but I incline to the opinion that the case would come within the rule of Portland Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, above referred to.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. This interrogatory is practically the converse of the preceding interrogatory, and my answer is that I am in doubt whether the executors would be estopped in another suit, although I do not think this would necessarily be so.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I suppose this question involves the participation of Bigelow in the defence of the Lewisohn suit, and I desire to say that I have not attached great weight to this circumstance in arriving at my conclusions. I have, however, examined a number of authorities and can at the present time refer to the following:—

Carlton v. Lombard, 149 N. Y. 137.
Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527.
Van Koughnet v. Dennis, 68 Hun, 179.
Kelley v. 42d St. Ry. Co., 37 App. Div. 500.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of 961 Lewisohn's executors may—by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge—operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I refer to the cases cited in my answer to the preceding interrogatory.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name, and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A.—

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Tuing v. Clarke, 9 Hun, 269.
Matter of Estate of Strant, 126 N. Y. 201.
Carter v. Bowe, 11 Hun, 516.
Kerrison v. Stewart, 93 U. S. 155.
People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235.
King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267.
Greenleaf on Evidence, vol. 1, at page 523.
Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351.
Clemens v. Clemens, 37 N. Y. 171.
Hymes v. Esty, 116 N. Y. 509.

Reich v. Cochran, 151 N. Y. 122, 127.
Griffin v. L. I. R. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 449.
Lorillard v. Clyde, 122 N. Y. 41.

I have examined many other cases which I cannot cite by name and page at the present time.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. I cannot at the present time refer by name and page to such cases. I have made a careful examination of the New York authorities on this subject without finding any case which might fall within the description of the interrogatory which did not seem to me clearly distinguishable from the case at bar.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's 962 executors?

A. I have endeavored to anticipate all possible arguments for the plaintiff's position in making up my mind upon this general subject.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. As I have already indicated, there are no such arguments which have impressed me as valid. In brief, the arguments which I have considered are those which might be predicated upon cases announcing the general principle of mutuality of estoppel, cases dealing with the relations of joint tort feasors generally, and cases discussing the question of privity. On all these subjects there are cases which express principles applicable to different states of facts from the present case or are clearly distinguishable from the present case for various reasons, but which suggest possible arguments to the effect that there would be no estoppel in favor of Bigelow. I have found no valid arguments of this character, and therefore cannot state any.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. This question can really only be answered with reference to the particular facts of a given case. In general, I understand privity to mean either community of interest by relationship, as, for instance, between a trustee and his cestui que trust, and as between persons jointly acting in pursuance of a common enterprise, or community of interest in a given subject matter.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. The defendants of record in the Lewisohn suit were not Mr. Lewisohn, but his executors. I consider, upon the facts shown by the bills and records in the various cases, that Bigelow was in privity with Mr. Lewisohn in the transactions out of which the litigation has arisen, and I further consider that there is a relation of privity between Bigelow and the Lewisohn executors by reason of their succession in interest to Mr. Lewisohn, deceased.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I consider that his legal interest in that suit was the interest of a proper party defendant, if not a necessary one.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. My answer to the preceding interrogatory answers this one also.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit
963 against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. I do not understand what "unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel," means, and therefore I cannot answer the question.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. I am hampered in answering this question by the fact that the preceding one appears to have been mutilated, and therefore I cannot understand it; but I refer to my answer to the 24th interrogatory.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow, in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. There is an old decision to this effect in this state in the case of Marsh v. Berry, reported in 7 Cow. 344, but I have not traced the decision to see how it has since been construed, and the distinction between that case and the case at bar seems to me clear.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property, is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other, because torts are joint and several?

A. This might be called a broad statement of a principle, but inaccurate, unless limited. For instance, if the first action was predicated upon the joint actions of the defendants, and was brought to establish a liability upon them jointly, a judgment in favor of the defendant first sued would bar any recovery in a subsequent suit against the other defendant.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. The interrogatory states a general principle of New York law, but one which is subject to the qualifications and limitations suggested in my answer to the 12th cross-interrogatory.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. No, I do not know of such a general principle. I am aware of the case of Lansing v. Montgomery, 2 Johns. 382, but in that case the judgment was not actually pleaded as an estoppel, and the jury found that there was, in fact, no prior judgment.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you 964 assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. In so far as the executors represented Lewisohn's interest, and Lewisohn had been Bigelow's trustee in the transactions complained of, I think the executors might be considered Bigelow's agents or trustees for the purpose of faithfully conducting the litigation, but I have not assumed or considered that there was any special arrangement or agreement between Bigelow and the executors with regard to the conduct of the suit.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I refer to my answer to the preceding interrogatory in answer to this interrogatory.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may not be sued later?

A. There is no principle of New York law which can be stated in the words used in the interrogatory. The principles governing such cases are always subject to the qualifications and limitations which I have already indicated in my answers to preceding interrogatories.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. I believe I have stated all the reasons called for by such interrogatories, and all that I am now able to state within the limits of this examination.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I make the same answer as to the preceding interrogatory.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. All that I am able to state within the limits of this examination.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. Yes.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. No.

965 X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories, or in your answers thereto?

A. Yes, I have generally discussed the case, but not with any of the other persons named as witnesses.

GUY FAIRFAX CARY.

Before me, this 26th day of September, A. D. 1908.

[SEAL.] H. M. HEWSON,
Notary Public, Westchester County.

Certificate filed in New York County.

Deposition of James Byrne.

The Deposition of James Byrne, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945–950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is James Byrne; my age is fifty-one years; my place of residence is New York city.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. My occupation is attorney and counsellor at law; my place of business is 24 Broad street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar in the state of New York in 1883. I have been actively and continuously engaged in the practice of law in that state ever since. Some time after I was admitted to the bar of the state of New York,—I do not remember exactly when, but many years ago,—I was admitted to practice in the federal courts in New York. I have been admitted to practice in the United States Supreme Court and in a number of federal and state courts. I have been engaged in litigation in many other states than the state of New York. I have been a member of the firm of Chamber-966 lain, Carter & Hornblower, Carter, Hornblower & Byrne, Hornblower, Byrne & Taylor, Hornblower, Byrne, Miller & Potter, and am now a member of the firm of Byrne & Cutcheon.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I have held no judicial position, except that I have occasionally acted as referee. I have held no public or official position except that I was for several years a trustee of the college of the city of New York.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I have the familiarity with the laws and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts of New York that comes from having been connected with many cases in those courts both in law and in equity. I have been engaged in lawsuits in both the state and federal courts of New York, in which defences have been set up relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment. Those cases have been contested over many years. I was one of the counsel in the case of Thorn v. De Breteuil, in which several former adjudications were set up as estoppels. The opinion of the appellate division of the Supreme Court of the state of New York for the second department is reported in 86 App. Div. 405. The opinion of the Court of Appeals of the state of New York is reported in 179 N. Y. 64.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945–950.]

967 A. The decree would, in my opinion, be held in the courts of New York state to be a complete defence. These are my reasons for this opinion: The cause of action of the corporation, according to its own statement, is based on a joint plan and conspiracy. The federal court has held that there was no such joint plan and conspiracy and that the facts alleged to constitute fraud in the sale made in pursuance of such alleged joint plan and conspiracy do not amount to fraud. On the plaintiff's own statement, if the so-called promoter has committed a fraud, his associate has; if he has not committed a fraud, his associate has not; and on the facts stated, the court has held that the so-called promoter is under no liability to the corporation.

In a suit against the associate, the inclination of the court would be—in view of the fact that the corporation has had the one opportunity which, as Judge Choate said in 7 Fed. Rep. public policy gives every man to prove his case, and to which one opportunity it limits every man, and has lost its case on grounds which showed that it had no case against the so-called promoter or his associate; and in view of the desirability of avoiding the chance of the law punishing one man for doing the identical thing for which the law had said the other man ought not to be punished—to hold the former judgment conclusive if there were any precedent that could be said to justify such holding. Such a precedent would be found in the case of People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235, the judgment in which was affirmed by the general term and by the Court of Appeals.

In that case the state brought an action against four principal defendants, claiming damages for a fraudulent combination and conspiracy in obtaining a contract from the state. Previously the state had commenced an action against two of the same defendants for precisely the same cause, and upon demurrer judgment had been rendered for the defendants. The court held that the judgment on the demurrer in favor of the two defendants was rendered on the merits of the action, and presented a complete estoppel in their favor in the present action, that the two defendants not sued in the former action were in privity with the two defendants in the former action, and the estoppel in their favor was as effectual as the estoppel in favor of the two defendants in the former action.

The intermediate appellate court, the general term, affirmed the conclusions reached by the trial court. The Court of Appeals also affirmed it, and while it put its opinion on two grounds other than those of the trial judge of which I have just spoken, it did not express dissent from them. So far as I know, there never has been any adverse comment on the opinion in 51 How. Pr. 235, that I have referred to.

968 Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern District of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a conclusive defence.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I have.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal 969 changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewishon's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The decree and record would be a complete defence.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. They would not affect it.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. They would not affect it.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, 970 identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. A decree and record would be a complete defence.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in 971 said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, and the prayers thereof, relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts, and the prayers thereof, relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. The decree and record would be a complete defence.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. They would not affect it.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. They would not affect it.

972 Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to Ints. 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. My reasons are as follows:

30,000 share case.—The law as to estoppel by judgment in New York is stated in Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 511, at 522, as follows:

"The general rule is, that an allegation on record, upon which issue has been once taken and found and a judgment has been rendered, is, between the parties taking it and their privies, conclusive, according to the finding thereof, so as to estop the parties respectively from again litigating that fact once so tried and found; whether it is plead in bar, or given in evidence."

See also Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351.
Thorn v. de Breteuil, 179 N. Y. 64.

The real estate and mining claim, sold for 30,000 shares of stock, stood in the name of Lewisohn. The offer to sell the property, the title to which stood in his name, was made by Lewisohn.

The suit against Lewisohn, in which judgment has been rendered in his favor, was brought to rescind the contract which had been made in his name in regard to property that stood in his name. It would have been proper to bring a suit to enforce the contract against Lewisohn alone. It was proper to bring a suit to rescind it against Lewisohn alone. The judgment against him, or in his favor, in either case would bind Bigelow, for whom Lewisohn was a trustee.

Matter of Straub, 126 N. Y. 201.
Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. 67.

In answering the 11th and 12th interrogatories, I have said that the additional facts therein set out would not affect my answer to the 10th interrogatory.

If, for any reason, it should be considered that Bigelow did not stand to Lewisohn in the 30,000 share sale as cestui que trust, it must be admitted that he stood to him in the relation of joint adventurer; and the general principles of partnership are applicable to their relations. See:

Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403.
King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267.

973 The suit against Lewisohn which has been decided in his favor was, as the Supreme Court of the United States has said, to rescind the contract for the sale of the real estate and mining claims, and to recover back the consideration. Whether as a partner of Lewisohn or as a principal, Bigelow, in a suit for the rescission of the contract, had an interest in opposing the rescission. He was in such privity with Lewisohn in a suit to enforce or rescind the contract that if he took part in the defence of the action he could not be regarded as a stranger; having such privity, on the assumption that the facts assumed in the 11th interrogatory are true, the judgment was binding in his favor as a judgment in favor of the corporation would have been binding against him.

100,000 share case.—The suit against Lewisohn in which judgment has been entered was brought, as stated by Mr. Justice Holmes, "to rescind a sale to it [the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company] of certain mining rights."

The complaint says:

"The complainant desires to rescind the sale. * * * Wherefore the complainant prays that the Court will declare said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant, as hereinbefore set forth, rescinded. * * *"

The decree in the Lewisohn case is an adjudication that there is no right to rescind the sale. It is an adjudication that, inasmuch as Bigelow and Lewisohn owned all the capital stock of the corporation, even though they did not state, when they made the sales to it, that they were making a profit, there was nothing wrongful in the transaction. It is an adjudication that at the time of the sale there was no fiduciary relationship between them and the corporation, because they were the corporation; and one cannot be in a fiduciary relationship to himself—just as one cannot be an agent of himself. It is an adjudication that they were under no duty to provide an independent board of directors for the corporation, and to disclose to that board that they were making a profit in the sale to the corporation. It was an adjudication that if they could properly be called promoters before the corporation was organized or any stock issued, when they became the sole stockholders, and so long as they remained the sole stockholders, they had "stripped themselves of the character of trustees." Those issues are res adjudicata, not only in another suit for the same cause of action, such as the second suit to rescind the sale of the 30,000 shares of stock, or an action in equity or at law for dam-

974 ages arising from the action of Lewisohn or Bigelow for wrongfully taking from the company the 30,000 shares of stock, but in any other suit where the same issues arise.

The rule is that a judgment upon the question directly involved in a suit is conclusive in a second suit between the same parties and their privies dependent upon the same question, although the subject matter of the second action is different.

All the complaints, both in the two suits against Lewisohn and the two suits against Bigelow, treat the sale of the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of the real estate and mining claims that stood in the name of Lewisohn as parts of one plan, scheme, and conspiracy. The two officers were presented and accepted at the same meeting, on July 11, 1895, one immediately after the other, and it was voted at the same meeting to issue the stock in payment therefor.

As was said by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts (74 N. E. 656):

"The scheme of the defendant and Lewisohn, as to this capital stock of $3,750,000 divided into 150,000 shares, was to issue 80,000 shares * * * to the syndicate * * * 20,000 shares * * * to themselves for their services and expenses as promoters, 20,000 shares * * * to the public for cash for working capital * * * and the balance 30,000 shares, * * * * to themselves for the real estate here in question, and this scheme was carried out. * * *

The scheme thus described has been the subject of adjudication in the Lewisohn case and the adjudication made was that it was not wrongful. The fact that the form that the transactions assumed was the making of two contracts of sale does not prevent the adjudication of issues in a suit asking for a rescission of one of the contracts for being conclusive upon similar issues in a suit relating to the other contract.

In the case of Bouchaud, Executor of Brunel, v. Dias, 3 Den. 238, is precisely in point. There one Castro imported goods and on a certain day executed two bonds to the United States for the payment of the duties, on which bonds Brunel, the testator of Bouchard, and the defendant were sureties. The bonds were alike in penalty and condition, except that they were payable at different periods. The plaintiff, as executor of Brunel, paid one of the bonds, and in this action sought to recover one half of the amount from the defendant as a co-surety with the testator. The defence was that the defendant, with the consent of the plaintiff, had been released from his obligation by the Secretary of the Treasury. The defendant gave in evidence the judgment record from which it appeared that the plaintiff had previously sued the defendant for contribution, the declaration in the former case being precisely like the declaration in this case, except that the other bond was set out as a part of the ground of action.

In that action the defendant pleaded in bar the release and 975 consent. The plaintiff demurred and the court rendered judgment for the defendant. The plaintiff objected to the introduction of the record because the bonds were not the same in both suits. The court said, at page 243:

"We have then the judgment of a court of concurrent jurisdiction directly upon the point made by this suit; and nothing is better settled than that such a judgment, so long as it remains in force, is conclusive between the same parties in another action upon the same matter. It is true that there is a shade of difference between the two cases as to the necessary proof on the part of the plaintiff to sustain the action. Different bonds are mentioned in the two declarations. But so far as relates to the principal question in controversy, to wit: the right of the plaintiff to demand and the duty of the defendant as co-surety to make contribution, the two cases are precisely alike. The defence is precisely the same in both actions. The matter which the plaintiff now attempts to agitate anew is res judicata * * * and the judgment rendered in that action is a conclusive bar to any new litigation of the same matter."

So in the present litigation different shares of stock are mentioned in the prayers for relief. There is hardly, however, the "shade of difference" between the two cases as to what the plaintiff regards as the necessary proof on its part to sustain the action, for presumably it has alleged nothing in any of the actions which it was not necessary for it to prove, and it has alleged exactly the same facts in both. "The matter which the plaintiff attempts to agitate anew" in the 100,000 share case, is res adjudicata and the judgment in the 30,000 share case is a conclusive bar in favor of Lewisohn and his privy, Bigelow, "to any new litigation of the matter."

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. I so understand it.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. I understand that to be the general principle of law, 976 but I also understand the law of New York to be that if one —like a servant, for instance—does a wrongful act in obedience to the request of the superior, not knowing the act to be wrongful, it would be the duty of the superior to indemnify. How far this exception would be extended, and whether it would authorize contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto, where they were not knowingly doing a wrongful act, I am unable to say.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have not considered that question especially in connection with this case. My opinion would be the same whether Bigelow would or would not, but for said defence, be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against him.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered whether the liability that Bigelow might be under would be a liability jointly with Lewisohn.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered whether the liability that Bigelow might be under would be a liability jointly or severally with Lewisohn.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. To have considered whether the liability which Bigelow might be under would be a liability arising ex delicto.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered whether it might be a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, 977 under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I have given that question a very great deal of consideration. I understand the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts to mean that the plaintiff had these courses open to it, and probably a third course. The two courses I mean are, first, to rescind the contract and upon the rescission to sue "upon the implied contract to return the consideration;" the other course, to waive the remedy founded upon the implied contract and to sue for a wrongful act on the part of one occupying a trust relation to the corporation. This latter liability I understand the Massachusetts decision to deem a joint and several liability. Under the law of New York, in my opinion, the corporation might rescind the contract and recover the consideration on an implied contract, which would be a joint liability. If one of the two so-called promoters had contracted in his own name and was, as to the property sold, a trustee for himself and the other, the corporation could rescind and sue him alone. If Lewisohn and Bigelow were promoters and they made a secret profit out of the corporation, and their act was wrongful against the corporation, I should say that the case was like a partnership committing a breach of duty in some matter where they were acting as agents and that a cause of action would lie against them jointly and severally.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I think my answer to Cross-Int. 8 answers this question.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. In my opinion it is.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. It is very frequently so said.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. The case of People v. Stevens, in 51 Howard's Practice, cited in my answer to the 6th direct interrogatory, is a case which might be cited to the effect that an estoppel need not be mutual. If in that case the plaintiff had sued the two defendants who were not parties to the original suit by the plaintiff, and had claimed that the defendants were bound by the judgment which had been obtained against the two defendants who were parties to the former 978 suit, the defendants in the later suit would not have had their day in court. I do not think, therefore, that the judgment against the defendants in the former case referred to in People v. Stevens would be res adjudicata against the new defendants in a subsequent case reported in 51 Howard's Practice. A judgment against the indemnitors of a sheriff who makes a wrongful levy has been held in — to be an estoppel in a suit subsequently brought against the sheriff. In my opinion the judgment against the indemnitors would not be res adjudicata in a suit against the sheriff. A judgment in favor of one charged with having placed an obstruction in a highway is a bar to a suit against the city, or those of its officials responsible for the highways. In the case of the sheriff and of the obstruction to the highway the person allowed to set up the bar has been indemnified, or has the right to be indemnified, by the other, for that is given as a reason why such person should be allowed to set up the bar, but the fact remains that the estoppels are not mutual. In my opinion the principles laid down by the Circuit Court of Appeals in Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. p. 68, and by Judge Choate, now a distinguished lawyer of New York in the Emma Mine Case, 7 Fed. Rep., will both be followed in the state courts of New York. I have not, however, examined the case exhaustively on this point.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Yes.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. I do not think that this follows. The grounds upon which I answered that Bigelow would be bound by the judgment against Lewisohn in the New York 30,000 share suit is that the contract was made in the name of Lewisohn; that Lewisohn was a trustee, was the agent authorized by Bigelow to make the contract. I have stated these at length in my answer to the 16th direct interrogatory. In the corresponding Massachusetts suit, the 30,000 share suit against Bigelow, it cannot be said that Bigelow was a trustee for Lewisohn. Bigelow was not the person in whose name the contract was made. The reasons given in the Emma Mine Case, 7 Fed. Rep., and in the Portland Case, 158 Fed. Rep., why a judgment 979 against the plaintiff should bar him, do not apply to a judgment in his favor. In the former case the plaintiff has had his day in court. In the latter Lewisohn has not.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I assume that this question is based on the assumption that the judgment would not operate as an estoppel unless there were participation on the part of Bigelow. On that assumption, the case which I have considered, and which tends, in my opinion, to support the view that a final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors might, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow, if there were any such participation, is Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329. I have considered other cases, the names of which I do not at this moment recall. I do not understand that the law of the state of New York on this subject is peculiar.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I do not recall any particular case in the courts of New York. In Alexander v. Taylor, 4 Denio, 302, in which it was sought to have a judgment against plaintiff's agent treated as a bar in a suit subsequently brought by plaintiff, the court decided that it was not a bar, saying that the plaintiff did not participate in the replevin suit, and he had no part in the act upon which it was founded; that it did not appear that he had ever heard of the former suit, or the act for which it was prosecuted, until the record of judgment was brought up against him on the trial. In Castle v. Noyes I think it plainly appears from the facts that the other side must have known that the master took charge of the defence of the servants, but that statement is not in terms in the case as I recollect it. In my opinion the case of Rumford Chemical v. Hygienic Chemical, 159 Fed. Rep. 436, opinion of the Circuit Court of Appeals, Second Circuit, states the general doctrine on the subject. It seems to me participation, rather than knowledge, determines whether a party becomes bound by a former judgment.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the de-
980 fence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name, and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. To the effect that a judgment in a suit against a trustee is binding upon a beneficiary, Matter of Straub, 126 N. Y. 201, Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. 67. To the effect that the relation of promoters to each other is that of joint adventurers and that the law of partnership is applicable to such relation, Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403; King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267. Generally, People v. Stevens, 51 How. Pr. above referred to. I have considered many other decisions, but I have not made notes of them, and there is no particular one that I have especially in mind.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have seen no decision or language of the courts of New York which, in my opinion, support the view that there is no estopped in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors. There are statements in the New York cases to the effect that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser could not be used by another co-trespasser, not a party to it, by way of estoppel. There are very many statements of the highest court that estoppels must be mutual. These expressions or decisions have, in my opinion, no application to a case by a corporation to rescind a contract against one who is a trustee for another, or against one who is a partner or joint adventurer with another where the partner or joint adventurer participates in the defence of the action; nor to a case like People v. Stevens, 51 How. Pr.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. Lansing v. Monegomery, 2 Johns, 382; Atlantic Dock Co. v. Mayor &c., 53 N. Y. 64, at page 68. My recollection is that I have seen other cases containing the statement about a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser not being a bar to a suit against the other, but I do not recall them now. There are many cases in which the statement is made that estoppel must be mutual. Of course I do not mean that these cases do support the view mentioned in Cross-Int. 18.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No argument has been submitted to me by counsel for the defendant in support of the claim that the decision in the Lew-981 isohn case is not a bar in the Bigelow case, except that they have submitted to me arguments or assumptions which might be made by counsel for the complainant, and have shown by an analysis of the argument and cases that in their opinion the argument was not a good one. They have stated to me that the complainant will doubtless rely upon the argument or assumption that Bigelow and Lewisohn are in the position of joint tort feasors, and that therefore, it will be claimed that a judgment in favor of one is not a bar to a suit against the other. Practically, what has been submitted to me by counsel for the defendants are arguments to show that the arguments that would probably be made by the complainant are not sound ones, and that the cases upon which they will rely are distinguishable from a case where it appears on the plaintiff's statement that the allegations against both alleged joint tort feasors are the same and judgment in favor of one has been rendered on the merits against the other. No argument has occurred to me which I regard as sound. Having frequently had to consider the subject of res adjudicata under the decisions of the state of New York, I knew of the statements that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser could not be used as a bar in a suit against the other, and the doctrine that judgment against one tort feasor is not a bar to an action against another tort feasor unless the judgment has been satisfied or released.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. I have answered this cross-interrogatory in my answer to Cross-Int. 20.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. It is impossible to answer this question except at great length. In O'Donnell v. McIntyre, 118 N. Y. at page 162, the Court of Appeals say in its general legal signification "stranger" is opposed to the word "privy." By "privy" is meant the mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property, and "privies" are classified according to the manner of relationship. In Mygatt v. Coe, 124 N. Y. 212, at page 219, the court, quoting says "there are three manners of privities, viz: (1) Privity in case of estate only. (2) Privity in respect to contract only. (3) Privity in respect to estate and contract together. * * * The term privity in estate denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property." "Privity" is used with reference to estoppel by judgment to describe the relationship between a party to the judgment and some one who is affected by that judgment simply because of his relationship to the party and without his having participated in or even known of the judgment. "Privity" is also used to describe the relationship of a party to another who is a defendant in lawsuit which will justify participating in the defence, and thereby making the judgment binding in favor of or against the person not a party to the 982 record. Thus, in one case, a master is held to be in privity with his servant so as to be bound by the judgment where the master assumed control of the litigation; in another case the master is held not to be bound by the judgment against his servant, because he did not participate in the suit.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I have.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. The contract in regard to 30,000 shares was made in the name of Lewisohn intentionally on the part of Lewisohn and Bigelow; the title to the real estate stood in the name of Lewisohn; the corporation had the right to treat Lewisohn as the person with whom it could litigate in regard to the recission of the contract which had been made by him; Lewisohn being dead, they had the right to sue the executors; in any suit to enforce or rescind the contract made by Lewisohn, Bigelow stood to Lewisohn, or Lewisohn's legal representatives upon his death, in the relation of beneficiary, and Lewisohn and his executors in the relation of trustees. By reason of that relationship Bigelow, in my opinion, was a privy in such sense that if he had not participated in the Lewisohn case the judgment would bind him. Lewisohn and Bigelow, if promoters, were, under the laws of New York, joint adventurers, and their relations would be governed generally by the law of partnership. There was a privity between them that there is between partners. If there was not the relationship of trustee and beneficiary between Lewisohn (and after his death his executors) and Bigelow, there was this partnership relation, and the privity there is such that in a suit to rescind the contract, the executors of Bigelow's partner being sued, he had such an interest in sustaining the contract as allowed him to participate, and by participating become bound by the judgment.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. He had.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. I don't think I can add to my previous answers. He 983 had an interest in the contract which was made by Lewisohn, and he had the interest that any person who contracts as a co-contractor or as a partner would have in having the contract held to be good and valid, and not one subject to recission in a case where he is not a party to the record, but his co-contractor or agent is. I may misunderstand the meaning of Cross-ints. 26 and 27. In a sense it may be said that a man has no interest, legal or otherwise, in something which cannot affect him. I assume that the question means: Was Bigelow, in the case supposed, a stranger to the suit against Lewisohn, or had he such an interest in the contract which was sought to be rescinded as would result in a decision subsequently that, by participating in the defence of the Lewisohn suit, he became bound by it?

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. In giving my answer to the 10th direct interrogatory and to the 13th and 14th direct interrogatories I have not assumed it, nor in giving my answers to the 11th and 15th direct interrogatories. What I would like to make clear is, I have assumed it only where the interrogatory assumed it. On re-reading the cross-interrogatory, I appreciate that the word "consent" is used, not "knowledge." I have not assumed "consent" in giving any of my answers, only "knowledge," and that only where the interrogatory uses — word "knowledge."

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. My understanding is that is the New York law, although I do not recall the particular case in which that is so held.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. I do not recall a decision in point. The mere fact of a judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for conversion clearly would be no bar to a suit against the other after such judgment. If, however, the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property was upon a state of facts which shows that the conversion was a single act, so that if one of the two persons is guilty the other is, and vice versa, then I should think, in a suit against the second person upon precisely that state of facts, the opinion in People v. Stevens, 51 Howard's Practice, should apply.

984 X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. That is the general principle of New York law; but see my answer to the 12th cross-interrogatory.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. There is a statement to that effect in the case of Atlantic Dock Co. v. The Mayor of New York, 53 N. Y. 64, and in Lansing v.

Montgomery, 2 Johns. 382, —, and there is no doubt that unless the case was such as is mentioned in People v. Stevens, and cases like those referred to in my answer to the 12th cross-interrogatory, that doctrine would be applied in New York.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I have considered that Lewisohn stood in the relation of a trustee to Bigelow, that he was the person in whose name the contract was made for the benefit of himself and another, and was therefore, for the purpose of binding the beneficiary, a trustee. I have considered that during his lifetime the corporation could sue him alone for the rescission of the contract, and on his death it could sue his legal representatives, and therefore that they stood in connection with a suit upon that contract just as a trustee would to Bigelow. I have considered also that Bigelow and Lewisohn were joint adventurers, and that upon Lewisohn's death the executors stood in Lewisohn's place.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock ought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I think I have already answered this question. I have not assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow for stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. It is, I understand, the principle of New York law that an action at law may be brought against one of several joint tort feasors without joining the others, and that a judgment in that suit will completely determine the controversy between them, and 985 that a judgment against the defendants thus sued will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who were not made defendants, and the latter could be sued later. The question of whether the judgment in favor of one of the joint tort feasors first sued, where the facts are precisely the same as those in a subsequent suit against others of the joint tort feasors, is res adjudicata has been decided in People v. Stevens, 51 Howard's Practice, in the affirmative, the court asking, "Has it ever been held that upon the same proof against two the same court would be justified in holding the one guilty of actionable conduct whilst the other was not?"

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Yes.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I do not think of any other reasons.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. To the best of my belief I have.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. I was not.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. No, I was very anxious to finish as speedily as possible and I assumed the commissioner was also anxious to have me finish, and after committing myself (to the best of my recollection) to an answer to every interrogatory, I think, but two, I said I would not delay the matter, but would hasten to answer all the interrogatories and then have my answers read over to see that they were grammatical and correct. When I came to the interrogatory requesting a definition of what constituted privity, I thought I would leave that and answer it more or less at length, according as I had more or less time when I had finished with the others, and when I came to the 30th cross-interrogatory, as I did not recall any particular case in point, but thought I might recall a case while going on with the other questions, I said that I would answer that when I had finished. I do not think that my answer to any question has or will be affected by my knowledge of the substance of any cross-interrogatory.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

986 A. I understand the question to be whether I have discussed, with any of the persons named, these cross-interrogatories or any of the subjects dealt with in these cross-interrogatories or my answers thereto. I have not. I saw Mr. Olney by chance on the train Saturday afternoon, and he told me that he had been testifying in the case that morning. I talked with him a very few moments on the general subject of the question raised by the 6th direct interrogatory.

JAMES BYRNE.

Before me,

PERCIVAL WILDS,
[SEAL.] Notary Public.

Deposition of Edward W. Hatch.

The Deposition of EDWARD W. HATCH. Taken in behalf of the Defendant, Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, subject to the objections and exceptions of counsel for the complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be found at pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. Edward W. Hatch; fifty-six years old; legal residence, Buffalo, N. Y., domiciled in New York city and practising law therein.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. Lawyer, 3 South William street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar at Buffalo in the state of New York, in June, 1876. I have been engaged in the practice of the law in the state of New York continuously since my admission to the bar. I at first practised law alone, then formed a co-partnership with Thomas Corlett, afterwards a judge of the Supreme Court of the state of New York, in the city of Buffalo. Upon his election to the Supreme Court bench I entered the firm of Box, Hatch & Norton, and continued in that relation for about three years. In 1905 I became associated with a firm of lawyers in the city of New York under the firm name of Parker, Hatch & Sheehan, and have continued the practice of law in that firm since that time, and am so presently engaged.

987 Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held?

A. I was elected district attorney of Erie county in 1880, for a term of three years, and was re-elected to the succeeding term of three years, which expired on the 31st day of December, 1886. I was then elected a judge of the Superior Court of Buffalo for a term of fourteen years, and served therein until the last of December, 1895, when I resigned, having, in 1895, been elected a justice of the Supreme Court of the state of New York. I was appointed, on the 1st day of January, 1896, by Governor Morton, a judge of the appellate division of the Supreme Court for the second department, such court sitting in the city of Brooklyn, and served therein as an associate justice of such court until in April, 1900, when I was transferred, by Governor Roosevelt, to the appellate division in the first department, sitting in the city of New York, where I served as an associate justice of such court until the 30th day of September, 1905, when I resigned as a Supreme Court justice of the state of New York, and entered upon the practice of law in the firm of Parker, Hatch & Sheehan.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. In my service upon the bench and at the bar, I have frequently had occasion to consider the subject matters embraced within this interrogatory, and have written several opinions discussing the legal phases of such questions, and have argued such questions before the courts of the state of New York upon a number of occasions.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed, and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with 988 the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to: admitted: exception.—See pages 945–950.]

A. I think it would be a bar; I think it would be res adjudicata of the question, and a bar to such action if properly pleaded.

Q. 7. Assuming that the two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. In my opinion it would constitute a bar to the same.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. Yes.

989 Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion the effect of the decree would be to constitute a bar to any action against either Lewisohn's executors or Bigelow.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The fact that Bigelow participated in the defence of the action, although not a party thereto, would, in my opinion, simply emphasize the fact that the decree therein constituted a bar against further proceedings for that cause of action until the same should be 990 reversed or set aside; but the mere fact of participation in the defence of such action, in my opinion, would not, and does not, change the legal effect of the decree as a bar to the subsequent action; it would still be and remain a bar, whether Bigelow had participated in the defence or not.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. I have answered the 10th interrogatory that, assuming the facts therein, it constituted a bar against a subsequent action based upon the same matters. As a matter of law, the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, in that defence would not be to add to, or take away from, the strength of the adjudication as a bar to the subsequent action, although it would emphasize the relation between Bigelow and Lewisohn and their joint interest. Its legal effect, however, would not be changed; it would still remain a bar, whether Bigelow participated in the defence or not, and the fact of the knowledge of the plaintiff, while strengthening the legal position, would not, in my opinion, affect the result.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, 991 and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. It would constitute a bar thereto and be res adjudicata of such question, in my opinion.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the State of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof; assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, and the prayers thereof, relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts, and the prayers thereof, relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of 992 New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. In my opinion it would constitute a defence thereto and be res adjudicata of the question involved.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. It would not affect them at all. My opinion is that the decree of the federal court constitutes a binding adjudication of the questions involved therein, and that the court having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person had the power to render a valid judgment, and, so far as the plaintiff is concerned, such judgment became binding upon, and may be invoked in favor of, Bigelow, although not a party thereto, and upon the same facts, in an attempt by the same plaintiff to enforce the same cause of action against him, the decree of the federal court becomes in his favor a binding valid adjudication, whether he participated therein or not. The fact, however, of his participation, adds emphasis to the facts surrounding the transaction, in showing the identity of the subsequent cause of action and the person, but in legal effect, in my opinion, it constitutes a bar, whether he participated in the defence or not.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exceptions.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. My answer to this interrogatory is the same as the answer given to the last interrogatory.

993 Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. I annex hereto an opinion delivered after an examination of this case, as my reasons in the law for the answers which I have given.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. It may or may not. A demurrer admits the facts averred in the complaint for the purpose of presenting questions of law to the court, but an answer interposed after the decision of the court which puts in issue the facts averred in the complaint, may change the whole application of the law, and the questions of law decided upon the demurrer may have very little application to the questions presented to the trial court for determination.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. It is scarcely possible to answer this question. As to the defendant's liability, ex delicto, a judgment against them is satisfied by the discharge of one, whether it be contribution or not, and there can be but one satisfaction, whether against one or the whole. I do not know of any principle which can compel contribution among wrongdoers. As to the actions upon contract, it may be enforced against one or all severally liable.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have assumed that the cause of action against Bigelow was precisely the same cause of action as against Lewisohn, the enforcement of which was sought by the same plaintiff.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said 994 defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. If by this question it is meant to propound what would be the legal rule if Lewisohn and Bigelow were joint debtors, then I have so considered it.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. It would have been a joint and several liability, in my opinion.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. It would have been a liability under the determination of the court of Massachusetts, as they occupied a fiduciary relation to the corporation, which they had betrayed. The liability would be ex delicto, if I understand that decision.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes, it is joint and several.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. Yes.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

995 A. They are always mutual in a sense; they are always required to be mutual in a sense, and that mutuality is absolute when a common plaintiff seeks to enforce a cause of action against persons jointly and severally liable where he procures service upon one in a court of competent jurisdiction and there litigates the questions upon which liability is to be determined as against both, and is defeated; in such a sense, then, the law recognizes the required mutuality when upon the same facts he attempts to proceed against the other person jointly and severally liable to enforce a recovery upon the same facts.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Yes, upon the same facts.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. Yes, upon the same facts.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have attached but little importance to Bigelow's participation in the defence. I have attached but little importance to this feature of the case, and, consequently, have not examined authorities, if any exist, bearing thereon.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have considered this question as a mere incident, and as not controlling upon the question of res adjudicata, and have not sought for authorities bearing thereon.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the 996 final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. They are cited in the opinion written by me attached to the 17th direct interrogatory, and many other authorities not cited in the opinion; those upon which I relied, however, are therein referred to.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewishon's executors?

A. Yes.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. They are all either referred to in the opinion annexed to the 17th direct interrogatory, or are cited in the opinion in the cases of which the title is given. There are a number of other cases that I have examined, the names of which I do not now recall, and there is no library now present to which I can make reference.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. Some authorities were submitted to me from Mr. Lauterbach's office, and some statement of what they held accompanied them, but no extended argument of the question was contained in any brief which I examined. I have made a general examination of the subject, both for and against the proposition.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. The answer to the 19th cross-interrogatory answers this interrogatory.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. Where a plaintiff brings an action against one only of two parties jointly and severally liable, and against such person and in such action is defeated in his recovery, and judgment absolute passed against him, and thereafter in another action the same plaintiff, upon the same facts, attempts to enforce the same claim against the other party jointly and severally liable, such last-named party stands in privity to the first judgment.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 24. In considering whether there was an estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. Yes.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

997 A. I have not assumed that Bigelow had any legal interest in the Lewisohn suit during its prosecution. The legal interest which I have assumed that he had was after the judgment was pronounced against the plaintiff upon the facts set up in the complaint.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. He had no legal interest to defend in that suit necessarily, because the estoppel of that judgment would not operate to cut him off from any defence which he had, but it did operate to bar the plaintiff therein, after its defeat, from maintaining an action against Bigelow upon those same facts, and upon the same facts in an action against Bigelow the judgment would operate as an estoppel against him; his defence would need to consist in new matter, else he would not have it.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. This interrogatory is answered by the answer last preceding.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. I cannot answer this question with any degree of certainty or satisfaction to myself, as I have not examined that question; my impression of the law is that such judgment would not be admissible against the co-trespasser unless the facts upon which the judgment was based in both actions were the same.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other, because torts are joint and several?

A. I cannot answer the question at this time.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. Yes.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it by way of estoppel?

A. Not if the subsequent action is based upon the same facts which defeated the former.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you as-998 sumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I did not put my opinion upon the doctrine of agency.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. There might have been such relations.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. I cannot conceive of such a case upon the same facts unless there be a recovery upon the part of the plaintiff, and I do not now recall of any such authority in the state of New York where such a case as supposed exists.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Substantially, yes.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I have nothing to answer to this interrogatory than what I have already stated.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. The answer to this interrogatory is the same as to the last.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. No.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes, except the 8th and 9th cross-interrogatories, which I declined to answer until I could re-examine the case in the 188th Massachusetts, and the answers to those two interrogatories were suspended until I could make such examination. The remainder of the interrogatories were therefore propounded before such examination was made and the 8th and 9th cross-interrogatories answered.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

999

A. No.

EDWARD W. HATCH.

Before me,

PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

This is the opinion referred to by witness in his answer to direct interrogatory 17th.

[SEAL.]

PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

"COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS:

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING CO.
v.
ALBERT S. BIGELOW.

"The bill of complaint in this case is in every substantial respect the same as the bill of complaint of this plaintiff against Frederick Lewisohn et al. brought in the United States court held in and for the southern district of New York.

"Therein a demurrer was interposed to the bill of complaint upon the ground, among others, that the complainant failed to state a cause of action and the demurrer was sustained; the case was carried to the Circuit Court of Appeals, where the judgment was affirmed, and, by writ of certiorari, reached the Supreme Court of the United States, where the decree appealed from was affirmed, and it does not appear that any leave was given to plead over, in consequence of which the judgment became final and absolute; and it was then and there conclusively and distinctly adjudicated that, upon the facts appearing in the complaint, the plaintiff had no cause of action against the defendants therein named.

"The question now arising is whether an action in the state court of the state of New York can be maintained upon the same facts as set forth in the bill of complaint in the federal court. In other words, is the determination of the Supreme Court of the United States res adjudicata of the questions therein involved and binding upon parties and privies thereto as a final and conclusive adjudication?

"In this opinion it is unnecessary to rehearse the facts of the case. For present purposes it is sufficient to say that the defendant Lewisohn in the federal court and the defendant Bigelow in the Massachusetts court stand upon exactly the same footing, so far as liability is concerned, for the things charged against them.

1000 The facts upon which liability could be established, if the law permitted it, are precisely the same in one case as in the other, and whatever defence is possessed by Lewisohn is also possessed by Bigelow. No distinction can be drawn, either of law or fact, as between these two persons. In the case of Lewisohn it has been held that the facts averred, neither at law or in equity, created any liability against him. It would seem to follow that such fact having been established by a binding adjudication, rendered by a court having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person, would be conclusive upon the same party plaintiff in that action who proceeded against Bigelow upon the same facts.

"The bills of complaint in each of the above-mentioned cases are quite voluminous. They have been fully set out in the decision of the court of Massachusetts, and in the Supreme Court of the United States, and therefore it is not needful that we rehearse them here.

"The plaintiff in the present case seems to occupy the position of enforcing a plain right of its own and also of enforcing such right as it may represent existing in other persons who would profit by any judgment which it might obtain.

"The defendant, Lewisohn, if he were sued in the state courts of the state of New York, if well advised, would immediately plead in bar judgment rendered in his favor by the federal court, and I am unable to see why such plea would not be effectual in bar of the action.

"In Embury v. Conner, 3 N. Y. 511-522, it was held:

" 'The general rule is, that an allegation on record, upon which issue has been once taken and found, and a judgment has been rendered, is, between the parties taking it and their privies, conclusive, according to the finding thereof, so as to estop the parties respectively from again litigating that fact once so tried and found; whether it is pleaded in bar or given in evidence.'

"See Leavitt v. Wolcott, 95 Id. 212.

"And such judgment, it is said, is 'Res adjudicata and therefore binding upon all the world.'

"Park Hill Co. v. Herriott, 41 App. Div. 324.

"Taking the situation as it exists, it conclusively appears that the relation of Lewisohn and Bigelow is precisely alike, both in 1001 fact and in law, whether there be applied thereto legal or equitable principles. Both were promoters of the same scheme, both were sharers in the ultimate results, both hold the property which they received from the beginning to the end by precisely the same tenure, and obtained the same by the same means.

"Assume that the facts created between the corporation or the subscribers to the stock or to others a fiduciary relation, and, for present purposes, assume that their acts were wrongful; they would then stand in the relation to those to whom they were required to respond as trustees by construction, either in the ordinary relation of trustee and cestui trust or as trustees ex maleficio.

"Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349.

"Matter of Will of O'Hara, 95 Id. 403.

"Under such circumstances how could it be possible to say that the complainant could pursue one trustee and be defeated by a binding solemn adjudication in one tribunal having jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the person, and then in another tribunal or in another action pursue the other trustee upon the same facts and precisely the same grounds and be unaffected by the judgment which had bound his co-trustee? Such, it is believed, is not the law of the state of New York.

"In Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329, it was said by one of the most learned judges that the state of New York ever produced, that 'The well settled rule on this subject is that the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction upon a question directly involved in the suit is conclusive in a second suit between the same parties depending upon the same question although the subject matter of the second action is different.'

"Therein the rule was applied where a prior adjudication had been had between a different party and the defendant, but it was held that as the facts involved in the second action were the same as the first, such party stood in privity to such judgment and consequently it was binding upon him. A long line of authorities support this principle.

"Western R. R. Co. v. Nolan, 49 N. Y. 513.

"Matter of Estate of Strout, 126 N. Y. 201.

"Lawrence v. Schaffer, 19 Misc. 239. (Affirmed 20 App. Div. 80.)

"Applying the doctrine of these cases to the present situation, it would necessarily follow that where trustees exist, no matter 1002 what their character, where liability is to be determined upon a given state of facts, and where the respective litigations relate to the same matter and there could be no change, the result in a determination by one court of competent jurisdiction that no liability exists, must remain the law of that case until reversed, and is binding upon all parties and privies in connection therewith, and the party who as a co-trustee or particeps in that transaction may avail himself of such judgment is a privity thereto as against the same plaintiff who defeated in one action, seeks to enforce liability in another. I know of no exception to such rule.

"In the present case the plaintiff was defeated in an attempt to enforce a claimed cause of action by a decisive and final adjudication. That adjudication is binding as against it to enforce the same cause of action against another individual upon the same facts no matter in what court such attempt be made. The rule in such cases is not that of stare decisis but of res adjudicata.

EDWARD W. HATCH."

Deposition of Charles F. Brown.

The Deposition of Charles F. Brown, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant, Bigelow, and Filed by his Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Charles F. Brown; I am sixty-four years of age; I reside at Newburgh, Orange county, N. Y.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a lawyer; my office is at No. 60 Wall street in the city of New York.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar in the month of May, 1868, in the state of New York. I was a member of the firm of Cassiday & Brown, practising my profession at Newburgh, N. Y., from that date until the 31st day of December, 1882; I have also practised my profession in the city of New York from some time in the month of March, 1897, until the present time. I have been admitted also to practice in the Circuit Court of the United States for the 1003 Southern District of New York, and also in the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington. Since resuming practice in 1897, I have had no connection with any other lawyer or firm.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I have held the position of district attorney and county judge of the county of Orange, state of New York, and justice of the Supreme Court of the state of New York, and during a period of four years I was a member of the second division of the Court of Appeals of the state of New York.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York, relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. Well, I am familiar with the law and usages covering the practice in the state of New York and in the federal courts of New York, both in law and equity; I am familiar with the law and usages in the state relating to former adjudications and estoppel by judgment; I have derived this familiarity during my practice as an attorney at law, and also during my service as judge.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. It would be conclusive, in my judgment, against the plaintiff in the similar action, if that is the term used there, and would bar any recovery by the plaintiff therein.

1004 Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed, and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It would be conclusive against the plaintiff in the similar actions, and bar any recovery by the plaintiff in those actions.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. Yes.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

1005 Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It would be conclusive against the plaintiff in the actions against Bigelow.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It wouldn't change my answer; I do not attach any weight or importance to the facts set out in the 11th interrogatory.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. I would answer this interrogatory the same as I answered the last.

1006 Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. I think it would be conclusive against the plaintiff, and would bar any recovery by the plaintiff against Bigelow.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, and the prayers, thereof, relate to one part of an entire transaction, comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts, and the prayers thereof, relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory

1007

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. It would be conclusive against the plaintiff, and a bar to any recovery against Bigelow.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. My answer would be the same; I do not attach any importance or weight to the facts stated in the 15th interrogatory.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defend-1008 ant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. My answer to this interrogatory is the same as that to the preceding one.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. The reasons for the opinion I have expressed in answer to the 10th, 13th, and 14th interrogatories are as follows:—

First. As to the effect of the final judgment entered in favor of Lewisohn's executors in the federal court upon the plaintiff's right to prosecute and recover against Bigelow in the action in Massachusetts wherein it is sought to rescind the sale of the parcels of real estate conveyed to the plaintiff by Lewisohn and recover 30,000 shares of stock issued therefor.

In the transaction upon which both of these actions are based Lewisohn was a trustee for Bigelow and his agent. The allegation of the bill is that Bigelow and Lewisohn, or the two in conjunction for their common benefit, acquired the real estate from Keyser for the same consideration paid for the shares of stock, and that said real estate was conveyed by Keyser to Lewisohn for the common benefit of Lewisohn and Bigelow.

The judgment rendered in favor of Lewisohn's executors upon the demurrer is conclusive upon the plaintiff in any action against Bigelow based upon the same facts upon which recovery was sought against said executors.

This is clearly so, in my opinion, on the ground that a judgment in favor of a trustee or agent is binding upon and inures to the benefit of the beneficiary of the trust or the principal.

Second. As to the effect of the judgment upon both actions pending against Bigelow in the courts of Massachusetts.

Bigelow and Lewisohn stood in mutual relationship to the property and transaction which is made the basis of a recovery in all the actions. They were partners in the enterprise of acquiring the property of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City and in selling it to the plaintiff. If there was any wrong done in the transaction, Bigelow and Lewisohn were joint wrongdoers.

Such is the allegation of all the bills. The acts are alleged to have been joint acts done pursuant to a conspiracy between Bigelow 1009 and Lewisohn, and to have been wrongful towards the plaintiff and to the future stockholders therein. The specific allegation is that they "conspired to carry out said plan and thereby injured said corporation to be formed as aforesaid [meaning the plaintiff] and the future stockholders in said corporation and to secure for themselves as the promoters and organizers thereof, a large secret profit."

Upon these allegations it is plain that as a legal conclusion Lewisohn could not be held innocent and Bigelow guilty, or that a right to recover damages could exist against Bigelow and not against Lewisohn.

Consequently a judgment in favor of Lewisohn, that the fact alleged in the suit in which the demurrer was sustained created no cause of action, is conclusive against the plaintiff in an action against Bigelow.

Otherwise, we would have two rules of law applied to the same transaction, and diverse legal conclusions against the two alleged wrongdoers arising out of the same facts.

The judgment in favor of Lewisohn's executors is conclusive that in the sale of the property to the plaintiff there was nothing illegal and no wrong done to the plaintiff by either Bigelow and Lewisohn, for, considering the mutual relationship of the parties to the transaction and to the property sold to the plaintiff, if wrong had been done by Bigelow, Lewisohn would have been liable therefor and the demurrer would have been overruled.

Bigelow would clearly have had a right to appear and defend the 300,000 share action in the federal court. He was interested in the subject matter and the legality of his own acts was a subject of judicial inquiry.

The rule of res adjudicata is that the deliberate judgment of a competent tribunal having jurisdiction of a subject matter, is, upon the same state of facts, final and conclusive of the question litigated between the parties and those in privity with them, and forever sets the controversy at rest.

In the application of this rule, the term "parties" is not confined to the parties to the action, but includes all parties to the transaction which was the subject of investigation by the tribunal rendering the judgment.

In the interrogatories addressed to me the same facts are made the basis of a right to recover in the 100,000 share suit as in the 30,000 share suit, the variation existing only as to the specific property conveyed to the plaintiff.

Considering the mutual relation-ship of Bigelow and Lewisohn to the transaction and to the property, the judgment of the 1010 federal court in the action upon the demurrer is final and conclusive as to the title to the property—as to the legality of the transaction—and as to the alleged wrongdoing of both Bigelow and Lewisohn.

The decided cases in the New York court sustain the opinions I have expressed, and the reasons I have stated lead me also to answer the 6th and 7th interrogatories as I have done.

Cross-interrogatories:

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. If a demurrer is overruled in the state of New York ordinarily the defendant is given leave to answer, and the case is then heard upon the issues that are raised upon the bill of complaint and the answer. If, however, the answer raises no other question of fact, except such as appeared upon the face of the bill of complaint, why, then, the judgment of the Court of Appeals would be conclusive, and would state the law of the case.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. As a general proposition I think it is; but there are some exceptions to the rule.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have not assumed that he would be under any liability to the plaintiff, but I have assumed that the liability which Bigelow and Lewisohn would sustain to the plaintiff would be the same, and that each would be responsible for each other's acts.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. I have.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing 1011 the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. In my opinion, upon the allegations of the bill, Lewisohn and Bigelow are jointly and severally liable; each is liable for the other's acts.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. In my opinion it would.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. Yes.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. I don't think of any at the present moment.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Yes.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

1012 A. I think they would not; I think the judgment would not have been conclusive upon them in the sense of its being a bar or estoppel against them, but I think the court would undoubtedly have followed the law that was decided in the Bigelow case, assuming the two suits to have been in the same jurisdiction.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I don't think the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors operates as an estoppel against plaintiff, because Bigelow appeared and took part in the defence; I do not rest my opinion upon any such ground, and I have so stated in my answers to the direct interrogatories.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in NewYork you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. My answer to the preceding interrogatory answers this interrogatory.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Well, I have given no special examination of authorities upon this subject, but I think the case of Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329, is an authority which sustains my opinion; also the cases of—

Tyng v. Clarke, 9 Hun, 269.
In the Matter of Straut, 126 N. Y. 201.
King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267.
People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; affirmed 71 N. Y. 527.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decrees in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not.

1913 X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. I have not.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. No.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. Succession in title to the property involved; succession in blood, or succession in contract. As, for instance, a judgment determining the title to a piece of land would be conclusive as to all purchasers subsequent to the judgment; subsequent purchasers would be said to be in privity with the original parties.

1139

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. I do not think, in the strict sense of the term, that Bigelow can be said to be in privity with Lewisohn's executors; I put my opinion upon the ground that they are parties to the same transaction and that the same liability attaches to one as attaches to the other upon the facts that are alleged in the several bills of complaint.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I think he had a legal interest to defend, inasmuch as the charge made in the bill against Lewisohn involved his acts, and involved the title to the property which he purchased and conveyed, or caused to be conveyed, to the plaintiff.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. I have answered this interrogatory in my answer to the preceding interrogatory.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. I think he had a right to appear and defend that suit, one which the courts of the state of New York would recognize and would have permitted him to intervene and serve an answer and defend. I have already stated that I do not think that a judgment in favor of the plaintiff against Lewisohn's executors in another action to which Bigelow was not a party could be said to be conclusive against him or estop him from denying the facts upon which the recovery was sought, but I also am of opinion that the judgment would have been strong evidence of his liability, and the law involved in the judgment would probably have been followed by the court in an action against Bigelow.

1014

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. I have already answered this question in response to the 24th, 25th, and 26th cross-interrogatories.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I do not attach any weight to the fact that the plaintiff consented to the participation by Bigelow in support of the demurrer of Lewisohn's executors.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. I think the recovery against one defendant is not competent evidence against the other in the case stated.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. A judgment in favor of one of two persons who are alleged to be jointly and severally liable for a wrongful conversion of plaintiff's property is a bar to a subsequent suit against the other upon the same state of facts alleged in the suit against the defendant in whose favor the judgment was rendered.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. It is a principle that the judgment operates as an estoppel between those who are parties and those who are in privity with them; ordinarily estoppel must be mutual.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. No.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. No; I have given no consideration to that fact.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for 1015 Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. No; I have not considered the question of agency or trusteeship further than I have stated in my answer to the 17th direct interrogatory.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. No.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Yes.

X 37. If not what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I refer to my answer to the preceding interrogatory.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Yes.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. I was not.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories, or in your answers thereto?

A. No.

CHARLES F. BROWN.

Before me, this 28th day of September, A. D. 1908.

[SEAL.] H. M. HEWSON,
Notary Public, Westchester County.

Certificate filed in New York County.

Deposition of Martin L. Stover.

The Deposition of Martin L. Stover, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant Bigelow, and Filed by his Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant 1016 the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Martin L. Stover; I am sixty-two years of age, and I reside in New York city.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am an attorney and counsellor at law, and do business at No. 60 Wall street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected?

A. I was admitted to the bar in 1870 at Albany in the state of New York, and have practised law from that time until the present, except during the fourteen years when I was on the bench of the Supreme Court of the state of New York. I am now connected with the firm of Stover, Hull & Freeman.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I have been a member of the legislature of the state of New York, and was, for fourteen years, from 1892 to 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of the state of New York.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. During my term as justice of the court, I sat at trial terms and for two years in the appellate division of the fourth department of the state of New York, and had such experience as would come from the position which I held.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

1017

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. My opinion is that it would be a complete bar.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence of two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to, admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I think the latter action would be barred by the judgment in the former action.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in 1018 the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to-wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I have.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven and in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my judgment it would be a complete defence and bar to the maintenance of the latter action.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

1019 A. I should regard it as a circumstance to be considered in the matter, and of some weight, and particularly if such participation and expenditure was done with the knowledge of the complainant in the action.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. As I have stated in my former answer, I think that is a circumstance that may properly be considered in judging the situation, but I should not, however, consider it a controlling consideration.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts, were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

1020 A. I think it would be a complete defence.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. I think it would be a complete defence.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence 1021 thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. I should say that it was a circumstance to be considered.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. I should not consider it a controlling circumstance, but I should say that other circumstances of the case would make a complete defence even without such a consideration as that—in other words, I should say that, while the expenditure of money and participation in the expense was a matter proper to be considered, it is not of such controlling effect as, of itself, to determine the question either one way or the other.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to Ints. 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. I can briefly state the reason in this way: that while there are many rules and restrictions, distinguished according to the circumstances of each particular case, in which a former adjudication may be pleaded as a bar, yet, in my judgment, the underlying principle really governing former adjudications is, primarily, that the party seeking to enforce a remedy or to right a wrong shall have a full opportunity to present his case to the court and to have it properly passed upon, or, as is generally expressed, that he shall have his day in court, and having had this opportunity, and having once presented this matter to the court, that question, so far as regards him, is settled, and the judgment is available against him by any one who stands in the like position, as the defendants in the suit which has been heard. This last proposition, the one of privity, is, of course, subject to many distinctions, but the general rule governing that is that all persons in privity with the successful party in the first litigation are entitled to the protection of the judgment. So much for the general proposition involved. As to the particular cases here involved, it seems to me that it would be impossible for the complainant to present a case against one of the defendants, that is, either Bigelow or Lewisohn, without involving the other to 1022 the same extent and in the same manner; in which case, in order to establish his cause of action against either of the defendants, he must necessarily involve the other, and that the action of each is a necessary part of the cause of action against either. A judgment which determines that the action of both of these defendants does not constitute a cause of action in favor of the plaintiff against either of them, necessarily determines that no cause of action exists, and the plaintiff, having been heard, is bound thereafter as to any party acting with or under the direction of the defendant against whom the action was brought.

These are some of the controlling features of the case, but are not by any means an exhaustive statement of the principles and reasoning governing the matters involved.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. A final judgment upon a demurrer is an adjudication that the facts are as alleged, and, assuming those facts to be true, no cause of action exists.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. Generally, that is the rule.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. If I understand the question aright, there could be no such condition as a judgment that there is no cause of action, and yet that the same state of facts might constitute a cause of action. If they do not constitute a cause of action against Lewisohn, they would not constitute a cause of action against Bigelow, and that the same questions presented in the same manner against Bigelow would result in the same judgment as against Lewisohn.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. If I understand the question, there might have been a joint liability, but the question as to the joint liability is not necessarily controlling.

1023 X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered such features of the case.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. I have considered all of the facts, and have considered that the pleader may have undertaken to allege a cause of action ex delicto.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered that the pleader may have intended to set forth a cause of action ex delicto against Lewisohn and Bigelow, jointly and severally.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I have not the Massachusetts case at hand, and would not like to hazard an opinion without an examination of the case.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I have not the Massachusetts case at hand, and am not able to give an opinion upon the case without an examination for that purpose.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. It is.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. I do not understand it so.

1024 X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. I should say they need not be mutual in any case where the complainant has been fully heard and the party who is in any relation of privity towards the successful litigant is sought to be held for the same cause of action which has once been adjudicated in favor of the party under whom or through whom privity is claimed, and this notwithstanding that the party seeking to avail himself of the prior adjudication was not a party to the record and not even bound by its judgment.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. It is my opinion that he would be so estopped.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said exectuors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. It is my opinion that they would be estopped. I regard the fact of Bigelow's participation in that former action as a circumstance merely, and not controlling.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's exectuors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. There are authorities of this character. I have not the authorities at hand, but would be glad to furnish them to counsel if counsel would give me the opportunity to do so.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's exectuors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowedge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have not the authorities at hand that I have considered, nor am I able at this time to give them. I have examined the questions, but I have not the memorandum of all the authorities that I consulted and am not able at this time, without some examination, to give the authorities that I did consult.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the de-
1025 fence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. My answer to this cross-interrogatory is the same as to the 16th cross-interrogatory. While I have not a memorandum of the authorities I have examined, I shall be glad to furnish counsel with such authorities if counsel desire it, upon having an opportunity to obtain them.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's exectuors?

A. The best answer I can make to this question is that during my examination of the question as to the effect of a former adjudication, I examined a great number of authorities, some tending to the view of the privities required, others to mutuality, and a great number of cases decided upon varying circumstances, each case being, of course, dependent upon the particular circumstances surrounding it. It would be next to impossible, within the limits of an examination of this character, to undertake a digest or synopsis of the cases examined.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. My answer is the same as to the last cross-interrogatory.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in supoprt of the view that there was, by the law of New York, no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have received no such argument from the defendant's counsel: I have given the facts of this case consideration and have examined the authorities, and in the course of such examination and consideration, I have necessarily considered that there were differences of opinion with reference to the situation, and have given such considerations as occurred to me, or have been suggested by any examination, such weight as I have deemed them entitled to.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. It would be impossible for me now to recall the various circumstances surrounding the cases that I examined or the suggestions that occurred to me during the examination.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. In my judgment, privity, within the rule relating to the conclusiveness of judgment, means the relation to the rights of property and participation in interest in respect to any action, or thing, or connection existing, or arising from an interest in which the parties are interested or affected alike.

1026 X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's exectuors?

A. I have considered that Bigelow was in privity within the rule with the parties of record.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I think that he had the same interest that parties affected alike in a litigation or in the result of a transaction might have, and that his interest in the Lewisohn suit was such that he might have a legal right to intervene, and if the word "legal" in the question is limited to the technical legal result in the action, I should say that his legal interest in the particular action would affect the procurement of a favorable decision.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. I have, perhaps, anticipated, by my former answer, the answer to this question. He had a legal interest to protect the enterprise which he was jointly charged with being interested in with Lewisohn, and his legal interest in his cause of action, or upon the cause of action upon which the action was based, was such, I think, as would entitle him to have become a party to the record.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of a suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. I think he may have had a legal interest that he might have defended; whether he was bound to defend or not might be another question.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. The legal interest that he had was that he was sought to be charged jointly with Lewisohn; that the situation was such that a hostile adjudication might have embarrassed him and affected his interest.

X 28. In determining whether there was an estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrer of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I do not consider the defendant, Bigelow's participation at all controlling, whether consented to or not, as in my judgment the estoppel is complete without such participation.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with 1027 the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. The recovery against one co-trespasser is not competent evidence against another.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. The general rule is that a judgment against one joint tort feasor is not a bar to an action against another joint tort feasor.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. It need not necessarily be mutual.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. That is not the inexorable rule.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I have not considered them as agents.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I have taken the view that whether Lewisohn was considered a trustee of Bigelow or not in his acts, or whether they were simply considered as acting jointly in a transaction each for the other, the conclusion, to my mind, would be the same.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. The question involves various situations. The courts of New York state dispose of all the rights of the parties when they are before them and adjust the equities between them, and a judgment entered thereon may or may not be conclusive as to other parties, depending upon questions of privity and various other considerations that are apt to be raised in questions involving prior adjudication.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

1028

A. I believe I have stated that I have not undertaken to state all of the considerations that enter into them, as it is hardly practicable within the limits of this examination.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I will answer the question in a general way. In addition to what I have already stated, on direct examination, as to the reasons which have led me to the conclusion that the transactions are identical, there can be no liability of one party without the liability of the other, if it be said that the parties are acting, as the complainant alleges, in a conspiracy. There could hardly be a conspiracy without the joint assent of the two parties; and that, if the state of facts which the New York courts have assumed to be true, and have stated did not constitute a cause of action in any aspect of the case, or upon any construction which could be put upon the bill, it must bar that so far as the plaintiff and Lewisohn are concerned. In no court in the country, therefore, could Lewisohn be called to account for the transactions set up in that action. Second and again, as I stated heretofore in this examination, that, in my judgment, there was that privity with Lewisohn and Bigelow, such independent relation and such joint interest, joint duty, if any, towards the complainant, and altogether such a joint relation, as necessarily constituted them privy within the legal definition. That the complainant recognizes this situation by alleging the fact that the residence of the two parties was in different jurisdictions, as by way of excuse in making each a party to the bill against the other; that the transaction was such that brought it within the rule laid down in Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 63, in which this rule is stated:

"Thus it is settled by repeated decisions that the general rule that one may not have the benefit of a judgment as an estoppel unless he would have been bound by it had it been the other way, is subject to recognized exceptions, one of which is that in actions of tort such as trespass, if the defendant's responsibility is necessarily dependent upon the culpability of another who was the immediate actor, and who in an action against him by the same plaintiff for the same tort, has been adjudged not culpable, the defendant may have the benefit of that judgment as an estoppel, even though he would not have been bound by it had it been the other way. And we think it could not well be otherwise, for when the plaintiff has litigated directly with the immediate actor, the claim that he was culpable, and upon the full opportunity thus afforded for its legal investigation, the claim has been adjudged against the plaintiff, there 1029 is manifest propriety and no injustice in holding that he is thereby concluded from making it the basis of a right of recovery from another who is not otherwise responsible."

In that case the plaintiff and the defendant owned adjoining mines. Defendant leased its properties to one Burbridge. Plaintiff claimed that Burbridge took ores from the property of the plaintiff. In an action brought by the plaintiff against Burbridge and his associates there was a verdict in favor of the defendants and against the plaintiff. A subsequent action was brought against the defendant, Stratton's Independence; and it was claimed that they were the recipients of the ore, and had ratified the acts of Burbridge and his associates. The court there held that the former action was a bar.

And in the Emma Silver Mining Company's case, reported in 7 Fed. Rep. 401, where an agent was sued, after the termination of his agency, and upon the trial of the merits the agency was determined against the plaintiff, the principal, though not a party to the suit, was held to be entitled to avail himself of the judgment as a bar when he was sued by the same plaintiff on the same cause of action."

There are a great many adjudications upon the subject of former adjudications, rights of privies, and other questions that naturally arise, and each case must be judged upon the facts and circumstances surrounding it. In my judgment, as I have stated during the course of this examination, the primal requisite is that the plaintiff shall have one opportunity to be heard in court and fairly test the question as to the liability of the defendant, and that the object of the rule was to prevent successive litigation of the same question, either between the same parties or parties who ought, in all fairness, to be entitled to the benefit of the judgment; that when the plaintiff in this action has had an adjudication that, under no construction which could be put upon his pleading, had he a cause of action, it was an adjudication upon those facts which bound him and all parties connected therewith, at least such as he himself had alleged in his bill of complaint was necessarily connected therewith. It has seemed to me that in the case in hand the adjudication of the New York court was necessarily an adjudication that there was no cause of action existing in favor of the plaintiff. As the only parties against whom he claimed a cause of action to exist were Bigelow and Lewisohn, and the only cause of action which he claimed against them is the one set forth in each of the bills of complaint, the bills being identical, and in my judgment, under this state of facts, I consider the judgment a bar. These are the principal reasons for my opinion as stated above.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

1030 A. I think I have stated substantially, at one time or another during my examination, my reasons for my opinion. I have not cited precedents, as it is not practicable for me to do so on this examination.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. I have not had any information of the interrogatories until they were read to me during this examination, and I have only known of them as they have been read to me consecutively during the examination.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. I have answered each cross-interrogatory before knowing anything about the following ones, and I believe my answers are in the same form except necessary verbal corrections.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. I have had no discussion whatever with either of the parties named.

M. L. STOVER.

Before me,

PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

[NOTARIAL SEAL.]

Deposition of John B. Stanchfield.

The Deposition of John B. Stanchfield, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant Bigelow and Filed by His Counsel Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. John B. Stanchfield; age, fifty-three; technical residence, Elmira, N. Y., actual residence, the Hoffman House, New York city.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

1031 A. My profession is that of a lawyer, and I have an office for the transaction of business at Elmira, N. Y., and at No. 5 Nassau street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected?

A. According to my best recollection, I was admitted to the bar of New York in the fall of 1879; I have been actively engaged in the practice of law since that date in the state of New York. From 1877 to 1882 I was in the office, at Elmira, N. Y., of David B. Hill as clerk, and subsequently, during portion of that time, as partner engaged in the practice of the law under the firm name of Hill & Stanchfield; afterwards I became, and am now, at Elmira, N. Y., the head of the firm of Reynolds, Stanchfield & Collin, and am engaged in the practice of the law at New York in my individual name, with no partnership relations.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I have never held any judicial place. From about the time of my admission to the bar, and for six years thereafter, I was the prosecuting officer of Chemung county. I have filled different political offices since that time.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I have had occasion, during my professional career, to examine the law of New York in regard to the effect of former judgments and the circumstances under which the doctrine of estoppel and res adjudicata can be availed of by litigants.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor 1032 of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence of a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be held to be a bar on the ground that the controversy raised by the second suit had already been judicially determined in the first suit.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted, exception.—See Pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion the decree would be a bar to the two similar actions, for the same reasons stated in my answer to the 6th interrogatory?

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of 1033 New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to K, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. Yes.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion said decree and record would be, under the law and usages of the state of New York, a good and valid defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending, for the reason that the decree in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company against Lewisohn is a final adjudication of the controversy raised by the pleadings in the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company against Bigelow.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executor's in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof
1034 through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion the additional facts assumed in the 11th interrogatory constitute an element which materially strengthens the validity of the Lewisohn decree as a defence under the authority of Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. 67, at page 71.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. The additional assumption contained in the 12th interrogatory adds cumulative weight, in my opinion, to the validity of the Lewisohn decree as a defence, although I do not consider that lack of knowledge on the part of the plaintiff of such participation of both parties in the defence of the Lewisohn case would necessitate any change in my answer to the 11th interrogatory.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint
1035 in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. In my judgment said decree and record would constitute a valid defence to the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory, for the reason that it would constitute a prior adjudication of the same controversy involved in the cause numbered 8098, within the decisions of the courts of this state, on the subject of former adjudications as constituting a bar to future litigation. My reason for such opinion is, briefly, that it clearly appears from the two records that the facts set forth in the two bills of complaint are identical, the transaction involved is the same, the property involved is the same, the relief demanded is the same, and that the situation brings the case squarely within the doctrine that the courts will not permit a second adjudication of the same controversy. I am materially strengthened in this view by the fact that it appears that the transaction upon which both suits are based was in the name of Lewisohn, who was, therefore, in my opinion, under the New York statutes, trustee for Bigelow.

Under the New York Code of Civil Procedure, sec. 449:

"A trustee of an express trust may without joining with him the person for whose benefit the action is prosecuted. A person with whom or in whose name a contract is made for the benefit of another is a trustee of an express trust within the meaning of this Section."

It has been uniformly held that the application of this section extends to actions against trustees as well as actions brought by trustees. I am therefore of the opinion that Lewisohn was trustee, that Bigelow was privy to the Lewisohn suit, and that Bigelow's rights were judicially determined in that suit.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow 1036 identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory; and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Courts and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numberd 8099, dscribd in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. Inasmuch as the record described in the 8th interrogatory appears from my examination of it to set forth another transaction relative to the causes of action set forth in the cause numbered 8099, as well as that set forth in the cause numbered 8098, and in view of the additional fact that it clearly appears from the decree and record described in said 8th interrogatory that the United States Supreme Court passed upon the said entire transaction, it is, in my opinion, clear that the decree described in said 8th interrogatory settles the law for both causes 8098 and 8099, and that the bar arising from said decree applies to the cause numbered 8099
1037 as well as that numbered 8098. The reasoning contained in my answer to the 13th interrogatory applies, in my judgment, as well to the 14th interrogatory.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. The additional assumption contained in the 15th interrogatory strengthens my opinion that the decree described in the 8th interrogatory is a bar to the causes of action numbered 8098 and 8099.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949-950.]

A. The additional assumption contained in the 16th interrogatory adds additional strength, in my view, to the effect of the decree, described in the 8th interrogatory, as a bar.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. My reason for the answers given to the interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive, is based upon two grounds:

First. It is, in my opinion, not open to question that under section 449 of the New York Code of Civil Procedure, Lewisohn was a trustee on behalf of Bigelow in the transaction on which all of the suits are based, and that, under the same section as construed by the New York courts, an action against Lewisohn judicially determined the rights of Bigelow, so that the final decree in the suit against Lewisohn would be held to be a bar as against Bigelow were Bigelow sued in the New York courts.

1038 Second. While I believe that this first consideration, just stated, is, in itself, conclusive of the question, I am also of the opinion that, even if the transaction had not been in Lewisohn's name alone, still, inasmuch as the bills of complaint in the two New York suits are identical with the two bills of complaint in the Massachusetts suits, with the exception of unimportant differences of names, residences, and formal matters, differing because of the difference in practice, the entire transaction is the same, the property involved is the same, the questions of fact and law involved the same, the relief demanded the same; and that therefore the New York courts would hold that the decree, described in the 8th interrogatory, was a complete and absolute bar to the two causes, numbered 8098 and 8099, in the Massachusetts courts.

Cross-interrogatories:

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. It is the law of New York that a decision of a court of last resort on a demurrer determines the law upon the facts embodied in the pleadings to which the demurrer was interposed.

X 2. Is it the laws of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. In my judgment, yes.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. As I understand the purport of this question, my answer is, no.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. As I understand the purport of this question, my answer is, no.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. As I understand the purport of this question, my answer is, no.

1039 X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. As I understand the purport of this question, my answer is, no.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. As I understand the purport of this question, my answer is, no.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I have not had an opportunity to examine the decision referred to with such detail as to adequately answer the interrogatory.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that, under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer, reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn, if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I have not had an opportunity to examine the decision referred to with such detail as to adequately answer the interrogatory.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. It is not necessarily a principle of New York law that estoppel by a former adjudication must be mutual; such may or may not be the rule contingent upon the facts.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. I have had no opportunity to examine the case with a view to giving an intelligent answer to this interrogatory.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow 1040 would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. If final judgment were rendered against Lewisohn in the courts of New York upon the facts appearing in the bills of complaint in these actions, and Bigelow were thereafter sued on the same facts in the courts of New York, he would be estopped from denying liability thereon.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. In my judgment, yes.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Owing to the shortness of the notice given me, I have no time to furnish the detailed information called for by this interrogatory.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Owing to the shortness of the notice given me, I have no time to furnish the detailed information called for by this interrogatory.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Owing to the shortness of the notice given me, I have no time to furnish the detailed information called for by this interrogatory.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I know, at the present time, of no cases the trend of which would be to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor arising out of the Lewisohn decree.

1041 X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of those which you have considered?

A. My answer to the foregoing cross-interrogatory covers this question.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No arguments have been either submitted or suggested to me by counsel for the defence, nor have any presented themselves to me.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. My answer to the foregoing cross-interrogatory covers this question.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. A mutual relation to, connection with, and interest in the facts upon which a judgment is rendered is essential to constitute privity.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. My judgment is that, although not a party to the suit, he nevertheless had a legal interest to defend in the Lewisohn litigation.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. The facts charged Bigelow with being practically a partner in the transactions upon which liability against Lewisohn's estate was ought to be predicated; such allegations gave Bigelow a legal interest in the outcome of that controversy.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. Irrespective of whether or no Bigelow would have been bound by the judgment in favor of the plaintiff, in my opinion, he still had a legal interest that would warrant him in participating in the defence of the Lewisohn suit.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. If Bigelow was made aware of the facts alleged in the bill of complaint against Lewisohn in New York, and owing to his connection therewith, as alleged in the complaint, for the purpose of protecting his reputation and property, he invoked the power of the courts of New York to permit him to intervene in that action 1042 and defend the same with like effect as though he had been made a party thereto, such right would have been accorded him.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I do not consider the consent of the plaintiff to the participation of Bigelow as of vital consequence in arriving at the opinion I have heretofore expressed; but I have considered it.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. I have neither the time nor the opportunity to look up the technical rule as to whether or no a judgment against one defendant is competent evidence against the other; my judgment is that it would not be competent evidence.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. The question is not sufficiently clear to enable me to give an intelligent answer to it.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. Ordinarily this would be true, but there are many exceptions to the rule.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. If the facts alleged against a co-trespasser arose out of the same transaction and are pleaded identically the same, he could avail himself of a judgment in favor of a co-trespasser although he was not a party to the record in that suit.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. No.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. My opinion under the facts set up in the complaint against Lewisohn's executors is that Lewisohn was a trustee for Bigelow.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action
1043 at law against one or some of the several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. If the facts alleged in the complaint as to any of the joint tort feasors not before the court were the same as the facts in the case before the court, then, and in that event, the record before the court would be res adjudicata in the action against the remaining joint tort feasors.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Yes, according to the best of my recollection.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I do not, just at the moment, recall any supplemental reasons to those already expressed.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Limited by my answer to the preceding cross-interrogatory, yes.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. No.

X 40. Has each of your answers, in its final form, been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way, with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. No.

JOHN B. STANCHFIELD.

Before me,

PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

[SEAL.]

Deposition of William A. Keener.

The Deposition of William A. Keener, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant, Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

1041 Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. William A. Keener; age, fifty-two; 2 West 88th street, borough of Manhattan, New York City.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. Lawyer; 115 Broadway, borough of Manhattan, New York City.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar of the state of New York in 1879; I have been actively engaged in the practice of the law since that time except during the periods when I was a professor of law in the Harvard University and subsequently in Columbia University, during which times I acted, from time to time, as counsel. I began the practice of the law as a member of the firm of Ashley & Keener; afterwards I became a member of the firm of Hatch, Keener & Clute; later I became a member of the firm of Keener & Lewis, and am now a member of the firm of Keener, Lewis & Layng.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I was at one time a justice of the Supreme Court of the state of New York, by appointment of the governor of the state.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I was at one time a member of the law faculty of Harvard University, and subsequently a member of the law faculty of Columbia University, and dean of the law school. I have practised in the federal courts of New York state, in the federal courts of Pennsylvania, and have appeared in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Massachusetts, and have the information common to lawyers engaged in state and federal practice.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that 1045 the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar to such action.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters, to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It would, in my opinion, be a bar to such action.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewis-
1046 ohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. Yes.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It would, in my opinion, be a bar to such action.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. It would only confirm me in my answer.

1047 Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. It would not affect my answers at all.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to: admitted: exception.—See pages 945–950.]

A. It would, in my opinion, be a bar to such action.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bige-
1048 low, identical in all respects with the proceedings numbered 8099 referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to: admitted: exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. It would, in my opinion, be a bar to such action.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

1049 A. They would only confirm me in my opinion.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogaory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. It would not affect my answers at all.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. Albert S. Bigelow and Leonard Lewisohn were associated together in the joint promotion and sale of certain mining properties to the plaintiff. The plaintiff sued the executors of Leonard Lewisohn in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, complaining because of the fraud practised by Lewisohn and Bigelow upon the corporation in effecting the sales.

Bigelow was not made a party defendant to this suit, because of his absence from the jurisdiction, he being a resident of Massachusetts. It has been finally determined that Lewisohn did the corporation no injury, and that the plaintiff has no cause of action against him or his representatives, and a final judgment or decree has been entered accordingly. There is now pending in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts against Albert S. Bigelow two suits based on the identical facts which have been decided by the United States Supreme Court, in affirmance of the court below, to show no cause of action against Lewisohn.

In the action brought against Lewisohn in the federal court for the southern district of New York, the joint participation of Bigelow with Lewisohn in the fraud practised upon the plaintiff was alleged, and in the action brought in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, the participation of Lewisohn with Bigelow in the fraud practised upon the plaintiff is alleged. The facts throughout are identical, and the only apparent reason why Bigelow and Lewisohn were not joined in an action as defendants and thereby multiplicity of action saved, is that one resided in Massachusetts and the other in

New York. The facts in each case being identical, if Lewisohn did no wrong, then Bigelow did none.

I am asked for my opinion as to the effect of the decree in favor of Lewisohn were Bigelow sued in New York instead of in 1050 Massachusetts. No citation of authority is needed in support of the proposition that Lewisohn's executors could plead the decree of the federal court in bar of any action that might be brought by the plaintiff against them in the state court of New York. I have answered that in my opinion Bigelow could avail himself of the Lewisohn decree as a bar to any action brought against him in New York. It is true that he was not named as a party defendant in the Lewisohn suit, but his interests were of necessity involved in that action, and after notice from Lewisohn of its pendency, and after opportunity had been given him to join in the defence, he could not, as between Lewisohn and himself, have litigated any questions necessarily decided in that suit had the plaintiff been successful.

The Ocean Steam Navigation Co. v. Campania Transatlantica Espanola, 144 N. Y. 663, 665.
Carleton v. Lombard and others, 149 N. Y. 137–161.

Had the plaintiff been successful in the Lewisohn suit, and subsequently brought an action against Bigelow in New York, Bigelow could not have litigated between himself and the plaintiff the questions finally adjudicated in the Lewisohn suit as between Lewisohn and the plaintiff.

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Matter of the Estate of Straut, 126 N. Y. 201.

As Bigelow, in the event of the plaintiff's success in the Lewisohn suit, would have been precluded both as to Lewisohn and the plaintiff from litigating the questions therein raised, it would be the height of injustice, now that the plaintiff has failed, not to permit Bigelow to plead the Lewisohn decree as a bar to any action by the plaintiff in New York, and such, it is submitted, is not the law.

But, independent of the fact of Bigelow's participation in the defence of the Lewisohn suit, the relation of the parties to the transaction would preclude the plaintiff from suing successfully Bigelow in New York after the Lewisohn decree. The policy of the courts in New York is to give every suitor an opportunity to try a case on its merits, but it is also the policy of the courts not to encourage unnecessary litigation. When, therefore, a failure to establish a right against A necessarily negatives a right against B, because A was either a sole actor, or a joint actor with B, B can plead the judgment obtained by A in bar of any action brought against him by the plaintiff in the action in which A succeeded.

Featherstone v. N. & C. Turnpike Road, 71 Hun, 109.
People v. Stevens, 51 How. Pr. 235, 246.

1051 The New York rule is, in my opinion, well expressed in the language used by Judge Choate, in Emma Silver Mining Co.,

Limited, v. Emma Silver Mining Co. of New York and others, 7 Fed. Rep. 401, at page 407.

"It is contended on the part of the complainant that, whatever may be the effect of the judgment as to Park and Baxter, the defendant corporation cannot avail itself of the judgment as a bar, or as a conclusive determination of the facts, because the defendant corporation was not a party to that suit. The weight of authority, however, is that where an agent in a transaction is sued after the termination of his agency, and upon a trial of the merits the issue is determined against the plaintiff, the principal, though not a party to the suit, can avail himself of the judgment as a bar, when he is sued by the same plaintiff on the same cause of action. While the principal, if he had no notice of the former suit, and no opportunity to defend it, may not be concluded by a judgment against the former agent, or made responsible for the agent's bad pleading or blunders in the trial of the cause, because so to conclude him would be to deprive him of his property without due process of law, yet, as regards the plaintiff who has before sued the agent and been defeated, there is no reason why he should not be concluded upon the principle of public policy which gives every man one opportunity to prove his case, and limits every man to one such opportunity. He has had his day in court, and it is immaterial whether he has chosen to test his right as against the principal or the agent in the transaction, provided the issue to be tried was identical as against both."

To summarize, I regard it as immaterial what nomenclature is used to describe the relation which existed between Bigelow and Lewisohn, whether it be that of trustee and cestui qui trust, joint principals, or principal and agent.

The acts complained of were their joint acts, and the facts as to each are identical, and the proof as to each must be identical. The questions involved have been finally disposed of as to Lewisohn in his favor, and in an action in which Bigelow was active. If Lewisohn did no wrong, Bigelow did none, as it is not claimed that he acted independently of Lewisohn. On these facts the Lewisohn judgment would, in my opinion, be a bar to any action brought in New York by the plaintiff against Bigelow.

1052 Cross-interrogatories:

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. Yes.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. Not absolutely; dependent upon circumstances.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any,—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. Yes.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. If it be assumed that the decision referred to represents 1053 the law of New York, the liability would be joint and several.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn, if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. In my opinion, yes, if it is assumed that the decision referred to represents the law of New York.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. Yes; subject to exceptions.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. It is difficult to formulate a statement covering the law of New York in this regard. There are few cases which are treated somewhat as exceptions to the rule. Speaking generally and broadly, I should say that there is not need of mutuality where it can be said that the party against whom you are pleading a judgment has had an opportunity of establishing his cause of action, and has failed so to do in a case where, because of the relations of the defendant in that case to the defendant in the case in which the judgment is pleaded, it is impossible to say that the plaintiff has a right against the second defendant unless he had a right against the first defendant. Those cases arise where there has been a relation between the defendants against whom the plaintiff is bringing separate actions, and it is necessarily true that the fundamental facts as to a cause of action are identical with reference to the successive defendants and where the principle of law arising from those facts must apply to both defendants.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability, as a matter of law, on the same facts by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. No; not as between the plaintiff and Bigelow.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability, as a matter of law, on the same facts by a final de-

1054 cree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. No; not as between the plaintiff and Lewisohn.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. The cases which I have deemed sufficient to justify the conclusion reached by me are:

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Featherstone v. N. & C. Turnpike Road, 71 Hun, 109.
People v. Stevens, 51 How. Pr. 235.
Matter of the Estate of Strant, 126 N. Y. 201.

I do not think these are all the cases bearing on the question, but they are the only cases I have in mind at present. In my answer to the direct interrogatory I stated that the fact of participation only confirms my opinion, previously expressed to the interrogatory, that the element of participation was eliminated; and, in answer to the direct interrogatory as to the effect of knowledge on the part of the plaintiff, I stated that it did not affect my answer.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. The cases just cited by me are the only cases I have in mind at the moment, though I regard them as representing the general trend of opinion in this state.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. The cases I have immediately in mind are:

Featherstone v. N. & C. Turnpike Road (71 Hun, 109);
People v. Stevens (51 How. Pr. 235),—

1055 and the opinion of Judge Choate in Emma Silver Mining Co., Limited, v. Emma Silver Mining Co. of New York and others (7 Fed. Rep. 401, at page 407).

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No; none that I regard as in conflict with my opinion.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. None that I regard as in conflict with my opinion.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors.

A. No arguments on behalf of the plaintiff have been presented to me by defendant's counsel. The argument which has suggested itself to me on behalf of the plaintiff is that a separate action brought against one alleged wrongdoer cannot be pleaded as a bar by another alleged wrongdoer, for the reason that he was not a party to the action in which the judgment was obtained, and should not therefore, be allowed to avail himself thereof; this argument, I am satisfied, is unsound under the law of the state of New York, in its application to this case.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. I have endeavored to sum them up faithfully in my answer to the preceding interrogatory.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. The word "privity" is one I have never been able to define.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. In reaching my conclusions I have regarded the transaction as one in which Bigelow and Leonard Lewisohn jointly participated, and as a transaction in which, in any suit brought against Lewisohn,—such as was brought by the plaintiff,—Lewisohn had a perfect right to notify Bigelow of the pendency of the suit, to give him an opportunity to become active in its defence, and that, after such notice and opportunity given, the result would be that as between Lewisohn and Bigelow, Bigelow would be bound as to any of the questions adjudicated in the suit between the plaintiff and Lewisohn. In this sense I have regarded Bigelow as in privity with Lewisohn.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond 1056 such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. Yes; as stated in my answer to the last cross-interrogatory.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. I have assumed that the joint interest of Lewisohn and Bigelow in the transaction of which the plaintiff complains was of such a character that a decree against Lewisohn would, as between Lewisohn and Bigelow, absolutely bind the latter, should Lewisohn give him notice of the pendency of the action, and an opportunity of appearing to assist in its defence; or should Bigelow, without such request from Lewisohn, appear and take an active part in the defence. Furthermore, I am inclined to the belief that, as to the real estate transferred by Lewisohn to the plaintiff, the relation between Bigelow and Lewisohn might be so clearly one of trustee and cestui que trust that, with or without notice, Bigelow would be bound by the decree; but as to this I express no definite opinion.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. Yes; if I understand the meaning of the word "legal" in connection with "interest."

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. It is the interest I have heretofore described in my answers to the 23d and 25th cross-interrogatories.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. Yes.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. A judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for wrongful conversion is no bar to an action against the other unless the relations of the respective defendants to each other are such that the facts and law applying to the one defendant are identical as to the other.

1057 X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. As I have said before, it is a principle of the New York law, subject to exceptions, which exceptions are broad enough, in my opinion, to cover this case.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. I repeat the answer given to the 30th cross-interrogatory.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I have not endeavored to work out the relation between the parties in legal nomenclature; whether it was a case of joint trustees ex maleficio, joint equitable tort feasors, joint principals, or principal and agent; I certainly have not looked upon Lewisohn in the New York suit as simply the agent of Bigelow.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I have not considered a decision of this question necessary in the conclusion reached by me, though, as I have stated before, it seems to me, without reaching a definite conclusion, that at least as to part of the transaction there was a definite relation of trustee and cestui que trust.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. It is a principle of New York law that such a controversy may be determined with the result indicated in this cross-interrogatory, but that principle is qualified in the manner which I have stated in reply to the 30th cross-interrogatory.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Yes.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I have stated them fully.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Yes.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, 1058 or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. No.

X. 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. I have had no discussions since September 22 with any one concerning this case, nor have I had any discussion prior thereto with any one. At one time—I do not remember the date—one of counsel for the defendant conferred with me in regard to the case for the purpose of ascertaining my opinion; and, in a light, casual manner, but not for any purpose of discussion, at some time—I cannot give the date—I mentioned to two or three others, who had given an opinion in favor of the defendant, that I had reached a similar conclusion.

WILLIAM A. KEENER.

Witnessed by WALLACE A. FOSTER.

Deposition of Peter B. Olney.

The Deposition of Peter B. Olney, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Peter B. Olney; I am sixty-five years of age, and I reside at Lawrence, Nassau county, Long Island, N. Y.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a lawyer, and my place of business is 68 William street, New York city, borough of Manhattan.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

1059 A. I was admitted to the bar first in the state of Massachusetts in 1866, and afterwards in the state of New York in 1866, and have practiced since then in the state of New York. The first firm with which I was connected was the firm of Barlow, Hyatt & Olney. The next was the firm of Barlow & Olney, and afterwards Olney & Comstock. I have been engaged in the practice of law for forty years and upwards.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I was one of the commission of three appointed by an act of the legislature of the state of New York in 1879 to compile public laws affecting the city of New York, and afterwards, under an act of the legislature, a member of the commission to revise said laws. The commission was composed of the late William C. Whitney, then counsel to the corporation, the late George Bliss, and myself. The revision was adopted by the legislature in volume 2 of the laws of 1882, I think. I was appointed district attorney for the county of New York in December, 1883, and acted as such until the 1st of January, 1885. I am now, and have been since 1898, referee in bankruptcy under the present United States bankrupt act.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I have been in active practice in the courts of the state of New York during the last forty years, and during that period have practised in the state and federal courts, both in law and equity, and in the course of this practice have become fairly familiar with the laws of the state of New York relating to former adjudications and estoppel by judgment. In the case of Thorne v. De Breteuil, reported in 86 App. Div. 405, and 179 N. Y. 64, I had occasion, as counsel in that case, to examine, with a great deal of care, the doctrine of former adjudication and estoppel by judgment as applied by the courts of the state of New York.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Su-

1060 preme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. I think it would be a bar to the latter action. In case the further element of notice of the litigation and participation therein were present, I have no manner of doubt that the judgment in the former suit would be a bar.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. My answer to this interrogatory is the same as my answer to the 6th.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern Dis-1061 trict of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I have.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York., of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assuming to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I think the decree and record would be a bar and defence to such suit, and if the further element was added of notice to Bigelow and participation by him in the New York litigation, there would be, in my opinion, no doubt that such decree and record would be a complete bar and defence.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect 1062 your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. As I have already stated in answer to the 10th direct interrogatory, notice to Bigelow, and participation by him in the litigation in New York would, beyond any doubt, in my opinion, render that judgment a complete bar to the Massachusetts suits if brought in the courts of the state of New York.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answer to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to: admitted: exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. I cannot say that this additional fact would affect my answer.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and 1063 record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to: admitted: exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. I think that that decree would be res adjudicata, and a bar and defence to the action.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, merits, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

1064 A. I think such decree and record would be a bar and defence to such action.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. Adding these assumed facts, I have no manner of doubt but that in the courts of the state of New York the judgment and decree in New York would be an absolute bar to both suits.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. I cannot say that it would affect my answer.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reason for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. My reasons are the decisions of the courts of the state of New York in applying the doctrine of res adjudicata. Thus our Court of Appeals in Embury v. Connor, 3 N. Y., 522, held that—

"The general rule is, that an allegation on record, upon which issue has been once taken and found, and a judgment has been rendered, is, between the parties taking it and their privies, conclusive, according to the finding thereof, so as to estop the parties respectively from again litigating that fact once so tried and found; whether it is plead in bar, or given in evidence; when it is proper to be given in evidence.

In the subsequent case of Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 229, the court held that it was "well" settled that such a judgment was con-1065 clusive in a second suit between the same parties or their privies on the same question, although the subject matter may be different.

Bigelow's relations to the subject matter of the litigation in the New York suit and his identity of interest with Lewisohn were such as to render Bigelow a privy with Lewisohn within the meaning of the rule. In addition, the supplemental answer in the Massachusetts suits alleges that Bigelow had knowledge of the litigation in New York, and fully participated in the defence of that action. The subject matters of the two suits pending in Massachusetts appear to differ in this, that one suit involves transactions with respect to 30,000 shares of stock, and the other the same transactions with respect to 100,000 shares of stock. The question involved is the same in both suits, although the "subject matter" appears to be different.

Under the decisions of our highest court a judgment in a New York court is a bar to both Massachusetts suits if brought in New York. See Doty v. Brown, 4 N. Y. p. 71; Castle v. Noyes, supra.

I think the elements necessary to constitute an estoppel are present here. The decisions of our courts applying these principles are very numerous. I refer to the following decisions, which seem to be especially in point: Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 537; Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351, opinion, bottom of page 362, at the end; Thorne v. DeBreteuil, 179 N. Y. 64, opinion at page 82; Gleason v. Northwe-tern Mut. Life Ins. Co., 189 N. Y. 100.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. I think it is.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. I think it is.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. No.

1066 X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. I assume that the plaintiff charged in the New York suit that the promoters, Bigelow and Lewisohn, to use the language of Justice Holmes, "stood in a fiduciary relation to it," i. e., the plaintiff, and were charged with a breach of their duty as regards the plaintiff.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have not specially considered that view except as stated in my answer to the 6th cross-interrogatory.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn, if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. In the papers annexed to the interrogatories I do not find in the record the opinion of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, reported at 188 Mass. 315, and I have not examined the report of that case; hence I cannot answer the question.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts, as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto wtih Lewisohn, if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I make the same answer to this cross-interrogatory as to the 8th cross-interrogatory.

1067 X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. It is.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. I think it is.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. The general rule is that the estoppel shall be mutual. I do not at present recall the exceptions, if any there are.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. It is.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. If they had due notice of the litigation, yes.

X15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York, which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329, opinion of the court at page 335; Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun, 576, opinion of the court at page 578; Gleason v. Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co., 189 N. Y. page 100, opinion of the court at the middle of page 102; Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527, opinion of the court at page 532; Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. page 67, opinion of the court at page 71. I think in my examination of the question I came across other cases upon the point, but I do not now recall them.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York, which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. In my opinion the plaintiff's knowledge of the participation is not a material fact. I refer to the cases mentioned in the answer to the 15th cross-interrogatory, in none of which, as I recollect 1068 it, did it appear whether the plaintiff or the other parties to the judgment had or had not knowledge of the notice to, or participation of, the other parties in the litigation.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. The decisions in Featherstone v. Turnpike Co., 71 Hun, 109, opinion at page 111; Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351, opinion, bottom of page 362 and at the end; Carter v. Bowe, page 546, opinion at page 548; Matter of Estate of Straut, 126 N. Y. 201, opinion at pages 210, 211. There may be other cases that I examined in looking up the question, but I do not now recall them.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not found any such cases; hence have not considered them.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. I cannot refer to or give any such cases.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. The defendant's counsel have not submitted to me any such arguments, but of course I myself have considered the effect of the fact that Bigelow was not a party on record in the New York case. I wish to add that in considering the question I have had in mind the facts set forth in the supplemental answer or answers interposed in the Massachusetts suits and in the records submitted to me, and from time to time various questions have arisen in my mind, but I cannot say that at any time there seemed to be any sound arguments in support of the proposition that the New York judgment would not be a bar in case the Massachusetts action was brought in the courts of the state of New York.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. I think I have answered this question in my answer to the 20th cross-interrogatory.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. Privies in estate, the relation of principal and agent, or principal and surety, or master and servant, indentity or substantial of interest in the subject matter of litigation, notice of the litigation, or notice of the former litigation with an opportunity to participate 1069 therein, make the respective parties privies under the laws of the state of New York. I do not claim that this statement comprehends all the cases or privies.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. Yes.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. I think Bigelow was interested to defend that action because his relation to the subject matter and the litigation was such as to render him bound by the judgment therein.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. Assuming that Bigelow was not bound by the New York judgment, I think his only interest in defending it would be to obtain, as a precedent, the judgment of a competent court of jurisdiction.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. I think I have answered this question in my answer to the 26th cross-interrogatory.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow, in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. If the trespass or wrong committed by each of the defendants is in all respects the same, my answer to this interrogatory, if I understand it, would be no.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons, jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property, is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. No.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. The general rule, as I gather it from the decisions in 1070 New York, is that an estoppel must be mutual, but I am not prepared to say that there are not some exceptions to the rule.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser, not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. No.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I think that a quasi relationship of agency existed, and that idea may have been in my mind in considering the question, but I have considered that the facts in the case at bar were more nearly like the facts in the case of Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 532, opinion.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I do not think that I have assumed that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the New York suit.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. If I understand this question, I do not think it can be answered either yes or no, in all cases. If all the joint tort feasors were alleged to be guilty of the same act and those sued succeeded in obtaining a judgment in their favor upon the merits, I think the same plaintiff under the laws of the state of New York would be barred by the judgment in a suit brought by him against the other joint tort feasors.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you or the statements made by you in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. I think I have.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. I think I have already given them.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. I think I have.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on 1071 the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. No.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. I first answered Cross-Int. 4, understanding that by that question I was asked if I had formed an opinion on the merits of Bigelow's liability, but when my attention, after having heard Cross-Int. 5, was called to the fact that that was not the question asked, I changed my answer as it now appears on the record. I also added another case to my answer to Cross-Int. 15 after having first heard Cross-Ints. 16 and 17. In every other respect I heard none of the subsequent interrogatories before answering.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. No, if the question refers to the cross-interrogatories.

I discussed with Mr. Farley, on several occasions when he called at my office, the questions involved.

PETER B. OLNEY.

Before me,

PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

Deposition of William H. Wadhams.

The Deposition of William H. Wadhams, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is William H. Wadhams; age, thirty-four; residence, No. 39 West 11th street, borough of Manhattan, New York city.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a lawyer, with office at No. 1 Nassau street, borough of Manhattan, New York city.

1072 Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar of New York state in 1898; I have been engaged in the practice of law in said state for ten years, and was first connected with Curtis, Mallet-Prevost & Colt, John C. Carlisle, counsel, 20 Broad street, borough of Manhattan, New York city, from October, 1898, to February, 1899; associated with Charles P. Latting, Esq., United States loan commissioner and counsellor at law, 34 Pine street, borough of Manhattan, New York city, from February, 1899, to October, 1899, when I formed a partnership with Mr. Latting under the firm name and style of Latting & Wadhams, having offices at No. 34 Pine street, borough of Manhattan, New York city; in the fall of 1901 I was appointed law secretary to Mr. Justice John Proctor Clarke, who had been appointed to the supreme bench of New York state by the then Governor Theodore Roosevelt; for three years associated with Charles P. Latting, dissolved the partnership by mutual consent, and was associated with Harris & Towne, 284 Broadway, at the same time continuing the secretaryship with Mr. Justice Clarke; remained with Judge Clarke four years and four months, serving with him while he was a nisi prius justice at trial and equity terms, and also afterwards in the appellate division, first department; in February, 1906, associated in offices with Winthrop & Stimson, 32 Liberty street; January 1, 1908, formed the partnership of Baldwin, Wadhams, Beacon & Fisher, with offices at 31 Nassau street, where I am now engaged in the practice of the law; have not practised outside the state of New York except appearing by courtesy upon arguments in the state of New Jersey.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. In addition to the secretaryship mentioned in the last answer, I have served as justice of the city court of the city of New York, having been appointed to that office January 14, 1907, by Governor Charles E. Hughes. I served until the expiration of the term on January 1, 1908.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. During my practice at the bar in the state of New York I had devoted myself largely to the litigated side of business; been frequently in the courts, employed as counsel by other at-1073 torneys, and by reason of my connection with the courts, both as subordinate and as judge, I have had opportunity to work and pass upon proceedings of all kinds, both in law and in equity.

I am also a solicitor in the United States district court and Circuit Court and proctor in admiralty in the United States court, and have appeared in proceedings both in the southern district of New York and in the eastern district of New York. In the course of this practice and on the bench I have had before me for consideration the question of estoppel by judgment and res adjudicata.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar which would prevent recovery in the second cause of action.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were 1074 alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar which would prevent recovery in each of the said actions.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of

New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have examined the records to familiarize myself with the proceedings, but have not minutely examined all the details of it. I am familiar with the proceedings and its history.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts,
1075 acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar which would prevent recovery in the said proceedings.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. A. It would not affect my answer. It would merely give me additional reason for making the same answer.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947–950.]

A. It would not affect them, it would be the same answer.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the 1076 parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar which would prevent recovery.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of 1077 complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. In my opinion it would be a bar which would prevent recovery.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. It would not affect my answer. It would merely give me additional reason for making the same answers.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. It would not affect it. My answer would be the same.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to Ints. 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

1078 A. My answers are based upon considerations of both reason and authority. In my opinion the judgment entered upon the determination of the Supreme Court of the United States in Old Dominion Mining & Smelting Company against Lewisohn is a bar which prevents recovery, because it is in law an estoppel by judgment. It will be observed that Lewisohn and Bigelow acted together. From the facts it appears that throughout they were jointly interested in the several steps taken, and each acted for the other and co-operated with the other in bringing about the results of which the plaintiff complains. It is unnecessary to state whether, within the strict definitions of law, they were partners or were engaged in a joint venture. The result would be the same, for in each case they would stand in a relation to each other of identity of interest. The general rule of law in New York state is that an allegation on record upon which issue has ben once taken and found, and a judgment rendered thereon, is, between the parties taking it and their privies, conclusive according to the finding thereof, so as to estop the parties, respectively, from again litigating that fact once so tried and found, whether it is pleaded in bar or given in evidence. This rule was announced early by the courts in the state of New York, and was formulated, substantially as given by me, in the case of Enbury against Connor, 3 N. Y. 511, and has frequently been reiterated by judges of our courts of highest resort.

Mr. Justice Holmes, writing the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the case against Lewisohn, states.—

"The ground of the petitioner's case is that Lewisohn the deceased, and one Bigelow, as promoters formed the petitioner, that they might sell certain properties to it at a profit; that they made their sale while they owned all the stock issued, but in contemplation of a large further issue to the public without disclosure for their profit, and that such an issue in fact was made."

From the records annexed to this examination it clearly appears that the actions against Bigelow concerned the same subject matter and were brought for the same purpose, attempting to impose liability upon one who was jointly engaged with Lewisohn in the acts complained of and set forth in the complaint against Lewisohn. Not only does it appear that they were partners or quasi-partners in this joint venture, and that Lewisohn was the agent and representative of Bigelow, but it appears that, as to the property received, Lewisohn was acting by agreement with Bigelow for the benefit of both, and this necessarily constituted Lewisohn a trustee for Bigelow to the extent of his interest in the property. A decree in favor of a trustee under the laws of the state of New York is binding upon and enures to the benefit of the cestui que trust, or beneficiary. It therefore appears in this case that Lewisohn and Bigelow are privies within the definition as defined in the general rule, both by reason of their identity of interest, being partners in the joint venture set forth, and by reason of the trust relations existing between them. The authorities are in conformity with this opinion. In Freeman on Judgments, sec. 173, it is said.—

1079

"It is not intended that the fact of a legal and equitable title being in different persons shall authorize the same issue to be twice bona fide litigated. A suit by A for the use of B or his, A's trustee is binding on B. No man can be permitted after adjudicating the matter by his trustees, to disregard that adjudication."

In the matter of Estate of Straut, 126 N. Y. 201, the court said, speaking of trustees:

"In such an action they represent the whole title and interest and their action in the absence of fraud or collusions, is binding upon the beneficiaries. In the action brought by these trustees there is no question between the beneficiaries themselves. The only question to be considered was between the trustees and a stranger to the trust who was alleged to have in his possession, or to be liable to action for certain property belonging to the trust, and in such an action it is well settled now that the beneficiaries are not necessary parties and the authorities are equally clear in the case of agency. Judge Choate, in Emma Silver Mining Company, Limited, v. Emma Silver Mining Company of New York, 7 Fed. Rep. 401, said: 'The weight of authority, however, is that where an agent in a transaction is sued after the termination of his agency and upon a trial of the merits the issue is determined against the plaintiff, the principal, though not a party to the suit, can avail himself of the judgment as a bar when he is sued by the same plaintiff in the same cause of action. While the principal, if he had no notice of the former suit and no opportunity to defend it, might be concluded by a judgment against his former agent, or made responsible for the agent's bad pleading or blunders in the trial of the case, because so to conclude him would be to deprive him of his property without due process of law, yet as regards the plaintiff who has before sued the agent and been defeated there is no reason why he should not be concluded upon that principle of public policy which gives every man one opportunity to prove his case and limits every man to one such opportunity. He has had his day in Court and it is immaterial whether he has testified under this, his right, as 1080 against the principal or the agent in the transaction provided the issue to be tried was identical as against both.'

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Emery v. Fowler, 39 Me. 329.

and cases cited."

Under that rule the judgment rendered on the stated facts in favor of Lewisohn would act, when properly pleaded, as an estoppel, and therefore a bar which would prevent recovery in the actions against Bigelow.

There is another and further reason. In the action in the United States court against Lewisohn the plaintiff charged Bigelow and Lewisohn with the commission of tortious acts, and demanded a rescission of the contract made by them and a return of the purchase price. The success of their cause of action depended upon the establishment of the commission of the court by Bigelow and Lewisohn. The plaintiff chose this form of action, and must be bound by the resulting determination of the courts. The demurrer to the complaint having been sustained, the judgment entered thereon was a determination that the facts alleged in the complaint did not constitute a cause of action, and therefore necessarily determined that no tort had been committed.

Under the law of the state of New York, where two parties are charged with the commission of a tort there may be but one recovery, although by an anomaly of law a dual pursuit of that recovery is permitted. So where two persons are charged with the commission of a wrong, separate actions may be brought against each, and there may be, by this means, a dual pursuit of the remedy, and separate judgment may be entered against each, but upon the satisfaction of the judgment against either the other is discharged, and that on the theory that there can be but one recovery for a wrong. This was established in the case of Knapp v. Roche, 94 N. Y. 329, in which Chief Justice Ruger, writing for a unanimous court, says:

"Satisfaction by one joint tort feasor has always been held to be available as a bar to an action against another."

So it is held, reciprocally, that where it has once been determined by the court that there is no wrong by reason of the facts alleged by the plaintiff, that must necessarily be an end of the litigation, and the fact that there is no tort and that no wrong has been committed having once been determined in an action against one of the alleged wrongdoers, it follows that in an action against the other the 1081 judgment of the court in which it was determined that there was no wrong operates as a bar or estoppel by judgment. This must be so to sustain continuity of judicial decisions, to put an end to litigation, and to prevent injustice by operation of law. This may be illustrated by the action of People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; aff. 71 N. Y. 527. In that case the state brought an action against four defendants claiming damages for a fraudulent combination and conspiracy in obtaining a contract from the state with reference to the performance of public work. It appeared in the trial that previously the state had commenced an action against two of the same defendants upon precisely the same state of facts, which was tried upon a demurrer interposed by the defendants and judgment rendered in their favor. It was held that the judgment was a bar which prevented recovery in the subsequent action, not only against the two defendants previously sued, but also against the other alleged conspirators. The court said, at page 246:

"It is claimed, however, that the former judgment grants no protection to the other defendants because a party may fail to recover against one joint wrongdoer and yet succeed as against the others. That is undoubtedly true when a case turns upon evidence given. The proof may be sufficient to justify a recovery against one, but insufficient as to another. Has it, however, ever been held that upon the same proof against the same parties the Court would be justified in holding one guilty of actionable conduct whilst the other was not? * * * All the facts of the defendants Gale & Stephens set out in the complaint in the former action and which are identical, the same as those contained in the complaint that the parties are here charged with has entered into a confederacy and combination with others, those others being the persons not then sued; and it was of those acts then and now charged this court gravely and solemnly decided that they were not sufficient to constitute a cause of action. If they were not then are they now? Has the color or complexion changed with the lapse of years or must this Court change its view of the same facts because performed by the parties now for the first time named, though then included as co-conspirators and confederates. When the former judgment requires us to hold that Stephens against Townsend and Burden have done nothing but raise a cause of action to the state we must necessarily be confined to the same rule when we judge their came conduct and acts committed by others in their aid. The former judgment may have been erroneous and might perhaps have been reversed. It stands nevertheless to-day uttering the law which must control our actions in regard to these parties. It is founded upon no technicality, no legal quibble, but rests upon the great con-1082 servative principle that litigation must cease with an unreversed judgment."

This case was affirmed by the highest court of this state and has never since been questioned, and stands as law of the state of New York to-day.

On the facts presented in this case there is still a further and additional reason, which, however, is not necessary to the opinion I have rendered, but which merely adds another ground for it, namely, it is a rule of law in the state of New York that where one has taken part in litigation and had an opportunity to control and direct it, that he has had his day in court and is bound equally as if he were a party to the litigation. Upon this subject the Court of Appeals, in the case of Carleton v. Lombard, 149 N. Y. 137, states:

"We have seen that the defendant had knowledge of all the correspondence by cable between the plaintiffs and the parties in Calcutta; that it was notified of the commencement of the action and that it participated in the trial. In so far as the issues actually litigated in that case are identical with the issues involved this judgment is binding upon the defendant, in the same way as if it had been a party upon the record."

I have also taken into consideration that the judgment heretofore rendered, and which I have stated in my opinion, if properly pleaded, would be a bar to actions concerning the same subject matter brought against Bigelow, was a judgment upon demurrer under the law of the state of New York. A judgment on demurrer to plaintiff's complaint is conclusive of everything necessarily determined by it, and in this state, where the defendant has failed to take advantage of the opportunity to plead over the judgment which is thereupon entered against him, is under the laws of the state of New York, a final judgment. Among the cases which have so held, are:

Whiteman v. Shankland, 18 How. Pr. 79;
Allen v. Knott, 111 U. S. 472;
Bouchaud v. Dias, 3 Dem. 238,— in which it was pointed out that it can make no difference whether the facts be proved by deeds and witnesses or be admitted by the parties, whether ore tenus or by pleading. I have therefore concluded, and stated as my opinion, the final judgment on demurrer by a court of competent jurisdiction upon a question directly at issue between the parties, and which has in this instance been affirmed upon appeal to the court of highest resort, and which forever 1083 closes and estops all parties to the action, and those in privity with them, from questioning its accuracy or justice in another action. As was stated in People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr., already cited:

"This rule was essential to peace and repose and was preventative of endless and vexatious litigation, and is also so firmly rooted and grounded in every enlightened system of jurisprudence that it is at once conceded and has not now been questioned. That this practice is fully applicable to the judgment rendered upon a demurrer, plaintiffs concede and authorities are abundant to justify such concession."

I may add further that the reason I stated that this judgment would operate as a bar in both actions is that it appeared from the facts clearly that the two actions are a subdivision of one cause of action, the one having to do with the 100,000 shares, and the other with 30,000 shares of the stock of this company, the facts being in all essentials as bearing upon the gravamen of the offence alleged, the same in each case, and the law affecting the transactions and establishing the rights as between the plaintiff and defendants must necessarily be the same, [the] transaction being one, entire, and identical.

There are many other cases to the same effect; authority in support of this opinion is not lacking, and will be found in Hirchbach v. Ketcham, 84 A. D. 258, where the court held that after demurrer had been sustained to the complaint upon the theory that a contract alleged was invalid, and judgment had been entered thereon dismissing the complaint upon the merits, that such an action was a bar which prevented recovery by the same plaintiff in a subsequent action to recover other fees alleged to be due under the same contract; and other cases might be cited.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. It certainly is. If when a demurrer is pleaded upon the ground that the facts alleged are not sufficient to constitute a cause of action, and the demurrer is sustained, it is then the law of the case that no cause of action is stated, and in the ordinary course 1084 of action the plaintiff is given an opportunity to plead over, that is, serve an amended complaint within the time specified by the court, generally within twenty days. If he fails to serve such amended complaint and does not plead over the judgment then becomes final, and is given the same force and effect as a final judgment upon the facts. I have given authorities in support of this point upon my direct examination, and in addition to the New York cases cited, I may refer, also, to the recognition of this principle in the United States court in Yates v. Utica Bank, 206 U. S. 181, and Northern Pacific Ry. Co. v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 132, and Bissell v. Spring Valley Township, 124 U. S. 225, and Bouchaud v. Dias, 3 Den. (N. Y.) 238.

On the other hand, where the demurrer is overruled, it is then the law of the case that the facts alleged do state a cause of action, assuming them all to be true, and the burden rests upon the plaintiff to proceed with the trial and prove such facts.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. Yes, it is the law.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. In the first place, the decree was not merely a decree dismissing the complaint against Bigelow, but it was a final judgment upon a demurrer which determined that there was no cause of action in the complaint alleged. I have not undertaken to consider upon the merits the claim made by the plaintiff either against Lewisohn or against Bigelow. I have therefore not considered whether or not Bigelow was liable to the plaintiff upon the merits in the actions brought by the plaintiff against Bigelow, but I have assumed that even if an attempt were made to prove that Bigelow was liable in such actions, that no recovery could be had if the judgment in favor of Lewisohn were properly pleaded, because, regardless of such independent liability, the judgment upon the demurrer in favor of the defendant in the action against Lewisohn would operate as a bar and prevent recovery as against Bigelow.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you as-1085 sumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. Yes.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. Yes.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes, in most cases.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. Yes, sometimes.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. It is easier to state cases in which they must be mutual than in which they need not be mutual. The general practice, however, is that they need not be mutual in those cases in which the party or his privy against whom the estoppel is raised has been given his day in court, and after that day in court it has been determined upon his own statement of the facts that he has no cause of action. As was stated in Emma Silver Mining Co., Ltd., v. Emma Silver Mining Co. of New York, 7 Fed. Rep. 401, where the agent is sued, the principal is not estopped if he had no notice of the former suit, and no opportunity to defend it, for the reason that he may not 1086 be concluded by a judgment against his former representative and be made responsible for the bad pleading and blunders in the trial of such former representative, as this would be to deprive him of his day in court, and would thus be depriving him of his property without due process of law; but, as regards the plaintiff, he has been defeated in the former suit against the agent, and there is no reason why he should be concluded by the prior adjudication, because the plaintiff has had his day in court and has been given his opportunity and it has been determined that he has no cause of action. In such case, provided the issue is identical, as against both defendants, an estoppel by judgment exists in favor of the party not sued upon the former trial, because of his privity, and yet it is not a case of mutual estoppel.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Yes. In this action there was more than the mere relation of agent, but an identity of interest and an identity of subject matter, and upon showing that relationship, or, in other words, proof of the privity, he would be estopped.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. Yes, assuming that the action had been prosecuted and a decree had been entered in the Bigelow actions first.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A.—

Carleton v. Lombard, 149 N. Y. 137.
Oceanic Steamship Navigation Co. v. Compania Espanola, 144 N. Y. 663.
Village of Port Jarvis v. First National Bank, 96 N. Y. 550.
Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527.
Leavitt v. Walcott, 95 N. Y. 212.
Heiser v. Hatch, 86 N. Y. 619.
1087 Demarest v. Darg, 32 N. Y. 281.
Prescott v. Le Conte, 83 A. D. 483.
Kelley v. Forty-second Street Ry. Co., 37 A. D. 509.
Van Koughnet v. Dennis, 68 Hun. 179.
Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun. 576.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Same as list given in answer to last question.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. Upon the question of estoppel generally:—
Enbury v. Connor, 3 N. Y. 511.
Leavitt v. Walcott, 95 N. Y. 212.
Park Hill Co. v. Herriott, 41 A. D. 324.
Western Ry. Co. v. Nathan, 49 N. Y. 513.
Lawrence v. Shaefer, 19 Misc. 239; aff. 20 A. D. 80.
Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349.
Matter of Will of O'Hara, 95 N. Y. 403.
Paulding v. The Chrome Steel Co. et al., 94 N. Y. 329.
Pakas v. Hollingshead, 184 N. Y. 217.
People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; aff. 71 N. Y. 527.
Portland Coal Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 63.
Emma Silver Mining Co., Ltd., v. Emma Silver Mining Co. of New York, 7 Fed. Rep. 401.
Gleason v. Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co., 189 N. Y. 100.
Bates v. Stanton, 1 Duer, 79.
Hirshbach v. Ketchum, 89 A. D. 258.
Freeman on Judgments, secs. 174, 173, 207.
2 Black on Judgments, secs. 789, 781.
1088 Whitman v. Shankland, 18 How. Pr. 79.
Bouchaud v. Dias, 3 Den. 238.
Allen v. Knott, 111 U. S. 472.
Yates v. Utica Bank, 206 U. S. 181.
Northern Pacific Ry. Co. v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 135.
Bissell v. Spring Valley Townships, 124 U. S. 225.
2 Black on Judgments, sec. 709.
Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Carter v. Bowe, 41 Hun, 516.
Matter of Estate of Strant, 126 N. Y. 201.
Brackin v. Adirondack Trust Co., 36 A. D. 67.
Rogers v. Rogers, 3 Paige, 379.
Wakeman v. Grover, 4 Paige, 24.
Kerrison v. Stewart, 93 U. S. 155.
King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267.
Wilcox v. Pratt, 125 N. Y. 688.
Lichty v. Lewis, 63 Fed. Rep. 535.
Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun, 576.
1 Greenleaf on Evidence, p. 523.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions, or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. None.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. None.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity, under the law of New York, to a judgment?

A. I will adopt, as my definition of privity, that stated by Greenleaf in his work on Evidence, vol. 1, sec. 523. This, in my opinion, is the law in the state of New York:

"The term privity denotes mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property."

1089 And he adds—

"Standing in this relation to the litigating party here bound by the proceedings to which he was a party, is that they are identified with him in interest; and wherever this identity is found to exist all are alike concluded. Hence, all privies, whether in estate, in blood, or in law are estopped from litigating that which is conclusive upon him with whom they are in privity."

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. No, I have not so assumed; I have considered their relative relationship.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. In my opinion as to plaintiff, the facts alleged, if true, would constitute them trustees ex male faceo; and, in my opinion, in their relations as to each other they were engaged in a joint adventure as such quasi partners.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. Yes.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. The joint interest, as stated by me, is that Lewisohn has taken part in the joint venture in which they are alleged to have been engaged, and was therefore part owner in the proceeds of the property; the contract under which the same was obtained the plaintiff was attempting to set aside.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. Yes, that is so.

1090 X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. Yes, it may be a principle when it is determined that no tort was committed.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto, or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. It is a principle of law that it operates only as to parties and those that are in privity with them,—if you make your definition of privity broad enough; but it does not always follow that an estoppel in a narrow, technical sense must be mutual. I have more fully discussed this in my prior answer. The difficulty of answering questions of this nature is that the terms used may be variously defined.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser, not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. Yes, it may, where the act complained of is identical, and the subject matter is identical, and it is determined that there was no trespass committed.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. Yes.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. Yes.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i.e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. Yes, this may be so where the determination is to the effect that no tort was committed; as, for instance, it may be held by a jury upon a trial against two joint tort feasors that the evidence — tablishes the commission of a tort by one but not by the other, or where actions are separately brought, but on different statements of fact, a judgment may be recovered as against one and not as against the other. This rests, however, upon a diversity of act or a diversity of subject matter, and the use of the words "joint tort feasors" should not be permitted to cause confusion. The law 1091 of the state of New York in this respect is clearly defined, there being two rules, the one rule illustrated by the case of the People v. Stephens, in which co-conspirators were charged with the commission of the same offence upon allegations of the same and identical facts, and in which it was held that a judgment upon a demurrer in favor of two of these co-conspirators was a bar which prevented recovery in a subsequent action against four, the two original named in the first case brought, as well as two additional defendants made parties in a second case, and upon the express ground that the former adjudication was to the effect that no offence had been committed against the law, and therefore, upon such state of facts, no recovery could be had. On the other hand, where the term "joint tort feasor" is used in the sense that two or more persons are charged with the damage done, as distinguished from the acts which brought about such damage, and the damage done is brought about by a diversity of acts, some committed by one of the defendants and others by others of the defendants, it may be and has frequently been held that the one set of acts constitute a tort and that the other set do not; and upon a strict analysis it will therefore be found that in fact the defendants are not joint tort feasors, because there is no tort committed by the one, whereas the tort is determined to have been committed by the other. And so an illustration of this class of cases may be found in the action of Bopp against New York Electric Vehicle Company, in which the appellate division, first department, stated:

"It is well settled that the liability of wrong doers is both joint and several and in an action predicated upon negligence where two or more persons are jointly sued and concurrent acts of negligence are established a recovery can be had against both. If the current act resulting in the injury be not established the jury may exonerate one even against the other."

In my opinion the facts under consideration bring this case clearly within the first class and not within the second class of these cases.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. I have.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. None others.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Yes.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. No, not the slightest.

1092 X 40. Has such of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way, with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in any answers thereto?

A. I have not discussed with any of the witnesses named, to my knowledge, in any way connected with the defendant, except that I was requested to give an opinion upon the preliminary motion made for leave to file supplemental answer herein. This request came from John Griffin, Esq., acting on behalf of Mr. Tyler, of Tyler & Young. At that time I questioned him concerning the facts of the case, and learned, in outline, the matters more fully presented by the records annexed to these interrogatories.

WM. H. WADHAMS.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 28th day of September, 1908.

[SEAL.] H. M. HEWSON,
Notary Public, New York County, N. Y.

Deposition of Dennis O'Brien.

The Deposition of Denis O'Brien, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant, Bigelow, and filed by his counsel, subject to the objections and exceptions of counsel for the complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be found at pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Denis O'Brien; my age is seventy-one years; and my residence is now at Watertown, N. Y.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a lawyer, a member of the bar of the state of New York, entitled to practice in all the courts of the state and the federal courts. My place of business is at present at Watertown.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar in May, 1861, in New York
1093 state. It is a little difficult to tell how long I have been engaged in the practice of law, because nearly twenty-five years of my life I have occupied official positions and the rest engaged in the practice of law.

I am not connected with any firm. Prior to 1884 there was a firm of lawyers, of which I was the principal member, at Watertown—there was O'Brien & Emerson, and there was Reynolds & O'Brien, and Wynne & O'Brien.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. I was the attorney general of the state of New York from the 1st of January, 1884, to the 1st of January, 1888,—two terms. I have been a member of the Court of Appeals of the state of New York from the 1st day of January, 1890, to the 1st day of January, 1908.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. I have already stated my experience. I have practised since my admission, when I was not holding the position as judge before the bar, both in the state and federal courts.

I think I am reasonably familiar with that question, having had occasion to pass upon it as a judge, and to examine it as a lawyer.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception. —See pages 945-950.]

1094 A. In my opinion it would be a bar.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion it would constitute a good defence and a bar to the actions against the other promoter.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial 1095 Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I think I have read what purports to be a copy of the pleadings in the Massachusetts case.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. In my opinion it would constitute a good defence.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The fact that Bigelow participated in the defence of the suit in the federal courts—that circumstance would greatly reinforce the opinion that I have already expressed.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in 1096 the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. That would make the case still stronger.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. In my opinion it would constitute a bar to the action against Bigelow.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed 1097 to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. Assuming that the two suits were in New York, the judgment in favor of Lewisohn would constitute a bar to the action against Bigelow.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. I have assumed all along, and do now, that the partici-
1098 pation of Bigelow in the defence of the case against Lewisohn is an important element, and, under the circumstances stated in this question, the judgment in favor of Lewisohn can be successfully pleaded by Bigelow in bar.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. The knowledge of the plaintiff to Bigelow's participation in the defence of Lewisohn strengthens and confirms the opinion that I have expressed as to the legal effect of the former judgment; I regard that additional fact as important, though not absolutely essential.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. I think I have already sufficiently stated the reasons, but will say that the general principle that an action once tried and decided shall not again be brought in question applies to the case.

Cross-interrogatories:

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff put de bene the following cross-interrogatories:

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case, to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. Yes, it is to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts, the same facts as are stated in the pleading to which the demurrer was aimed.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. I am inclined to think that, under the law of New York that it is no contribution between wrongdoers.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have 1099 you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have assumed that he might, otherwise there would be no reason for this action.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. Yes, that has entered into my mind in answering the question.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have assumed that, but for the judgment in favor of Lewisohn, Bigelow might be liable, on proper facts, to the plaintiff, jointly and severally with Lewisohn.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. I have assumed that Bigelow might be liable ex delicto.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. Yes, I have considered that.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I don't know that I understand that question, but I should think it would be a joint and several liability.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit, there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I assume that the facts stated in the pleading against 1100 Bigelow are the same as those stated against Lewisohn; I think it would be a joint and several liability in New York, giving effect to the law of Massachusetts.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes; the parties who commit a wrong are liable to the injured party either jointly or severally.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. That is the general rule, though I think there are some exceptions.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. I would have to look up the law on that question before stating in what particular cases the estoppel need not be mutual.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. I am not prepared to say that, without Bigelow's participation in the defence of Lewisohn, the judgment in the federal courts would constitute an estoppel, though I am inclined to think it would.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. I am not prepared to say that under those circumstances they would be estopped; that is, assuming they did not participate in the suit against Bigelow and they were sued.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have no means now of referring to the authorities on that question.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewis-ohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. It would take a little time to collect the decisions, 1101 and I am testifying to my general knowledge on the question, without citing cases.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have not considered the question as to the effect of the Lewisohn judgment, in the absence of the participation of Bigelow in that case; and I do not base my answer upon the authority of any particular case, only on my general impressions as to what the law of New York is.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference are all of these which you have considered?

A. I have not considered any particular case, and cannot give you any distinct reference.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel or have you thought of any in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No such arguments have been submitted, and I have not attempted to find any authority on that question.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. I refer to my previous answer.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. I may not be able now to define privity in the language of the books, but in a general way I can say that one who claims some right derived from another is in privity with that other, though of course the particular cases in which one is said to be in privity with another are various, and not capable of being expressed in any general rule.

I think that one who participates in the defence of an action, being interested in the defence, though not a party, and who is liable, if at all, upon the same transaction which is the subject matter of the action, is in privity with the judgment, though of course, there are other cases where privity exists.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. Yes, I have so assumed.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in 1102 this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. Yes, I think he had a legal interest in the defence of the suit.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. He had a legal interest in defeating the action against Lewisohn, since, if there was a recovery against Lewisohn, there ought to be a recovery against him.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. I think he had a legal interest.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. The legal interest that he had was to protect himself against the consequences of a favorable judgment by the plaintiff against Lewisohn.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not assumed that he consented to it in express terms, but I have assumed that he was aware of it.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. I think it would be competent evidence, for both participated in the conduct of the action or of the defence.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property, is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several.

A. I think that it would not be a bar in that case, if I understand the question.

X 31.1 Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. I think it is a general principle of New York law that the estoppel applies to the parties to the action, or those in privity with them.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. I think it is, if I understand the question.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you as-1103 sumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. No, I have not considered that particular feature of the case.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. Yes, I think I have considered that as one of the elements in the case.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. Well, I think that is so.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Those interrogatories are quite complicated and perhaps obscure but I think I have stated all the reasons that occur to me now.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. My reasons for the answers I have given call for what might be said to be an argument, and I think the reasons sufficiently appear in my previous answers to the direct and cross-interrogatories.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Yes; I have stated all the reasons that now occur to me.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. None at all.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. No, I have not.

DENIS O'BRIEN.

Before me this 28th day of September, A. D. 1908.

H. M. HEWSON,
Notary Public, Westchester County.

Certificate filed in New York county.
[Adjourned to Monday, October 5, 1908, at 2 p. m.]

1104 MONDAY, October 5, 1908—2 p. m.

Deposition of John G. Milburn.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Parties agree that the deposition of John G. Milburn came just a few minutes ago. I assume that the way to deal with it should be that they look it over. We will submit it to you; you can make your objections just the same as to the others, first reading it.

HAMMOND, J.: That is the deposition of whom?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Of John G. Milburn. It has not yet been put in evidence.

[Subsequently the same course was taken in reference to the deposition of Mr. Milburn as with regard to others introduced by counsel for the defendant.]

Deposition of John G. Milburn.

The Deposition of John G. Milburn, Taken in Behalf of the Defendant, Bigelow, and Filed by His Counsel, Subject to the Objections and Exceptions of Counsel for the Complainant, The Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be Found at Pages 945–950.

Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is John G. Milburn; I am fifty-six years of age; I reside at No. 16 West Tenth street, New York city.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a lawyer; my office is at No. 54 Wall street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. In April, 1874, in the state of New York. I have been continuously engaged in the practice of law in the state of New York since April 1, 1874, until the present time, with the exception of the period from September, 1882, to June, 1883, when I was professionally engaged in Colorado. From September, 1879, to September, 1882, I was a member of the firm of Sprague, Milburn & Sprague, practising in the city of Buffalo, N. Y.; from the middle of June, 1883, to the first day of February, 1904, I was a member of the firm of Rogers, Locke & Milburn, practising law in the city of Buffalo; from February 1, 1904, until the present time I have been and now am a member of the firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn of the city of New York. During the eight or nine 1105 months I was in Colorado I was associated with the late Senator Edward O. Walcott.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. No judicial position. For the past four years I have been a member of the commission appointed by the governor of the state, under the authority of the legislature, to consolidate the statutory law of the state. The only other positions I have held have been memberships of temporary commissions, unconnected with legal matters.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. Well, I have been engaged for over thirty years in the trial and argument of cases in the state and federal courts of the state of New York; in the preparation of briefs for the argument of cases, and of opinions desired by clients. I have had frequently, in connection with my practice and cases, to examine the question of former adjudication and estoppel by judgment under the laws of the state of New York.

Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945–950.]

A. It would be a bar.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in 1106 the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associates secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions substantially identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. It would bar.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. I have.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal 1107 changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. It would be a bar.

Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946–950.]

A. It would not affect the answer I have given except to reinforce it.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947–950.]

A. I make the same answer to this interrogatory as to the last preceding direct interrogatory.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

1108

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. It would be a bar.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York, wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was 1109 based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. It would be a bar.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these additional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948-950.]

A. It would not affect them, excepting to reinforce them.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 949, 950.]

A. It would not affect them, except to reinforce them.

1110 Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to interrogatories 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. The following are my reasons: The bills of complaint in all four actions are based upon an alleged scheme of Bigelow and Lewisohn to acquire certain property, to organize a corporation owned and controlled by them, and to transfer the property to that corporation at a gross overvaluation, receiving in payment therefor capital stock of the corporation to a large amount. In the alleged scheme and all the transactions in its execution, Bigelow and Lewisohn were associated together; they acquired the property for their common benefit; its transfer to the corporation was their common act, and they received the capital stock of the corporation issued in pursuance of it for their common benefit. The acquisition of the stock of the old company from the Simpson executors and Keyser and of the mining claims and other property from Keyser were parts of the same transaction; the transfer of the stock and properties to the new corporation was a single transaction, as was the issue and delivery of the stock of the new company in payment thereof to Lewisohn and Bigelow. Thus the alleged scheme was devised by them both; they were co-owners of the property transferred and co-owners of the stock received for it, and all the acts, from the beginning to end, in the concoction and consummation of the scheme were acts common to them.

This being the situation, it is quite clear to me, after a careful re-examination of the authorities in this state, (1) That the relation of Bigelow to Lewisohn and to the transactions was such that a judgment on the merits in any court of competent jurisdiction, in New York or elsewhere, in favor of Lewisohn in an action brought by the new corporation against Lewisohn to rescind the transaction or to account for the profits on the theory of their being undisclosed and fraudulent, or in breach of the fiduciary relation of Lewisohn and Bigelow to the new corporation, establishing that no cause of action in its favor arose out of the transaction, would enure to the benefit of Bigelow in any similar suit against him in this state, and be a bar to its prosecution, even if Bigelow had not participated in the defence, and contributed to its expenses; (2) That such a decree in such a suit in favor of Lewisohn as to a part of the property involved in the scheme, and covered by the transfer to the new corporation, would be a bar to any similar suit against Lewisohn with respect to the remainder of the property, and would enure to the benefit of Bigelow in any similar suit against him in the state of New York, and constitute a bar to its prosecution; and (3) That the participation

1111 of Bigelow in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn, or his executors, and his contributing to its expenses,—whether known to the plaintiff or not, and more emphatically so if known to the plaintiff,—puts it, in my judgment, beyond all possible doubt that not only would the decree in favor of Lewisohn enure to the benefit of Bigelow, if the suits against him were pending in the state of New York, and be available to him as a bar, but also, if the decree had been in favor of the complainant, it would be binding upon Bigelow, and enforcible against him in a proper suit or proceeding.

Further, the alleged scheme and transactions in all four suits are identical, the same cause of action is pleaded in all four suits, and the realization between Bigelow and Lewisohn was that of co-actors, co-owners, and co-beneficiaries. The plaintiff has had his day in court as to the scheme and all the transactions it involved, and the cause of action alleged by it; and a court of competent jurisdiction has decreed that it has no cause of action. Such a decree, under the authorities in this state, enures to the benefit of Bigelow in the relation that he was, and is, to Lewisohn and the transactions, though not a nominal party to the record, and particularly so if he actively participated in the defence of the case.

I refer to the following cases, among others, which, in my judgment, sustain my conclusions:

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun, 576.
Carter v. Bowe, 41 Hun, 516.
Bates v. Stanton, 1 Duer, 79, 87.
People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; (s. c.) 71 N. Y. 612.
Emma Silver Mine Case, 7 Fed. Rep. 401.
Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 63.
Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527.

Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts de bene the following cross-interrogatories:

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. I should say yes, throughout the case, on the same state of facts.

1112 X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contratu?

A. I should say, generally, yes.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have considered that, as well as the other phases of the case.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered that also.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered that also.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. I have considered that also.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have considered that also.

X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. I do not think I should characterize the liability as joint and several, using those terms technically, though I think that an action would be maintainable against both or either, assuming the liability to be as stated in the cross-interrogatory.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on 1113 demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. It would be ex delicto, in the sense of being founded on wrongful conduct; but I do not regard a suit in equity for an accounting as an action ex delicto.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. I do not think that the terms "joint" and "several" are accurately used in that connection; under the law of the state of New York, they may all be proceeded against in the same action, or an action will lie against each separately.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. It is, sometimes.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. One instance is—if an agent is sued on a transaction and prevails on the merits, the judgment in his favor would be a bar to a subsequent suit brought on the same cause of action against the principal, though a judgment in favor of the plaintiff would not bind the principal if he was ignorant of the action and took no part in it. That same principle would apply to allied relations or relations similar in principle to that of principal and agent.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. I do not think he would, though it would be practically conclusive on the principle of stare decisis. See O'Beirne v. Bullis, 158 N. Y. 468.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. My answer to the last cross-interrogatory answers this interrogatory.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suits against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge

1114 operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have not the precise citations at hand, and I cannot, therefore, refer to them off-hand.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I make the same answer as to the last preceding cross-interrogatory. I do not regard the knowledge of the plaintiff as material if Bigelow did actually participate in the defence of the Lewisohn action by contributing to its expenses and rendering such other aid as was in his power.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have cited some of the cases, and all of which I have a memorandum before me, in my reply to the last direct interrogatory.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts in New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have examined, I should say, nearly all the New York cases on this subject, regardless of their tendency to support either side of this controversy.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. I cannot now refer to any other cases than those I have already mentioned.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendaant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was, by the law of New York, no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. Counsel for the defendant gave me a reference to many New York cases, covering the question when a prior judgment was a bar and when it was not, and I recall none that lent any countenance to the proposition that the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors did not inure to the benefit of Bigelow. I certainly have endeavored to think of everything that could be urged for and against that proposition.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. First, (1) That Bigelow was not a party to the record in the Lewisohn suits; (2) That a decree in favor of the plain-1115 tiff against Lewisohn would not bind Bigelow in the absence of participation on his part in the defence of the Lewisohn suit; (3) The possible argument that the action was based on tortious conduct, and sounded in tort, with varying grounds of liability.

At this moment I do not recall any other claim or argument that I took into consideraion when I examined the matter.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. Among other things, a relation between two parties, springing from a community of interest in property or transactions, or the results of transactions, either direct or through representation.

X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have so considered, in a broad sense.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I do not know that he had any so-called legal interest, but to participate in the defence would be the course of a prudent man, not only with reference to securing a favorable decision, but because of the possible consequences to him of an unfavorable decision.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. My answer to the last cross-interrogatory covers this cross-interrogatory.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. I think this cross-interrogatory is answered by what I have said about a legal interest in the answer to the 24th cross-interrogatory.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. My answer to the last cross-interrogatory and to the 24th cross-interrogatory disposes of this cross-interrogatory.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against 1116 the other?

A. In some cases it is, in some cases it is not; depending upon the relation between the co-trespassers other than the mere fact of their having been engaged in a common trespass.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York la wthat the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. That entirely depends upon the relations between the parties guilty of the conversion outside of and distinct from their mere participation in the conversion.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. I do not think it is in all cases.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. I have already answered this cross-interrogatory.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agents in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. This question is not clear to me, but I will say that I have laid no stress on the matter of agency, either between Lewisohn and Bigelow in the transactions, or between Lewisohn's executors and Bigelow in the conduct of the defence.

X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. In my view of the case, I have laid no stress on any such relation of trusteeship.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. Certainly; all dependent upon the particular circumstances of each case.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. Yes; all that now occur to me.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. My answer to the last cross-interrogatory covers this cross-interrogatory.

1117 X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. I repeat my answer to the last cross-interrogatory.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. Absolutely, no.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. Yes, excepting the corrections above made in ink and initialed by myself and the commissioner.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption to these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. No; about the time mentioned, Mr. Farley, at my request, handed to me the printed bills of complaint and records, copies of which are annexed to the deposition, that I might study them, but we had no discussion in respect to the case at all.

JOHN G. MILBURN.

Before me, the 2nd day of October, 1908.

H. M. HEWSON,
Notary Public, Westchester County.

Certificate filed in New York county.

New York Cases Offered in Evidence by the Defendant.

Mr. HEMENWAY: We propose, if your Honor please, to put in certain New York cases. I had supposed we would not stop to read the cases or to bring the volumes from the law library.

HAMMOND, J.: You may hand in a list of them to the other side and let the reporter also have a list for his report.

[Following is the list furnished by Mr. Hemenway.]

Cases to be put in Evidence as to the Law of New York.

People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; aff. 71 N. Y. 527.
Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. 67, 71; aff. 167 N. Y. 510.
Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
1118 Tying v. Clarke, 9 Hun, 269.
Matter of Estate of Strout, 126 N. Y. 201.
Russell v. Lasher, 4 Bart. 232.
Woodhouse v. Duncan, 160 N. Y. 527.
Hirschbach v. Ketchum, 84 App. Div. 258.
Pakas v. Hollingshead, 184 N. Y. 211.
Jackson v. Griswold, 4 Hill, 522.
Bates v. Stanton, 1 Deur, 79.
Bouchard v. Dias, 3 Denio, 238.
Oceanic S. N. Co. v. Campagnia Espanola, 134 N. Y. 461.
Oceanic S. N. Co. v. Campagnia Espanola, 144 N. Y. 663.
Carleton v. Lombard, Ayres & Co., 149 N. Y. 137.

Park Hill Co. v. Herriot, 41 App., Div. 324.
Gleason v. N. W. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 189 N. Y. 100.
Doty v. Brown, 4 N. Y. 71.
O'Donnell v. McIntyre, 118 N. Y. 156, 162.
Emma Silver Mining Co., Ltd., v. Emma Silver Mining Co. of New York, 7 Fed. Rep. 401.
Old Dominion &c. Co. v. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206.

1119 Correspondence Between Counsel.

Mr. HEMENWAY: There is correspondence between the office of counsel for the complainant and counsel for the defendant in this case, and also between counsel for the complainant and counsel for the defendant, Mr. Lauterbach or Mr. Treadwell, in New York in the New York cases.

HAMMOND, J.: Is there any objection to the offer of that?

Mr. HEMENWAY: What I was going to propose in regard to it is to let them take the correspondence, and they can see whether it is correct in matter of substance, and if they have objections to it they can make the same objections as they would if it was offered in court.

HAMMOND, J.: Any objection to that course?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Do you mean the entire correspondence or only selected portions?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Oh, only selected,—that is, as showing the joint action of counsel.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I should be very glad to go over the files of the letters proposed rather than to go through the form of having them read.

HAMMOND, J.: That may be done.

[Following is the correspondence submitted by counsel for defendant to counsel for complainant:]

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 4, 1902.
C/B.

Re Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co.

Walter Lewisohn, Esq., Executor of Estate of Leonard Lewisohn, 11 Broadway, New York City.

DEAR SIR: Upon my return from my vacation I find your letter of August 1st.

If you desire that I should confer with your counsel, Mr. Edward Lauterbach, I shall be glad to arrange for an interview with him at an early date.

1120 The tone of your letter leaves me, however, in doubt as to whether you desire that such conference should be had, or prefer that without such conference the Old Dominion Copper

Mining and Smelting Company shall take such action as it may deem best to protect its interests.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

SEPTEMBER 10, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: I have yours of September 4th. Permit me to correct the statement in the first paragraph of your letter. I have not only never refused, but have been more than ready to furnish any facts in my possession bearing upon the organization of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company or its affairs to which, in my judgment, the Stockholders and Directors of the Company are legitimately entitled. A general verbal request of yours to be allowed to have access to all the papers in relation to the original purchase of the property was very properly refused.

In order, however, that there may be no misunderstanding as to my position in the matter and as to just what information I have refused to give you, will you kindly send me a list of the questions which you wish answered and I shall be pleased to promptly reply to them, if they appear to call for information which your clients should legitimately possess.

If, after receipt of my answers you are still of the opinion that you would like to arrange for an interview with my counsel I shall be prepared to take up the matter then.

My only desire is to have specific points upon which we may base a conference, and it seems to me that the method I have suggested is the shortest way of arriving at such a basis. I think the course I have recommended suggests my answer to the question in the last paragraph of your letter.

Very truly,

A. S. BIGELOW.

1121

SEPTEMBER 11, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: I have yours of even date. As your request takes in all matters relating also to the late Leonard Lewisohn's connection, I have forwarded your letter to the counsel for the Estate, Mr. Edward Lauterbach, with whom I understand you have been in correspondence on the matter, and shall act according to his instructions. I have telephoned his office this afternoon that an important letter is on the way, so that he may get it to morrow and there be no delay.

Yours truly,

——— ———.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire St.

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 12, 1902.

A. S. Bigelow, Esq., Sears Building, Boston.

DEAR SIR: I received your letter of the 11th this morning, and have not heard from you since.

As our clients are desirous that there should be no delay, I enclose herewith a letter addressed to yourself and the Executors of Leonard Lewisohn relating to a part of the claim concerning which we have written you.

I may add that in the event of no adjustment being reached, we are directed to commence proceedings, and in that event we should like to have an attachment bond in the amount of $500. The claim considerably exceeds that amount, but our clients have expressed a willigness to accept a bond for that amount.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enc.)

Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., Office 35 Congress Street, Boston.

A. S. Bigelow, Esq., and the Executors of the Estate of Leonard Lewisohn, Deceased.

DEAR SIRS: Shortly after the organization of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Mr. A. S. Bigelow and Mr. Leonard Lewisohn caused 30,000 shares of the stock of that 1122 Company to be issued to themselves, ostensibly as the consideration for a conveyance to the Company of certain mining properties and claims, the title of which we are advised then stood in the name of Mr. Leonard Lewisohn, and which in the record of the meeting of the Company held July 11, 1895, were described as follows:—

"First. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 267, Lot No. 45, situated in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Second. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 268, Lot No. 46 in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

Third. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 269, Lot No. 41 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Fourth. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1885, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 384, Lot No. 51 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Fifth. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company, Deed recorded in Book 1 of Deeds to Real Estate at page 126 and 127 in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land."

The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company is advised that these shares were issued under circumstances which entitle it to rescind the transaction, and hereby offers to re-convey the property to you or either of you, or to such person as you or either of you may name, upon the return by you or either of you of the 30,000 shares, or, if and so far as said shares have been disposed of, upon a proper accounting therefor.

Yours truly,

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING CO.,
By CHARLES S. SMITH, Pres't.
CHARLES H. ALTMILLER, Treas.

1123 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 12, 1902.

G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of the 9th.

I wrote to the executors of the estate of the late Leonard Lewisohn on September 4th in connection with an earlier letter to them of July 24th relating to an important claim of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company against the estate.

In my letter of September 4th to them, I suggested that if they desired, I should be glad to confer with their counsel.

You have no doubt been advised by them, as well as from your correspondence with Mr. Bigelow, of the nature of this claim.

If you deem a conference between us desirable, I shall be glad to do what I can to arrange for such a meeting either here or in New York.

I enclose herewith a letter from the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company to Mr. Bigelow and the Executors relating to a part of the transactions on which the claim in question is founded.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

SEPTEMBER 12, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Mr. A. S. Bigelow has referred to me your letter to him of the 11th inst. and has, he informs me by mail, communicated to you that, since I represent the Executors of the Lewisohn Estate, and because an interview between us is likely to take place, he refers to the subject of that letter, as well as the matter generally, to me to discuss with you on his behalf as well as on behalf of the Executors.

I shall be glad to hear from you at your convenience so that a meeting may be arranged for.

Very truly yours, EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

1124 Law Offices of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York City.

Edward Lauterbach, Louis Adler, Ferdinand R. Minrath, Alfred Lauterbach, Henry L. Scheuerman, Eugene Treadwell.

SEPTEMBER 13TH, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., c/o Mess. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letter of the 12th. I think that a conference between us is desirable, and I will be glad to see you at any time, preferring of course to have the meeting take place in New York, if convenient to you, rather than at Boston.

The Republican State Convention takes place on the 23rd, and I shall probably not be in town between Friday of next week and Wednesday thereafter. At any other time that you may indicate I will be at your service.

Very truly yours, EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

SEPTEMBER 13, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Further answering your letter of September 12th to Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Edward Lauterbach has called me up today on the telephone and stated that he has received my copy of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company's letter to Mr. Bigelow and the Executors of the Estate of Leonard Lewisohn, and that he has telegraphed you in regard to the matter.

In order to avoid a multiplicity of counsel which would undoubtedly delay matters until they could all be thoroughly informed of the case on the part of their clients, I am authorized to say that Mr. Bigelow is perfectly willing to accept any decision which is arrived at by yourself and Mr. Lauterbach, as representing the Estate 1125 of Leonard Lewisohn, and that any course of procedure agreed upon by yourself and Mr. Lauterbach will be perfectly satisfactory to him and he will consider it binding upon him.

Very truly, G. M. HYAMS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 15, 1902.
G/B.

G. M. Hyams, Esq., Sears Building, Boston.

DEAR SIR: I am in receipt of your letters of the 12th and 13th. I am today also in receipt of a letter from Mr. Edward Lauterbach stating that he deems a conference desirable, and I have wired him as follows:—

"Regret cannot be in New York this week. Can see you here Tuesday afternoon, Wednesday forenoon, or Thursday. Imperative matter should be taken up this week."

Very truly yours, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

BOSTON, MASS., Sep. 15.

Edw. Lauterbach, 22 Wm. St.:

Telegram rec'd very sorry must ask you to come before Friday will arrange for any time Thursday most convenient for you Wednesday morning.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

11 25.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 18, 1902.
G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., care A. S. Bigelow, Esq., Sears Building Boston.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I enclose herewith copies of the two bills in equity Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Albert S. Bigelow, which you examined this morning, and which we propose filing in case no judgment is reached.

1126 I shall be glad to delay filing the bills until such time as you may have had an opportunity of duly considering the questions involved, upon our understanding that my clients shall be in no way prejudiced by the delay, and that if there should be occasion to bring the suits, you will arrange for such waivers in respect to time of filing service and pleadings so that the postponement of the commencing of the suits will not result in delay in the progress of the cases.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

2 enclosures.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: In order not to cause any unnecessary delay in the matter concerning which I had the pleasure of conferring with you on Thursday, I came to Boston today for further conference with you and also with Mr. Hemenway, who will probably appear in any action you may bring, for Mr. Bigelow.

I timed my visit unfortunately, since I have ascertained that you would not be at your office today. Tomorrow I go to Saratoga, and since I expect to be Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions at the Convention, will not be able to confer with you again until after the close of the session, which will probably take place on Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

In the meantime, on any question of procedure or furnishing of a bond that may appear to you to be pressing, Mr. Hemenway will be glad to confer with you.

With regards, I am

Very truly yours, EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 22, 1902.
G. B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have today a letter from Mr. Lauterbach, in which he tells me that you are acting with him in the matter of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company against Mr. Alfred S. Bigelow.

1127 I enclose you a copy of his letter, and also of my reply under date of today.

Am I right in assuming that in case a settlement is not reached, Mr. Bigelow will furnish the attachment bond for which we have asked.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 27, 1902.
G. B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach requests me to arrange with you the matter of bond in the suits of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Albert S. Bigelow which we wish now to file, of which you doubtless have received the copies which we handed to Mr. Lauterbach.

We should like to have an attachment bond in the amount of $500,000. A single bond will be provided it is conditioned to the satisfaction of any decree which may be entered in either or both of the suits.

Will you kindly let me hear from you on Monday morning whether a bond in that form will be agreeable to you, and whom Mr. Bigelow proposes as surety?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 29, 1902.
G. B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: The two bills of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company differ only in that which follows article Twenty-fourth.

I understand that you have a copy of the bill proceeding upon a rescission, and I enclose herewith pages 19 and 20 of bill "A," including article twenty-fifth and the prayer.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

1128 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 8TH, 1902.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

MY DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I enclose copy of my letter to Mr. Lauterbach of September 18th, 1902, embodying the understanding referred to in our conversation of this morning, in regard to the time of filing the pleadings, which appears not to have come to your attention before.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 18TH, 1902.
C/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: As I told my clients that the defendant's pleadings in the suits of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow were due, under the agreement made with Mr. Lauterbach, on November 5th, I am having almost daily inquiries as to whether they have been filed.

I told them ten days ago, after talking with you, that you would take the matter up immediately, and I hope you will be able to file them today or tomorrow.

Awaiting your reply,

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 2, 1903.
G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: Your telegram asking me to extend the time to answer in Lewisohn suit for 20 days was received after I left the office on Saturday.

1129 You will see from the enclosed copy of the answer in the Bigelow suit, No. 8099, that Mr. Hemenway considered the matter very carefully, and I have no doubt that with this at hand you will be able to get your answer into satisfactory shape by next Friday, March 6th.

If the answer is filed, and at any time during the subsequent 20 days you should wish to amend the answer I will very gladly consent to the filing of such amendment.

I have not extended the time for answering further partly because I felt sure that upon receiving a copy of Mr. Hemenway's answer you would not deem it necessary, and partly because of the following:

My clients know that an answer is due this week, and I did not feel at liberty to grant an extension beyond this week because of the position in which I was left before with reference to them by Mr. Hemenway's failure to abide by the agreement that I had made with you in regard to the time for filing the answer in the Boston suits. You will remember that when I consented to postpone the beginning of the suit in order that you and Mr. Hemenway might have ample time to consider the questions, we agreed that there should be no delay in the ultimate proceedings resulting from any delay in the commencement of the suit. Under the arrangements which I made with you Mr. Hemenway's answer should have been filed on November 5th. Instead of that Mr. Hemenway did not file the answer until December 2nd. My clients knew of our agreement and the time when the answer was due, and I was considerably embarrassed in my relations with them owing to that fact.

In view of this it seemed to me unwise to extend your time for answering beyond Friday, although, as above stated, I will gladly consent to any amendment of the answer which is filed within the extension now granted.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(1 enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 17TH, 1903.

G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: After your telephone this morning, stating that you found it was impossible for you to come on on Monday, I communicated with Mr. Hemenway and secured his consent to the adjournment, as you requested, to Tuesday next, March 24th, at ten o'clock a. m., and have just wired you as follows:—

11:30 "Hemenway has agreed so we will adjourn taking depositions to Tuesday next as you request. Please mail stipulation, also transcript requested in mine of March seventh."

If the stipulation has not already been mailed to me, will you please sign the enclosed stipulation and return it to me.

If by any chance the transcript from the stock ledger referred to in mine of March 7th has not been completed, will you kindly have it completed at once and mailed to me.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

BOSTON, MASS, Mar. 17.

Edward Lauterbach, 22 Wm. St.:

Hemenway has agreed so we will adjourn*ing* taking depositions to Tuesday next as you request. Please mail stipulation, also transcript requested in mine of March seventh.

LOUIS F. BRANDEIS.
12 19 p.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 17, 1903.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach called me up on the telephone yesterday and stated that he had just returned from Kentucky and it would be impossible for him to go on with the taking of the depositions on Wednesday or any later day this week, but that he could go on on Tuesday and other days of next week. I told him I would see whether I could arrange so that I could grant the postponement, and I have, at considerable inconvenience, made such arrangements.

Mr. Lauterbach stated that Mr. Bigelow would not go abroad before May 12th, and also that he had just been in communication,—I was not sure whether with you or Mr. Bigelow or Mr. Hyams—in regard to the matter, and that the adjournment would be agreeable to you and them.

I am willing to grant the adjournment as requested by Mr. Lauterbach if you will agree on his behalf as well as that of the witnesses to proceed on Tuesday March 24th at ten o'clock.

1131 I enclose a draft of agreement for the adjournment, which kindly sign and return to me if the arrangement is satisfactory.

I send you also a copy for your files. I wrote to Mr. Lauterbach yesterday that I would wire him if the adjournment could be arranged. Will you kindly let me hear from you, therefore, as soon as possible?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 2ND, 1903.
C/G.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR HEMENWAY: I have a telegram from Mr. Lauterbach, asking that the hearing in Old Dominion v. Lewisohn be postponed from Friday, April 3rd, for one week.

I am willing to agree to this adjournment if you will sign the enclosed agreement for postponement to Friday, April 10th, at ten o'clock, on behalf of both Mr. Lewisohn and the witnesses.

Please return the agreement by bearer. I enclose a copy for your files.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 1ST, 1903.
G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

MY DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: Confirming our telephone communication on the 29th, I have had the examination of Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Hyams adjourned to Tuesday, May 5th, at ten a. m.

I understand that you have only a few questions to put to Mr. Bigelow, and that you will then proceed with Mr. Hyams.

I trust you have entirely recovered from the effects of the operation.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1132 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 1ST, 1903.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I enclose herewith a copy of my letter of today to Mr. Lauterbach.

Yours truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 15, 1903.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR: I have yours of the 14th.

I will draft the stipulation in regard to taking testimony and send it to you.

I would like to take the testimony of Mr. Meredith and perhaps a few other witnesses, some time next week.

Will you have the kindness to wire me tomorrow morning what days next week will be most convenient for you?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.
G.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 18, 1903.
G. B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I find today your two telegrams of the 16th and 18th, the latter saying that you cannot be here on Thursday, but can go on on Friday, and prefer a day or two next week.

I have just heard from Mr. Hemenway, who says he thinks he can go on on Friday of this week, but that it is possible that 1133 a case marked for Thursday may prevent; and in the event that he cannot go on on Friday of this week, he can go on on Thursday of next week, May 21st.

I have told him I would see what arrangements I could make for Friday of this week and Thursday of next week, and would then advise him and you.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 21ST, 1903.
G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have your telegram of today, notifying me that you will be unable to attend on Thursday of next week. I named that day, understanding it to be the only date that Mr. Hemenway was free. I will see if I can make any other arrangement for next week, and if not, will endeavor to accommodate you by postponing the taking of depositions until the week following.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 21ST, 1903.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: In pursuance of our conversation on May 18th, I notified Mr. Lauterbach that we would not take any testimony this week but that he should reserve Thursday of next week, which I understood to be the only day you had open. I have just had a telegram from Mr. Lauterbach saying that he is to be engaged on Thursday but could attend on any other day next week after Monday.

Will you kindly let me know whether there has been any change in your engagements for next week, and if not, whether you will be free the week following.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1134 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JANUARY 13, 1904.
G.

Re Old Dominion v. Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 Williams St., New York City.

MY DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: We should like to take some depositions in this case in Baltimore soon.

Will you have the kindness to let me know what day or days will be most convenient to you?

Awaiting your early reply,

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JANUARY 25, 1904.
C/B.

Re Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., 334 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach asks me to arrange with you for the time for taking depositions in Baltimore and tells me of your immediate engagements.

Will you kindly let me know after what date I may arrange the days?

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I find that I omitted to acknowledge receipt of your letter of January 23d in regard to the taking of testimony.

1135 Upon communicating with Mr. Hemenway, I found that he was not willing to fix at all a time for the taking of the testimony in Baltimore until he had disposed of the then pressing matters in the Bay State Gas litigation which I understand is coming up for a hearing on the 11th.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.
Removed to top floor.

BOSTON, MASS., April 6th, 1904.
C/B.

Re Old Dominion-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I enclose you copy of my letter to Mr. Hemenway of today.

You will recall that when I wrote you on January 13th about taking testimony, you authorized me to fix the earliest time that Mr. Hemenway would give and that he was unable to give me any time then on account of his peremptory assignments in the Gas cases.

Will you kindly let me know whether I am free now to arrange the dates with Mr. Hemenway?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.
Removed to top floor.

BOSTON, MASS., April 6th, 1904.
C/B.

Re Old Dominion-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., 334 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I understand that the end of the Gas cases is near, and presume that you will again be open to engagements in other matters.

Will you kindly let me know for what time I may endeavor to arrange for taking some testimony in Baltimore, about which you will recall that I last heard from you on January 26th, when you said that you could not take the matter up until the Gas hearing was disposed of.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1136 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 11, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., 334 Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have yours of the 9th, and assume that I shall hear from you soon.

I wish that you would let me know at the same time for what week we may set down for argument the demurrer in the Bigelow suit here.

I think that the demurrer should be argued soon.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 18, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: You will recall that when we were taking testimony in New York last year, I suggested that we take the deposition of Mr. Stanton, but that you and Mr. Hemenway preferred at that time that Mr. Stanton's deposition should be taken in the ordinary course on written interrogatories. We thereupon filed interrogatories to Mr. Stanton and took his deposition on written interrogatories. These interrogatories were at the time taken technically in the Massachusetts case, 8099 Equity. I wish the deposition of Mr. Stanton to be on file also in the New York case.

Will it be agreeable to you to stipulate that the deposition taken in the Boston suit may be used also in the Lewisohn suit?

I enclose herewith a copy of the interrogatories and answers.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

1137 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 21, 1904.
G/B.

Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have yours of the 20th, in which you ask me to submit to you the form of stipulation which I desire to have entered in relation to Mr. Stanton's deposition, and I now enclose duplicate copies of same, which I have signed.

Will you kindly sign them and return one copy to me?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

APRIL 28TH, 1904.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We beg to enclose herewith the stipulation sent to us in the case of Old Dominion Copper Co. against Frederick Lewisohn, et al. agreeing that a certified copy of the deposition of John Stanton taken in the Bigelow suit may be filed and read in evidence in the Lewisohn suit.

Very truly yours,

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON.

(Enc.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 29, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion-Lewisohn.

Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach and Johnson, 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR SIRS: I thank you for yours of the 28th enclosing stipulation with reference to the deposition of John Stanton. I have not heard from Mr. Hemenway since April 9th in regard to the taking of depositions, and presume that he is in communication with you.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1138 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 3, 1904.
G/B.

Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I enclose herewith draft of the reservation in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Bigelow, 8098 Equity, as prepared by Judge Lathrop.

I am handing a copy of this also to Mr. Cooper for Judge Lathrop's signature.

I have written to Mr. Lauterbach about taking evidence in Boston in the Lewisohn case the latter part of next week or the early part of the week following, and am awaiting a telegram from him letting me know what days, if any, to avoid.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 6, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have heard from Mr. Lauterbach, who asks me not to take any depositions this week, but to arrange with you for the selection of a day next week.

I should like to commence the taking of depositions on Monday next, June 13th, at half past ten.

Will you please let me know at once whether that time will be convenient to you?

I tried to reach you by telephone, but found that you were not in.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1139 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 7, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 27 William St. New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I duly received your telegram of the 3d, and have arranged with Mr. Hemenway to take the depositions of some witnesses in Boston at my office on Wednesday next, June 15th, at 10.30 o'clock.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 13TH, 1904.
C/B.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have written Mr. Lauterbach, asking him kindly to have present at the taking of depositions at our office on Wednesday the original subscription or underwriting agreements and other papers put in evidence in connection with the depositions of Messrs. Bigelow and Hyams.

If these papers are in your possession and not in Mr. Lauterbach's, will you please bring them with you?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 21, 1904.
C/B.

Re Old Dominion-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I presume you have received from Mr. Hemenway copies of the depositions of Mr. Coram and Mr. Stone.

You will note that, in view of your inability to attend at 1140 the taking of the depositions, I agreed that, although the depositions are closed, I would recall Mr. Coram and Mr. Stone in case you wish to cross-examine them.

Will you kindly let me know by return mail whether you do wish to cross-examine them, and if so, what day will be convenient for you for this purpose? I should like to fix some day before June 28th.

I have marked for argument at the October Sitting the demurrer in the suit of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Lewisohn.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

ARM–V.

JUNE 28TH, 1904.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Hemenway has not yet sent us copies of the depositions by Mr. Coram and Mr. Stone. As soon as the same is received Mr. Lauterbach, who has just returned from Chicago, will examine them, and will then reply more definitely to your favor of the 21st inst.

Yours very truly,

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 9, 1904.
G/B.

Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I should like to take, on such day next week as will be most convenient to you, the deposition of Mr. Charles H. Altmiller, and possibly also the deposition of one or more of the other subscribers to the Old Dominion stock.

Will you kindly let me know what day you prefer?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1141 EL/V. SEPTEMBER 10TH, 1904.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: I have communicated with Mr. Hemenway, who will communicate with you on the subject of the proposed examination of Charles H. Altmiller, and others, subscribers to the Old Dominion stock.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 14, 1904.
G/B.

Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have received your letter of the 10th, and since then have heard from Mr. Hemenway that he feels you ought to attend at the taking of the deposition of Mr. Altmiller, and that he has written you to that effect, and that he will le me hear as soon as he hears from you, but that he thought his letter had not been answered because you were not in New York City.

Will you have the kindness to let me know as soon as this reached you when it would be convenient for you to attend at the taking of Mr. Altmiller's deposition.

As I have stated, we shall probably on the same day wish to take the depositions of a few other subscribers to the stock.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 20, 1904.
G/B.

Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: A letter from your office under date of the 15th informed me that my letter to you of the 14th asking you to name a day that would be convenient for you to attend at the taking of the deposition of Mr. Altmiller would be answered upon your return to the office on the 19th.

1142 If you have not already written me, will you kindly wire me on receipt of this on what day you can attend?

Awaiting your reply,

Very truly yours,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 22, 1904.

Re Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

MY DEAR HEMENWAY: I received your message last week that Mr. Lauterbach was absent from New York, and that you could not fix a time for taking the depositions here until you should hear from him.

I wrote Mr. Lauterbach accordingly asking him to let me know on what day it would be convenient for him to proceed, and I finally got a telegram yesterday from him saying that he could proceed on any day satisfactory to you.

Before I could communicate with you I have had a telephone from him saying that you say that you cannot go on earlier than the second week of October, but that any day either during the second week of October or before that time on which you can go on will be satisfactory to him.

Is there not some day next week or the week following on which you would be able to attend to the matter, and if not, what day or days during the second week of October will you be able to attend?

Awaiting your reply,

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPT. 23, 1904.
G/B.

Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have just been talking with Mr. Hemenway, and he has agreed that I might fix Friday, October 7th, for the taking of Mr. Altmiller's deposition.

Will ten o'clock on that day be a convenient time for you to attend at my office?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1143 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

1143

OCTOBER 6, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dominion vs. Bigelow and Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., 334-338 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

MY DEAR HEMENWAY: I have yours of today and am very sorry that you cannot go on with the taking of the depositions to-morrow.

I note that you have already notified Mr. Lauterbach.

As I said yesterday when you mentioned this, I would like to go on on Monday or Tuesday of next week, or if that is not possible, on Wednesday, and I am disappointed at your not letting me know whether you can go on on Monday or Tuesday.

Please let me hear from you.

Very truly yours,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 2, 1904.
G/B.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: 1. I am sorry to report that Judge Townsend's engagements are such that he did not consider it possible to hear our demurrer at his November sitting.

Will you not, nevertheless, complete your brief now so that we may have the case ready for argument as soon as an opportunity arises?

2. I note that you will let me know within a few days whether you wish to cross examine Mr. Altmiller.

Will you also let me have an answer to the matter which we discussed, namely whether you will waive formal proof of those matters testified to by Mr. Altmiller from entries in the various books and papers, and as to some of which he has no personal knowledge.

If you do not wish to consent, I want to call as soon as possible witnesses who can give formal testimony to these matters.

Awaiting your reply,

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1144 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 3, 1904.
G/B.

Old Dom. v. Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: You doubtless know that the demurrer in suit of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. v. Bigelow is on the November list for the Full Bench. Indeed, I understand that you yourself directed the papers to be printed, but in order to avoid the possibility of any misunderstanding, I wrote to say that we shall want to have this demurrer argued when it is reached.

I am led to send this letter because I found that although I had early notified Mr. Lauterbach that we expected to argue the demurrer in the Lewisohn case as soon as reached, and also talked with him about the matter recently in Boston, he seemed entirely surprised to find that it was on the list and he was not prepared to take it up on Tuesday.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 11, 1904.
G/B.

Re Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have yours of the 9th enclosing check for $35., and have sent you by American Express twelve additional copies of the Demurrer Book.

I am writing to Mr. Hemenway today to ascertain whether he wishes to cross examine Mr. Altmiller &c.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1145 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 11, 1904.
G/B.

Re Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Bldg., Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach tells me that he has requested you answer my inquiry whether you wish to have made any cross examination of Mr. Altmiller, and also whether you will stipulate as to the withdrawal of the objections to the formal parts of Mr. Altmiller's testimony, so as to relieve us from the necessity of making formal proof.

I should be glad if you could let me have a reply by eleven o'clock tomorrow.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DECEMBER 15, 1904.
J–G.

Re Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

MY DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: My absence in the South has led to delay in replying to your letter of November 12th.

In pursuance of the suggestion contained in your letter I enclose herewith:

1. Three copies marked "A" of draft of stipulation to be filed in the Lewisohn case # 1 concerning the Altmiller deposition.

It has seemed to me also proper at this time to prepare stipulations covering some other matters in regard to the proof in the Lewisohn cases and also in the Bigelow cases, and I therefore enclose herewith:

2. Drafts marked "B" of stipulations to be filed in both Lewisohn cases covering the filing therein of certified copies of the depositions of the Lewisohns and others which were taken in the Bigelow case, and also concerning the filing of the depositions of Bigelow and others taken in the Lewisohn case, etc.

1146 3. Also for your and Mr. Hemenway's consideration, drafts marked "C" of stipulations to be filed in the two Bigelow cases concerning the filing of the depositions of the Lewisohns and others.

4. Drafts marked "D" of stipulations to be filed in the two Bigelow cases concerning the depositions of Bigelow, Hyams and others which were taken in the Lewisohn suit.

Will you kindly let me know as soon as possible whether these stipulations will be in all respects agreeable to you and Mr. Hemenway, and if you have any suggestions to make, let me have them as promptly as possible.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(Stipulations herewith.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JANUARY 10, 1905
G/B.

Re Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I duly received yours of December 29th.

Are you and Mr. Hemenway content with the form of the stipulations submitted, and if so, will you kindly have them returned to me?

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

ARM–m JANUARY 12, 1905.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston.

DEAR SIR: In reply to your favor of the 10th inst., we beg to state that the stipulations have just been returned by Mr. Hemingway in the Bigelow-Lewisohn matter together with his suggestions for certain changes to be made therein. We will change the stipulations in accordance with his said suggestions, and send it to you within the next day or two.

Very truly yours,

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON.

1147 ARM—L.

JANUARY 18TH, 1905.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We have this day sent to Mr. Hemenway the stipulations in amended form in the Lewisohn and Bigelow actions, and have requested him to deliver the same to you providing they meet with his approval.

We will be obliged if upon delivery you will sign a set of the said stipulations so that we can have a full copy for our records.

Very truly yours,

——— ———.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JANUARY 26, 1905.
G/B.

Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: When I saw you on the 20th, you expected to be able to let me have the stipulations in a few days.

Have you had time to examine them?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 1, 1905.
G/B.

Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I take the liberty of reminding you that you promised when I saw you on Jan. 20th, to send me the stipulations in the above cases.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1148 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 13, 1905.
G/B.

Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Will you please let me have the Old Dominion-Bigelow-Lewisohn stipulations today or tomorrow?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 17, 1905.
G/B.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

MY DEAR HEMENWAY: I have yours of the 14th inst., enclosing the stipulations in the above cases.

The changes which you and Mr. Lauterbach have made are satisfactory to me.

I think that in the clause "Said waiver being made conditionally upon the production of any and all of the original documents that the respondent shall notify complainant to produce and the complainant hereby stipulates and agrees to produce any and all of the original documents upon receiving notice requiring the production thereof" the word "said" should be substituted for "the" in each instance before the word "original," so that it shall read "all of said original documents," as it might otherwise on its face appear to refer to some other papers.

I have therefore taken the liberty of thus changing the word "the" to the word "said."

We have signed and sent for filing the stipulations in the Bigelow suits and in the Lewisohn suits, and have sent to Mr. Lauterbach a signed copy of all seven stipulations.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
D.

1149 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 17, 1905.
G/B.

Re Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have just received from Mr. Hemenway the stipulations with the modifications suggested by you and him. These are entirely satisfactory to us. I have thought, however, that in the paragraph "Said waiver being made conditionally upon the production of any and all of the original documents that the respondent shall notify complainant to produce, and the complainant hereby stipulates and agrees to produce any and all of the original documents upon receiving notice requiring the production thereof," the word "said" should be substituted for "the" before the word "original," and I have taken the liberty of doing so.

I send you herewith for your files a copy signed by us of all the stipulations filed in the Bigelow and Lewisohn cases.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

P. S.—I understand that our demurrer is the third case on the list for argument on Monday next. I am purposing to go over on Sunday afternoon, and spend the night at the City Club, so as to be on hand Monday morning, and I hope to have the pleasure of meeting you then.

(7 enclosures.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 18, 1905.
G/J.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: We have signed and now return to you herewith your copy of the stipulations.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.
G.

(7 enclosures.)

1150 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JUNE 26, 1905.
J/B.

Old Dominion: Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

MY DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I wrote Mr. Lauterbach some days ago that we wished to take the depositions of a number of witnesses who were subscribers for stock, and asked him at what time it would be most convenient for him to come to Boston. He writes me that I should make arrangements with you; that any date that you fix will be agreeable to him, but that he "should prefer to have the depositions taken after the Fourth of July."

Please let me know on what dates it would be convenient for you to attend, and I will endeavor to make my engagements conform, and secure the witnesses for such dates.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 11, 1905.
J/B.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: Mr. Hemenway has just notified me that he will be at liberty to go any days next week, except Saturday, that will be convenient to you with the taking of the depositons.

Will you kindly let me know what days you can attend next week, and I will endeavor at once to get in touch with the witnesses?

It is growing late in the month, and I fear that some of them may already have left on their vacations.

Awaiting your reply.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1151 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 14, 1905.
J/B.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: As arranged with you over the telephone on the 11th, I wrote Mr Lauterbach as to fixing the time for taking the depositions, and he suggests Wednesday, July 19th.

I am therefore endeavoring to get together the witnesses for that date, at our office, at ten o'clock.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 14, 1905.
J/B.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have your telegram and letter of the 13th, suggesting Wednesday, July 19th, for taking the depositions in the above case.

I am endeavoring to get the witnesses together for that date.

I shall expect you and Mr. Hemenway at our office at ten o'clock.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 17, 1905.
J/McC.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: At the taking of the testimony in the above matter Wednesday, I desire to examine Mr. Chrimes and for this purpose should like to have all the correspondence of Mr. 1152 Bigelow in connection with the corporation and syndicate during 1895 up to October 1st, particularly the letters already introduced — evidence, and also all the letter books of the various series for the same period.

I assume that it will not be necessary to issue a formal summons to Mr. Chrimes, or for the production of the books and papers, and shall be obliged if you will confirm this.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1905.
G/B.

Old Dominion vs. Bigelow.
" " vs. Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: We should like to take some further depositions.

Will it be possible for you to attend on either October 12th or 13th, and if neither of those dates is possible, please let me know the earliest date after that which will be convenient for you.

I am communicating also by this mail with Mr. Lauterbach.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

SEPTEMBER 30, 1905.
G/B.

Old Dominion vs. Bigelow.
" " vs. Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: We should like to take some further depositions.

Will it be possible for you to attend on either October 12th or 13th, and if neither of those dates is possible, please let me know the earliest date after that which will be convenient for you.

I am communicating also by this mail with Mr. Lauterbach.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1153 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 5, 1905.

J/B.

Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have yours saying that you know of no objection to taking the depositions on the 13th, and Mr. Lauterbach has also written that that date would suit him if agreeable to you.

We are communicating with Mr. R. Brent Keyser, of Baltimore, with a view to taking his deposition there on that date. Will you please let me know by bearer whether you see anything to prevent your attending at Baltimore on the 13th?

We are communicating with Mr. Keyser this morning.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 9, 1905.

J/B.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have your message that you cannot go to Baltimore on the 13th on account of pending cases here, but that you can attend at the taking of testimony in Boston on that date.

Will you therefore kindly have Mr. Chrimes at our office with all of the books and papers produced at his examination on July 20th and also the other books and papers called for in the course of his deposition?

We hope to arrange also for the presence of enough other witnesses to occupy the day.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1154 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 9, 1905.

J/G.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: Mr. Hemenway has assented to the taking of depositions in Boston on the 13th, and I have just written him as per enclosed copy.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(1 enclosure.)

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 14, 1905.

J/G.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I have not heard from you by wire or letter in answer to mine of the 12th.

As we desire to arrange for the attendance of witnesses on the 19th, if that date is possible, will you kindly wire me early Monday whether it will be convenient for you to be here on that date? Mr. Hemenway assents to that day subject to your consent.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 6, 1905.

G/B.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have just received a telegram from Mr. Lauterbach reading as follows:—"This week inconvenient. Any day next week after Monday. Arrange with Hemenway."

1155 Will you please let me know on what days next week you can attend for the taking of depositions?

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 21, 1905.

J. B.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: We are arranging, in accordance with my conversation with you last evening, to take the depositions on Friday next, October 27th, at ten o'clock.

Will you therefore kindly have Mr. Chrimes at our office with all of the books and papers produced at his examination on July 20th and also the other books and papers called for in the course of his deposition?

When I last heard from you, you promised to let us have your answer in the suit of Old Dominion vs. Bigelow by October 15th. If the answer is ready please send me a copy; if not, I hope you will be able to let me have it within the next few days.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCTOBER 21, 1905.

J/B.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William Street, New York City, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: I saw Mr. Hemenway yesterday, and agreed with him that we should proceed with the taking of depositions on Friday next, October 27th, at ten o'clock. He said that he would notify you, but to avoid the possibility of any misunderstanding, I write to you direct.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1156

OCTOBER 23RD, 1905.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: Friday next, October 27th will suit my convenience for the taking of the depositions referred to in yours of the 21st.

Yours very truly, EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass

OCT. 28, 1905.

T/McC.

Re Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: In the Old Dominion case, we desire to take the testimony of several witnesses in and about St. Johnsbury, Vt. Will it be possible for you to attend to the matter on November 2d and 3d? It seems possible that it could be so arranged that all the depositions can be taken on the 2d, but in view of the distance, it would perhaps be better to leave another day open so as to avoid the possibility of having to make two trips.

I am writing to Mr. Lauterbach.

I should like to hear from you if possible today or Monday, and am asking Mr. Lauterbach to telegraph his reply.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

P. S.—My partner, Mr. McClennen, will attend to the taking of the above depositions.

1157 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCT. 28, 1905.
T/McC.

Re Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. LAUTERBACH: In the Old Dominion case, we desire to take the testimony of several witnesses in and about St. Johnsbury, Vt. Will it be possible for you to attend to the matter on November 2d and 3d? It seems probable that it could be so arranged that all the depositions can be taken on the 2d, but in view of the distance, it would perhaps be better to leave another day open so as to avoid the possibility of having to make two trips.

I am writing Mr. Hemenway at this time, and shall be obliged if you will let me have your reply by telegraph.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

P. S.—My Partner, Mr. McClennen, will attend to the taking of the above depositions.

ET–K.

OCTOBER 31ST, 1905.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Not hearing from you relative to taking testimony at St. Johnsbury in the Old Dominion case we presume that you have concluded not to go there this week.

There are only two trains from New York, one at nine o'clock in the morning, arriving at 7.30 in the evening, the other at 4.30 in the afternoon, arriving at 3.30 the next morning, which is a very unseasonable hour to arrive at any place, being too early to go to work and too late to go to bed. We desire to have sufficient notice to permit us to leave by the 9 A. M. train.

Yours truly,

——— ———.

1158 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

NOVEMBER 2, 1905.
J/G.

Old Dominion: Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR SIR-: I have yours of the 31st.

I had supposed that Mr. Hemenway reported to you that he was unable to attend at the taking of testimony at St. Johnsbury this week, and for that reason it was necessary to postpone the taking of the depositions.

I note your wishes in regard to notice so that you can take the morning train.

Very truly yours, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

Nov. 24, 1905.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Will it be convenient for you to attend the taking of depositions in Vermont on December 7, 8, or 9, if these dates are convenient for Mr. Hemenway?

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

ET-L.

NOVEMBER 27TH, 1905.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Mess. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of November 25th received. December 7th, 8th or 9th will be convenient for me if they are for Mr. Hemenway. Please notify me at least forty-eight hours in advance, as I should have to take the morning train from New York the day previous to the first session.

Yours truly,

——— ———.

1159 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEC. 1, 1905.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR MR. TREADWELL: Mr. Hemenway is unable to go to Vermont on December 7th, 8th, or 9th. We are writing him relative to the 14th, 15th, or 16th, and shall be glad to know whether these dates would be agreeable to you.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

ET-M.

DECEMBER 2ND, 1905.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., c/o Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Yours December 1st received.

The 14th, 15th and 16th December will be agreeable to me. Kindly notify me as far as possible in advance if selection made final.

Do I understand that you will expect testimony to commence on the 14th, and also if it is liable to continue on the 16th.

Very truly yours,

—— ——.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEC. 4, 1905.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Hemenway informs us that the 14th of December is agreeable to him for taking the depositions at St. Johnsbury. We will accordingly endeavor to perfect arrangements for this date at once.

We believe that all the depositions can be taken in one day.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1160 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEC. 6, 1905.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: We enclose you herewith a stipulation, and copy for your files, for the appointment of commissioner to take depositions at St. Johnsbury. Will you kindly sign and return to us the original.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Enclosure.

ET-L. DECEMBER 7TH, 1905.

Old Dominion vs. Lewisohn.

Mess. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIRS: Yours of 6th with stipulations enclosed received. We herewith return original signed.

Yours truly,

—— ——.

(Enc.)

DECEMBER 12TH, 1905.

To Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

Old Dominion Lewisohn Will session be held St. Johnsbury and where. Also on which day Answer.

EUGENE TREADWELL.

JANUARY 13TH, 1906.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: We beg to acknowledge receipt of your favor of the 4th instant, addressed to Mr. Treadwell, and in compliance with the request therein contained beg to hand you herewith check for $6.00 to cover one-half of the expense incurred by the employment of a stenographer to take the depositions at St. Johnsbury in the case Old Dominion Company v. Bigelow.

Yours very truly,

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON.

Enc.

1161 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JAN. 15, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn and Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We have just received from Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson a check for $6 to cover one-half the expense of stenographer in taking the depositions at St. Johnsbury.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 2, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn and Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: Will it be convenient for you to attend the taking of depositions in Connecticut on March 7, 8, or 9? We can probably arrange so that you can leave Boston in the morning and get back on the evening of the same day.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 2, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn and Bigelow.

Edward Lauterbach, Esq., Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIR: Will it be convenient for you to attend the taking of depositions in Connecticut on March 7, 8, or 9? We can probably arrange so that you can leave New York in the morning and get back on the evening of the same day.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1162 ET-M. MARCH 3RD, 1906.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn & Bigelow.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: The date of March 9th would be preferable to us, subject of course to the convenience of Mr. Hemenway with whom we presume you have arranged.

Yours truly,

——— ———.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAR. 5, 1906.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of March is received.

Mr. Hemenway finds that it will not be possible for him to go on this week, or even to fix a date until the conclusion of the case which he is now trying.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 27, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co.,-Lewisohn.

Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: We are just writing Mr. Hemenway with reference to an appointment for the taking of testimony. Will it be agreeable to you to attend within a week or two?

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1163 E. T.-L.

MARCH 28TH, 1906.

Old Dominion Co. vs. Lewisohn.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIRS: Yours of 27th received. Excepting April 6th and 7th, together with a case in the United States Supreme Court which the clerk of that Court advises may be reached in the week beginning April 9th, it will be agreeable for us to attend the taking of testimony.

Yours truly, ——— ———.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 17, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn and Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Can you arrange for the taking of any depositions in Boston at the end of this week or during next week? We should like at least one day for this.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.
T.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

APRIL 26, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Lewisohn & Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: As you will recall, we have agreed upon May 12th for taking testimony in New York. We should like to follow this up with some in Boston. Can you go on May 14th and 15th in Boston? If not, will you please let us have the earliest time thereafter that you can go on.

Yours very truly. EDWARD F. McCLENNEN.

1164 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 7, 1906.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: In the taking of testimony on Saturday next before Mr. Webb in New York, we should like to offer in evidence some of the numerous exhibits which were marked for identification at the time of the earlier taking of testimony in New York, and to close the direct examination of the various witnesses then examined, leaving them for your cross-examination. Will it be agreeable to you to have the witnesses in attendance and the exhibits present without summons? Among other exhibits we shall wish to offer in evidence are some from the Lewisohn letter books:

Letters: To Keyser, June 13.
" Brooker, June 25th.
" Shiff, July 12.
" Brooker, July 24.
" Stern, July 24.
" Hawley, July 25.
" Behrens, Aug. 6.
" Henry, Aug. 6.
" Henry, Aug. 26.
" Mainz, Sep. 12.
" Caspary, Oct. 1.

The portions of the Lewisohn books relating to Old Dominion, or a transcript thereof,—they are now marked Exhibits #231, #232, #233.

You will recall that the New York witnesses who have thus far testified are:

Walter Lewisohn.	Albert Lewisohn.
Frederick L. Raheuser.	F. Raheuser.
Adolf Lewisohn.	Jesse Lewisohn.
Frederick Lewisohn.	E. C. Westervelt.

Will you kindly inform us whether it will be agreeable to you to take testimony in Boston on the 15th, 16th and 17th?

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1165 E. T.-L.

MAY 8TH, 1906.

Old Dominion Co vs. Lewisohn.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of May 7th received. It would be impossible to obtain the attendance of the various witnesses you name on Saturday, that being practically a holiday, and unless you have any further direct-examination of them or any of them, we suggest instead that you on that day close their direct-examination on the record, leaving the question of cross-examination to await subsequent decision. Of course, if we conclude not to cross-examine, we can arrange to have the witnesses present at some convenient time to sign their depositions. If, however, we conclude to cross-examine, we can arrange for a further date. Obviously, we could not conclude their examination on that date together with the testimony of the other witnesses which you expect to take. We will have the exhibits present to enable you to put them in evidence on that day.

We can attend the taking of testimony in Boston on the 15th, 16th and 17th, if agreeable to Mr. Hemenway.

Kindly advise us as far in advance as possible if you conclude to have the sessions on those dates.

Yours truly,

——— ———.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 9, 1906.
T/McC.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson inform us that they can attend to the taking of testimony in Boston on the 15th, 16th and 17th of May, provided you can. Kindly inform us whether it will be convenient for you to give us all or any of these days?

Yours very truly, EDWARD F. McCLENNEN.

1166 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 14, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion-Bigelow.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Hemenway cannot go on in taking testimony upon Wednesday and Thursday of this week, but can go on on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 22d and 23d. Will you kindly inform us whether it will be agreeable to you to come to Boston on these days.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 15, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion-Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: We beg to confirm our conversation by telephone that May 22nd and 23rd are reserved for taking testimony in Boston, subject to these dates being satisfactory to Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, to whom we have written.

Yours very truly, EDWARD F. McCLENNEN.

E. T.-K.

MAY 15TH, 1906.

Old Dominion vs. Bigelow.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: It will be agreeable for us to attend taking of testimony in Boston on May 22d and 23rd, as suggested in yours of the 14th inst.

Yours truly,

—— ——.

1167 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MAY 16, 1906.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Your letter of May 15th is received, and we have accordingly arranged with Mr. Hemenway to go on on May 22d and 23d at our office in Boston.

Will you kindly bring with you the letters received by Mr. Lauterbach or the Lewisohns between June 1st and October 1st, 1902, from the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., Mr. Brandeis, Mr. Smith, Mr. Altmiller, Mr. Hyams, Mr. Bigelow, or Mr. Hemenway.

Yours very truly,

BRANDIES, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

E. T.-M.

MAY 17TH, 1906.

Old Dominion v. Bigelow.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Massachusetts.

GENTLEMEN: If for any reason the plan of taking testimony in Boston on Tuesday and Wednesday next is changed, kindly telegraph me early Saturday morning that I may alter other arrangements.

Very truly yours,

—— ——.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 6, 1906.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

DEAR SIRS: We are just writing Mr. Hemenway for a day in which to take testimony in Boston, as soon after July 13 as he can devote to this matter. Will you kindly inform us whether you can attend to the matter during the last half of July.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1168 E. T.-L.

JULY 10TH, 1906.

Old Dominion vs. Bigelow et al.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire St., Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIRS: Yours of July 6th received. It appears to have been misdirected at first and subsequently sent on a later date. We can attend on either of the following dates:

July 16, 17, 18, 24, 25, 26, 31, August 1 and 2.

Kindly inform us as far as possible in advance of the date selected.

Yours very truly,

—— ——.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 12, 1906.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Bigelow.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Enclosed herewith are copies of the interrogatories which we have just filed in the Supreme Judicial Court for Suffolk County for the deposition of Maxwell Woodhull. We should be greatly obliged if you would file such cross-interrogatories as you intend as soon as may be.

Yours very truly,

BRANDIES, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Enclosure.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 14, 1906.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Hemenway informs us that he can go on in Old Dominion on July 24th, in Boston. Accordingly, we will arrange for a hearing at our office at 10 o'clock that morning.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1169 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 8, 1907.
T/McC.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We beg to confirm our arrangement with Mr. Farley today postponing the hearing in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Lewisohn and Bigelow from February 13th at 9 o'clock to February 15th at 9 o'clock.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 11, 1907.
T/McC.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: In accordance with our conversation with you by telephone this morning, we have communicated with Mr. Treadwell, and he is agreeable to having the hearing in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Lewisohn and Bigelow at 9 o'clock on Saturday morning, February 16th, and we will understand that it is so set.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

FEBRUARY 12, 1907.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Bigelow and Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: No formal agreement has been signed covering the use in the different suits of the later depositions taken in the cases of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Bigelow and Lewisohn. I have accordingly drawn one, including in one 1170 agreement the earlier depositions, and also the latter ones. Will you kindly sign this and return it to us.

In addition to the exhibits, will you please have Mr. Hyams bring with him the original letter of C. H. Altmiller to A. S. Bigelow, dated June 24th, 1902.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Enclosure.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

MARCH 9, 1907.
B/G/Md.

Re Old Dominion—Bigelow-Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Are you not able to let us have a reply to our letter of February 18th?

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

BOSTON, MASS., March 19, 1907.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: We are desirous of bringing the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow on for hearing before the Court in April, as we called to Mr. Hemenway's attention last January. We are just writing Mr. Hemenway with reference to a specific assignment of the case, and shall be obliged if you will let us know concerning your engagements during April.

We are still anxious to get from you the stipulation dispensing with the formalities concerning the depositions.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

1171 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street,

BOSTON, MASS., March 25, 1907.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Hemenway informs us that it will be impossible for him to try the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in April, but that he has been trying to arrange for a conference with Mr. Treadwell and Mr. Hyams with a view to determining what further evidence should be offered. Under these circumstances we hope that it will be possible to have the case heard in May.

We understand that Mr. Hemenway has no objection to the form of stipulation relative to the testimony. If you are of the same opinion, we shall be greatly obliged if this formal matter can be disposed of at the present time.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street.

BOSTON, MASS., April 30, 1907.
T/McC.

Old Dominion v. Lewisohn and Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: As considerable time has elapsed since our conference on April 1st relative to the Old Dominion cases, we think that you have doubtless had opportunity to go into the matter of your contemplated defence and may therefore be in a position to let us know whether you will need more than the two days now set, May 27th and May 28th, to introduce your evidence. If so, we should like to arrange with you at the present time for additional dates in June which will meet your convenience.

As your inability to give the matter your attention this spring will probably prevent a hearing before the Court before the summer adjournment, we are very anxious to have the testimony completed this spring so that there will be no difficulty in having the case heard promptly when the Court comes in again.

Yours very truly. LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1172 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street.

BOSTON, MASS., May 20, 1907.
T/McC.

Old Dominion—Bigelow and Lewisohn.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMINGWAY: Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson have written us in response to our letter of May 15th, written on the same subject as our letters to you of April 30th and May 11th, to which we have no answer, and they express some doubt as to going on in the hearing on May 27th and May 28th. As we have written them in reply, it seems to us, in view of the length of time that has elapsed since we first expressed a desire to dispose of the case this spring, and also since our interview of April 1st when the hearings were set for May 27th and May 28th as days convenient to you, that the hearings should certainly go on these days. We also should like to arrange—before your dates are otherwise filled—to have later dates set in June for further hearing, if they are to become necessary.

Will you please let us know what dates you can give us.

Yours very truly. LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

MAY 24TH, 1907.

Re Old Dominion Co. vs. Bigelow.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: I find it impossible to do anything about the Old Dominion matter on Tuesday the 28th inst. As to a further appointment, I must confer with Mr. Lauterbach.

Yours very truly,

——— ———.

1173 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street.

BOSTON, MASS., May 28, 1907.
T/McC.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN: We are just writing Mr. Hemenway that we shall move on next Tuesday morning to have the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Bigelow, #8098, assigned for hearing on the merits at an early date in the Autumn in view of Mr. Hemenway's inability to try the case before the Court this Spring.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter.

MAY 28, 1907.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: In view of the difficulty in arranging for any further progress in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Bigelow, #8098, we have decided to move next Tuesday morning on the coming in of the Court that the case be set down for hearing on the merits at an early date in the Autumn.

We shall of course prefer to have the case heard during the coming June, but shall not press for an assignment at that time in view of your informing us of your inability to try the case then

Yours very truly,

EDWARD F. McCLENNEN.

ET–L.

MAY 31ST, 1907.

Old Dominion Co.

Messrs. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.:

GENTLEMEN: We have yours of May 28th, in which you state your intention of having the Bigelow case assigned for hearing at an early date in autumn. It was our understanding had with your Mr. Brandeis, our Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Hemenway that 1174 these cases should proceed together, and in view of your taking the Lewisohn case to the Supreme Court we feel that it is only proper that the Bigelow case should stand until the Supreme Court has passed upon the question. We did not interfere with your course in taking of testimony in these cases, permitting you to have all the time you desired for your convenience, and you occupied something over two years in making your case. Under all the circumstances it seems to us that you are unduly pressing the Bigelow case to a hearing in Massachusetts. We think that the Bigelow case should not be set down for hearing in the Fall.

Very truly yours,

——— ———.

JUNE 3D, 1907.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: In accordance with your request over the telephone, I write to tell you that we understand that you will put over the motion in the Old Dominion Case from Tuesday June 4th, until Friday June 7th, this being done at our request owing to Mr. Treadwell's desire to attend the funeral of Judge Townsend of the United States Circuit Court.

Yours very truly,

——— ———

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 12, 1907.
P/B.

Re Old Dominion—Lewisohn.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR SIRS: Mr. McClennen and I are making arrangements for the time for taking our vacations.

Will you kindly let me know when you and Mr. Hemenway wish to take depositions in the above cause?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1175 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 12, 1907.
P/B.

Re Old Dominion — Bigelow.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Bldg., Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. McClennen and I are making arrangements for the time for taking our vacations.

Will you kindly let me know when you and Mr. Lauterbach wish to take depositions in the above cause?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

ET-L.

JULY 16*th*, 1907.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., c/o Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR SIR: We have your letter. We understand that Mr. Hemenway will inquire from you as to what dates yourself and Mr. Mc-

Lennen desire to take your vacations and arrange the dates for taking testimony accordingly. We shall, under the stipulation, avail ourselves of the testimony taken on those dates.

Yours very truly,

——— ———.

1176 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

JULY 17, 1907.
B/Md.

Re Old Dominion vs. Lewisohn.

Messrs. Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR SIRS: We are in receipt of yours of the 16th, and also received under the same date a letter from Mr. Alfred Hemenway in which he says:

"L. D. Brandeis, Esq., c/o Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: If you will indicate the time during which you and Mr. McClennen propose to be absent on your respective vacations I can doubtless arrange so that the taking of our testimony in the Old Dominion cases will not interfere therewith.

Yours very truly,

ALFRED HEMENWAY."

I have just written him as follows:

Re Old Domnion vs. Bigelow.

"DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: I have yours of the 16th.

We shall be glad to attend at the taking of testimony in the Old Dominion cases at any time before August 10th, upon receipt of reasonable notice, and if the taking of your testimony has not been completed before then, we shall be glad to resume the taking of testimony after September 3d.

Will you kindly let us know as soon as possible on what days you would like to proceed?"

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

1177 Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street.

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 4, 1907.
H/McC.

Old Dominion v. Bigelow.

Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William St., New York City.

GENTLEMEN: Mr. Brandeis and Mr. McClennen have returned from their vacations, and are ready to arrange for an appointment with you for the taking of testimony, if you intend taking any. It would be particularly convenient for us if such an appointment could be made for an early day and at an early day, as we shall wish to make appointments in other matters so as not to conflict.

Yours very truly,

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

OCT. 31, 1907.
G/B.

Old Dominion — Bigelow.

Eugene Treadwell, Esq., care Alfred Hemenway, Esq., 335 Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. TREADWELL: At your request, I have taken from my volume of depositions the copies of the following:

Testimony of Walter Lewisohn,
" " Ferdinand L. Rahaeuser,
Adolph Lewisohn,
Frederick Lewisohn,
Albert Lewisohn,
Jesse Lewisohn,
E. C. Westervelt,

being contained in three volumes, and paged 835 to 1007 both inclusive.

I understand that you will return these to me tomorrow, Friday.

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(3 volumes of testimony herewith.)

1178 Oral Testimony.

MR. HEMENWAY: I will call Mr. Farley.

JOHN WELLS FARLEY, sworn.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. What is your full name?
A. John Wells Farley.
Q. Your place of business?
A. Tremont building, Boston, Mass.
Q. Associated with Alfred Hemenway?
A. Yes.
Q. Counsel in this case; and you were also one of the counsel of record in this case?
A. Yes.
Q. And have taken part in the preparation and trial of the cases since what time?
A. Since the last of November, 1903.

Q. Now, Mr. Farley, you know Mr. Edward Lauterbach?
A. Yes.
Q. And Mr. Eugene Treadwell?
A. Yes.
Q. Will you state what participation you, as associate with me and with counsel in the case, have had in the New York cases, if any?

Mr. McClennen: That I object to.

Hammond, J.: What do you desire to show, Mr. Hemenway?

Mr. Hemenway: What I desire to show is that these cases began with correspondence between Mr. Brandeis and Mr. Bigelow, and also between Mr. Brandeis and the executors of Mr. Lewisohn: that in the first instance—this will appear by the correspondence—Mr. Lauterbach was counsel and acted for both parties,—that is, Mr. Bigelow and the executors of Mr. Lewisohn. The evidence already in shows the participation of Mr. Hyams, who was in the employ of Mr. Bigelow, in reference to the testimony and the taking of evidence in these causes: that the evidence for the four cases was taken in Boston, in New York, and in St. Johnsbury, Vt.; that there are various stipulations that appear already in the evidence as to the use of this testimony in all of the cases. Supplementing that testimony by the evidence of Mr. Farley, I propose to show that he has been, in conjunction with myself, in constant communication with Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Treadwell: that the demurrer that is reported in the 188th Mass., on the argument of it, Mr. Farley was in court, and that the brief upon which that was argued here in Massachusetts was prepared jointly by Mr. Farley, Mr. Treadwell, and myself; that both Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Treadwell came to Boston several times in conference about these cases, and that in regard to the case in New York, that was argued on demurrer, the preparation of the brief that was used by Mr. Treadwell in his argument was the joint work of Mr. Treadwell, Mr. Farley, and myself; and that 1179 subsequently, when briefs were prepared for the Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court, those briefs were the joint work of the same counsel; and that no step has been taken, either in the Boston cases or in the New York cases, except upon joint consultation or knowledge and approval, and that whenever testimony has been taken in the cause it has been taken with the presence of New York counsel when taken in Boston, and of Boston counsel when taken in New York, and also when taken in Vermont; and that from the beginning to this time there has been joint service in defence of the New York suits. That is what I propose to offer as supplementing the evidence already in the case, and that will be put in through the correspondence which I have submitted to counsel.

Mr. McClennen: It seems to me, your Honor, that if all that is offered were established it would be of no importance whatever in the case. If I followed Mr. Hemenway, he and Mr. Farley were counsel for Mr. Bigelow; Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Treadwell were counsel for the Lewisohns. Their respective clients had two cases pending, an unfavorable decision in either of which would be an extremely undesirable precedent in its effect upon the other. They consulted with each other in order to find out how best to preven their becoming an unfavorable precedent for the other, just as if th client of one of them had been named Hayward or Leeson instead o being named Bigelow or Lewisohn, just as they would have done i the precise facts on which the liability arose had been different i each case, but had involved the same principles of law.

HAMMOND, J.: Do you think this evidence has any materia bearing, Mr. Hemenway? Do you think that counsel have pro ceeded in such a way as to make it your duty to put it in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, I do conceive it to be my duty, for thi reason; that in one deposition that has been put in the case there i an opinion expressed from which the inference might be found that but for participation in the defence, it would not be pleadable in bar I do not think, if I were asked my personal opinion, that it make any difference whether there was participation or not; I think it turns upon the right of participation, and not the question of actual participation. But to me, on the opinion of a man in high po sition, I think I ought to offer it, it being, I think, an undisputed fact. Of course, like many facts, it is capable of having the inference drawn from it that we were merely making a precedent, or, in the other case, that our motive was to avoid liability. But that is for the court to determine, not for counsel.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I should not want to leave uncontradicted the statement that it was an undisputed fact. I do not suppose there would ultimately be any great difference between us as to just what occurred, but I think there may be some difference of opinion 1180 as to whether it constituted a participation in the defence or not.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is what I meant to say, the inference from the undisputed facts; as to the facts that I have stated, I do not think those would be disputed.

HAMMOND, J.: If I were to [follow my own impression] I should exclude the evidence, because as I have stated to counsel, I believe it to be immaterial. But if counsel think that there is something in this evidence that will help them and be material, I am inclined to let it in subject to the objections that are made by the other side, as I have done in the case of the depositions. I do not intend by this to give anybody rights that he has not or to deprive anybody of any rights that he has. Counsel for the complainant may take such objections to the evidence as they see fit, and those objections will stand against the evidence wherever the case comes up. But under the circumstances, while I think there is a limit beyond which I ought not to go, and while I think this evidence is pretty near the limit, still, on the whole, the evidence may go in and you may have objection to it on the general ground that it is not material, and if there is any particular question that you think there is any other objection to, you may have that; but upon the general ground you object to this evidence as to participation as immaterial, and it goes in subject to your objection and exception; and that will be so whether you make any other objection while it is being put in or not. If there is anything else except that general objection that is in your mind, you may state it.

Mr. McCLENNEN: Then as to this particular question, I object to it on the ground that it calls upon the witness to draw an inference or conclusion not merely relative to the facts, but also relative to the joint understanding of counsel.

[Question read.]

HAMMOND, J.: In answering that question you may state what acts you know of which seemed to you to indicate participation. State them.

The WITNESS: I should like to limit my answer to stating what I have done, in association with Mr. Hemenway, with New York counsel, omitting any interpretation, but merely stating the facts as I recollect them. The first knowledge that I had of this case was, as I have stated, in the fall of 1903. At that time the Massachusetts cases, nominally against Bigelow, were pending, one in the Supreme Court for the county of Suffolk, and the other on a reservation before the full court; and I was asked to assist in the preparation of the brief for the case so reserved. At the same time there was pending before the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New 1181 York a parallel case on a similar demurrer. Practically contemporaneously with the beginning of my preparation I was told—and I state that only to explain my acts—that Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, or their representative, Mr. Treadwell, were also interested in all these cases, which were, as I just said, and are now identical. So I began to communicate with Mr. Treadwell more particularly at that time. I think my first communication with him was at the time of a visit of his here; but at any rate, he made to me numerous suggestions in relation to the brief that Mr. Hemenway was preparing with my assistance. When I say "to me" I mean to me and Mr. Hemenway practically throughout. At the same time I made various suggestions to him as to the brief which he was preparing in the so-called New York case; and our preparation went along practically hand in hand, both conferring with the other, sometimes by letter, sometimes by conference, occasionally by telephone communication between the two cities. As I recollect it, the Massachusetts case was argued first, and subsequent to that, in view of matters which arose in that argument, we made further suggestions to him in relation to the brief in the New York case. After that was decided, briefs so prepared being filed, as I recollect it, after the decision, first of the case in the Circuit Court, and then in the case in Massachusetts, there was a lapse of the taking of the evidence. At any rate, if there was not, I was occupied on something else, so that for a period of, I should say, about a year, as far as I was personally concerned, there was a cessation, though, I think, during that time there was evidence being taken, and I do recollect that at least once, I think more often, Mr. Treadwell came on here and at that time Mr. Hemenway and I conferred with him. And thereafter, until the hearing about a year ago,—a year ago next November,—all action was taken after conference or communication and agreement; so that the defence, either as to the preparation of evidence, the possible cross-examination of witnesses, or the preparation of the law to be expressed in the briefs or otherwise was done under what I will call, for a short term, jointly; the evidence here was, as I understand, and in fact I know, as I have seen the stipulation, taken under a stipulation whereby it might be used in all four cases; that is, the two in New York and the two here. At such takings, almost every time,—I am inclined to think at every time,—either Mr. Treadwell or Mr. Lauterbach was present. I do not think I was present at the taking of any testimony when Mr. Lauterbach was there, and I state all that I then did as a matter only from seeing the record; but I was present on a number of occasions when Mr. Treadwell, representing Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach and Johnson, and, as I understand it, both defendants, was present. While, as far as the Massachusetts cases were concerned, there was only the taking of testimony continuing, there were 1182 arguments and appeals in the New York cases, the New York case being first appealed.

I think I have omitted a step. As I understand it, I think the plaintiff first amended, and we went over this amendment very carefully with Mr. Treadwell to see exactly what we would deduce that they had in their minds; and we made very careful comparisons of the two amendments which they made to them, although I think there was only one which purported to be substantial. Then we conferred with Mr. Treadwell in relation to the argument, so far as there was to be one, before the Circuit Court after amendment; and on the demurrer being sustained, then a more elaborate argument which took place before the Circuit Court of Appeals, and assisted him in the preparation of that brief, at the same time being in communication with him as to the dates when the depositions should be taken; so that we both, as to the evidence and as to the preparation of the law, continued to co-operate and act in conjunction with New York counsel. Then, the demurrer in the New York case being again sustained by the Circuit Court of Appeals, the plaintiff first, I think, sought a stay of execution; and, as I recollect the New York record — I am unable to state whether that was suggested by us or whether Mr. Lauterbach or Mr. Treadwell representing us did it,—but they opposed that stay of execution unless the plaintiff should stipulate, if the petition were refused, they should dismiss the case in Massachusetts. We again conferred as to the writ of certiorari, and, after that was granted, as to the brief before the United States Supreme Court on the final argument. Of course, all through this we were supplied by the New York counsel, perhaps in some instances directly, with the plaintiff's briefs, arguments, and memoranda so far as they could, and we, on the other hand furnished Mr. Treadwell and Mr. Lauterbach with everything that we had. As I have said, Mr. Treadwell was here constantly, and on at least three occasions when I was present Mr. Lauterbach came here and we conferred in Mr. Hemenway's office, consulting as to the whole status of the case, and what, if, anything, it was advisable to do in preparation for the defence. Shortly prior to the hearing, which was in November last year, I was preparing some of the evidence in relation to that, and I consulted over the telephone and by conference with New York counsel. Then at the hearing—Oh, I ought to say that, in addition to this, we were kept informed as to the course of correspondence, so far as it was in any wise different from that with us, from Mr. Brandeis' office to Mr. Treadwell and to Mr. Lauterbach, and both in Mr. Brandeis' correspondence with us and in his correspondence with them the cases were treated jointly and indiscriminately. At the time of the hearing here Mr. Treadwell came on, I think, 1183 three or four days ahead, and we conferred at great length as to the general course, and I and Mr. Hemenway—or Mr. Hemenway and I—discussed the whole matter with him, and he was of counsel with us throughout that hearing, and signed, or I signed in his behalf, as I did for Mr. Hemenway, the pleadings at that time. When the decrees came down after the final hearing, we communicated with him.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. You mean, of course, after the hearing on the merits before Mr. Justice Sheldon?

A. Yes, your Honor. And I remember he had printed for us and sent to us copies of those findings of alleged facts. It was after that that the argument before the Supreme Court took place, and we continued to co-operate with him in the preparation of that matter. I think I did forget to state that Mr. Hemenway two or three times—and I think I once or twice—went to New York and conferred with Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson. I think that is, in substance, all that I now recall, though I may have omitted certain points.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. You have been in my office since 1903, and are still there?

A. Yes.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: In the answer to the preceding question, we object to the statement that Mr. Farley was informed that Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, or Mr. Treadwell, were interested in all these cases, on the ground that it is immaterial.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That may be stricken out.

HAMMOND, J.: You may strike that out.

The WITNESS: I should like to state by whom I was informed.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I understand the information is stricken out.

HAMMOND, J.: I don't think it is of any consequence.

Q. By whom were you informed?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I object to that on the ground that there is no such evidence on the record.

HAMMOND, J.: If the information is not of any consequence, it is of still less importance who told him. He only made that statement to explain why it was that, having certain informtaion, he did a certain thing.

The WITNESS: I don't know whether I am required to answer, but I think my answer would perhaps clarify the situation.

HAMMOND, J. (to Mr. McClennen:) Go on.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I also object to the answer of the witness where he states that the preparation for cross-examination and argument was, if he might so term it, joint, done jointly, on the ground that that is an inference rather than a statement of fact. I object to that portion of the witness' answer in which he states that 1184 the testimony was taken under a stipulation for use in all the cases, on the ground that that is a statement of what is contained in a written instrument, the production of which will show that there were four stipulations, and that each one was always confined to a particular case; that is, that the stipulation in the Lewisohn case was not participated in by the counsel for Bigelow, and the stipulation in the Bigelow case was not participated in by counsel for Lewisohn; but each stipulation provided that the testimony taken in the other case might be used in that case.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Those stipulations are in the case, as I understand.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Some of them are, and I dare say all of them are.

Mr. HEMENWAY: They will speak for themselves.

HAMMOND, J.: I suppose if the stipulations are in the case, they will control.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: But the witness' answer does not indicate necessarily that those in the record are the only ones, although he undoubtedly intended to say that.

I also object to that portion of the answer in which he states that they acted, or continued to act, to co-operate in conjunction with New York counsel, on the ground that that is a statement of conclusion, not of a fact.

I object to that portion of his answer in which he says that he forgets whether they opposed, or whether Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Treadwell, "as representing us," opposed a stay of execution, particularly to that portion of the answer "as representing us," that being a conclusion, not a statement of fact, and not purporting to be something of which the witness himself would have personal knowledge.

I object to that portion of his answer in which the witness states that the cases were treated jointly and indiscriminately in the correspondence and the conferences, on the ground in part that it purports to be——

The WITNESS: I did not so state.

HAMMOND, J.: I think that was your expression; I thought it was rather strong.

The WITNESS: May it please your Honor, that refers to Mr. Brandeis' correspondence.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I am not sure what the difference between us is.

The WITNESS: The application of my alleged language.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Well, whatever the context may be, I object to that portion of his answer in which the witness stated that the cases were treated jointly and indiscriminately in certain particulars which appear in the answer of the witness, the objection being in part that that is a statement of conclusion and not a statement of fact, and in part that it is a statement of written communications.

I object also to the statement of the witness that they con-
1185 tinued to co-operate in the preparation of the argument or for the argument before the Supreme Court, again on the ground that that is a statement of conclusion, not a statement of fact.

The WITNESS: I think some of my statements have been misunderstood, so that, in justice to my evidence, I should have an opportunity to explain, and, as far as possible, eliminate the words that I only used descriptively.

Q. To what words do you refer?

A. I refer to the words "jointly," "in conjunction," "jointly and indiscriminately," and there are further facts in relation to the stipulations on which I based what Mr. McClennen now alleges to be a conclusion; but particularly I intended to use the words "jointly," "in conjunction," "jointly and indiscriminately," and "in co-operation" as a short designation of certain facts. If those be conclusions I should like the opportunity of omitting those words and of stating more clearly the facts.

Q. Well, state more clearly the facts.

A. As to the use of the word "jointly" in the preparation between Mr. Treadwell, Mr. Hemenway, and myself, I mean simply that I co-operated with—I mean simply that I talked and conferred and wrote and telephoned to Mr. Treadwell and to Mr. Lauterbach in the same manner as, for instance, I would have done had Mr. Hemenway been in New York.

HAMMOND, J.: You are getting more indefinite still.

The WITNESS: All my conference with him was as fully relating to all the cases as had Mr. Treadwell been counsel.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. Well, that does not give us any idea. What did you do?

A. I talked over the briefs, corresponded about the briefs, discussed cases, discussed the allegations of the plaintiff, discussed the draft of the pleadings both for the plaintiff and for the defendant; discussed what we conjectured would be the arguments and the inferences and the efforts of the plaintiff, what facts could be eliminated as irrelevant and what facts would be helpful to us when put in evidence. In regard to the stipulations, I used my description as applying to all the four cases, because, as I remember, the four stipulations, if they were separate, were sent under the same cover, and they were treated as a whole by us and by Mr. Lauterbach's office.

Q. What do you mean by "were treated as a whole"?

A. Well, they were all identical, or, if not, practically identical.

HAMMOND, J.: Aren't they in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think they are in, yes.

The WITNESS: Those in relation to the Massachusetts cases here are in. There are others relating to the New York cases, one set of which is, I understand, annexed to the Baltimore answers.

1186 Q. Do you agree with Mr. McClennen that each stipulation had reference to one particular case and no reference to others?

A. I agree the stipulations were so drawn in form, but the discussion between counsel was on the assumption, by us, at least, that they all stood or fell together.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, I do not think that is admissible.

The WITNESS: In relation to the words "jointly and indiscriminately" used as applied to Mr. Brandeis' correspondence: by that I mean, in the first place, that Mr. Brandeis, or Mr. McClennen, or his office, kept us informed in many instances of what he was writing about to Mr. Lauterbach, or to Mr. Treadwell, and that a great many of his letters to us, for instance, would be headed "re Lewisohn" or "re Bigelow and Lewisohn," and that many of his letters to Mr. Lauterbach would be headed "re Bigelow" or "re Bigelow-Lewisohn," and that in the letters, as in the headings, the discussion or reference would be to all, as I understood it, of the cases.

HAMMOND, J.: Are those the letters that you are putting in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Those are the letters that we submit.

HAMMOND, J.: Then I think a description of the letters is immaterial.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is all.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: In the last answer we object to the statement that the stipulations were treated as a whole.

HAMMOND, J.: I will exclude that. That is clearly outside the line.

Cross-examination.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. In the cases, Mr. Farley, to which you referred in which the leters were headed "re Bigelow," or "re Bigelow-Lewisohn," or both, you had before you letters referring to the taking of testimony which, under the stipulations, would be admissible in either case?

A. I don't know that I can generalize.

Q. Well, you appeared to be looking at a specific letter at the time you spoke just then.

A. I do not think I was; I may have so appeared, but it was not in fact true. I was running over the whole lot.

Q. Well, then, perhaps, to put it in a negative form, do you remember any letters in which that heading occurs in which the subject under consideration did not purport to be the taking of testimony which, under all the stipulations, was admissible in either case as far as relevant?

A. I understood you to correct me on what those stipulations were in fact. Outside of that, I should have to look over the letters to see whether that is so.

Q. All I ask you is whether you recall any notice in which that is not the fact?

1187 A. I have no recollection one way or the other, because I did not look at them with that in view. I have no doubt I can prepare myself to answer that question if you wish me to. Do you want me to look all these over [inspecting the letters referred to]?

Q. Had you nearly completed it?

A. I had completed about one third.

Q. If you will, glance along and find any one where that is not a proper characterization?

A. Here is one, for instance, which seems to me to perhaps be a basis for an answer to your question.

Q. What is the date of that letter?

A. April 30.

Q. Of what year?

A. 1907.

Q. Between whom?

A. Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Brandeis. That is, it referred to the general conduct of the defence and not simply to the depositions. Here is a letter which seems to refer to a hearing rather than to the depositions.

Q. Between what parties, and on what date is that one?

A. The same parties, May 20, 1907. There are many of them headed—to Mr. Hemenway—"Old Dominion Bigelow," which also relate to depositions; also to Mr. Bigelow headed "Lewisohn" without Mr. Bigelow's name, which refer to depositions.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. You used the language "it might be," that in the letters generally in each case between counsel they were headed, sometimes both names, Bigelow and Lewisohn. Now counsel wants to know whether you want that answer to stand with reference to the correspondence generally, or whether you want to confine it to letters about taking depositions.

A. I don't feel I should answer without going through again this entire file, your Honor. As I looked it over, I did not note any such distinction, if there be such.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Inasmuch as this correspondence is to be submitted to counsel, is it hardly worth while to take the time?

HAMMOND, J.: I don't think so. My own opinion of it is that we have got pretty near the end of that which is of any consequence.

The WITNESS: As a matter of fact, all of this correspondence during these dates was practically about depositions. In fact, I don't know that there was any other.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. I think perhaps the record will be less imperfect in shape if I ask you this: In characterizing the correspondence as being headed in one way or another, you have reference only to those letters which you have offered in evidence at this time?

A. Yes.

Q. So that an inspection of the letters in that regard would show to just what you refer?

A. Yes.

1188 HAMMOND, J.: I think that is a satisfactory way to leave it.

Q. [Presenting a pamphlet.] Will you glance at what I have heretofore always supposed was Mr. Treadwell's brief in the Supreme Court of the United States, and can you point out any parts of it which were your creation?

A. Why, no more than I could point out in our brief here now which was mine and which Mr. Hemenway's.

Q. Not by comparison; I shall not charge it against you if you cannot point it out; I merely ask if you can?

A. Well, I think that the sixth point, as to multifariousness, is practically the same as ours. The fifth point, "Rescission in part is not permissible:" I remember of talking that over with him, and I think talking over the case of Ready v. Pinkham, 181 Mass., especially, that partial rescission is not tolerated. I think Mr. Hemenway called my attention to Merrill v. Beckwith, to Perley v. Balch, and to Morse v. Brackett. I recollect of speaking about those to Mr. Treadwell. The fourth point—I am looking at this brief backwards—the fourth point, "Albert S. Bigelow is an indispensable party,"—when I say this I mean I think I contributed more to this than to the other parts. I remember about the indispensability of the several parties one way and the other here, and I went into that, I think, very exhaustively with Mr. Treadwell, and he used that to a considerable extent. I think this third point, where he refers to "Rescission, where possible, the sole relief,"—I think that is almost entirely his. We discussed that, but I note here one portion of it which we discussed, and I think this is substantially in accordance with that discussion; that is, the discussion of Parker v. Nickerson in the coal case and the reading of that. There are portions here I can hardly—I would prefer not specifically to—designate, because it might give counsel for the plaintiff a prevision of our brief in the pending case, and I do not think that is, perhaps, proper.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: The accumulations of record have become so great we shall probably not reach that far in it.

The WITNESS: It is a question of ability rather than of will, I suppose. I think this discussion here about Dickerman v. Northern Trust Co. was more or less the result of what we talked over. I do not see it here. There is some discussion here of the Yeiser case, which you alleged in your petition was contrary to the other doctrine that we had; I don't know that that appears. We discussed the part here referring to Blum v. Whitney very thoroughly; also Hutchinson v. Simpson. A portion of the brief, on page 57, I remember, we had a heated discussion over. I remember this grouping—perhaps more accurately, subdivision—of the cases as appearing in the second point. We discussed that at great length, and I think he has made in this case three subdivisions; I think I originally made two.

1189 HAMMOND, J.: Do you care to pursue this any further?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Just a little bit further, if I may, your Honor.

The WITNESS: My recollection is—of course it is confused by the fact that we did discuss the thing so much—my recollection is on that you will find that the original division—I may be wrong about this—was into two general classes of cases in which we contend and believe that all cases contrary, so called, to the rule we contend for could be divided, and I think that was a discussion which was put into the third division here. Then this "Other cases cited by petitioner,"—here is this Yeiser case,—that contains a discussion of Hayward v. Leeson and the Old Dominion case. I think the part here relating to Hayward v. Leeson—Mr. Hemenway was counsel in that case, and I think that a good deal of it is what I remember of hearing him speak of. I do not wish to be understood that we wrote this, you understand, but we revised and co-operated.

Q. Were there any respects in which there were minor differences of opinion between you and Mr. Treadwell as to the form or substance of the brief?

A. I do not really know what that question calls for: I am not quite clear what you mean.

Q. Were there any paragraphs or sentences in it, or subdivisions in it, or arrangements in it, which you would have prepared some other way rather than as he puts it?

A. Well, I think in all our briefs there has been a substantial difference in arrangement. I do not feel that I can answer that question without going into the present arrangement of our present view, which would be really pointing out the differentiation.

Q. I did not intend to ask you to indicate the parts in which that occurred; but there were occurrences, then, if I understand you, where you and he differed as to just what was best?

A. Oh, yes, in the arrangement: there is some difference in the arrangement, I think; and I am sure I hope everything in that brief is in ours, and, I trust, some more. I know I have been over this very carefully to see if everything we believed to be material in this is in ours, and it is my fault if it is not.

Q. In those instances in your brief you adopted your own view after giving due consideration to his?

A. Well, of course, Mr. McClennen, in the arrangement, yes; I know there are three or four points where, after considerable discussion, we did change in accordance with his view; in one instance, I think, because he—as to the possible effect on them.

Q. And he did the same way; he took his own arrangement after giving due weight to your suggestions?

A. Why, I suppose so, yes. There are one or two instances there. I think, where he finally yielded. It was rather as counsel 1190 with equal standing that we conferred with him in the case, rather than one having the right to overrule the other. If either party had that authority, he never exercised it.

Q. I understood you to refer to the fourth main point in the brief as one that you had to do with to some extent?

A. I think my words were that as to that we had discussed it quite vigorously, were they not?

Q. Well, I cannot carry the precise phraseology of the answer.

A. Let me see.

Q. Now on that, do I understand you that you, while counsel for Mr. Bigelow, were seeking to have Mr. Treadwell, counsel of record for Mr. Lewisohn, contend that suit could not be maintained in New York, or in the Circuit Court in New York, because Mr. Bigelow was not before the court?

A. No.

Q. Were you approving of his course in urging that Mr. Bigelow was an indispensable party, and that, as he did not appear of record, the bill could not prevail?

A. Your question contains an erroneous assumption of fact, Mr. McClennen, and I cannot answer it. You will notice that the point is "Albert S. Bigelow is an indispensable party in whose absence a bill for rescission cannot be maintained." So far as your question relates to rescission, I should answer it yes; as it is framed, I should say no.

Q. That is, one of the contentions which you maintained in the New York suit, was that, in certain respects, at least, a bill could not prevail against Lewisohn, because Mr. Bigelow was not before the court?

A. As to rescission, it was my view of the law then, and is now.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. That includes your work in so far as——

A. In so far as it entailed any preparation of the law on that point, yes.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. You did not, at the time you were engaged at that labor, consider Mr. Bigelow a party to the suit in New York?

A. Well, I will have to ask you to define the sense in which you use the word "party" before I can answer that.

Q. I will give you the utmost scope.

A. If you mean party of record, I did not then and do not now; if you mean party in the sense that he was, in my opinion, privy, I do and did.

Q. You observe you have now incorporated in your answer the word "privy" which was not in my question. In what sense did you consider him a party,—not a privy, but a party?

A. Well, I think we can fence on the definition of the word "party."

Q. I have no doubt we can, but I don't want you to; I want you to take the most liberal definition you can put upon the word 1191 "party," regardless of the definition I put upon it, and state how you considered Mr. Bigelow a party, not a privy; I am not talking about privy.

A. I am asking you, in asking your question, to define whether you wish me to exclude anything except a party of record, first.

Q. No, if you know of a party applicable to these facts who is not a party of record and who is not a privy, I wish you would state whether Mr. Bigelow was that and what kind of a party you mean.

A. Well, I will try, but it is going to lead me into a discussion of the law. Of course he is not a party of record; that speaks for itself.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. Well, in what sense is he a party, Mr. McClennen wants to know, as distinguished from a privy?

A. Why, in so far, your Honor, as he is alleged by the plaintiff to be a necessary party, so that they must excuse his being joined, in so far as I considered that he at any time would have had the right to intervene, is he a necessary party; in so far as, if the decision had been adverse to him and the Lewisohns had neglected to have appealed, it is my opinion he could have entered an appeal; in so far as he, through his counsel, introduced anything which he believed important to the defence of the action; in so far as he, through counsel, co-operated in the defence of the action. If those things that he did do not constitute what comes within the definition of the word "party," he was not a party; if they do, he was. I can only state the facts.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. At the time that the Supreme Court of Massachusetts had decided that this bill was not demurrable and the federal courts had twice decided that it was demurrable, did you then believe that Mr. Bigelow had a right, against the opposition of the other parties in the Lewisohn suit, to go in and insist upon becoming a party defendant?

A. I am not sure under those circumstances, Mr. McClennen; I should question it after the litigation had gone to that extent.

HAMMOND, J.: There, again, I do not think you were paying attention to the question, which calls for your belief at that time.

The WITNESS: I say I hardly think that is so.

HAMMOND, J.: What you believed then, is the question, not what you believe now.

The WITNESS: Well, I hadn't any definite belief then and haven't now; it would be a question of uncertainty then and now. I should want the authorities to examine and consider them at some length. I will say, then, that I believed then, and do now, that if, unless he intervened, his rights would be prejudiced, he could intervene.

Q. That is, you place his right to intervene as a party upon the existence of a right which might be prejudiced by an adverse decision?

A. As far as I have considered it. This is rather a snap judgment.

1192 Q. So if, apart from intervention, his rights would not be prejudiced by an adverse judgment, you didn't ever discuss or believe that he had a right to intervene?

A. I have stated I believe that was a different thing. Whether or not, in view of other facts if I had considered them more fully, I should have changed, I do not know.

Deposition of Alton B. Parker.

Mr. HEMENWAY: We had hoped to have here the deposition of ex-Judge Parker. But it has not come as yet.

HAMMOND, J.: In answer to the same questions?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, when you get that, you can pass it over to the other side.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Do you know whether it has been taken or not?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I don't know.

HAMMOND, J.: Anything further, Mr. Hemenway?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Of course we reserve the right to put in the deposition of Mr. Millburn. We have examined it and turned it over to them.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, you will do that to-morrow, I suppose?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Yes.

HAMMOND, J.: Anything in reply?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: There is some testimony, your Honor. Before introducing our testimony, part of which is with reference to the law of New York, if Mr. Parker's deposition is to be put in out of order, we should like to have the assurance of counsel that the testimony now put in by us will not be communicated to Mr. Parker.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Certainly we will give you that assurance.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Or the fact of what we have put in?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Or the fact of what you have put in. We shall not communicate with Mr. Parker at all with reference to the matter.

The deposition of Alton B. Parker, taken on behalf of the defendant, Bigelow, was subsequently received, filed by counsel for the defendant and admitted subject to the objections and exceptions of counsel for the complainant, the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, to be found at pages 945-950.

[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

1193 Q. 1. State your name, age, and place of residence.

A. My name is Alton B. Parker. I reside at 574 Madison avenue, New York city, and my age is fifty-six years.

Q. 2. State your occupation and place of business.

A. I am a practising lawyer, with an office at No. 3 South William street, New York city.

Q. 3. If, in answer to the preceding interrogatory, you have testified that you are an attorney at law, state when you were admitted to the bar, and in what state or states, and how long you have been engaged in the practice of law in said state or states, and with what firms, if any, you have been or are connected.

A. I was admitted to the bar in May, 1873, in the city of Albany, state of New York, and have been engaged in the practice of law ever since that time, except such portions of it as I spent as a member of the bench. I was a member of a firm before going upon the bench. The name of the firm was Parker & Kenyon, and was then engaged in practising law at Kingston, N. Y. I left the bench in August, 1904, and for a short time I practised law in the city of New York alone, and three years ago I became a member of the firm of Parker, Hatch & Sheehan, and am still a member of that firm.

Q. 4. State what, if any, judicial or other public or official positions you hold or have held.

A. In addition to the practice of my profession I was surrogate of the county of Ulster from the 1st day of January, 1878, until November, 1885. In November, 1885, I became a justice of the Supreme Court of the state of New York, and while holding that office I served for a short time as a member of the general term, third department, for nearly four years, and during the life of the second division of the Court of Appeals I was a member of that court by designation of the governor. Upon its dissolution I was made a member of the general term of the Supreme Court of the state of New York, which position I held for nearly three years. Subsequently, Governor Black designated me a member of the appellate division of the first department, located in the city of New York, which position I held until my election as chief judge of the Court of Appeals of the state of New York, which took place in November, 1897, in which position I continued until my resignation on the 5th day of August, 1904.

Q. 5. State any other matters relating to your experience in your profession, and as to your familiarity with the law and usages governing the practice in the state and federal courts in New York, both in law and in equity, and also as to your familiarity with the laws and usages of the state of New York relating to former adjudication and estoppel by judgment.

A. Yes. Nothing need be added as an answer to this question beyond my answer to the two preceding questions.

1194 Q. 6. Assuming that an action in equity is brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him the profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, at a price in excess of the price which they paid for it and of its fair value, and assuming that in this action a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to a similar action, substantially identical with the first and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 945-950.]

A. In my opinion the decree would be a bar to the second action, if it were pleaded in defence.

Q. 7. Assuming that two actions in equity are brought in the federal court for the southern district of New York by a corporation against one of two persons alleged to have been jointly its promoters to recover from him profits alleged to have been received by him and his associate secretly and fraudulently upon a sale, pursuant to a joint plan and conspiracy by them, of certain property to the corporation at the time of its organization, and assuming that such property is alleged to have been sold, pursuant to said joint plan and conspiracy, in two separate parcels, in each of which both promoters were jointly interested, and that said two actions were brought to recover the respective profits received from the sale of the two parcels, respectively, and assuming that the bills of complaint in the two actions were substantially identical, except as to the particular relief sought, and assuming that certain profits were alleged to have been made by said promoters on each parcel, and assuming that in one of said actions a final decree upon the merits is entered for the defendant upon demurrer, on the ground that the bill of complaint sets forth no cause of action, and that this decree, after appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals and writ of certiorari to the Supreme Court of the United States, is affirmed and a final decree entered in favor of the defendant upon the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States, what would be the effect of this decree if pleaded in defence to two similar actions, substantially 1195 identical in form with those above described and based upon the same cause of action, brought against the other promoter in the courts of the state of New York?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The decree would be a bar.

Q. 8. Have you examined a copy of the record in the action of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, such as is hereto annexed and marked (1), the respective portions of said record being marked A to R, inclusive?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. I have.

Q. 9. Have you examined copies of the proceedings in the above-entitled causes, to wit, the two causes of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, such as are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, (2) and (3)?

A. Yes.

Q. 10. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York proceedings against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects (except as the practice might require formal changes) with the copies of the proceedings referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were sufficiently pleaded and proven in defence of said proceedings, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same persons, and that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of these bills of complaint were, respectively, the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, what would be the effect, under the law and usages of the state of New York, of said decree and record as a defence to said proceedings assumed to be so pending?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The doctrine of res adjudicata would apply, and the decree would be a bar to the actions assumed to be pending.

1196 Q. 11. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th Interrogatory, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defense of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would those additional facts affect your answer to the preceding interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 946-950.]

A. The fact that Bigelow participated in the action brought against Lewisohn would not affect my answer to the 10th direct interrogatory. That fact is immaterial so far as the effect of the decree is concerned.

Q. 12. Assuming the facts stated in the 10th interrogatory, and assuming the facts stated in the 11th interrogatory, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 11th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers to the two preceding interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 947-950.]

A. It would have no effect on my answer.

Q. 13. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8098, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of the proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8098, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the 1197 Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8098 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record, described in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8098, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. My answer is that it would constitute a bar to the proceeding assumed to be pending in New York.

Q. 14. Assuming that there were now pending in the courts of the state of New York a proceeding against Albert S. Bigelow, identical in all respects with the proceeding numbered 8099, referred to in the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that the course of proceedings in said courts in said cause had been substantially the same as that shown by the copies of the record annexed to the 9th interrogatory, and assuming that said courts of the state of New York wherein said cause was pending had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter thereof, and assuming that the final decree and record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn's Executors, copies of which are referred to in the 8th interrogatory, were pleaded in defence of said cause numbered 8099, and assuming that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in said action against said Lewisohn's executors in said court, and that said decree was based upon the merits of the controversy and was not obtained by fraud, and assuming that said decree was in full force and effect, and assuming that the Leonard Lewisohn and the Albert S. Bigelow mentioned in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York and in said bill of complaint numbered 8099 in Massachusetts were, respectively, the same persons, and assuming that the contracts, acts, matters, and transactions mentioned in each of said bills of complaint were the same contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, respectively, and assuming that the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and the prayers thereof relate to one part of an entire transaction, comprising said contracts, acts, matters, and transactions, and that the bill of complaint corresponding to the one numbered 8099 in Massachusetts and the prayers thereof relate to another part of the same entire transaction, what, under the laws and usages of the state of New York, would be the effect of said decree and record described 1198 in the 8th interrogatory as a defence in the proceeding corresponding to the cause numbered 8099, described in the 9th interrogatory?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. I answer the same to this as to the 13th direct interrogatory.

Q. 15. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th and 14th interrogatories, and assuming that the defendant, Bigelow, participated, through his counsel, in the actual defence of said action against Lewisohn's executors in the Circuit Court, and, by a large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and took part in the defence thereof through the entire pendency, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari, how, if at all, would these addtional facts affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th and 14th interrogatories?

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See pages 948–950.]

A. Such facts would not affect my replies to the 13th and 14th direct interrogatories.

Q. 16. Assuming the facts stated in the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories, and assuming that the participation of the defendant, Bigelow, as stated in the 15th interrogatory, was with the knowledge of the plaintiff, how, if at all, would this additional fact affect your answers, or either of them, to the 13th, 14th, and 15th interrogatories?

A. My answer would remain unchanged.

Q. 17. If you have not already done so, state your reasons for your answers to Ints. 6th to 16th, inclusive.

[Objected to; admitted; exception.—See page 950.]

A. It is the law of New York, as I understand it, that the liability of tort feasors both of whose acts contribute to an injury, is joint and several. The plaintiff may, therefore, make one or all of them defendants.

The decree in the United States courts having been adverse to the complainant in the suit against Lewisohn, the issues are res adjudicata as to him; and the allegations of the bill upon which the decree was rendered having identified in interest Bigelow and Lewisohn, and asserted a mutual relationship in the fraud set out, Bigelow, in my opinion, by the bill is classed as a privy with Lewisohn. Therefore, although Bigelow was not a party to the suit in the United States courts, the issues became res adjudicata as to him. That decree offered as a defence in this state to a similar action, upon the same facts and allegations, would be a complete bar.

1199 Cross-interrogatories.

Without waiving the foregoing objections, but expressly insisting thereon, the plaintiff puts, de bene, the following cross-interrogatories:—

X 1. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the law decided in a case in the court of last resort in overruling a demurrer becomes the law of the case to be applied when the case is heard upon the facts?

A. Yes, if the facts proved on the trial are the same as those alleged in the complaint demurred to.

X 2. Is it the law of New York that there is no right of exoneration or contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto and not ex contractu?

A. It is the law of New York that there is no right of contribution between defendants jointly and severally liable ex delicto.

X 3. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under a liability to the plaintiff in the suits against Bigelow?

A. I have assumed throughout that the cause of action alleged against Bigelow and the one alleged against Lewisohn constitutes but one cause of action. In other words, the cause of action alleged against Bigelow is the same as that alleged against Lewisohn.

X 4. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability that Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly with Lewisohn?

A. I have.

X 5. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have.

X 6. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability arising ex delicto?

A. Yes.

X 7. In determining whether or not the decree dismissing the suit against Lewisohn would be a defence to Bigelow, have you assumed or considered the liability which Bigelow might—but for said defence, if any—be under as a liability ex delicto jointly and severally with Lewisohn?

A. I have.

1200 X 8. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. Yes, I think it would.

X 9. On the facts alleged in the present suit against Bigelow, and assuming that under the law of Massachusetts as applied to these facts in said suit there is a liability of the general nature decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in its decision on demurrer reported at 188 Mass. 315, would that liability be, under the law of New York, a joint and several liability ex delicto with Lewisohn if a suit against Lewisohn had not been precluded by a prior adjudication or otherwise?

A. In my opinion it would be a joint and several liability ex delicto.

X 10. Is it a principle of the law of the state of New York that the liability of joint wrongdoers is joint and several?

A. Yes.

X 11. Is it sometimes a principle of New York law that estoppel by former adjudication must be mutual?

A. It is.

X 12. If so, what, if any, are all the occasions of which you have knowledge on which they need not be mutual?

A. I know of none. A judgment binds and estops all parties and their privies. In the case of joint tort feasors, a plaintiff, by suing only one of the tort feasors, elects to take judgment in that action against one only. He could, by bringing in the other parties, make them all bound by the judgment. In any event, he cannot, by his mere election to sue one, circumvent estoppel against himself in an action against another privy when he has been unfortunate in his first suit upon the same facts.

X 13. Assuming that Bigelow took no part in the Lewisohn suit, in your opinion is the law of New York such that Bigelow would have been estopped in another suit to deny his liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Lewisohn in the first suit?

A. Yes, as a matter of law on the same facts.

X 14. Assuming that Lewisohn's executors took no part in the suits against Bigelow, in your opinion is the law of New York such that said executors would have been estopped in another suit to deny their liability as a matter of law on the same facts, by a final decree against Bigelow in these suits?

A. Yes, as a matter of law on the same facts.

X 15. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff knew this,
1201 what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York, which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation and knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have not examined authorities because I think the courts of

New York would not take into consideration, as affecting the question, the plaintiff's knowledge of Bigelow's participation in the suit against Lewisohn.

X 16. Assuming that Bigelow took part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, and that the plaintiff did not know this, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may, by reason of such participation without plaintiff's knowledge, operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. For the reason given in my last answer, I have not considered it.

X 17. Assuming that Bigelow did not take part in the defence of the suit against Lewisohn's executors, what, by name and reference, are all the decisions, if any, in New York which you have considered and which tend, in your opinion, to support the view that the final decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors may operate as an estoppel in favor of Bigelow?

A. I have examined the cases of People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235; aff. 71 N. Y. 527; Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329; Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527; Williams v. Barkley, 165 N. Y. 18, and the cases cited in those opinions.

X 18. Have you considered any decisions or language of the courts of New York which may have any tendency to support the view that there is no estoppel in Bigelow's favor growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not considered any.

X 19. If so, what, by name and reference, are all of these which you have considered?

A. This cross-interrogatory is covered by my answer to the 18th cross-interrogatory.

X 20. Have any arguments been submitted or suggested to you by defendant's counsel, or have you thought of any, in support of the view that there was by the law of New York no estoppel in favor of Bigelow growing out of the decree in favor of Lewisohn's executors?

A. No.

X 21. If so, what are all of said arguments?

A. This cross-interrogatory is covered by my last answer.

X 22. What, in your opinion, constitutes privity under the law of New York to a judgment?

A. As I understand it, privity is a relationship which arises from identity of interest of the parties. The interest may be mutual or by representation, it may be successive.

1202 X 23. In determining whether there was an estoppel in the present case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow was in privity to the parties of record in the suit against Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have.

X 24. In considering whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed or considered that Bigelow had any legal interest to defend in the suit against Lewisohn's executors beyond such interest as he might have to secure a favorable precedent?

A. I assume that he had no legal interest in that suit.

X 25. If so, precisely what have you assumed to be said legal interest?

A. This cross-interrogatory is covered by my last answer.

X 26. Unless Bigelow would have been bound in favor of the plaintiff by estoppel by a decision adverse to Lewisohn's executors, even if Bigelow did not participate in the defence of the suit against them, did Bigelow, in your opinion, have a legal interest to defend in that suit?

A. No.

X 27. If so, by precise description, what, in your opinion, was said legal interest?

A. This cross-interrogatory is covered by my answer to the last interrogatory.

X 28. In determining whether there was any estoppel in this case, have you assumed that the plaintiff consented to the participation, if any, by Bigelow in the support of the demurrers of Lewisohn's executors?

A. I have not assumed so, though I think it did.

X 29. Is it a principle of New York law that if the defendant in one suit sustains merely the character of a co-trespasser with the defendant in another suit by the same plaintiff, the recovery against one defendant is not thereby made competent evidence against the other?

A. Yes.

X 30. Is it a principle of New York law that the judgment in favor of one of two persons jointly and severally liable for the wrongful conversion of the plaintiff's property is no bar to a subsequent suit against the other because torts are joint and several?

A. Yes, I am of that opinion.

X 31. Is it a principle of New York law that an adjudication acts as an estoppel only between the parties thereto or those in privity with them, or, in other words, the estoppel must be mutual?

A. Yes.

X 32. Is it a principle of New York law that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser not a party to it, by way of estoppel?

A. No.

X 33. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were Bigelow's agent in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I did not assume the relationship of agency.

1203 X 34. In considering the question of estoppel, have you assumed or considered that Lewisohn's executors were trustees for Bigelow of the stock sought to be recovered in the suit against them which has been dismissed?

A. I did not assume they were trustees.

X 35. Is it a principle of New York law that in an action at law against one or some of several joint tort feasors, the controversy may be determined as between the parties before the court,—i. e., the plaintiff and defendant,—and without prejudice to the rights of others; and the judgment will completely determine the controversy between them, and will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later?

A. That may be entirely possible; but upon the same facts I think that in a suit against other joint tort feasors, a judgment against plaintiff in the original suit would render the question res adjudicata and the decree would be a bar.

X 36. Have you stated all your reasons for the opinions expressed by you, or the statements made by you, in answer to the 6th, 7th, 10th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th direct interrogatories?

A. I think I have.

X 37. If not, what are all your reasons for the opinions or statements given by you in answer to each of said interrogatories?

A. This interrogatory is covered by my last answer.

X 38. Have you now stated all your reasons for said answers?

A. Yes, substantially.

X 39. Were you, prior to the taking of your deposition on the foregoing cross-interrogatories, shown them, or any of them, or any copies of any of them, or given any information concerning the substance of them?

A. Yes; I demanded the right to see the cross-interrogatories.

X 40. Has each of your answers in its final form been given in the language in which it now appears, before you were aware of the substance of any subsequent cross-interrogatory?

A. No.

X 41. Have you, since September 22, 1908, discussed in any way with any other person who is named as a witness in the caption of these cross-interrogatories, or with any one on behalf of the defendant, any of the subjects dealt with in the foregoing interrogatories or in your answers thereto?

A. Yes, I have discussed the matter with my partner, Edward W. Hatch, but I have not discussed it with any of the attorneys for either of the parties to the action.

ALTON B. PARKER.

Before me,
PERCIVAL WILDS,
Notary Public.

1204 Deposition of William B. Hornblower.

[Mr. McClennen offered in evidence the deposition of William B. Hornblower, taken on behalf of the plaintiff.]

Mr. HEMENWAY: We would suggest that the same course be taken with that deposition as with the others which have been introduced.

HAMMOND, J.: If there is no objection to that course, you may state what depositions you propose to put in, so that the stenographer can take them down, and let them be handed over to counsel for the defendant for such objection as they want to make.

[Following is the deposition above referred to:]
[Commission and notarial certificate omitted.]

Q. 1. What is your name, age, residence, occupation, and place of business?

A. My name is William B. Hornblower; age, fifty-seven; residence, New York city; occupation, lawyer; place of business, 24 Broad street.

Q. 2. Are you the William B. Hornblower who was named by President Cleveland to be a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States?

A. I am.

Q. 3. What positions have you occupied, and what has been your education, experience, in the study and practice of law in or out of the state of New York, and particularly anything with reference to the law as to former adjudication or estoppel by judgment?

A. The only official positions that I have occupied are—member of the commission appointed by the governor of the state of New York in 1890 under an act of the legislature to propose amendments to the judiciary article of our state constitution; member of a board appointed by act of the legislature in 1904 to consolidate the statutes of the state. I am still acting as a member of this board, known as the board of statutory consolidation, which is to report the result of its work to the legislature at its next session in 1909.

I was educated at Princeton University and Columbia University Law School.

I have had a very varied and general experience in the practice of the law, and in the argument of cases in the state and federal courts, for thirty-three years, including cases in the United States Supreme Court and in the Court of Appeals of New York state, as well as in the subordinate courts—state and federal. I have frequently had occasion to examine the questions involved in the doctrine of res adjudicata in the course of my practice. I argued in the appellate division and in the Court of Appeals the case of Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 36 App. Div. 67; 42 App. Div. 621; 167 N. Y. 510, 1205 That case involved the effect of a former judgment in a suit brought by a trust company at the request of bondholders to foreclose a mortgage as a bar to a subsequent action at law by a bondholder. The question was one rather of merger of a cause of action than of estoppel. In connection with that case, however, I had occasion to examine the general law on the whole subject of res adjudicata.

I have very recently had occasion to re-examine the authorities on the subject of res adjudicata in an action recently brought and now pending in the Supreme Court of this state on behalf of certain stockholders of the New York & Harlem Railroad Company, against certain directors of that company, for an accounting of certain transactions which were involved in a prior litigation between certain other stockholders and the New York & Harlem Railroad Company, in which there was a decision in favor of the defendant, reported under the title of Continental Insurance Co. v. New York & Harlem R. R. Co., 187 N. Y. 225.

Q. 4. Examine the record in this case, including the record in the case of the same plaintiff against the executors of Leonard Lewisohn, attached to the amendment to the defendant's answer. Assuming (a) that the question whether the decree dismissing said suit against Lewisohn's executors is a defence in said suits against Bigelow is to be determined by the law of New York, and (b) that the defendant, Bigelow, participated in the actual defence of said action in the Circuit Court, and (c) that he assumed with said Lewisohn's executors the joint defence thereof, and (d) that the defendant, both through his agents and counsel, has, by large expenditures of time and money, contributed to and joined in and taken part in the defence of said action, and (e) that this was with the knowledge of the plaintiff throughout the entire pendency of the aforesaid action,—then in your opinion would or would not said decree of dismissal be a defence to said Bigelow in these suits in Massachusetts?

A. I have examined the copies of records furnished me in the two cases referred to. Making the assumptions set forth in the 4th interrogatory, my opinion is that the decree of dismissal in the suit against Lewisohn's executors would not be a defence to Bigelow in the suits in Massachusetts.

Q. 5. Making assumption (a) only, or making assumptions (a) (b) (c) (d) only, or making assumptions (a) (b) (c) (d) and (e), what, in your opinion, is the law of New York relative to the effect of said decree as a defence in the suits against Bigelow, and what are your reasons therefor?

A. Making the assumptions called for by that interrogatory, in my opinion, under the law of New York, said decree would not be a defence to suits against Bigelow. My reasons for this and the answer to the preceding interrogatory are briefly these:

1206 The general principle running through the law of estoppel by a former judgment is that the estoppel must be mutual. This principle is so elementary and so constantly reiterated by the courts that it is unnecessary to cite authorities in support of it.

The rule is thus stated by Black in his work on judgments, 2 Black on Judgments, sec. 548:

"In the application of the rule of res judicata it is essential that its operation be mutual. Therefore a party will not be concluded, against his contention, by a former judgment, unless he could have used it as a protection, or as the foundation of a claim, had the judgment been the other way; and conversely, no person can claim the benefit of a judgment, as an estoppel upon his adversary unless he would have been prejudiced by a contrary decision of the case. Thus, where the plaintiff is not a party to the record offered in evidence, not being concluded by it himself, he cannot rely upon it as a technical estoppel upon a garnishee."

Black cites many New York cases in support of this statement. The only case referred to by him to the contrary is a Louisiana decision; as to which, he says, in a footnote,—

"This decision seems to be clearly wrong, as the estoppel certainly would not be mutual. The case does not explain itself."

Among the many cases in this state in which this principle is announced may be cited Lawrence v. Campbell, 32 N. Y. 455, in which the court says, with reference to the effect of a former judgment, "estoppels to be available must be mutual."

In Nelson v. Brown, 144 N. Y. 390, it is said, per Gray, J., referring to a former judgment,—

"She [appellant] was not bound by it, and, therefore, it could not conclude the respondent; under the settled and familiar rule, that the record of a judgment, in order to conclude either of the party litigants, must be conclusive upon both. The operation of the rule must be mutual."

In this connection it must be borne in mind that there is a distinction between the effect of a prior decision by way of estoppel as a bar and the effect of a former decision by way of an adjudication on the questions of law or fact on the principle of stare decisis. It is undoubtedly true that the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York would apply the same rule of law to the claim against Bigelow as it has applied to the claim 1207 against Lewisohn's executors, and that if the suit against Bigelow were pending in that court and the same state of facts was set forth in the bill or shown by the testimony, that court would follow its previous ruling in the Lewisohn suit and would dismiss the bill. It is also true that the decree of the Circuit Court of the United States having been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States, the rule of law laid down by that court has become binding upon every federal court of inferior jurisdiction, and a suit brought in any federal court against Bigelow upon the same state of facts as appeared or were alleged in the Lewisohn suit would be dismissed by such federal court. As the questions in this case, however, were not federal questions, arising under the statutes or the Constitution of the United States, the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States is no more binding upon the Supreme Court of Massachusetts than would be a similar decision by the Court of Appeals of the state of New York.

The distinction between the doctrine of res adjudicata and the doctrine of stare decisis is well pointed out by the Court of Appeals in the case of Moore v. City of Albany, 98 N. Y. 396. In that case certain persons had a suit against the city of Albany, and recovered judgment, adjudging an assessment levied by the city to be void in a suit brought on behalf of other property owners. The former judgment was held to be not res adjudicata. The court, said, at page 409,—

"It is a general rule that estoppels by judgment must be mutual, that a party cannot claim the benefit of a judgment favorable to him unless he would be bound by a judgment in the same manner if adverse to him. If the judgment in that action had been adverse to the plaintiffs, then it certainly would not have bound William Moore, and he would still have been at liberty to assail the assessment and try all the questions relating thereto de novo upon their merits.

A judgment as to all matters decided thereby and as to all matters necessarily involved in the litigation leading thereto, binds and estops all the parties thereto, and their privies in all cases where the same matters are again brought in question. Such is the doctrine of res adjudicata.

"There is also the doctrine of stare decisis, which is of a different nature. When a court has once laid down a principle of law as applicable to a certain state of facts, it will adhere to that principle and apply it to all future cases where the facts are substantially the same, and this it does for the stability and certainty of the law."

A further distinction is to be borne in mind between contract cases and tort cases. As a general rule a suit brought against one 1208 of two joint contractors will bar a suit against the other joint contractor, and a decision in favor of one joint contractor, holding that there was no contract liability, can be availed of by the other joint contractor. This rule grows out of the nature of a joint contract, since plaintiff cannot sever his cause of action and must exhaust his rights and remedies in the first suit.

In tort cases, however, the rule is different; the liability of tort feasors is a several liability. The settled law of New York state is that a judgment in favor of one joint tort feasor is not a bar to a suit against another joint tort feasor.

In the early case of Lansing v. Montgomery, 2 Johns. 382, it was held that a judgment in favor of one co-trespasser was not an estoppel to proceedings and judgment against the other co-trespasser.

In Marsh v. Berry, 7 Cowen, 344, it was held that a recovery in favor of one trespasser is not evidence for his co-trespasser.

In Atlantic Dock Co. v. Mayor, 53 N. Y. 68, it is said,—

"A judgment in favor of one co-trespasser may not be used by another co-trespasser, not a party to it, by way of estoppel."

In the very recent case of Gittleman v. Feltman, 122 App. Div. 387, it is held that a judgment "will not be res adjudicata between the plaintiff and any of the joint tort feasors who is not a defendant and may be sued later—for joint tort feasors may be sued separately or together, and nothing but the satisfaction of a judgment against one or more of them or a release of the cause of action, will bar an action against the others."

The only case in this state that I know of, which is in apparent conflict with this doctrine is the case of People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235. That was an opinion at nisi prius upon a motion made after trial at circuit for a non-suit. The suit was brought by the People of the State against William C. Stephens, Thomas Gale, and others. Its object was to recover damages sustained by reason of a contract made between the state and the defendant Stephens, which contract, immediately upon its execution, was, with the consent of the state, assigned by the defendant Stephens to the defendant Gale; who, as the complaint averred, represented as well himself as the defendants Belden and Denison, and said Gale and said Belden and Denison have performed the contract.

1209 It appeared that a prior suit had been brought by the plaintiffs, the People, against two of the present defendants, William C. Stephens, the original contractor, and Thomas Gale, the assignee, the object of the suit being to set aside the agreement, which is the subject of controversy in the second suit, on account of the identical alleged unlawful and illegal acts urged as the grounds of recovery in the second suit, and also to recover the damages which the state had sustained up to the time of bringing the action by reason of such contract and the execution thereof.

To the former complaint a demurrer had been interposed, which demurrer had been sustained and final judgment given for the defendants upon the demurrer. This judgment was pleaded as a bar to the second suit. It appears, however, that the plaintiff tried out the second suit upon the facts and did not rely upon the former judgment. It is true that the court granted the non-suit partially upon the ground of estoppel by judgment, and laid down the doctrine in broad terms to the effect that the judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction upon a question directly at issue between parties unless reversed, forever concludes and estops all parties to the action and those in privity with them from questioning its accuracy or justice in another action. The court further held that the defendants who were parties to the second suit were privies to the parties who were named in the first suit.

It appears, however, that the decision in the first suit might well have been held binding on the principle of stare decisis, as a decision by the same court upon the law of the case to the effect that no cause of action was set forth in the complaint. The court says on this subject,—

"Has it, however, ever been held that upon the same proof against two the same court would be justified in holding the one guilty of actionable conduct whilst the other was not? The tribunal which would administer justice upon such principle would deserve to be stripped of its judicial functions, and be condemned to eternal infamy."

Judge Westbrook, however, does not rely upon the bar of the former judgment, but proceeds to discuss the case upon the second ground for a non-suit, and holds, upon the evidence, that plaintiff was not entitled to recover.

When this case came before the Court of Appeals in 71 N. Y. 527, the court affirmed the judgment of non-suit, but did not discuss the subject of res adjudicata, nor in any way approve of the views of the trial court on this subject. The decision of the Court of Appeals was based on the ground that an act of the legislature passed in 1870 was intended as a final disposition of the whole matter and as a 1210 waiver of any claim for fraud, and operated to validate the transactions and to ratify the contracts subject to the powers therein conferred, to annul the same; and that by omitting so to terminate them and by going on under them, the state officers clearly manifested that they did not deem the contracts injurious, and elected, on behalf of the state, to proceed with and abide by them. The omission of the Court of Appeals to discuss, or in any way refer to, the effect of the former judgment is most significant, and is in effect a ruling that the court did not regard the decision of the lower court as sustainable upon that theory.

So far as the decision by Judge Westbrook at circuit can be considered to hold that a judgment of a court of one jurisdiction rendered against one of several conspirators or tort feasors, or in favor of one of several joint conspirators or joint tort feasors will be a bar to an action in another jurisdiction against the other conspirators or joint tort feasors, it is, in my opinion, entirely unsupported by any decision of the Court of Appeals of this state which has come to my notice, and is at variance with what I regard as the settled law of this state on the general subject.

It is further to be observed, with regard to the decision of Mr. Justice Westbrook, that he says, at page 247,—

"All the acts of the defendants Gale and Stephens set out in the complaint in the former action, and which are identically the same with those contained in the complaint in the present, are charged as done in confederacy and combination with others, those others being the present defendants, not then sued; and it was of those acts, then and now charged, this court gravely and solemnly decided and adjudged, in the language of the demurrer, that they were not 'sufficient to constitute a cause of action.' If they were not then, are they now? Has their color or complexion changed with the lapse of years, or must this court change its view of the same facts because performed by parties now for the first time named, though then included as co-conspirators and confederates?"

In other words, Judge Westbrook's decision rests upon the ground that the rulings of the court are binding upon the same court in a subsequent suit on the principle of stare decisis. It is also to be noted that the judge calls attention, on page 248, to the fact that as the state had, by its agent duly authorized, "agreed for a consideration, to be bound by a judgment of this Court, the estoppel of the judgment is supplemented by the agreement," referring, in this connection, to the case of People v. Stephens and others, 52 N. Y. 306, 309, 310.

1211 So far as this case of People v. Stephens may be interpreted as holding that one of several co-tort feasors is bound by or can avail himself of a judgment in favor of his co-tort feasor in a suit to which he himself was not a party, it stands alone, so far as I know, in the jurisprudence of this state. It is at variance with the current authority of the state, and I do not regard it as stating correctly the law of this state on the subject.

It is true that a judgment is binding, not only upon upon those who are actually party defendants to the suit, but upon persons who stand in privity to the defendant. I do not understand that a joint tort feasor stands in privity with his co-tort feasors within the meaning of this rule. The rule is applied in favor of and against a party who claims title to certain property under or through the party to the record. It also applies to cases of principal and agent, master and servant, trustee and cestui que trust, and to cases where there is a liability over by way of indemnity. This last class of cases covers suits against sureties and numerous other classes of cases where the party to the record has a remedy over against a third party. In such cases, however, in order to be bound by the judgment, the third party must ordinarily be notified of the suit and given a right to come in and defend, or he must have actually come in and defended it, in order to be bound by the suit. It is to be noted, in this connection, that under the settled law of this state there is no liability for contribution as between tort feasors, and therefore no remedy over where one tort feasor is sued severally and judgment obtained against him.

This is distinctly held in Gilbert v. Finch, 173 N. Y. 455, and numerous other cases. The cases in this state which hold that a party, not a party to the record, is bound or can avail himself of a judgment as a bar, all come under one or the other foregoing classes enumerated. To go through the cases in detail and analyze them would involve a long and unnecessary discussion. I understand that I am only called upon to express my opinion as a New York lawyer with regard to the result of the cases themselves, without referring to them in detail.

Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351, for instance, is a case where privity of title to property is involved.

Clemens v. Clemens, 37 N. Y. 59, is a similar case where parties claiming title under or through a party to the record are held bound by the judgment.

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329, is a case of master and servant.

Smith v. Smith, 79 N. Y. 634, and numerous other cases, are cases of parties liable over by way of indemnity on the principles applicable to suretyship, warranty, or otherwise.

1212 I know of no case in this state going so far as to hold that participation in the defence of a suit by one not a party nor a privy in the sense above set forth, by way of contributing to the expense of the suit, with or without the knowledge of the plaintiff, binds him by the judgment or entitles him to take the benefit of the judgment as a bar. There are some dicta in the cases intimating such a rule, but there are no decisions to that effect. In my opinion, the law of this state on this subject is in accordance with the rule laid down by the United States Supreme Court in Litchfield v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. 549, and Stryker v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. 527. In the former case the court said,—

"She interested herself in securing a favorable decision of the questions involved as far as they were applicable to her own interests, and paid part of the expenses; but there was nothing to bind her by the decision. If it had been adverse to her interest, no decree could have been entered against her personally either for the land or for the taxes."

In the latter case the court said,—

"We have not overlooked the fact that a brief was filed at the hearing in this court on behalf of the Railroad Company to support the claim of Wolcott that the title of that Company was the best. Such a proceeding did not make the Railroad Company a party to the suit, or bind it by the decree. Being interested in the question to be decided, the company was anxious to secure a judgment that could not be used as a precedent against its own claims in any litigation that might thereafter arise in respect to its own property. It is not an uncommon thing in this court to allow briefs to be presented by or on behalf of persons who are not parties to the suit, but who are interested in the questions to be decided, and it has never been supposed that the judgment in such a case would estop the intervenor in a suit of his own which presented the same questions. It could be used as a precedent, but not as an estoppel in the second suit."

It seems to me very clear that a judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the suit brought against Lewisohn's executors would not have been res adjudicata as against Bigelow, whether his participation in the suit was or was not with the knowledge of the plaintiff. If a judgment in favor of the plaintiff would not have been binding upon Bigelow, then, on the doctrine that estoppels must be mutual, it follows that it is not a binding adjudication in his favor. I do not understand how the question of plaintiff's knowledge can be important, as plaintiff could not very well have prevented Bige-
1213 low from taking part in the defence and in assisting in compensating counsel. It does not appear and is not claimed, so far as I know, that he ever appeared in his own name in any way, shape, or form, in the suit pending in New York, in which the judgment was obtained, or that counsel appeared in his name. It seems to me that merely aiding pecuniarily in the argument of a question of law arising upon a demurrer, in the decision of which question of law the person so contributing is interested for the reason that the same principle may be applied against him on the ground of stare decisis, does not make him a party to the record so as to be bound by an adverse decree or to avail himself of a favorable decree. I do not understand that there is any decision in this state holding otherwise.

It has been suggested, however, that Lewisohn occupied a representative position in this suit and that he was either a trustee or agent for Bigelow, and that, therefore, a decree against Lewisohn would have bound Bigelow, and a decree in favor of Lewisohn would avail Bigelow. It is true that the property for which the corporation issued its stock was put into the name of Lewisohn with Bigelow's consent. It is also true that the plaintiff prayed for rescission of the transaction by which the property was conveyed to the company and stock issued in lieu thereof. It further appears, however, from the bill that the real object of the bill was to obtain an accounting for the stock of the company alleged to have been wrongfully issued, pursuant to a conspiracy between Lewisohn and Bigelow, in which they were equally tort feasors. It is not claimed that Bigelow's stock was ever held in the name of Lewisohn. The stock was issued to Lewisohn in his own name and to Bigelow in his own name. This suit is brought to recover for the stock issued in exchange for the conveyance. It is the value of this stock for which an accounting is sought.

The liability to account for the stock is a several liability of Lewisohn and Bigelow. On receiving the stock neither one acted as trustee for the other or as agent for the other. The fact that, as part of the transaction leading up to and resulting in the delivery of the stock, the title to certain property stood in the name of Lewisohn does not, in my opinion, make a case in which Bigelow would have been bound by a judgment against Lewisohn or is entitled to claim the benefit of a judgment in favor of Lewisohn.

The principle under which promoters of a corporation are held liable to account for secret profits obtained is laid down in the case of Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403, and in Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 348. In the latter case I was counsel for the appellants, and obtained a decision establishing the liability of the promoters to account to stockholders. The principle of those cases, as I un-1214 derstand it, is that promoters occupy a fiduciary relation to the company and to its original stockholders and owe a duty of full disclosure, and cannot make a secret profit at the expense of the other stockholders who were participants in the formation of the corporation. The court discusses in these cases the rights of the parties inter sese and uses language which indicates that they are partners. I do not understand, however, that it follows from the principle laid down in these cases that one of the promoters is so far the agent or representative of the other promoters as to make a suit for an accounting against one of them without joining the others res adjudicata against the others not sued; to so hold would, it seems to me, be to violate the elementary principles of justice, which require that every man shall have his day in court. If, therefore, a judgment against one of the promoters would not bind the other promoters, it necessarily follows from the principle already announced that a judgment in favor of one promoter would not avail the other promoters. Nor do I regard the use of general phrases such as "identity of interest" or "joint undertaking" as furnishing any definite of accurate test with regard to the effect of a former judgment. It is my opinion that where a former suit is not based upon a contract, as to which technical rules apply with regard to merger of the cause of action, it is necessary to bring the former suit within one of the well-established exceptions, as already indicated, in order to avoid the effect of the general principle that a judgment in order to be available in favor of the party must also be available in favor of the other party as against him on the principle of mutuality.

It is also to be noted that the former suit was not a suit against Lewisohn himself, but against Lewisohn's executors, and the executors were not trustees, and never had been trustees, of any property or stock for Bigelow. In this connection I refer the court to the case of Thomson v. American Surety Co., 170 N. Y. 109. I have not, however, deemed it necessary to discuss this question, as my opinion on the other questions makes it unnecessary to have considered this point.

Nor have I considered the question of whether the judgment against the complainant in the United States court suit is to be regarded as a judgment upon the merits within the meaning of section 1209 of the New York Code of Civil Procedure.

There are a great number of New York decisions which discuss the effect of a prior judgment in a subsequent suit between the same parties where the issues are different, but where the prior suit might have included the same issues, or where the issues raised in the latter suit were impliedly decided by the former judgment. I have not considered it material to the present inquiry to discuss these cases.

I have confined myself to a consideration of the precise ques-
1215 tion presented to me, namely, the effect of a former adjudication upon one not a party to the record in the former suit, and his right to avail himself of a former adjudication as a bar.

To sum up my reasons for my opinion, as already given, I do not regard Bigelow as being in privity with Lewisohn within the meaning of that phrase as used in the decisions as to res adjudicata, nor do I regard Lewisohn as standing in the position of trustee or agent so as to be the representative of Bigelow in the suit, so that Bigelow would be bound by a judgment against Lewisohn. In my opinion Lewisohn and Bigelow were joint tort feasors. A judgment against one would not bind the other, nor would a judgment in favor of one avail the other in another jurisdiction, nor in the same jurisdiction, except on the principle of stare decisis, or by way of precedent.

New York Cases Introduced by Plaintiff.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I also desire to introduce cases decided by the New York courts and the statutory provisions of law.

HAMMOND, J.: Have you got a list of them there?

Mr. McCLENNEN: I have a list that is not quite complete; I want to add a few more. If I may simply do as Mr. Hemenway has done, I will hand the commissioner a copy.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well. You may hand a copy to Mr. Hemenway, and they may be considered as in. You had better send a copy to the stenographer, also, like that which you send to Mr. Hemenway, so that he can use it.

[Following is the list of cases subsequently submitted:]

Stevens v. Central Nat. Bank, 144 N. Y. 50.
Genet v. Del. & Hudson Co., 170 N. Y. 278.
Same v. Same, 162 N. Y. 172.
Same v. Same, 122 N. Y. 505.
Petrie v. Trustee, 92 Hun., 81.
In re Broderick, 56 N. Y. Supp. —.
Randall v. N. Y. El. Co., 149 N. Y. 211.
Koehler v. Hughes, 148 N. Y. 507.
Clarke v. Lourie, 82 N. Y. 580.
Code of Civil Procedure, sec. 1209.
Genet v. Del. & Hudson Co., 171 N. Y. 278.
1216 Same v. Same, 136 N. Y. 593.
Borden v. Fitch, 15 Johns. 121.
Lansing v. Montgomery, 2 Johns. 382.
Marsh v. Berry, 7 Cowen, 344.
Calkins v. Allerton, 3 Barb. 171.
Tyng v. Clarke, 9 Hun, 269.
Atlantic Dock Co. v. N. Y., 53 N. Y. 64.
Gittleman v. Feltman, 122 App. Div. 385.
Kolb v. National Surety Co., 176 N. Y. 233.

Andrews v. Murray, 23 Barb. 354.
Peck v. Ellis, 2 Johns. Ch. 131.
Miller v. Fenton, 11 Paige, 18.
Barrett v. Third Ave. R. Co., 45 N. Y. 628.
Mitchell v. Allin, 25 Hun, 543.
Bath v. Rowland, 82 N. Y. Supp. 841.
Booth v. Powers, 56 N. Y. 22.
Russell v. McCall, 141 N. Y. 437.
Snyder v. Barber, 18 N. Y. 468.
Robinson v. Smith, 18 Johns. 459.
Moss v. McCullough, 5 Hill, 131.
McMaster v. Vernon, 3 Duer, 249.
Brow v. Birdsall, 29 Barb. 549.
Livingston v. Bishop, 1 Johns. 290.
Parks v. N. Y., 98 N. Y. Supp. 94.
Lawrence v. Campbell, 32 N. Y. 455.
Craig v. Ward, 3 Abb. (N. S.) 235.
Brennan v. Bath, 3 Daly, 489.
Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329.
Thomas v. Hubbell, 15 N. Y. 405.
Carleton v. Lombard, Ayres & Co., 149 N. Y. 137.
Ocean Nav. Co. v. Campania Co., 144 N. Y. 663.
Albany Sav. Inst. v. Burdick, 87 N. Y. 40.
Prescott v. La Conte, 178 N. Y. 585.
Heiser v. Hatch, 86 N. Y. 614.
Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun, 576.
Fake v. Smith, 2 Abb. Dec. 76.
1217 Konitzky v. Meyer, 49 N. Y. 571.
Smetzer v. White, 92 U. S. 390, 394.
Alexander v. Taylor, 4 Denio, 302.
Featherstone v. Turnpike Co., 71 Hun, 109.
Moore v. Albany, 98 N. Y. 396.
Trimmer v. Rochester, 130 N. Y. 401.
Tifft v. Buffalo, 25 App. Div. 376.
Wallace v. New York, 53 App. Div. 187.
Stone v. N. Y., 184 N. Y. 124.
Lawrence v. Hunt, 10 Wend. 80.
Fowler v. Bowery Bank, 47 Hun, 399.
Remington Paper Co. v. O'Doherty, 81 N. Y. 474.
Scott v. Brennan, 9 Daly, 226.
Croft v. Bassett, 24 Barb. 31.
Douglas v. Howland, 24 Wend. 35.
Jackson v. Griswold, 4 Hill, 522.
Miller v. White, 50 N. Y. 137.
McMahon v. Macy, 51 N. Y. 155.
Craft v. Coykendall, 34 Hun, 285.
Goddard v. Benson, 15 Abb. Prac. 191.
Chapman v. Frank, 5 N. Y. Supp. 448.
Campbell v. Hill, 16 N. Y. 575.
People v. Knickerbocker, 106 N. Y. 619.
O'Brien v. Browning, 49 How. Pr. 109.

Smith v. Smith, 79 N. Y. 634.
Dibble v. Dimmock, 143 N. Y. 549.
Morehouse v. Brooklyn Co., 185 N. Y. 520.
MacArdell v. Olcott, 62 N. Y. App. Div. 127.
New York Code, 281.
2 Bliss Am. Code, 20, 21.
Thomson v. American Surety Co., 170 N. Y. 109.
Thorne v. De Breteuil, 86 App. Div. 405; 179 N. Y. 64.
Gleason v. Northwestern, 189 N. Y. 100.
Carter v. Bowe, 41 Hun, 516.
In re Straut, 126 N. Y. 201.
Bracken v. Atl. Trust Co., 30 App. Div. 67.
1218 Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403.
King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267.
Brunell v. Dias, 3 Den. 238.
O'Donnel v. McIntyre, 118 N. Y. 156, 162.
Mygatt v. Coe, 124 N. Y. 212.
Emma Mines Case, 7 Fed. Rep. 401; 159 Fed. Rep. 36.
Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351.
Jordan v. Van Epps, 85 N. Y. 427.
Clemens v. Clemens, 37 N. Y. 59.
Doty v. Brown, 4 N. Y. 41
Griffin v. Long Island R. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 449.
C. P. P. & M. Co. v. Walker, 114 N. Y. 7.
Thomson v. Sanders, 118 N. Y. 252.
Reich v. Cochran, 151 N. Y. 122.
Earle v. Earle, 173 N. Y. 480.
Williams v. Barcley, 165 N. Y. 48.
People v. Stephens, 51 How. Pr. 235.
Doremus v. Root, 23 Wash. 710; 54 L. R. A. 649, and note; 4 N. Y. 71.
Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton, 158 Fed. Rep. 68.
Rumford Chem. Co. v. Hygienic Chem. Co., 159 Fed. Rep. 36.
Stamp v. Franklin, 144 N. Y. 607.
Van Koughnet v. Dennis, 68 Hun, 179.
Kelly v. 42d St. R. R. Co., 39 App. Div. 500.
Kerrison v. Stewart, 93 U. S. 155.
Lorilland v. Clyde, 122 N. Y. 41.
Park Hill Co. v. Herriott, 41 App. Div. 34.
In re Will of O'Hara, 95 N. Y. 403.
Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349.
Western R. R. Co. v. Nolan, 48 N. Y. 513.
Lawrence v. Schaffer, 19 Misc. 239; aff. 20 App. Div. 80.
Freeman on Judgments, secs. 173, 174, 287.
Black (2) on Judgments, secs. 709, 781, 789.
Emery v. Fowler, 39 Me. 329.
Knapp v. Roche, 94 N. Y. 329.
Whiteman v. Shankland, 18 How. Pr. 79.
1219 Allen v. Knott, 111 U. S. 472.
Hirshbach v. Ketcham, 84 App. Div. 258.

Yates v. Utica Bank, 205 U. S. 181.
No. Pac. Ry. v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 132.
Bissell v. Spring Valley, 124 U. S. 225.
Port Jarvis v. First Nat. Bank, 96 N. Y. 550.
Demarest v. Darg, 32 N. Y. 281.
Prescott v. Le Conte, 83 App. Div. 482.
Park Hill Co. v. Herriott, 41 App. Div. 324.
Paulding v. Chrome Steel Co., 94 N. Y. 329.
Pakas v. Hollingshead, 184 N. Y. 217.
Bates v. Stanton, 1 Duer, 79.
Wilcox v. Pratt, 125 N. Y. 688.
Lichty v. Lewis, 63 Fed. Rep. 535.
1 Greenleaf on Evidence, sec. 523.
Bopp v. N. Y. Elec. Vehicle Co., 78 App. Div. 337.
Cassidy v. Sauer, 114 App. Div. 673.
Shaw v. Broadbent, 129 N. Y. 114.
Genet v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 2 App. Div. 491.
Same v. Same, 14 App. Div. 177.
Moore v. Tracy, 7 Wend. 229.
Diet v. Hyman, 129 N. Y. 351.
Gerrod v. Stagg, 10 How. Pr. —.
St. John v. Andrew, 192 N. Y. 382.
Mallory v. Horan, 49 N. Y. 111.
Marsh v. Masterton, 101 N. Y. 401.
Stowell v. Chamberlain, 60 N. Y. 272.
Converse v. Sickler, 146 N. Y. 200.
Rudd v. Cornell, 171 N. Y. 114.
Shaw v. Bradstreet, 129 N. Y. 114.
Hoag v. Greenwich, 133 N. Y. 152.
People v. Dalton, 52 App. Div. 371.
Collins v. Hydorn, 135 N. Y. 320.
Getty v. Devlin, 70 N. Y. 504.
Eisenlord v. Clum, 126 N. Y. 552.
House v. Lockwood, 137 N. Y. 259.
1220 Lorillard v. Clyde, 102 N. Y. 59.
Towle v. Forry, 14 N. Y. 423.
Woodhouse v. Duncan, 106 N. Y. 527.

Mr. McClennen: I am sorry to say we shall not be able to get all of our evidence in this afternoon, your Honor.

Hammond, J.: Well, get it in as fast as you can.

Stipulations.

Mr. McClennen: I will offer the stipulation in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Frederick Lewisohn et al., relating to the taking of depositions in Vermont.

I, perhaps, ought to have said, your Honor, that in offering this testimony we desire to be understood as still insisting on our objection to the materiality of the evidence relative to actual participation in the New York case.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand that to be your position.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I will also offer two other stipulations relative to the taking of testimony in the New York cases.

Also the general stipulation of May 27, 1903, relative to the taking of testimony in Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Frederick Lewisohn et al.

Also the stipulation of April 2, 1903, relative to the taking of the further testimony of Mr. Bigelow and Mr. Hyams.

[Following are the stipulations put in evidence under this offer:]

Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

8332.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Stipulation.

In the above-entitled case it is hereby stipulated that depositions may be taken for use therein of witnesses residing in the state of Vermont before G. C. Frye, or any other notary public in said state, with like effect as if a commission were duly issued 1221 to him by this court, and that the taking of said depositions may begin at the office of said notary in St. Johnsbury on December 14, 1905.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Attorneys for Complainant.
HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Attorneys for Respondents.

A.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

#8332.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Stipulation.

The respondents hereby reserve the right of cross-examination of Charles H. Altmiller, if he be again called to testify, by either party, and waive any further or formal proof of the records of the plaintiff corporation, of the entries in the books of account and check books of the plaintiff corporation testified to by Mr. Altmiller, and of the letters and other documents produced by Mr. Altmiller, and stipulate and agree that Mr. Altmiller's deposition, and the exhibits thereto annexed setting out the contents of the record book, extracts from the books of account, check book, stock-certificate books, and stock-transfer book, and certain certificates of stock, letters, and other documents produced by him, may be read in evidence and used in like manner and with the same effect in all respects as if full and formal proof of the same had been made, reserving, however, all rights to object to the relevancy, competency, and materiality of the interrogatories and answers and of the matters testified to by said deponent and of the said exhibits.

Said waiver being made conditionally upon the production of any and all of said original documents that the respondents shall notify complainant to produce, and the complainant hereby stipulates and agrees to produce any and all of said original documents upon receiving notice requiring the production thereof.

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for Respondents.

1222 B.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

#8332.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

In the above-entitled cause it is stipulated and agreed between the parties:

That copies certified by Willoughby L. Webb, commissioner, of the depositions of Walter Lewisohn, Ferdinand L. Rahaeuser, Adolph Lewisohn, Frederick Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn, Jesse Lewisohn, and Edward C. Westervelt, taken in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, No. 8099 Equity, pending in the Supreme Judicial Court for Suffolk county, Massachusetts, may when completed be filed in the above-entitled cause by the complainant at any time before the taking of testimony therein is closed, and may be read and used in evidence in this cause by either party with the same effect as if the same had been regularly taken in said cause before an examiner.

And it is further stipulated and agreed that the depositions of Albert S. Bigelow, Godfrey M. Hyams, Joseph A. Coram, Galen L. Stone, and Charles H. Altmiller, taken before Howland Twombly, Esq., notary public, for use in the above-entitled cause, may be filed in the above-entitled cause by the complainant at any time before the taking of the complainant's testimony in chief therein is closed, and may be read and used in evidence in this cause by either party with the same effect as if the same had been regularly taken in said cause before an examiner. Reserving, however, to each party all rights to object to the relevancy, competency, and materiality of any of said depositions or the documents therein referred to, and to any of the interrogatories or answers therein contained, and reserving the right of the respondents to cross-examine Charles H. Altmiller, one of said witnesses, if he be again called to testify by either party.

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for Respondents.

1223 Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

In Equity. No. 1.

#8332.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

It is hereby agreed that the defendants shall not be called upon to take any testimony until the plaintiffs close their testimony in chief, and that the time for taking the plaintiff's testimony is hereby extended until such time as shall be agreed upon by the parties, or fixed by order of court, and that upon the closing of the plaintiff's testimony in chief, the defendants shall have reasonable time for taking testimony, to be agreed upon by the parties or fixed by the court; and that thereafter the plaintiffs shall have a reasonable time for taking testimony in reply, to be agreed upon by the parties or fixed by the court.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
For Plaintiffs.
HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Attorneys for Defendants.

Boston, May 27, 1903.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

No. 1. In Equity.

#8332.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Agreement.

In the above-entitled cause, the taking of the depositions of Albert S. Bigelow and Godfrey M. Hyams before Howland Twombly,

Esq., having been adjourned to Friday, April 3, 1903, at 10 o'clock a. m., and the defendants having requested that the taking of said depositions be further adjourned to Friday, April 10, 1903;

Now, therefore, it is hereby agreed by the parties to said suit that the taking of said depositions be so adjourned, and by said witnesses respectively, that they will appear at said adjourned
1224 date at the office of Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, Room 17, 220 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass., at 10 o'clock in the forenoon.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Attorneys for Plaintiff.
ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Special Attorney for Defendant.
ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Attorney for A. S. Bigelow and Godfrey M. Hyams.

Boston, April 2, 1903.

Additional Correspondence Between Counsel.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I will put in evidence the letter of Mr. Lauterbach to Mr. Brandeis, dated September 20, 1902.

A letter from Mr. Lauterbach to Mr. Brandeis, dated September 26, 1902.

A letter from Mr. Brandeis to Mr. Hemenway, dated September 27, 1902.

A letter from Mr. Brandeis to Mr. Hemenway, dated March 17, 1903.

Mr. HEMENWAY: All these letters are to be submitted to me in the same way I submitted mine to you, and if I have any objections I can make them then?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes.

[Following are the letters referred to in this offer:]

G. M. Hyams,
Sears Building, P. O. Box 5104, Boston.

SEPTEMBER 20, 1902.

Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., 220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: In order not to cause any unnecessary delay in the matter concerning which I had the pleasure of conferring with you on Thursday I came to Boston today for further conference with you and also with Mr. Hemenway, who will probably appear in any action you may bring, for Mr. Bigelow.

I timed my visit unfortunately, since I have ascertained that you would not be at your office today. Tomorrow I go to Saratoga, and since I expect to be Chairman of the Committee on Reso-
1225 lutions at the Convention, will not be able to confer with you again until after the close of the session, which will probably take place on Wednesday or Thursday of next week.

In the meantime, on any question of procedure or furnishing of a bond that may appear to you to be pressing, Mr. Hemenway will be glad to confer with you.

With kind regards, I am,

Very truly yours, EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

BOSTON, MASS., September 26, 1902.

DEAR MR. BRANDEIS: I regret exceedingly that I had not the pleasure of meeting you.

Conferences with my clients, the Lewisohns, after a full investigation of the claim that was made on behalf of the Old Dominion Company, have been had by me.

They believe, and I have so advised them, that there is no claim which is made which they recognize as valid, and they must leave you to take such steps on behalf of the Company as you deem advisable.

As I have already informed you, Mr. Hemenway represents Mr. Bigelow, and I suggest that you confer with him as to any proceedings you desire to initiate, and as to the bond that you require.

With many thanks for your courtesy, and with regret that I cannot have the pleasure of a personal interview with you, I am,

Yours very truly,

EDWARD LAUTERBACH.

(Dictated to A. H. G. at office of Mr. Brandeis.)

SEPT. 27, 1902.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq. Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach requests me to arrange with you the matter of bond in the suits of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Albert S. Bigelow which we wish now to file, of which you doubtless have received the copies which we handed to Mr. Lauterbach.

We should like to have an attachment bond in the amount of $500,000. A single bond will do provided it is conditioned to the satisfaction of any decree which may be entered in either or both of the suits.

1226 Will you kindly let me hear from you on Monday morning whether a bond in that form will be agreeable to you, and whom Mr. Bigelow proposes as surety?

Yours very truly,

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

MARCH 17, 1903.
G/B.

Alfred Hemenway, Esq., Tremont Building, Boston.

DEAR MR. HEMENWAY: Mr. Lauterbach called me up on the telephone yesterday and stated that he had just returned from Kentucky and it would be impossible for him to go on with the taking of the depositions on Wednesday or any later day this week, but that he could go on on Tuesday and other days of next week. I told him I would see whether I could arrange so that I could grant the postponement, and I have, at considerable inconvenience, made such arrangements.

Mr. Lauterbach stated that Mr. Bigelow would not go abroad before May 12th, and also that he had just been in communication—I was not sure whether with you or Mr. Bigelow or Mr. Hyams—in regard to the matter, and that the adjournment would be agreeable to you and them.

I am willing to grant the adjournment as requested by Mr. Lauterbach if you will agree on his behalf as well as that of the witnesses to proceed on Tuesday, March 24th, at ten o'clock.

I enclose a draft of agreement for the adjournment, which kindly sign and return to see if the arrangement is satisfactory.

I send you also a copy for your files. I wrote to Mr. Lauterbach yesterday that I would wire him if the adjournment could be arranged. Will you kindly let me hear from you, therefore, as soon as possible?

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

(2 enclosures.)

Extracts from Respondents' Brief in United States Supreme Court Case.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I offer in evidence from the brief of Mr. Treadwell in the Supreme Court of the United States, pp. 84, 85, 86.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That I object to.

HAMMOND, J.: It may go in, subject to Mr. Hemenway's objection and exception.

[Following is a copy of the pages of the brief referred to:]

1227 Fourth Point.

Albert S. Bigelow is an indispensable party in whose absence a bill for rescission cannot be maintained.

(1) The bill discloses the joint interest of Albert S. Bigelow and of Leonard Lewisohn, defendants' testator.

This disclosure is distinct, emphatic and repeated.

The rescission sought is of the transfer to the complainant of certain mines and mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, the New York Mine, the Keystone Mine, and a certain parcel of land in Arizona, all of which had formerly been owned by the stockholders of Old Baltimore Company, the title being held by one William Keyser (Record, p. 3, fol. 4), and from him acquired by the said Bigelow and the said Lewisohn.

The complainant in folio 5 states that prior to May 24th, 1895, Bigelow and Lewisohn formed the plan of acquiring the said property held by Keyser; that (fol. 9, paragraph seventh) on or about June 13, 1895, Bigelow, in conjunction with Lewisohn, for the purpose of carrying out their plan made an agreement with Keyser.

"In pursuance of this plan and conspiracy they required said Keyser to undertake to convey said claims and real estate to them without payment of any additional consideration upon said executors assenting thereto."

And (fol. 10, paragraph eighth) that Bigelow and Lewisohn for their common benefit acquired from Keyser the said property theretofore standing in his name.

The complaint further states (fol. 10):

"Said conveyance was made to said Leonard Lewisohn and the title to said property was acquired by him for the common benefit of himself and said Bigelow, as hereinafter set forth, and as a part of the plan and conspiracy hereinbefore set forth."

The complaint further states (fol. 18):

"The stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate were acquired in the manner aforesaid with intent on the part of said Leonard Lewisohn and of said Bigelow to sell said property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate for a much larger price."

1228 The complaint further states (fol. 19):

"By the transactions above set forth said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn carried out their said plan and conspiracy * * * and acquired * * * for themselves as they claimed * * * all the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant * * * thereupon did sell * * * and also sold * * * all the property conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn." * * *

The complaint further states (fol. 28):

"Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 12, 1902, the complainant offered to said Bigelow and to the respondents to rescind the sale and conveyance to it from said Leonard Lewisohn of said parcels of real estate in Arizona, to wit, the parcels known as the Old Dominion Mine, the New York Mine, the Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine, and parcel of real estate," etc.

Not alone from the general tenor of the complaint is the joint interest of Bigelow and Lewisohn apparent. Their joint interest is distinctly pleaded, so that there is no doubt, that the transaction sought to be rescinded was a joint one on the part of Lewisohn and Bigelow.

In fact the complaint offers an excuse for omitting Bigelow as a defendant (fol. 29) based on his non-residence within the district.

The formal offer of the real estate to the complainant company was made in the name of Lewisohn (p. 20), probably because the legal title thereto stood in his name, although the property had been, as the complaint repeatedly states, acquired by both Bigelow and Lewisohn for their common benefit, and that they (Bigelow and Lewisohn) sold the same to the complainant.

It will be noted, however, that the formal offer contained a reference to the interest of Bigelow and a request to pay the consideration, namely, 30,000 shares of stock, to Bigelow as well as Lewisohn.

Extracts from Complainant's Brief Filed in Chancery of New Jersey.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I offer in evidence from the brief of Mr. Spooner, counsel for Mr. Bigelow in the New Jersey case——

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is subject to my objection.

HAMMOND, J.: Certainly, it will have to take the same course. It goes in subject to the exception of Mr. Hemenway.

1229 Mr. McCLENNEN: Page 38, the words on that page.—

"The defendant seeks to escape the force of the estoppel by the statement that Bigelow and Lewisohn were tort-feasors, and that under the familiar rule of law a judgment against one tort-feasor is not an estoppel in favor of the other tort-feasor when sued by the plaintiff for the same alleged tort. But Bigelow and Lewisohn are not sued as tort-feasors."

Also on page 47 of that brief the words,—

"This is not what 'mutuality' of estoppel means, as we understand it. What it means is that there would be no estoppel in favor of Bigelow, unless if the decree in New York had been against Lewisohn, it would have also inured to the benefit of the company on the question of liability as against Bigelow, a proposition which we do not contest."

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is subject to my objection and exception.

HAMMOND, J.: I suppose they are positions taken in that case inconsistent, or claimed by you to be inconsistent, with those taken here?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: And the objection is on the ground that they were taken in that case? The objection, whatever it is, you may have. The stenographer will minute it.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is under the New Jersey law; our contention here is that it is under the New York law.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I also offer from the New Jersey bill of complaint the following, from page 22:—

"And your orator further shows to your Honor that in view of the premises the determination of the controversies existing between the defendant Company and your orator and the Lewisohn estate should be and is properly cognizable before this Honorable Court to prevent a multiplicity of suits and to prevent injustice through technical conflicts in different jurisdictions, and to the end that a decision might ultimately be reached binding on all the parties in conformity with the spirit of the laws of the state of New Jersey, under whose laws said corporation was organized and the duties and obligations of the parties were created and exist."

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is subject to my objection.

HAMMOND, J.: The same exception.

1230 Testimony from Printed Record.

Mr. McCLENNEN: I also call attention in the old printed record to the matters on pages 313, 586, 603, 754, 757, 502, 517, 518, 555.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I object, on the ground that it is already in evidence and does not need to be repeated. I came to your Honor's theory in regard to pointing out evidence, assuming that the whole evidence was before the court.

Mr. McCLENNEN: That is all, if your Honor please, of my testimony, but one witness whom I cannot locate, but who will be here the first thing to-morrow morning.

HAMMOND, J.: What do you propose to show by him?

Mr. McCLENNEN: I desire to show the New York law.

HAMMOND, J.: An oral witness.

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: How long will it take you to examine him?

Mr. McCLENNEN: I should not suppose the direct examination of him would require more than half an hour; perhaps a little more.

HAMMOND, J.: You must be prepared to go on. That will close your evidence?

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, your Honor.

HAMMOND, J.: We will adjourn until to-morrow morning at half past nine.

[Adjourned to Tuesday, October 6, 1908, at 9.30 a. m.]

TUESDAY, October 6, 1908.

Letter, Brandeis to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson.

Mr. McCLENNEN: In view of the letters introduced by the other side, which I have now read, I should like to put in a letter dated June 1, 1907, from Mr. Brandeis to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, as follows:—

"JUNE 1, 1907.
B/Md.

Messrs. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, 22 William Street, New York City.

DEAR SIRS: I am in receipt of your letter of May 31st in which you say:

" 'It was our understanding had with your Mr. Brandeis, our Mr. Lauterbach and Mr. Hemenway that these cases should proceed together, and in view of your taking the Lewisohn case to the Supreme Court we feel that it is only proper that the Bigelow case should stand until the Supreme Court has passed upon the question.'

1231 I must state most emphatically that it never was my understanding that the Bigelow case and the Lewisohn case 'should proceed together,' and I am at a loss to know how that idea could have arisen in your minds. It was understood at certain times that we should take testimony to be used in both of the cases, but it never was stated or suggested, so far as I know, by any one, prior to the call that Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Treadwell made on me on April 1st, that the Bigelow and the Lewisohn cases should proceed together. When that suggestion was made by Mr. Hemenway and Mr. Treadwell at the conference on April 1st at my office with Mr. McClennen and me, I stated emphatically that there never was any such understanding. The only understanding that we ever had, which I think you will find specifically mentioned in the correspondence and covered by the stipulation, was that you should have a reasonable time for taking testimony after we closed our testimony.

As to the time occupied by us in taking our testimony, which you say was something over two years, I must remind you that a very large part of that time was consumed in delays occasioned by the fact that either you or Mr. Hemenway was unable to fix earlier dates. It is now many months since we closed our testimony, and it is nearly a year since we stated to you that our testimony was practically closed and that we desired you to prepare to take yours.

You cannot fail to recall that this matter was fully discussed when Mr. Treadwell and Mr. Hemenway were at our office at the taking of testimony on July 24, 1906, when we told you that we had practically closed our testimony and desired you to prepare for taking yours.

Yours very truly, LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

P. S.—We will make the motion for an assignment in the Bigelow case on Tuesday next."

Oral Testimony.

CHARLES ANDERSON BOSTON, sworn.

(By Mr. MCCLENNEN:)

Q. Your full name, Mr. Boston?
A. Charles Anderson Boston.
Q. Your residence?
A. New York city.
Q. You are a member of the bar of New York?
A. I am.
Q. Will you state briefly your education and experience in the practice of law?

1232 A. I was educated at the Baltimore City College and at the Johns Hopkins University; I graduated in law at the University of Maryland in, I think, 1886; I was admitted to practice at the bar of Baltimore city, and shortly afterward of the Court of Appeals of the state of Maryland. I was admitted to practice in the courts of New York in the year 1889, I think. In the year 1893 I was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of the United States. I have been admitted to practice in the southern, eastern, and northern districts in the state of New York, in the circuit and district courts of the United States. I have also been admitted to practice in other districts in the Circuit Court of the United States. I have practiced chiefly in the city of New York, in the courts of

New York, but I have practiced also in the city of Baltimore, in the Court of Appeals in Maryland, and in the Supreme Court of the United States. I have been engaged in litigation in the federal courts, in several of the Circuit Courts in various districts, and in the district courts, and in some of the districts, as I now recall, in Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Maine, New Jersey, and have also been engaged in the Court of Chancery in New Jersey. I have had a general experience in the practice of law. I was engaged in the law department of the Title Guarantee & Trust Company of the city of New York, for about three years, examining questions particularly relating to real-estate law, including the effect of judgments on titles to real property. I subsequently became a member of the firm of Baldwin & Boston in the city of New York, and was a member of that firm for eight years. I left that association and became associated with the firm of Hornblower, Miller & Potter in New York city in the year 1901, and on the dissolution of that firm, in the year 1906 or the year 1907, on the withdrawal of Mr. Byrne, I became a member of the present firm of Hornblower, Miller & Potter, and am still a member of that firm. That has been my general experience with respect to the practice of law. I don't know that you asked me for any particular experience in respect to——

Q. I was going to ask in respect to your experience with the subject of res adjudicata or estoppel by judgment.

A. I have had occasion to consider that question with some frequency. My present recollection is that the first special examination of the subject that I made was in the litigation which is reported under the name of Baldwin v. State of Maryland, in 89 Md. and 179 U. S. I made an examination at that time of the subject of res adjudicata because there had been previous litigation respecting the same question in the same two courts reported in earlier volumes of Maryland and of the United States. I afterwards had occasion to examine it with particular regard to the law of New York in the case of Hirshbach v. Bock, subsequently reported in the case of Hirshbach v. Fitzgerald, which is reported in, I think, at least three of the reports of the appellate division, and in the 1233 145th and 157th N. Y. The questions, as I remember, which are considered in those reports are not questions of res adjudicata, but I had to consider the subject for two reasons. The action was an action brought in behalf of a creditor of the Madison Square Bank, suing for himself and others similarly situated, and I had to consider the effect of such a judgment upon the rights of other creditors. That was one of the questions involved at the trial, and the complaint was dismissed by Mr. Justice Stover. His dismissal was subsequently reversed by the appellate division, and his dismissal was subsequently affirmed by the appellate division in the case of Hirshbach v. Fitzgerald, 157 N. Y.; but only seventeen out of one hundred and ten defendants in that case had appealed to the Court of Appeals, and the appellate division had granted a new trial, so that when we came back for a new trial, as I remember it, some of the defendants had not appealed to the Court of Appeals and I had to consider particularly the effect of the judgment of the Court of Appeals affirming the judgment of dismissal; so that I studied the subject of res adjudicata, at that time, with great care.

I was of counsel in the case of Thorne v. De Breteuil, which is reported in 179 N. Y., and then once more I studied the subject because there the questions were questions merely of the identity of the issues; the parties were the same. I have had occasion lately to consider the subject very carefully in respect to three litigations now pending in my office: the case of Johnson v. Victoria Chief Copper Mining & Smelting Co., where I have had occasion to consider the effect of a judgment on demurrer in New Mexico between the same parties in the same cause of action, and in the case of the bankruptcy of the Randolph American Coal Company, now pending in St. Louis, and in the case of the Slater Trust Co. v. Reed and others, growing out of the failure of the Randolph Company, now pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, in which there has been a decision on demurrer, though I do not think it has yet been reported in the Federal Reporter. I had to consider in that case the effect of a representative action upon my clients who were not represented on the record in that action, the action being brought by one bondholder in behalf of himself and others similarly situated. My bondholders were pursuing their own actions and had not joined in the particular action before the court. So that I have had those occasions to consider the subject of res adjudicata in its application to the particular question and generally. I have also made a very careful examination of the subject, anew, with respect to the record in the present action.

Q. Can you give me some idea of how much time you have expended on this particular examination with a view to testifying?

A. I was engaged in a desultory way for about a week, in connection with my other duties, giving a portion of my time as fre-
1234 quently as I could, to the study of this subject in its general aspects, but on Friday, as I remember, week before last, I abandoned all other work and devoted myself exclusively to the consideration of this subject, and have been engaged on it continuously ever since to the exclusion of practically all other professional work.

Q. Have you examined a copy of the record in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Leonard Lewisohn brought in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, on this demurrer?

A. You mean against the executors of Leonard Lewisohn?

Q. Yes.

A. I have.

Q. Have you examined a copy of the record in the present case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Albert S. Bigelow?

A. I have.

Q. In your opinion, assuming that the question whether the decree dismissing the bill of complaint against the executors of Leonard Lewisohn is a bar to the present action is a question to be determined by the law of the state of New York, under the law of the state of New York does that decree of dismissal operate as a bar to the actions against Albert S. Bigelow?

A. I answer that question on the assumption that it is governed by the law of the state of New York; I would not wish to be understood as expressing an opinion that it is, but assuming that it is, then the action in the Circuit Court of the United States, in New York, is not a bar to the present action.

Q. Will you state in detail your reasons for that conclusion?

A. There are two reasons that would lead me to that conclusion, before I reach the general subject of the effect of a dismissal of one suit on the merits on another suit brought against another person in a different jurisdiction as a joint or several wrongdoer or as a co-wrongdoer. I will approach that subject last. The preliminary matters are simpler, and therefore, I think, should be spoken of first. I have considered very carefully the judgment of dismissal itself, and I am not satisfied that that judgment was a judgment on the merits. We have in the state of New York, in our code of civil procedure, sec. 1209, which I understand applies not only to judgments in the state courts, but would apply to judgments at law in the federal courts. I would not understand that it applies to judgments in equity in federal courts, but I am asked to assume that this is construed by the law of New York. On that assumption, if section 1209 of our code of civil procedure is available, then it must appear on the judgment roll itself that the dismissal was on the merits. It is not necessary that the words "on the merits" should appear in the judgment of dismissal, but it is necessary that it shall clearly appear from the judgment roll that the dismissal was on the merits, else it will not preclude the beginning of a new suit for the same cause of action. It was 1235 said in one New York case, as I remember, that the reason for the adoption of section 1209 of the code of civil procedure was that the rule which had formerly obtained at law should also obtain in equity, and that equity decrees of dismissal which formerly would have been construed to go to the merits, unless the contrary appeared, were now to be construed as judgments at law, which it seems were formerly construed as not disposing of the merits of the case, unless it clearly appeared from the judgment roll that the merits of the case had been disposed of. In speaking of the judgment roll, I refer particularly to what we consider the judgment roll in New York. It does not include opinions, it does include the pleadings, the order for dismissal, and the decree itself, and in the case of the present decree it would include the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States and the decree of affirmance. Without looking at the opinions of these courts, but looking only at the judgment roll—and I have authority for doing that under the decisions in the state of New York, particularly, as I remember, in one of the cases of Genet v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 170 N. Y. 278, and 162 N. Y. 172; also in Converse v. Sickler, 146 N. Y. 200—looking only at the judgment roll, and excluding the opinions of the court, I find what, it seems to me, is undoubtedly true, that this decree, considering the decree below, as well as the decree of affirmance, was a dismissal of this case for want of equity. I would not consider that the dismissal of a case for want of equity was a complete disposition of the issues between the parties. I think it has been practically so said in the case of Rose v. Hawley, 133 N. Y. 315, a case in which it was said that section 1209 does not apply to bills in equity, citing Genet v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 163 N. Y. In Rose v. Hawley, as I remember, it was said that the dismissal of a bill of complaint in equity does not dispose of the issue, that an action might have been brought at law. And it would seem to me that this action might have been brought at law for damages. It would seem to me that in the new matter on which this action was originally retained to this court, had resolved itself into an action for damages, and I do not think that the dismissal of the case for want of equity would preclude the beginning of a new suit for damages at law.

The second of the preliminary matters which I think I ought to get out of the way is the identity of the parties here; I mean the character of the parties. This is not a suit against Leonard Lewisohn, it is a suit against Leonard Lewisohn's executors; and whatever might be the law with respect to the effect of a suit against Leonard Lewisohn I do not understand that his executors stand in the same relation to Mr. Bigelow that Mr. Lewisohn himself would have sustained. I think my view in that particular is borne out in the case of Thomson v. American Surety Co., 170 N. Y. 109, where it is said, in 1236 effect,—I do not attempt to quote the words,—that a surety is not bound by a judgment against the executors of a trustee on whose bond he became liable. If the judgment had been recovered against the trustee himself, the surety of the trustee would have been bound, but the judgment not having been recovered against the trustee himself, but having been recovered against the executors of the trustee, the court said that the executors of the trustee sustained no trust relation, they sustained no relation to the estate of their testator; that they were merely responsible for the funds which came into their hands, and that in that respect they were not trustees, that they could not have administered the trust, that they could not have accounted for the trust estate except to the extent of the assets of the decedent which came into their hands. So therefore, it seems to me that Mr. Lewisohn's executors were in no sense in privity with Mr. Bigelow and in no sense represented Mr. Bigelow; and in no sense was a judgment in favor of Mr. Lewisohn's executors a judgment of which Mr. Bigelow could avail himself independent of the subject of participation. I will come to the subject of participation later.

Now I come to what I consider the main subject here, so far as it calls for an elaborate explanation. In my opinion, the matter is already disposed of by the two points that I have already made. Assuming, however, for the purpose of the subsequent discussion, that the first judgment was on the merits, and that the executors of Mr. Lewisohn sustained the same position to Mr. Bigelow that Mr. Lewisohn himself would have sustained, I come to the question whether, under the law of New York, the dismissal of the bill on the merits against Mr. Lewisohn would have availed Mr. Bigelow, independent of the question of participation. I think that under the law of New York it would not have availed Mr. Bigelow. There are a number of decisions in New York which, in my opinion, are still authorities, never have been overruled, which expressly determine that question. There are also a number of obiter dicta in recent opinions of the Court of Appeals which, if accepted as the law of New York, would expressly overrule the contention. There are also, in my opinion, a number of other decisions in the Court of Appeals in New York where the question has not been raised or discussed, which are inconsistent with the principle. I will take those cases up in their order.

There are a number of decisions in the state of New York which contain broad expressions in which it is said that a judgment on the same questions precludes all parties, however interested in the controversy, or interested in the subject matter of the controversy. None of those cases decide the precise question now in issue. Each of those cases was on a different subject, where it is apparent from the 1237 context and the character of the controversy to the mind, that when they spoke of interest they did not refer to the interest of the wrongdoer, or the interest of a man who sustained the same relation to Lewisohn that Bigelow did in this case. I will take up those cases as I recall them at a later stage and show how, in my opinion, each of them is distinguishable from the present case. But I want to show, at present, that the general proposition of those cases, that it affects everybody in interest, is not the law of New York, except as it applies to people having interests which were discussed in those cases. There is one decision in New York, a special-term decision, made on a motion to dismiss a complaint at the trial, on which some people based a conclusion that that case established the law of New York. That case is the case of People v. Stephens, reported in 51 Howard's Practice, decided by Judge Westbrook, at circuit, on a motion to dismiss the complaint. He granted the motion, and he stated, as I read the opinion, that he considered the judgment against the co-wrongdoers binding upon men who had not been parties to the former suit; not binding upon them, but that they could have availed themselves of the dismissal of the complaint. His reasons are reasons which indicate that the principle which he applied was the rule of stare decisis. I think he said that the judgment was an estoppel; he at least said that the judgment was a bar; but his reasons were that any court which would give two different decisions against different parties on the same state of facts would merit eternal infamy. Now that is the expression, in very harsh terms, of the rule of stare decisis, as I understand it. But, notwithstanding the fact that he expressed the opinion that the case was one where the rule of estoppel worked, he elaborately discussed the merits of the cause, and showed that on its merits the cause should have been dismissed and the motion granted. The case was appealed to the Court of Appeals.

In another case the Court of Appeals, in discussing the question of res adjudicata,—I think it is the case of Leavitt v. Walker, 95 N. Y. 212,—said that if a case was decided by a former adjudication, it was unnecessary to discuss the merits of the case. If we were to apply that same rule to the appeal in the case of People v. Stephens, we would immediately jump to the conclusion that the former judgment was not a bar. There were two opinions in the Court of Appeals. The case is reported in [illegible] N. Y., as I remember. One, the principal opinion, was by Judge Rapallo; the other, a concurring opinion, by Judge Allen, as I recall. Judge Rapallo said that numerous points of law had been raised in the argument, but they would decide the case on the point which they deemed to control it; and then, instead of deciding the case on the ground of res adjudicata or on the ground of stare decisis, they went into a discussion of the merits of the case, and decided that, from the facts of the case, the plaintiff, the 1238 state of New York, had, through the action of its legislature or one of its boards, waived its cause of action.

Now the Court of Appeals has said in one case, I think, in the Moore v. City of Albany, [illegible] N. Y. 236, that a special term decision does not establish the law, and that they will not in a subsequent litigation involving the same facts consider themselves bound to follow the decision of a special term, in a matter appealed because it was not appealed; that they will not consider themselves bound to follow the rule of stare decisis. So that, in my opinion, a special term decision which has gone to the Court of Appeals on appeal, and which has been affirmed for a different reason from the reason assigned below, does not establish the reason assigned below as the law of New York. As far as I know—and I have made very diligent search—there is no case in the state of New York, other than the case of People v. Stephens, in the circuit, which was tried at the circuit—the circuit, formerly, in New York was a court which tried jury issues, issuing out of the Supreme Court, and it was a court of coordinate jurisdiction with what I have styled the special term, which was a term held by one judge for the trial of jury causes—the case of People v. Stephens has never been followed in New York on that point, as far as I know. It was quoted once in New York in another case, but not on that point, but on another point altogether, and was not quoted or cited in the Court of Appeals. So that, I do not understand, should establish the law. On the contrary, I consider that the law is firmly established to the contrary.

The question has arisen in several cases. It arose in the case of Moore v. Tracy, 7 Wendell, 236; in the case of Marsh v. Berry, 7 Cowan, 344; in the case of Lansing v. Montgomery, in 2 Johns., 381. In each of those cases the question was, to my mind, in point, and the decisions are express decisions on this subject.

There have been expressions by the appellate division to the Court of Appeals in other cases which, in my opinion, are a direct contradiction of the principle said to have been laid down in People v. Stephens by the circuit decision. Those cases—

Or, there is another case before I go to the Court of Appeals, the case of Calkins v. Albertson, 2 Barbour, [illegible], where the expression appears to be obiter dictum, also in the case of Atlantic Dock Company against the Mayor [illegible] of New York, in [illegible] N. Y., at page [illegible].

There has been [illegible] decision by the appellate division in the second department of New York, the case of Gittleson v. [illegible], 122 App. Div. 385, where it seems that there was a direct expression to the contrary. My recollection is that the case was affirmed by the Court of Appeals, but that particular part of the ap-1259 pellate court decision was not cited or quoted. My own opinion is that the expression there was obiter dictum, although there might be a difference of opinion about that; there might be a conclusion that it was directly involved.

Now, in the absence of controlling authority, obiter dicta, particularly in the Court of Appeals, are guide to the arrival at what is the law. But in view of the decisions in the earlier part of the history of New York, which have never been reversed, and which were of higher authority than the Circuit Court decision in People vs. Stephens, and in view of what I deem other than in the Court of Appeals in New York, decisions [illegible] possible to say that the New York law is [illegible] or mind, it is fairly established in support of my view. [illegible] so far as I know, that the cases which I have cited are all of the cases that have an immediate and direct bearing on the proposition. But I have said that there are cases which, in my opinion, are so far inconsistent with it, that is, so far inconsistent with the decision in People v. Stephens that they practically establish that the law of New York is to the contrary of what was decided by the Circuit Court in People v. Stephens. In the last case which has been reported, so far as I can discover, from the Court of Appeals in New York, the case of St. John v. Andrew Institute, 192 N. Y., a volume of reported cases which is not yet bound, the Court of Appeals had occasion to consider the effect of the reversal of a judgment by the Court of Appeals upon the rights of a legatee, under a will, who had appealed from the judgment. He had not appealed. The Court of Appeals reversed the judgment, or reversed it as far as the appellant was concerned. The question of his rights depended upon the construction of the will. The construction of the will was such that if the appellant's rights were what the Court of Appeals had decided then the rights of his co-defendant, who had not appealed, were exactly the same, because they arose on the same state of facts. Their legacies were similar, and they both claimed under the same document—the will; and the court below had adjudged their rights with respect to the construction which it had given to the will; that is, the Court of Appeals distinctly construed the will, and only reversed as to the person who had appealed. A motion was made by the person who had not appealed,—a motion of remittur,—so as to include him in the reversal and give him the benefit of the action of the Court of Appeals on the appeal taken in the same suit. But the Court of Appeals said, "No, he has not appealed, his interests are several." Now there comes in an illustration by the limitation by the Court of Appeals' decision of the effect of the words which it had used in their opinions that any one interested in the subject matter in dispute could take advantage of a judgment. If that is a principle of law, then a legatee whose rights have been involved
1260 in a dispute, and have been adjudged by the court below, has such an interest in the subject matter of the suit that he ought to get the benefit of the reversal as well as his co-defendant similarly situated who has appealed. But the Court of Appeals said,

No; their interests are several, although the interest of the man who did not appeal was not represented on appeal by his co-defendant, who was the appellant." They cited with approval, and as the foundation of their decision and as the precedent on which they relied, the case of Gerrod v. Stage in 10 Howard Practice. That case was a case where two wrongdoers, accused, as I remember, of libel in the same suit, had suffered judgment in the court below. One of them appealed, and the Court of Appeals reversed the judgment as to the appellant, but left it standing as to his co-tort feasor. The co-tort feasor never took the court of appeals—it was not the Court of Appeals we have an intermediate court of appeals now—he never took the court of appeals; consequently—so the court of appeals reversed only as to him making it appear in the decision of the court of appeals that they were of the opinion that the appellant had not established a cause of action. And they reversed against the appellant on the ground that it did not appear from the plaintiff's own testimony that he had any cause of action. In that opinion they said:—

"The interests of these co-defendants are several and not joint. We could not have reversed the judgment if it were joint without reversing it as to all parties whether they had appealed or not. Judgments against wrongdoers being several and their liability being several, and there being no contribution between them, there is no reason why we should reverse as to the co-tort feasor who has not appealed."

Now the Court of Appeals in this very latest case that I speak of, in 192 New York, relied upon that case as a precedent, and quoted the language of that case. I am not sure that that does not establish, as the law of New York now, that a judgment of dismissal against one of two wrongdoers sued on the same state of facts does not avail the other wrongdoer. And that is true, even though it be in the same case; but it strikes me that it is much more true if it be in different cases.

Therefore I say that it seems to me that the cases in New York are inconsistent with any such theory, as well as there being cases which have declared the express contrary.

Further than that, perhaps another dictum, but I do not know that it is a dictum, is a definition of privity which is used by the Court of Appeals in the opinion in Atlantic Dock Co. v. Mayor, 53 N. Y., at page 68. In defining privity in that case, the court cites a definition which it says is taken from the case of Sprague v. Watt, in 20 Pickering in this state. But when we examine the case of Sprague v. Watt, we find that the action was an action against a tort feasor engaged in the same tort, and that the court of Massachusetts decided in the case, it was stated in that case that it was admitted that if the defendants were guilty they were equally and jointly guilty. In that case the defendants were not sued jointly, they were sued severally, and the cases came on for trial together on the same state of facts. It was admitted at the trial of the two cases tried together that if the defendants were guilty they were equally and jointly guilty. One of the questions in that case which was a case for a trespass, quare——

Mr. HEMENWAY: ——clausen fregit.

THE WITNESS: I have not used that phrase for so long I cannot quote it; we do not talk Latin much in the New York courts.

The question at issue in this case was whether the place where the trespass was committed was a public highway. It had previously been decided in the case of one of the tort feasors that the locus in quo was a public highway, therefore he was not guilty, could not be guilty of a trespass against the plaintiff's right. A judgment was introduced against both defendants, or was introduced in the case which were tried together; but your court in the two cases held that the judgment in the circuit against Wait was a bar against the man, with respect to the man, who had been previously tried, but was no bar against the man who was accused of having committed the wrong with him; and so the court on review, as I remember, reversed the judgment as to one of the defendants and affirmed it with respect to the other. Now the question there, is how far, by citing a Massachusetts case as authority or precedent for the definition of privity, the Court of Appeals of New York adopted with it the exception from the definition. My idea is that if a court refers to a case for a definition, and the case defines the word, and then says that the facts before it do not come within the definition, that in adopting that decision as a precedent the Court of Appeals of New York also decided that the case which the court of Massachusetts held did not come within its definition of privity, was not within the definition of privity and that was henceforth to be understood to be in New York.

Not only that, but similar cases arise in New York in the citation by the courts of New York of Litchfield v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. My recollection is that, in the case of Litchfield v. Goodnow, the Supreme Court of the United States decided that participation in an action did not amount to such representation in the action that a party would be bound merely because of his participation. That case has been cited with approval in New York, again, as I remember, 1242 in the case of definition of privity. So that it might well be contended that by adopting the definition of privity as used in Litchfield v. Goodnow, the Court of Appeals of New York had also adopted the exception. The case in which Litchfield v. Goodnow is cited as a precedent for the definition of privity is the case of Williams v. Barclay, 165 N. Y. 48.

So it seems to me that it is clear that the law of New York is not established to the contrary of what I say; it also seems to me that it is established affirmatively as I say, for the reasons which I have mentioned. If my reasons are not good, my opinion is not good.

Now as to what the law of New York is. It is not peculiar, it is to the effect that parties and privies are estopped by a judgment in which the same question was litigated or might have been litigated. Now and again the Court of Appeals has at times used the expression "might have been litigated," and at subsequent times has spent its time in explaining what it meant by "might have been litigated." The latest case in which it limits the expression "might have been litigated" is the case of Earle v. Earle, 173 N. Y. 480. It was not a tort case; it was tort in one sense, because it was a suit against delinquent trustees for an accounting, and the various beneficiaries of the trust were made parties to the suit. Two of them appeared, asserted their interest in the trust, and asked for an affirmative judgment; the third appeared and defaulted; she asked for no affirmative judgment. Finally judgment was entered in the case, but it did not grant this defendant any relief, the defendant who had defaulted. It did grant the defendants who had claimed affirmative relief a money judgment against the trustees for the amount of their share in the estate. Subsequently the defendant who had suffered a default, but who was a party to the former litigation, brought suit against the trustees for an accounting of her share of the estate. But she was immediately met by the defence: "Why, while your rights were not litigated in the former suit, they could have been litigated; you were made a defendant for the purpose of presenting your rights, and you didn't do it; now you are barred." But the Court of Appeals said, "No, she didn't have to litigate her affirmative rights in that case, that she could suffer a default without barring her rights, and could re-litigate them." That is an extreme illustration. There is another case where a woman was made party to a suit to foreclose a mortgage. She defaulted; the property was sold subject to her dower. The purchaser took a deed of the property subject to her dower. After her husband's death she brought suit to admeasure her dower, and the purchaser defended on the ground she was not entitled to dower. And the court said her dower was not litigated; it might have been litigated, but it was not essential to any of the issues that 1243 were raised by the parties. By the way, I have not given a reference to the latter case, but I will; I will find it and give it later.

So it very clearly appears that the two phrases, "interest in the subject matter" and "might have been litigated," are used with respect to the particular cases before the court, and have not the same meaning as they would have if used popularly, and none of them decide the present situation.

Now it is not all privies who are bound. In Campbell v. Hill, 16 N. Y. 575, there is a discussion of cases in which privies are bound and why they are bound. It is there stated that whether a privy is bound depends in each case upon the character of the privity. It is rather difficult, in the short time at my command, to classify all of the cases in which persons have been held to be privies to a judgment; but, as a general thing, they are people who are represented in the action by a party to the action, or whose interest is represented in the action by a party to the action, or people who are indemnitors of a party to the action, or have undertaken to indemnify against the result of the action; or people who subsequently take the same property which is involved in the action and take it with the rights which have been decided by the action, or people who sustain the relation to each other of principal and agent, master and servant, principal and surety, indemnitor and indemnitee, and similar relations, where either there is a responsibility over or there is a union of interests in the question decided, and where the persons' rights will be adjudged in the case. But none of the cases which I have considered—and I have not considered a very great many—extend that doctrine to co-wrongdoers; they are all people where the judgment works as an estoppel, I mean as an estoppel between the parties, —they are all people who sustain relations to each other than that of equal wrongdoers. There is a class of cases where people who are responsible for wrongdoing are regarded as estopped or entitled to take advantage of the cases of other wrongdoers, or of the actual wrongdoer, but those are invariably cases where somebody is responsible for the wrongdoing of another and has not himself participated in the wrongful act. Every one of the cases to which I refer will be found to come within that category. A type is the case of Featherstone v. Turnpike Co., in 71 Hun, I think, page 109; but there are several other cases in the state of New York and in the Court of Appeals. The Court of Appeals cases, as I remember, all have to do with municipalities, and the principle was first established with respect to municipalities, that a municipality having a right of action against an actual wrongdoer was in such privity with him that it was affected by the judgment, a judgment that no cause of action existed against the wrongdoer.

1244 There is a class of cases where judgments operate against strangers, but those cases are all cases where the judgment is the ascertainment of a fact, and the fact is not the entire subject of litigation, but is merely part of the subsequent action. They are well illustrated, first, by the cases where the question in a subsequent action is whether a man sustained the relation of principal and agent to another man, or whether two people sustained or now sustain to each other the relation of husband and wife, and the judgment establishing the relation between the two parties is held to be the best evidence that the relation exists; it is not put on the ground of estoppel, it is put on the ground that the judgment is the ascertainment of that particular fact between the two people who were most interested in the fact. There is another class of cases where a man having been defeated in a suit, or having succeeded in a suit, is subsequently himself estopped from offering the effect of that judgment in a suit against entire strangers. The reason for that is that the man has once chosen a position which is inconsistent with the position that he now assumes. Illustrations of that are cases where a man sues for conversion. Under the doctrine of the law, when the judgment is entered, the title to the property passes to the judgment debtor. After that, he is no longer the owner of the property, and he could not recover against a stranger for a trespass on or damage to the property, because he could not prove that he was the owner of the property. He has had the litigation with the man as the result of which the title to the property actually passed; but the judgment is not to operate as an estoppel except it proves the fact that the man no longer has title to the thing with respect to which he sues. So if a man assumes an absolutely inconsistent position and sues with respect to the state of facts which he alleges to exist, and recovers in such a suit, he cannot afterwards, in respect to a stranger, take a position which is at variance with the position he took in the first place; that is because it is in the nature of a conclusive admission against him that the state of facts which he now alleges does not exist.

There is a class of cases where a man is not bound by a judgment because he has contracted to pay the judgment. In such cases our courts hold that he is bound by the judgment between third parties because he has undertaken to pay that judgment, and in such cases he is not entitled to notice of the action.

Now I come to the subject of the effect of participation. I find no decision and, in my opinion, it is not the law of New York that mere participation in an action binds the party participating. There are numerous cases to the contrary. The strongest case to the contrary is that of People v. Knickerbocker Life Ins. Co. in 106 N. Y., where the receiver of the Knickerbocker Company actually partici-1245 pated in the Supreme Court of the United States in a suit against the life-insurance company, and asked the Supreme Court of the United States to amend its former determination so as to permit the action to be tried over again, and on his application the United States Supreme Court did it, and the case was subsequently tried, went by default, there being nobody to represent the corporation at the trial. That judgment was pleaded against the receiver. But the Court of Appeals said that participation in that manner by the receiver was not such a participation in the action,—that he was not bound by the result of the action.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. One moment. In regard to participation, was that included in your question?

A. I am asked to examine the record, and the record alleges participation, as I remember. My recollection is that the record in the amended, new supplemental answer here expressly alleges participation.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It does, and I was mistaken in supposing you referred to looking at that record. I thought you meant the record in New York.

The WITNESS: No, the record in this case.

Mr. McCLENNEN: Perhaps that was my fault, but I intended to put it once for all.

The WITNESS: I understood I was to refer to both records in order to discover what the effect of the New York case was on the Massachusetts case, and I could not express an opinion with reference to the effect of the New York case without knowing what the Massachusetts case was too, so I have read both records and am answering with respect to both records.

Every case that I have found where participation played any part in the result is a case where a man had a right, which the law allowed him, to appear and protect his interests. I do not understand that Mr. Bigelow here had a right to appear for the protection of any interest. My reason for that is that it is the law of New York that there is no contribution between wrongdoers. It is also the law of New York that the satisfaction of a judgment against any wrongdoer is a complete satisfaction of the entire cost of the case, although a mere recovery against one wrongdoer is not a complete satisfaction of the cause of action, but you can have as many recoveries as there are wrongdoers, and not one will bar another. When I speak of recovery, I mean the entry of the judgment as distinguished from its satisfaction. Therefore I consider that Mr. Bigelow had no interest to protect in that suit. And having no interest to protect, the suit was inter alios, and he had no right to interfere; bearing in mind also, that the thing here which was in litigation were the assets of the estate of Leonard Lewisohn. Leonard Lewisohn had no right to contribution from Bigelow. His executors, if they had paid the judgment, would have no right to appeal to Bigelow to con-1246 tribute. And so Bigelow had no interest in the subject matter of the dispute. He had, perhaps, a praiseworthy desire to get a decision as a precedent in litigation. But I have already referred to the case of Litchfield v. Goodnow, where mere participation in the duties did not amount to participation in the suit. Bigelow was not interested except so far as he wanted to get a precedent in the suit out of the state rather than going into it, because recovery in that suit and payment by the executors of Leonard Lewisohn would have extinguished the cause of action. So that I cannot understand, and I am not of the opinion, that Bigelow had any interest to protect in that suit. Our Court of Appeals has distinguished between an interest in litigation and interest in the event of the litigation. It has done so in this very case of St. John v. Andrew Institute, in 192 N. Y., and it is illustrated by reference to a case where a judge is disqualified from sitting in a case because of his interest. If he merely has an interest in the determination of the question as a question of law, he is not, as a matter of law, disqualified from sitting in a case. Now the law of New York is that all the persons who are bound or affected by a judgment are those who have an interest to protect in the action and the rights secured to them by the law to appear in the action. I think Mr. Bigelow had no right in this case, because he was not liable with respect to any possible recovery in this case, and this judgment would not have affected him in any possible way. I think he had no interest to protect. He had no interest in this case, and he had no right to appear in this case because there was no contribution in this case. He was not in any sense represented in the case, his interests were not involved in the action, and he was not a necessary party in the case.

I have tried to discover, in my own mind, why strangers are not bound by litigation. The rule used to be——

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. One moment. Is that in answer to the interrogatory?

A. Yes, I think it is. There are two reasons, and those reasons have been used by the Court of Appeals in New York, and I think they have a direct bearing. I may not have so phrased it that you can see its bearing, but I think I will come to it in an instant. One reason is that strangers have had no day in court, but that is only one reason. The other reason is that there must be mutuality. Mutuality, as I understand it, is, if the judgment had gone the other way, it would have been operative in favor of the person who in that event would have been a successful party. It has been established many times in New York that in order for a judgment to be an estoppel it must be mutual. The cases are—

Nelson v. Brown, 144 N. Y. 384.
Collins v. Hydon, 135 N. Y. 320.
1247 Masten v. Olcott, 101 N. Y. 152.
Moore v. Albany, 98 N. Y. 396.
Remington Paper Co. v. O'Doherty, 81 N. Y. 474.
Atlantic Dock Co. v. Mayor, 53 N. Y. 64.
Booth v. Powers, 56 N. Y. 22.

And any judgment here, in my opinion, would have lacked the element of mutuality. I do not think a judgment recovered here in favor of the plaintiff would have had any effect whatever upon Mr. Bigelow. Here the element of mutuality was lacking. And all the cases that I have cited decide that mutuality is an effectual factor in estoppel by judgment. Mere inconsistency between the results reached between strangers in respect to the same state of facts does not make it a rule that a judgment must be an estoppel. Where the litigation occurs in the same court, the court will adopt the rule of stare decisis, and will apply the same principles of law to the same state of facts. In passing on the subject of interests in the litigation, as distinguished from interest in the event, as where no property rights are really involved, I cite the cases of—

Collins v. Hydon, 135 N. Y. 329.
Eisenlord v. Clum, 126 N. Y. 552.
Wallace v. Strauss, 113 N. Y. 238.

The case of Collins v. Hydon, 135 N. Y. 320, is an interesting, and I think a pertinent, case here. There, in a former suit, an individual had [was] made an assignee for the benefit of creditors. He himself was a judgment creditor. He sought to set aside a previous conveyance of the property as a fraud, and he was defeated on the issue of fraud, and it was decided in the first case that there was no fraud. Of course he could not set aside the deed, for it was not a fraud. In that suit he was assignee for the benefit of creditors, and sued as such. He subsequently brought suit in his own right as judgment creditor to set aside the deed, and he was met with this judgment; and yet the Court of Appeals held that he was not precluded by the former judgment because it distinguished as between his interest as assignee for the benefit of the creditors and his individual interest in the second suit, and he was not precluded on the question of fraud by the prior judgment. Yet it is difficult for us to distinguish actually between a man appearing in court in a representative capacity and appearing in court in an individual capacity where he has an interest in the same question, the question of fraud. Yet the court held that his participation 1248 as assignee for the benefit of creditors, his actually being the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors, did not bind him on the judgment when he sued subsequently in his own individual capacity. Now the reason for that is, and it is established by a long line of cases, that the issues must be identical.

And now I come to the identity of issues. A vast majority of cases in New York in which the question of identity of interests has arisen, are cases where there was a dispated fact; but in the New York case against Lewisohn's executors there was no disputed fact; the facts were all admitted, so that we must consider what the issue was. The issue, as I understand it, is whether a cause of action had been stated against the executors of Leonard Lewisohn, and it was decided that no cause of action, in equity at least, had been established against the executors of Lewisohn. But I do not understand that is the issue here. I understand that the issue here is whether there is any cause of action against Bigelow; and there being no representation of Bigelow by Lewisohn's executors, the issue is not the same within my understanding of the authorities of New York with respect to the identity of issues. One rule which the New York authorities lay down for the purpose of determining the identity of issue is whether any additional evidence would be necessary to establish a second cause of action. If additional evidence would be necessary to establish a second cause of action, then, as a general rule, the issue is not identical. I understand additional evidence of facts, requiring additional proof, are alleged by the amendment in this action, in the Massachusetts action, to the original bill of complaint, setting up additional facts. If those additional facts are material to the present issues, then the present issues have not been decided in the prior judgment in accordance with the practice and decisions which I understand to be accepted in New York. I do not think that the liability of Mr. Bigelow could have been determined on the pleadings in the New York action. That is an additional reason why, to my mind, the issues in the New York case were not identical with the issues here. Nor do they come within the proposition that they might have been litigated. They might not have been litigated on the record as it was made. It is possible, perhaps, that if Mr. Bigelow had asked to be admitted as a party, he might have been admitted; I cannot tell; I do not know. I do not think it would have been optional with the court to have admitted him, because I do not think he had any interest to protect, and I doubt if he was even a proper party to the New York suit, and I think the court, even if he had sought to have been admitted, would have been justified in refusing to admit him, because there was no issue made with him; there was no pursuit of him, and none of his property was in litigation in that suit, but all of the 1249 property which would be affected pending the result of the suit was the assets of the estate of Leonard Lewisohn in the hands of his executors.

Now I come to the question of representation. It is a rule in New York that if a person is represented in a suit and his interests are adjudicated, or the interests of his representative are adjudicated, that the adjudication binds his interest, so far as it is represented. But I do not understand that there was any interest represented here. I have repeatedly said that in my view, sustained, I think, by the decision of the Court of Appeals in Thomson v. American Surety Co., 107 N. Y., in no sense did the executors of Leonard Lewisohn represent any interest of Bigelow's. They were not his trustees; they did not have any of his property in their hands; all the property was the estate of Leonard Lewisohn, and they had no right of contribution against Bigelow. The mere fact that their testator at a previous stage in his existence had been trustee for Bigelow,—if he were trustee for Bigelow,—I am not sure that he was trustee for Bigelow; he may have been trustee; after he acquired the property he may have been trustee, not for Bigelow, but for this plaintiff corporation. If the plaintiff corporation had been formed and had not been constituted of the same individuals, it could have enforced the administration of the trust in its favor without bringing Bigelow into the suit. So I very much doubt whether Leonard Lewisohn was ever trustee for Bigelow, because he had none of Bigelow's property in his hands. The stock was delivered not to Lewisohn, but to Bigelow, so that Lewisohn was never accountable for any property to Bigelow.

I don't doubt—I do doubt, for the reason I have stated, I doubt if Lewisohn, at any time, was trustee of Bigelow. But if we should assume that Lewisohn was at any time trustee for Bigelow, that trust was fully administered, and no longer did any property of Bigelow remain in his hands, and he could not recover of the trust property; he could not reimburse himself out of the trust property, because he did not have any of it in his hands. In order to do so, he would have had to sue somebody else, and then he would have run up against the principle of no contribution against wrongdoers. As bearing on this question I cite the case of Russell v. McCall, 141 N. Y. 455. It is true that our code of civil procedure, section 449, provides that the trustee of an express trust can bring a suit with respect to the trust without suing the beneficiaries of his trust. In the first place, that is an express trust. In the second place, it does not in terms apply to plaintiffs; it may have been judged to apply to the defendants as well. I understand that there is some little contention that it does, but be that as it may, I do not think it can possibly be contended here that any statute of the state of New York has any 1250 effect upon the proper or necessary parties, or with a suit in equity in the federal court in New York. So I dismiss that section 449 of our code without any more talk on that subject, because I think it is plainly inapplicable to a suit in the federal court, and that our courts have distinguished between a suit on contract and a suit against a contract. I made that distinction in the recent case of Cassidy v. Sauer, reported in 114 Appellate Division, and affirmed in the Court of Appeals; I think the affirmation was in 187 N. Y., but perhaps that was at a later stage of the case. The appellate division there made a distinction between suing on a contract and suing in opposition to a contract, suing to set aside the contract.

In that case, the president of a corporation had bought some land in his own name with the funds of the corporation, and admitted that he held it as the property of the corporation. He made a deed under seal in his own name, and subsequently he brought suit to set aside the deed on the ground of fraud. He did not bring suit in his individual capacity, he joined himself as trustee of the corporation for which he was trustee as co-plaintiff, and he was met with the rule that nobody can sue on a contract under seal unless it is the person whose seal is affixed to the document. But the appellate division said, in effect, "That applies, it is true, to suits on contract, but it does not apply to suits against the validity of a contract. Anybody who is defrauded by a contract can bring suit as plaintiff to set aside the contract." So, also, I think, here. The plaintiff was not suing on the contract, but he was suing to recover to get an accounting, to recover damages, for a fraud which was practised in procuring this contract. I think he would have had a right of action at law without reference to equity at all, but if he resorted to equity, then he must offer to restore what he received. In doing so, it would be incidentally part of the action to ask that the contract be rescinded. But it was not necessary to recovery or to the assertion of the rights of the plaintiff that the contract should be rescinded. That is illustrated by the former decision in this case, and the law of New York would not differ, as I understand it, from the law here.

I have said that there is no right to contribution in equity. That is established by the case of Gridley, Rec'r, and Life Ins. Co. v. Finck et al., 173 N. Y. 455.

Mr. HEMENWAY: One moment.

The WITNESS: I see a mistake which I myself have made there, when I say no right of contribution in equity. I mean no right of contribution in equity between wrongdoers, and I had not previously cited authorities for that statement. I have come to it in my notes, and I wish to cite the authorities for that statement.

Mr. HEMENWAY: The part of your answer to which I ob-
1251 ject is that where you said there is no difference between the law of New York and the law of Massachusetts. He is an expert simply on the law of New York.

HAMMOND, J.: Cannot you state what the law of New York is without comparing it with the law of Massachusetts?

The WITNESS: If your Honor please, I have referred not to the law of Massachusetts as that law is generally admitted, but I have referred to the decisions at the earlier stage of this record as shown on the record. That was what I was referring to.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Your Honor will save my objection.

HAMMOND, J.: The question here is what the New York law is, and I doubt if we get along much if you say it is the same there as it is here. You may state what it is there, and we will take care of what it is here.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is why I asked that that part of his answer be stricken out.

HAMMOND, J.: It does not give us any idea of what you think the law of New York is by saying you think it is the same as it is here. We don't care to know what your idea of the law here is.

The WITNESS: I do not think it is material to what I have said. I have endeavored to give you my idea of the law of New York without comparing it with the law of Massachusetts. If I inadvertently fell into a comparison, I do not think it is material to my answer.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well. You may consider that your saying that the law of Massachusetts is the same as the law of New York is not to be regarded as giving us any light as to what the law of New York is.

The WITNESS: There was no partnership here between the executors of Lewisohn and Mr. Bigelow; if there had been, I think that question is disposed of by the case of Booth v. Powers, in 56 N. Y., where it was said that a judgment obtained against one of two partners in a previous action with respect to the same state of facts was not binding upon his surviving partner when the surviving partner was sued after his death. Mr. Lewisohn was not sued here as trustee for Mr. Bigelow; he was sued as a wrongdoer. The New York cases, some of which I have cited, distinguish between a man sued in his individual capacity and a man sued in his representative capacity, and they hold that if a man is a party to a suit in a representative capacity, he is not bound in his individual capacity. They distinguish between his individual capacity, although he is interested in the same question, and his representative capacity. Now 1252 Lewisohn's executors here were not sued in any sense in a capacity as representing Mr. Bigelow; they were sued as having part of the assets of the estate of Lewisohn in their hands, and to the extent that Lewisohn's estate was liable either to his legatees or next of kin or creditors; they would have represented those persons or that class of persons, to the extent, however, only of the assets in their hands or of claims against the estate of Lewisohn. But as Lewisohn had no claim against Bigelow for contribution, Bigelow had no claim against Lewisohn for contribution, and Bigelow, therefore, is not a creditor of Lewisohn, and could not be represented by Lewisohn's executors. We did not ask the return of any trust property from Lewisohn. I say "we;" I mean the plaintiffs here. They did not ask the return of any property held by him in trust, but only that he should answer for a wrong.

Now there is another feature of New York law which I do not think I should neglect. It is the law of New York that two estoppels of contrary effect set the matter at large, and that principle is declared in Shaw v. Broadbent, 129 N. Y. 114. I have assumed that in looking at the record of the case I could consider what the Massachusetts court has hitherto done in this case, as shown by the record, and for that reason it seems to me that proposition of New York law is pertinent in this answer. The plaintiff in the former suit did not attack Lewisohn's title to any trust property, nor his beneficiaries' title to the trust property. It is shown affirmatively that the trust relation had ceased before the suit was instituted. And this affords additional reasons, to my mind, for concluding that Lewisohn's executors did not, in any sense, represent Bigelow in this suit.

Now, reverting to the condition of the record in Massachusetts, I think it is pertinent to say that, under the law of New York, the law of the case as established by the Court of Appeals in the case governs later. If the Court of Appeals in a case has once established the law in the case, and the case is sent back for a new trial, the court below cannot disregard the law as established by the Court of Appeals. That was established in Genet v. Delaware & Hudson Co., 2 Appellate Division, 491, and 14 Appellate Division, 177. In that case the Court of Appeals, on a demurrer, had construed a written contract and had given leave to amend. Subsequently, the pleadings were amended, but the contract was the same. It being contended that the contract should be construed in accordance with the law of Pennsylvania, evidence of distinguished justices of Pennsylvania was taken with respect to the meaning of the contract in Pennsylvania on appeal to the appellate division. The appellate division held it was not proper in the cause at that stage to take evidence as to the meaning of the contract, the Court of Appeals having construed the contract, it being a question of law how the contract should be construed.

1253 That is my answer.

(By Mr. McCLENNEN:)

Q. Have you examined the authorities cited by the various witnesses for the defendant on this subject of New York law?

A. I have examined all of those authorities which were brought to my attention; whether any additional authorities have been cited on this proposition I do not know.

Q. Will you refer to those authorities, and state, in your opinion, under the New York law, their bearing upon the issue?

A. The case of Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y. 351——

Mr. HEMENWAY: One moment. I don't see why his construction of the cases in New York is competent.

Mr. McCLENNEN: It is my supposition, if your Honor please, that the law of New York depending upon the text of adjudicated cases, the opinion of no expert presented to a Massachusetts court accustomed to deal with the interpretation of cases is of the slightest importance. But if it is so important as to call for the introduction of one dozen opinions on the part of the defendant, then I think I must proceed on the theory that some one may consider it important. If the opinion of a New York lawyer is important in determining what those cases amount to, then it is important in determining what the cases cited by the other side amount to.

HAMMOND, J.: I will take the same course here as I have in the taking of the testimony. If you think it is not material, Mr. Hemenway, I will note your objection.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It will do no harm to note my objection and exception.

HAMMOND, J.: The stenographer will note your exception to the testimony of this witness' interpretation of those New York cases and their bearing upon the question and their bearing upon the issue before us. That is a fair statement to make?

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think so.

HAMMOND, J.: I, myself, am a good deal of the opinion of Mr. McClennen, that it is not of any consequence, but if he thinks it is, you cannot tell how I or anybody else may think at the time of the argument.

The WITNESS: Shall I proceed?

HAMMOND, J.: If I have properly stated your objection and exception.

The WITNESS: The case of Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y., 351, was a case——

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. One moment. Is that a case that you say that we have put into the case?

A. Yes; that is one of the first cases cited by Mr. Byrne, Mr. Olney, and several others.

Q. Then they are cases that are referred to in the depositions?

HAMMOND, J. I understood the question to refer to those in the depositions.

1254 A. I have not heard the depositions read, but these are cases which I was told were in the depositions.

[The question put to the witness was read by the stenographer.]

Mr. HEMENWAY: So that he is to interpret the authorities that are cited by the witnesses in support of their opinions?

HAMMOND, J.: Well, that I understand to be the question. If I were sitting here and passing, as ordinarily I am, upon the admission of evidence, I should rule it out, but I let it go in, as I have done several times before. I agree with Mr. McClennen, that I do not think it is of the slightest consequence. Therefore, subject to your exception, he may proceed to answer the question.

Mr. HEMENWAY: One moment.

HAMMOND, J.: Is it your purpose to have the witness go over seriatim these various cases?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That was my intention, your Honor. That is, it being obviously a question that is dependent upon the decisions in New York, it seemed to me that the value of the depositions presented by our opponent is most clearly shown——

HAMMOND, J.: You are asking this witness to interpret the language of the courts of New York, and that is to be determined by whom? Suppose a dozen of the counsel, skilled in New York law and practice, come in here and put their interpretation upon it, do you think this court will pay any attention to that interpretation of the language?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: As I said before, I should suppose not, but that is all that any of this evidence is. There is no law in New York except the language contained in the decisions.

HAMMOND, J.: There is a great deal more.

Mr. McCLENNEN: The conclusions to be drawn from that language are best to be determined by an inspection of that language.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, he has given his idea of the law of New York. However, as I have said once or twice here, I have not been going on as I should if I were sitting with a jury, and if you desire to put it in, I am going to let it go in subject to Mr. Hemenway's exception that it is immaterial, and of no bearing upon the question.

Mr. McCLENNEN: If I am not imposing too much upon the court.

HAMMOND, J.: If I remember rightly, there is a long list of authorities.

Mr. McCLENNEN: Yes, there is.

HAMMOND, J.: Do you expect this witness to dissect those cases?

1255 Mr. McCLENNEN: I think the length of the list of authorities is much greater than their pertinency to anything that the witness has said, therefore the discussion will be very short in most instances, and I doubt if, after the case of People v. Stephens is disposed of, there is any case in the list that requires any lengthy comment.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, let him be as general as he can and still answer the question, and he may go on.

Mr. HEMENWAY: It is the very generality that is objectionable. The opinions speak for themselves. He is not to give an epitome of what is in the case; that is like putting on a lawyer——

HAMMOND, J.: I agree with you as to that, but the other side want to do it, and I think if counsel stands up in good faith and says that the exigency of the case may, in some aspects, require this testimony, I am inclined to let it in.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Subject to my objection and exception.

(By Mr. McCLENNEN:)

Q. Mr. Boston, I will ask you to bear in mind the suggestion of the court to make your distinguishing remarks as to each case as brief as you possibly can, so that it may be in the nature of a communication to the court on the scope of the case.

A. In the case of Pray v. Hegeman, 98 N. Y., 351, it was determined in that case, first, that Hegeman was sued as executor in his representative character. The presumptive remaindermen were parties. It was held that that judgment was available to those beneficiaries interested in the estate to the extent that those not in esse at the time of the suit were represented by the presumptive remaindermen, and that the creditors of such persons were bound by the estoppel of their debtor with respect to his interest or alleged interest in the estate. That was not an action in tort, but an action to determine the interest of the debtor in the estate.

(By HAMMOND, J.:)

Q. I understand on that ground you throw that case aside?

A. I throw all these cases aside, for the reasons that I shall state as not being pertinent to the present inquiry.

Jordan v. Van Epps, 85 N. Y. 427; that was the construction of a statute in New York providing for partition of real property. The widow of one of the parties was a party to the action, that is, the widow of the former owner was a party to the action, and could have set up her right.

Mr. HEMENWAY: One moment in regard to this. I understand that these are some cases that you have put in evidence.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: These are cases that your witnesses based their opinions upon in their depositions.

1256 HAMMOND, J.: The question calls simply for cases on which your witnesses based their opinions.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Is not this a case of yours that is referred to in this list?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I dare say that every case that any witness has referred to is on that list, as well as every case referred to by this witness. I intended to have it so, because I wanted to have in the record all the authorities which any of your witnesses have referred to. This case was in evidence by one of your witnesses before it was put upon my list. If there are any of these cases that you do not rely upon and do not think back up your witnesses' opinions, I do not care to have them distinguished, but I assumed that your witnesses based their opinions upon the cases which they cited, and I think, in order to give value to those opinions, it is proper that I show what they amount to.

Mr. FARLEY: May it please the court, our objection which we wish to have put upon the record is this: that in order in part to limit the scope of the inquiry now and hereafter we put in a strictly limited list of cases. This did not include a vast number of those which the plaintiff has put in. Now, among the cases cited by some of our witnesses, there are cases which we have not put in evidence except in so far as they are referred to by our witnesses, and we understand that does not put them in evidence. Some of them, without committing myself to any expression of opinion, may be merely taken to be arguendo by the witness. But we do object to their putting on their witness to explain away cases we have not put in and that they have. For instance, this case of Pray v. Hegeman, as I understand it, is a case that they have put in evidence. Now they put this man on to distinguish, discuss, or dissect it, and it is on that ground that we wish to have our objection noted.

HAMMOND, J.: I do not think there is any need of any answer. Whether these cases have been cited by anybody or have not been cited by anybody, whether they have been relied on by witnesses called by the plaintiff, I do not think this evidence that is now going in is of any materiality; I do not think it is pertinent to any issue raised by this answer. But counsel for the plaintiff is desirous of taking any advantage which they may be entitled to, and if it does become material he desires to have it go in. It must go in now if it ever goes in. Your objection may be noted, and the evidence will go in. You have limited your objection much more narrowly than Mr. Hemenway did.

Mr. FARLEY: No, sir. I wished to add that specific objection in addition to the objection of a general character. I ought, perhaps, to state, in further explanation, we do not question their right to put in these cases.

1257 HAMMOND, J.: I think the fact that they have already put them in is entirely immaterial on the question whether they may be put in evidence, provided that they have been put in by you or relied upon by any witness.

Mr. FARLEY: We submit it is simply like a party putting in evidence and then putting on another witness to explain it away; and so it is immaterial.

HAMMOND, J.: I will save your exception. You may go on.

The WITNESS: As I say, the case of Jordan v. Van Epps, 85 N. Y. 427, construed the partition statute of the state of New York as intended to cut off an inchoate right of dower, and therefore the widow, who was a party to the suit, whose dower was not provided for in the suit, was bound by the judgment and could not subsequently set up the right of dower, because she was an actual party to the former suit.

The case of Smith v. Smith, 79 N. Y. 634, is a mere memorandum of opinion, but as far as appears from the opinion the party in the second action had previously been called on to defend the previous action, and did so. He was assignor, and the defendant in the previous action was liable to him.

The case of Clemens v. Clemens, 37 N. Y. 59, was an action to partition lands which had formerly been set off in partition suit to the present owners. The petitioner in the second suit refused to plead for descent in title. The parties interested in the second action except the petitioner were before the court in the former action, except that contingent remaindermen and persons not in esse at the time of the former action were held by the court in the second action to be represented by the persons who were before the court. It was there said that the previous decision was directly in point and was conclusive on the parties, and those claiming under them, with respect to the whole matter, and came within the legal purview of the original action, and that every one in the second action claimed the identical property which was the subject of the first action; and the decision does not extend to persons who are not parties and not privies; and it does decide that the same point must be in issue in the previous action.

Doty v. Brown, 4 N. Y. 41, was an action in replevin, and the right of one of the parties depended on the validity of a bill of sale; the question of fraud in the bill of sale had previously been tried between the same parties. The bill of sale was the same, but the goods in the replevin were not the same as those previously replevined; but the question as to the validity of the bill of sale was the same in the two cases, and the parties to the two actions were identical.

Griffin v. Long Island R. R. Co., 102 N. Y. 449. There the plaintiff had sued previously in two capacities which he had 1258 as receiver of the Long Island Railroad. He subsequently sued in the same capacities the trustees for the same property, and the validity of his appointment was in issue. It had been in issue from the previous case, and the court held that the parties were bound by the determination in the previous case; it determined that the issues were the same.

In Campbell Printing Press & Manufacturing Co. v. Walker, 114 N. Y. 7, it was said that estoppel extends to every material matter within the issues expressly litigated and determined, and also to matters not expressly determined, which were, in fact, in the thing expressly stated and decided, although not actually litigated or considered. That is a general statement, and is not made with respect to the controversy now before this court on these records.

In Thomson v. Sanders, 118 N. Y. 252, it was held that parties were barred by previous judgments between them, establishing the construction of a bond issued already in a second suit.

I have examined the case of Henry v. Allen, 151 N. Y., at page 1, but I do not find that it appears to be pertinent in any respect, and I do not know whether the citation was a correct one or not.

Earle v. Earle, 173 N. Y., at page 480. I have already referred to that at length. It merely limits the general expression "might have been litigated," as used by previous opinions of the Court of Appeals.

I have previously said that I would later give the citation of the case where a widow sued a second time for her dower, although she was a party to the first suit. That case appears to have been the case of Mallory v. Horan, 49 N. Y. 111.

I have already referred to the case of Featherstone v. The President and Directors of the Turnpike Co., 71 Hun, 109. That was a case where the plaintiff in an action for negligence against the turnpike company was held to be estopped by a judgment in favor of the wrongdoer against the same plaintiff, on the ground of contributory negligence. The former defendant and the present defendant were not joint wrongdoers, and the rule that one wrongdoer could not recover against another or compel constitution [sic] by another did not apply. The court said that the relation was analogous to Pray v. Hegeman. I do not know that the court said that, but I will say that the relation was analogous to Pray v. Hegeman, and to a case of master and servant. The court said that in such a case judgment in favor of one on a ground equally applicable to both is judgment against all; that is, cases of a character where there is no joint wrongdoer.

Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329. In that case, the former defendant was the servant of the present plaintiffs, and they appeared to 1259 defend him on their own title. If it had gone the other way they would have been estopped. It is there said that the estoppel includes the parties who had the right to appear, to control the action, and to appeal from the judgment, and that plaintiffs had this right when called in by their servant to defend him; there it was their duty to him on their implied contract to save him harmless. And it is also said that there is no contribution between joint trespassers.

The case of Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 68, was not a New York judgment.

The case of Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Emma Silver Mining Co. was a case in 7 Fed. Rep. 408, and was a decision in New York, but not in the state courts. That, too, was the question of Pray v. Hegeman.

The case of Reich v. Cochran, 151 N. Y. 122, was a case where the same question, in substance, had been involved in a previous case of the relation of landlord and tenant after a lease was effected.

I do not know whether the case of Greenwich v. Marvin was cited or not.

I think the case of Gleason v. Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. was mentioned, but I do not know. That was a case where two different people sued on the same policy of life insurance. The administrator in another suit of the former owner and the alleged assignee of the same policy of insurance, and the plaintiff in the second action had had notice of the pendency of the first, that he was interested in the same policy of insurance or claimed under it against the same defendant. That was held a bar under the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution of the United States. The question of privy was not discussed.

The case of Thorne v. De Breteuil, 175 N. Y. 64,—I don't know whether, in my answer to the former question, I stated I was counsel in that case or not, but I was. I investigated in that case the subject of res adjudicata. There the question was merely whether a prior judgment bound the same parties. The people who were parties in the second case were parties to the first case, except that perhaps their children had not been born at the time of the prior suit, but that question is not important, as I remember, now, the case; their children, claiming remainders in property in which the parties were interested during their lifetime, occupied the relation to them of remaindermen with respect to their interests, and in the prior suits everybody in being at the time of the prior suits was before the court.

The case of Heuch v. Powers, 84 Hun, 546, was a case where a party to the second suit had been named as the defendant in the second action. He had not been served, but an answer had been filed in his behalf by an attorney in court. The court held that he was a party to the former suit.

1260 Stearns v. Shepard, 91 App. Div. 49. In the opinion by Judge Ingraham it is true that in his general proposition he says that the term "parties" includes all directly interested in the subject matter who have a right and are given an opportunity to make defence, prepare proceedings, examine and cross-examine witnesses, and appeal. I have, in my previous answer, I think, fully explained how that is limited by other decisions of the court and by the Court of Appeals. That was in the appellate division, you see. In that case the plaintiff was only a nominal plaintiff, and the real party in interest was the one that was held bound.

In Smith v. Smith, 79 N. Y. 634, already referred to, is a memorandum of decision. The participation was by a person who was ultimately liable on the note.

In Bracken v. Atlantic Trust Co., 30 App. Div. 67, it was the bondholder, the privy, who was seeking to enforce his collateral.

In Castle v. Noyes, 14 N. Y. 329, it was said that the term "parties" includes real and substantial parties who, although not on the record, had a right to control proceedings and appeal from judgment; and under that rule the testator and the parties now before the court would have been bound by the record so that his representative might insist that the determination was conclusive upon his adversary. The case, however, was one of master and servant, the master actually bringing suit against his servant, and the question was the question of the plaintiff's title; and it was adjudged against him in his suit against the servant, and it was held it could not be relitigated.

Bush v. Knox, 2 Hun, 576, was a question whether a bill of sale was absolute. The former judgment was in favor of another person, so the present plaintiff had to indemnify; and the defendant directed the other plaintiff to bring the suit, and agreed to indemnify him, and was present at the trial. The court said it was a record inference that he had a right to control the former proceeding. I say the court said so, because I think it did; I am not sure. This is my recollection of the case, and I have not the case before me.

Van Koughnet v. Dennis, 68 Hun, 179, was a case where a wife was estopped by her acts under prior judgment for her husband on the same facts.

National Park Bank v. Whittemore, 7 N. Y. Rep. 456, was a case where a motion was made in the same action; and though the party to the assignment, the party to the record, I think, appeared and moved to vacate the attachment, or his assignor appeared and moved to vacate the attachment—no; he had appeared and moved to vacate the attachment and to file a bond on the appeal. But it was held that he was bound by the decision there on account of his participation. This was a second petition for the same relief.

1261 The case of Kent v. Hudson River R. R. Co., 22 Barb. 278. The former suit was by the assignee, and was said to have been notified by the principal, who was a party to the second suit.

Stedman v. Patchin, 34 Barb. 218, was the case of an owner. The first case was a judgment against the master of a vessel on a bond which he gave to release the vessel on attachment. The subsequent suit was against the owner. The owner had defended the previous action. It was held that his action in that particular showed authority for litigation.

Kolb v. National Surety Co., 176 N. Y. 233, was an action to restrain the enforcement of a judgment against joint tort feasors by the authority of one of them who had paid the judgment and was now attempting to enforce it against the other parties to the judgment. The court in that case says that the general proposition is true that no right of contribution between wrongdoers can be enforced in a court of equity which alone would have jurisdiction to refuse to lend aid, and it did not feel the authority should be subrogated to the plaintiff; that he was the purchaser of the judgment and innocent of wrongdoing; on the other hand, that the plaintiff in this second suit, who was a joint tort feasor, is entitled to no relief in equity.

Tyng v. Clarke, 9 Hun, 269, was a case where a trustee of a corporation was sued for a debt of the corporation. It was held that he could take advantage of a judgment that the corporation was not indebted. The reason there given was there were three decisions, one of them dissenting, two of them giving agreeing opinions, but they did not agree in their reasons. One of them put it on the ground that in that case the trustee had the right of subrogation through the corporation, because it paid its debt; if that right was extinguished by the previous case, his security had been ended.

King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 267, was a case for specific performance and for the enforcement of the terms of an agreement. There was no question of fraud between the parties to the agreement. In that case their relation, it is true, was defined as a joint adventure. That was an action for an accounting among persons jointly interested, and their other interests were treated as analogous to those of parties. It did not determine that they would represent each other on any of the questions in the suit, nor what would have been their relation had the corporation sued them for fraud.

The case of Lawrence v. Hunt, 10 Wend. 81, was a suit on the same contract between the same parties and another, and no stranger was involved.

Jackson v. Griswold, 4 Hill, 522, was a suit which held that a mere surety is not bound by a judgment against his principal. It distinguishes a case where the debt is not destroyed by the judg-1262 ment. It says that the indemnitee is bound to let the indemnitor come in, but that a mere surety is not bound to defend even on notice, but on such notice the surety could come in and defend; consequently the surety who was actually defending was not bound because the principal might have dismissed the bill or declined to appeal; that it would have been different if they had severally come in with the consent of the opposite party.

In Leavitt v. Walcott, 95 N. Y. 212, the parties to the action were the same as the parties to the previous action, and the proposition was that all matters, either of fact or of law, which might have been or actually were litigated were conclusive upon the parties.

The case of Demarest v. Darg, 32 N. Y. 281, was a case between the same parties.

The case of Prescott v. Le Conte, 83 App. Div. 482, was a case where the relation between the parties was that of landlord and tenant, and a party who had not been a party to the previous case had actual notice of the pendency of the action, and the court said he had the right to assume charge, and that the rule of estoppel applied where any privity exists and where the party is liable over. In this case the party in the second action was the party ultimately liable.

Kelly v. 42d St. R. R. Co., 39 App. Div. 500, was a case where the defendant was liable over. It was also said that the binding effect would have extended to all who had the right to appear at the trial and to appeal.

The case of Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349,—well, I have not made enough of a memorandum of that case to now intelligently discuss it.

The case of Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y., was an action for an accounting in equity against the executor of the offender. The court did enter judgment against the executor of the principal offender for the whole amount—this was in the court below; it then entered judgment for contribution against the other wrongdoers. But the plaintiff did not appeal from the judgment as failing to give them entire relief against the other wrongdoers, and the other wrongdoers did not appeal from the judgment giving contribution against them. They were parties to the same suit, and it was in the same suit. The court said that these parties were not before it, they had not appealed, and did not discuss their rights; they only discussed the right of the executor who made the appeal, and it held that they were not injured by the judgment against co-wrongdoers for contribution; but it did not establish the law that contribution between wrongdoers is proper. There are may decisions to the contrary which I have already cited.

1263 In the case of Fowler v. Bowery Bank, 47 Hun, there was a question of the operation of the substitution of a sheriff's indemnity. I do not see that it is pertinent to this case.

So far as I know, there are no other cases which have been cited which I have examined.

Cross-examination.

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. You are now a partner of Mr. Hornblower's?

A. I am.

Q. And Mr. Hornblower has given a deposition in this case?

A. I believe that he has.

Q. As to the other depositions that have been put into the case by the defendant, I assume that you have read those?

A. I don't know that I have read all. I assume that I have read what were copies of most of them. I recall reading copies of what purported to be the depositions of Mr. Terry, Mr. Wadhams, Mr. Keener, Judge O'Brien, Mr. Byrne,—I think I have read a copy of the deposition of Judge Stover, if such deposition has been submitted. I do not recall at the instant that I have read any other deposition. Perhaps, if the names of other witnesses are mentioned, I can recall them.

Q. You have discussed this case pretty minutely with counsel for the plaintiff in this action?

A. I discussed it pretty minutely yesterday, telling him what I expected to say. I saw him previously; I did not at that time discuss it minutely with him. He left with me copies of the record, he left with me a copy of the memorandum that he either was preparing or had prepared on the subject. I read those memoranda, and I subsequently made an independent investigation, beginning with the digests, and my examination was made independent of the memorandum, the use which I made of the memoranda being merely to see if I was examining the digests for what I deemed the pertinent cases, whether I had included all of the cases in the memorandum. I did not tell counsel for the plaintiff in extenso what I have testified to here; I told him in substance what, in my opinion, was the law in New York, and in substance my reason for the citing of some cases.

Q. Now I noticed that, in referring to the case of People v. Stephens, you used the expression that some people thought that that case was authority for certain propositions. To whom did you refer as "some people"?

A. I referred only to those witnesses whose deposition, or copies of whose depositions, I had read; I referred to those witnesses who referred to that case as establishing the proposition for which they contended.

1264 Q. Now you recognized that this was a bill in equity filed by the plaintiff against the executors of Mr. Lewisohn?

A. I did; that is to say, that the New York bill was.

Q. That is the case to which I refer. And you recognized that there was a demurrer to that bill?

A. I did; I recognized there were several demurrers in the course of the litigation, and that there were two demurrers to the bill as amended.

Q. And you recognized that the demurrers, both in the United States Circuit Court and in the Circuit Court of Appeals and in the Supreme Court at Washington, were sustained?

A. I recognized that the demurrer to the whole complaint, as amended, was sustained; I do not recall that the demurrer to part of it was sustained. I also recognized that there were two grounds assigned for the demurrer to the whole complaint, and I recognized that the demurrer to the whole complaint was not sustained upon the specific ground that there was a defect of parties defendant.

Q. And you recognized that a mandate came down from the Supreme Court, and that, in pursuance of that mandate, judgment was entered for the defendant in that bill?

A. I did,—the judgment which was entered.

Q. Now that being the case, Mr. Boston, in your opinion, was anything decided in that case?

A. Yes.

Q. What, in your opinion, was decided in that case?

A. In my opinion, it was decided in that case that the plaintiff had no cause of action in equity against the defendants, the executors of Leonard Lewisohn. In my opinion it was declared, in that case, that it was the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States that on the state of facts set forth in the record as a matter of law the plaintiff had no cause of action. I did not understand, however——

Q. I am asking simply what it did,—what the opinion decided?

A. I have stated what it did decide, but in order to state it carefully——

Q. I do not care for what it did not decide; it would take a great while to say that.

A. No; I have not fully stated what I think it did decide.

Q. Well, then, go on,—as to what it did decide.

A. The case, in my opinion, decided that there was no cause of action in favor of this plaintiff on the facts stated in that bill against the executors of Leonard Lewisohn.

Q. Now if this bill had been brought in the lifetime of Leonard Lewisohn, and Leonard Lewisohn had been made the defendant, and there had been the same judgment, or a similar judgment to the one entered in this case against his executors, what would the case have decided then?

A. It would, in my opinion, have decided that there was no cause of action on the facts stated, in equity, against Leonard Lewisohn.

1265 Q. If judgment had been entered in such a supposed case in favor of Leonard Lewisohn, and afterwards a similar bill had been brought against Leonard Lewisohn in his lifetime, whether or not to that bill the judgment in the first case could be pleaded in bar,—identically the same bills, only filed at different times?

A. It could be pleaded in bar to the extent of the decision. It would decide that no cause of action in equity existed against Leonard Lewisohn. If the bill was a bill in equity I think it would be a bar.

Q. That was my presumption, another bill precisely in form, only bearing a different date, but subsequent to the first supposed bill.

A. This decision was rendered on the demurrer?

Q. Yes.

A. It was decisive of the point raised by the demurrer. It would not be admissible as a mere bill of complaint; it would have to be properly introduced by the proper pleading.

Q. Properly introduced by proper pleading, have you any doubt that it would have been a bar in New York?

A. To a bill in the same terms?

Q. Exactly the same terms.

A. If the defence pleaded was that no cause in equity was shown, it would be a bar.

Q. Could it be pleaded as res adjudicata?

A. Under the same circumstances, yes; under the same circumstances as I supposed in my former answer.

Q. Well, on your theory, do I understand you to say, or to mean, that there is no difference in the matter of pleading? That is to say, on the filing of this second supposed bill, suppose there had been simply a pleading of res adjudicata in bar of that bill, would not that have been sufficient to have met that bill without going through the preliminary form of demurring and carrying it to the United States Supreme Court?

A. It would certainly be a bar to the extent of the decision; it would be a bar to the relief prayed for in the present bill, and it would be a bar as between the same parties, certainly, to the same alleged cause of action similarly stated in equity.

Q. Well, to put your answer a little briefer, isn't it simply this: that if a second bill, identical in its terms except as to its date, had been filed and a plea in bar had been put in in answer to that bill, that it would have been a good plea?

A. It would sustain the defence——

Q. Can't you answer "yes" to that? Wouldn't it be a good plea in bar? Do you have any doubt as to that? I am sure I have not made my question plain if you have.

A. In that form of action it would be a plea in bar.

Q. Why, I speak of that form of action when I assume that the bills, are identical and that they are both bills in equity; that is part of my assumption.

1266 A. Then my answer is, it would be a plea in bar in the identical suit between the same parties, provided it was properly pleaded.

Q. And a good plea in bar to the suit as res adjudicata?

A. But it would only determine the issues that were raised by the judgment and decided by the judgment, and that issue was that there is no cause of action in equity.

Q. Would it not be ground sufficient for the dismissal of the bill so that the judgment would be identical, or the same as the judgment in the first suit proposed?

A. It undoubtedly would,—a judgment that the cause was dismissed for want of equity.

Q. And that would be the cause for the dismissal, of course, of the second bill?

A. It would.

Q. Well, now, assuming that such a bill had been brought in the lifetime of Mr. Lewisohn, suppose Mr. Lewisohn's death intervening and another bill was brought, against whom would that bill have to be brought in New York?

A. If it was a bill with respect to Lewisohn, it would have to be brought against his executors.

Q. I assume on the allegations of the bill that had been filed in his lifetime, and another suit had been brought for identically the same matters. It would have to be brought against whom?

A. It could certainly be brought against his executors, and, in my opinion, it would have to be brought against his executors; but I can understand a situation in which it might also be brought against his heirs at law; but you have not assumed any additional facts.

Q. No. I merely assume the additional fact that the bill would allege the death of Mr. Lewisohn as a resident, or leaving property in New York of some kind, being sufficient to confer jurisdiction for the appointment of his executors, and the due appointment of his executors is such a case.

A. With those additional facts, his executors would be the proper parties defendant, and with those facts only I think they would be the sole necessary parties defendant.

Q. Well, a bill in equity is in personam, is it not, as opposed to in rem?

A. It is.

Q. Well, the executors in New York are the representatives as to personal transactions and claims of the deceased, are they not?

A. The executors in New York by law take no title to the real property of the decedent. There is devolved upon them, by operation of law,—we consider them executors by operation of law after their qualification as executors,—the right to the personal property of the decedent within that jurisdiction; and if it was his domicile at the time of his death, it devolves upon them the right of succession to his personal property, wherever located, subject, 1267 however, to the right of local administration with respect to property located outside of the state.

Q. Do not the terms of the will of the testator determine as to what the title to the property of the testator is?

A. I have said that by operation of law the executor takes no title to real property. The testator can devise his real property to the executor, and in that event the executor takes title as his devisee, to do with the title to the property what the testator has directed. It is possible that before the admission of the will to probate, the heirs at law are presumptively the owners of his property, but it is true that that the executors are vested with the legal title to his personal property, certainly within the state, and if he died domiciled in the state, elsewhere, regardless of the terms of the will. A man cannot, by will, prevent his executors from becoming entitled upon their qualification to his personal property, subject to the duty to do first what the law imposes on them, and then what the will imposes on them.

Q. Well, then you considered that this bill, which was filed against the executors of Lewisohn, was in personam?

A. I did.

Q. And that the cause of action survived in New York you assumed, did you not?

A. I assumed that the cause of action survived in New York against the executors; I may add to that, in their representative capacity as executors of Lewisohn.

Q. Well, suppose this bill I have assumed, one identically like the one that I have assumed in New York, had been filed in New York, and the record had all been made up exactly as it is in the pending suit, and the bill was dismissed; that being the case, suppose the present bill had been filed by the plaintiff in this case, could the executors of Mr. Lewisohn, after the death of Mr. Lewisohn, in any way take advantage of a judgment in the suit that had been brought in his lifetime; if so, how?

A. Now I must have misunderstood your question, and I should like to have it read over again.

Q. [Question read.]

A. They could not take advantage of the judgment in the last suit supposed, because they would not be parties to the suit, they would be strangers to the last suit supposed, and they would not be on the record; there would be nothing alleged against them, and they would not be entitled to be heard. They could take advantage of the judgment that had been previously entered against them in any suit where their liability was in dispute and they were parties to the record, but they could not take advantage of the judgment in the previous suit, in a suit in which they were not parties, and in which no claim was alleged to them. You speak of this present bill.
1268 Q. Wait a moment. I am afraid you do not understand my question.

A. That is the reason that I asked that it be read over again.

Q. Let me put another question to make it perfectly clear. I have assumed that a bill identical in terms had been brought against Mr. Lewisohn in his lifetime.

A. Yes.

Q. And that the same steps had been taken that had been taken in the suit in New York, resulting in a judgment for Mr. Lewisohn in his lifetime.

A. You mean a judgment in the same terms?

Q. In the same terms exactly. That then Mr. Lewisohn had died. After his death, that the same plaintiff had brought a bill against his executors in identically the same terms of the first bill, and simply alleging that they were the executors duly appointed and serving, properly appointed; then the executors have before them this bill in this very case; they find that a bill had been filed in Mr. Lewisohn's lifetime and it had been dismissed for want of equity, and the record had been made up as it is made up in this suit; then the executors come to you as counsel and say, "Can we take any advantage, can we use the prior judgment obtained against or obtained by Mr. Lewisohn in his lifetime?"

A. Why, of course they could take advantage of that judgment to the same extent that Mr. Lewisohn could take advantage of it if he had lived, with this exception: that they might not have in their hands all of the assets that Mr. Lewisohn had during his lifetime; but to the extent of the assets in their hands, they, in their representative capacity, would be entitled to take advantage of any decree rendered in favor of Mr. Lewisohn during his lifetime to the extent that the decree was operative on Mr. Lewisohn.

Q. Well, that being the case, whether or not the judgment in the present New York suit is of any force?

A. If you will be kind enough to distinguish which present suit you mean, to prevent me from making the same mistake I did before.

Q. The New York suit.

A. The judgment in the New York suit is of no force for any person other than the party named in the suit or his personal representatives; by that I mean his executors.

Q. It becomes a question of privity?

A. It undoubtedly does,—of either privity or succession. Successors are privies; there are privies who are not successors.

Q. That is true. But the word "privity" in law or "privy" in law, as I understand it, is used in distinction from "party."

A. It does not include all the world besides parties, but it has a meaning different from the meaning of "parties."

Q. The parties in this suit were the executors of Lewisohn?

A. Yes.

Q. Then it becomes a question of law who is in privity 1269 with them,—the executors?

A. It is a question of law upon the facts. The facts, of course, determine what law is applicable.

Q. And in regard to privity, whoever was in privity with Mr. Lewisohn in his lifetime is in privity with his executors?

A. No. The Court of Appeals of the state of New York has decided the contrary in Thomson v. American Surety Co. in 170 N. Y. Whoever claims the property in the hands of the executors is in privity with the executors to the extent that they have assets in their hands for distribution to the claimants; but it is not true, as I understand the law, that whoever was in privity with Mr. Lewisohn is in privity with his executors.

Q. So far as this suit pending in New York is concerned, the executors, you tell us, represent Mr. Leonard Lewisohn?

A. No, I do not tell you that. I tell you they represented the people who claimed Mr. Lewisohn's property either as legatees or as creditors, but the executors do not represent Mr. Leonard Lewisohn. Mr. Leonard Lewisohn is dead. The executors are privies of Lewisohn by devolution of their title to the extent of the things which they took as assets.

Q. Well, I will take your term, then, that the executors are privies and not the representatives of Leonard Lewisohn.

Mr. McCLENNEN: One moment. That is not his term.

A. I did not say they were not the representatives of Leonard Lewisohn. They are styled his personal representatives. There is no privity with the people who were privies to Leonard Lewisohn and are not necessarily in privity with such people; they may be in privity with such people, by reason of some fact arising after Leonard Lewisohn's death, or at the time of his death, or they may be privies to people from whom Leonard Lewisohn claimed estate that devolved upon him.

Q. Well, you would assume that the executors of Leonard Lewisohn, so far as a judgment obtained against him in his lifetime was concerned, were privy to him?

A. Undoubtedly, with the exception that the privity only extends to the property which devolves upon them by reason of their being his personal representatives.

Q. That is their liability, but it is not a personal liability; that is what you mean by that, that it is to be paid out of the estate. Is not the personal liability in New York the cost they may incur in a case prosecuted by or defended by them?

A. It is, with this exception: the power is in the court to charge the cost against the assets in their hands. The court does it in cases where it does not appear affirmatively to the court that the action was prosecuted recklessly or in the executors' wrong.

Q. That is true, but that is another step to the one I intended to ask you. The one I intended to ask you is: If an executor in 1270 New York, representing the deceased, were to bring an action,—on a promissory note, for instance,—and judgment should be for the defendant, would not the executor in the first instance, to the defendant in the suit be liable for the costs?

A. He would; the law says so. He might be entitled to reimbursement in his accounting.

Q. That I understand to be the law.

A. And I think also it is a matter governed by the code of civil procedure, but I do not undertake to carry that in my mind. Although a party there recovering costs might, upon application to the proper court, have execution for costs against the estate of the decedent in the hands of the executor without resorting directly to the executor, but he could not do it without leave of the court.

Q. Then will you tell us, confining yourself simply to a judgment obtained in the lifetime of a party in his favor,—you have already told us that that would inure to the benefit of his executors named in his will——

A. It would, in cases where they were sued.

Q. Wait a moment. I do not want to repeat all that. Now the next question is: Is there any other person under the law of New York to whom the benefit of that judgment would inure; if so, to whom?

A. Yes, it would inure to the benefit—now are you suggesting the benefit of the second judgment recovered by the executors or the benefit of the first judgment recovered against Lewisohn?

Q. I am referring to the first judgment against Lewisohn.

A. It would inure to the benefit of all persons who took property through Lewisohn subsequent to the rendition of the first decree, and possibly to all persons who took part with notice of the pendency of the action after its institution, and those persons would include the executors, upon whom the property of any person devolves at the time of his death, or at the time of his or their qualification, and it might include other people who were in privity with Lewisohn. But I am asked to assume that the bill was the same as the present, and I do not now think of anybody who would be in privity with Lewisohn on the statement of facts in the bill except the people claiming his estate or some interest in it at his death.

Q. You have read the decision of Mr. Justice Holmes in this case?

A. I have.

Q. And although you say that that is not a part of the judgment roll, still, in your capacity as expert you consider it of some weight, do you not?

A. I was not asked to say whether that opinion was right or wrong or whether the law of New York would hold in accordance with that opinion or not. I undoubtedly think that that opinion——

Q. Did you hear my question? [Question read by the stenographer.]

1271 A. Why no. In my capacity as expert on the New York law, which is the only thing I have appeared here to testify to, I considered it of no weight whatever. It might be that judges in New York would give it respect and might declare it to be the law of New York, but it does not determine the law of New York, nor does it determine my view as an expert on the questions that were asked me.

Q. That is to say, if you were asked in regard to a transaction in New York if suits had been tried in the federal court and an opinion had been delivered, in considering the question submitted to you as to what the law of New York was, you would pay no attention to any federal decision?

A. Not unless the federal decision decided the law of New York.

If the federal decision decided the law of New York then I would pay attention to it. If I were asked my opinion as to what the Court of Appeals of New York might subsequently declare, I should pay attention to the opinion, but I would not expect the Court of Appeals of New York to reverse itself by reason of a contrary decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in a matter not involving the law of New York or in a matter not involving the federal law.

Q. Then you do not mean to say that, in considering what the law of New York is, you utterly ignore federal decisions, do you? Do you mean to say that as a lawyer?

A. I have stated the only federal decisions which I have considered in the law of New York on the question which I——

Q. One moment. Just answer my question.

A. You asked me what I meant to say and I am telling you what I mean to say.

Q. Tell it quickly.

A. Decisions I have seen previously?

Q. [Question read by the stenographer.] Now answer my question.

A. In determining the law of New York I first endeavored——

HAMMOND, J.: It does not seem to me that you understand the question. The question may not convey to you the same idea it does to me, but I understand the question, Mr. Boston, to be whether, in considering what the law of New York is, you have considered, as being of any weight whatever in your mind, the opinion given by Mr. Justice Holmes in this case.

The WITNESS: I have read the opinion given by Mr. Justice Holmes in this case. I did not consider it as bearing on any of the questions I have answered in my previous examination because I do not think it refers to them in any respect; therefore I did not consider it as bearing on this decision.

HAMMOND, J.: I understand the question is asked whether, in giving your answers here in this case, you have considered the decision of Mr. Justice Holmes as having any bearing whatever.

1272 The WITNESS: No, I have not considered it as having any bearing whatever on the questions I have been asked.

[Recess until 2 P. M. and resumed.]

(By Mr. HEMENWAY:)

Q. Then, in forming your opinion upon what the New York law is, you would base it upon the statutes, where there are past statutes, or on code or decided cases of the state courts of New York?

A. That is true if all the decided cases of the state courts of New York had considered the question at all. Of course if there were no decided cases I could not consider them, and if the cases had not decided the point I could only use them by way of argument with respect to the point.

Q. Well, with regard to the evidence that you have given as to the application of the New York law to the facts of these bills in equity, have you rested your opinion upon the decided cases in New York?

A. I have.

Q. Now will you state, in your opinion, which of the cases decided in New York, in any of its state courts, comes nearest to the case in question? By "nearest" I mean nearest as a precedent.

A. Now that you have used the words "as a precedent," I would correct the answer I was about to give. I was going to say that undoubtedly, in its circumstances, the case which comes the nearest is the case which is reported in 51 Howard's Practice, the case of People v. Stephens. I have stated already, in my answer to the principal question, why I do not regard that case as a precedent.

Q. It is unnecessary to repeat what you have already testified to. Now, barring that case, what case comes nearest to the matters alleged in the bill in equity in New York?

A. I think that probably the case of Gerrod v. Stagg, in 10 Howard's Practice, comes nearest to the facts in the present case, although it was not a bill in equity.

Q. Well, what case next to that?

A. In all probability the case next to that which comes nearest on its facts to the present case is the case of Getty v. Devlin, 70 N. Y. 504.

Q. Now you have in your testimony made frequent use of the word "wrongdoers." Do you make any distinction between wrongdoers and joint tort feasors?

A. I make no distinction between the word "wrongdoers" and the word "tort feasors;" I do make a distinction between the words "wrongdoers" and "joint wrongdoers," because I have not described wrongdoers as joint wrongdoers. If I should describe joint wrongdoers, I should consider that "joint wrongdoer" is the exact equivalent of "joint tort feasor."

Q. Then in the case in New York you assume, do you not, 1273 that on the allegations of the bill Lewisohn a[illegible] Bigelow are joint tort feasors?

A. I do consider that they are joint tort feasors, and in speaking of them as joint tort feasors I am describing them merely, and am not saying anything as to the nature of their liability.

Q. But as joint tort feasors?

A. That is a proper description of them.

Q. Then in the consideration of your testimony, have you assumed that the law as laid down in the reports of decisions in the state of New York differs from the law as laid down in the federal courts of New York?

A. Yes. I have considered that the case of Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Emma Silver Mining Co. in 7 Federal Reporter, does not in its language express the law of New York, although I think that the decision, as I remember the case, was properly rendered on its facts, in my opinion.

Q. And of course you assume the law of New York to be different from the law as laid down in the opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes in the New York case?

A. Why, no, I do not. I do not understand that Mr. Justice Holmes was deciding——

Q. I am simply asking you now. I did ask you a question about it, and I understood your answer to be that there was a difference between the law of New York, as laid down in the opinions reported, from the opinions, and the law laid down in the opinions in the New York federal courts?

A. I limited myself to the only opinion of the New York federal courts which, in my opinion, has any bearing on the question of the effect of the New York judgment on the Massachusetts action, and that opinion is the decision in the case of Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Emma Silver Mining Co., reported in the 7th Federal Reporter. I know of no other federal decision with respect to the law of New York on the subject which I am now discussing.

Q. And having read the opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes delivered in this case in New York, you find nothing there about their being,—Bigelow and Lewisohn,—joint tort feasors, do you?

A. I have read the opinion, and I find in the opinion what is in it. I have not read it recently; I don't recall whether the opinion describes them as joint tort feasors or not, but whether it does or not I should so describe them—whether it does or not.

Q. Haven't you become familiar enough with that opinion to know that it describes the allegations of fact in the bill as not constituting any fraud?

A. I undoubtedly have.

Q. And, of course, if there is no fraud, there can be no tort feasor?

A. I undoubtedly have. I was not asked my opinion as to whether this bill described a tort or not.

Q. No; but you have cited cases of joint tort feasors.

A. I have described these men as joint tort feasors.

1274 Q. And joint wrongdoers. Now what I want to get is your authority for so styling them; that is, the source of your information.

A. They are so described in the language of the bill. The language of the bill. The language of the opinion, in my opinion, does not prevent them from being joint tort feasors. The language of the opinion, in my opinion, only decides that there is no cause of action, because in the opinion of the judge writing the opinion there was no tort which the plaintiff could recover for. I understand the opinion did not say that these people were not joint tort feasors; on the contrary, I understand that the opinion did say that it was not passing on their liability to anybody but the plaintiff; but it did not say that they were not joint tort feasors, nor did it say that they had not committed a fraud; but it did say that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover for that fraud, because the plaintiff had not been injured, and the plaintiff had not been injured for the reason that the plaintiff was a mere shell behind which the men who were sued as wrongdoers stood, and that a man could not cheat himself; but it did not say that a man could not cheat other people, and it describes them as if they were joint tort feasors with respect to other people.

Q. I will confine you, if you please, to this action pending in New York. You do not wish to change your testimony, which was incorporated in a question of mine, perhaps, rather than in your answer, that if there is no fraud there can be no tort feasor?

A. That appears to me so axiomatic that I would, of course, admit what you say; there can be no dispute about it.

Q. Now you have cited the case of Thorne v. DeBreteuil, and have stated that you were counsel in that case. Were not Mr. Olney and Mr. Byrne, who have given depositions in this action now pending here in Boston, also of counsel in that case?

A. They were. They represented, in that case, different interests; I represented the same interest identically that Mr. Byrne did.

Q. I simply asked if they were not of counsel in that case?

A. Well, they were not all counsel for the same clients; that is what I mean.

Q. I understand; but they were all interested in that litigation?

A. As counsel; yes.

Q. And in the questions that were raised by it?

A. They all participated as counsel.

Q. And Mr. Byrne—he represented jointly with you, and in common with you, the same interests, did he not?

A. He did. I, at the time, was associated with Mr. Byrne, and together we did work in that case for the same clients.

Q. Now you have referred in your testimony to section 449 of the code in New York in reference to that part of your testi-
1275 mony that applies to express trustees, stating that the language of the decision applied to express trustees. Has it not been decided in New York that, although the language applies to the plaintiff, yet by construction also it applies to the defendant, and not only to express trustees, but to implied trustees?

A. I am not aware that that is true. Mr. Stanchfield, whose deposition I have read, but did not refer to in my former testimony, as I remember, says it is true. I don't know whether it is true or not.

Q. You are familiar with the allegations of the bill in New York. Did I understand you to state, in your direct examination, that on the allegations of that bill, considering its subject matter and its prayer for rescission, or damages in lieu of rescission, that Mr. Bigelow would not be a necessary party. You so stated, did you not?

A. It is my opinion that he was not a necessary party.

Q. And you further stated that he was not only not a necessary party, but, in your opinion, not a proper party?

A. I stated that, and I stated the reason for it.

Q. You understand that there is a distinction between a necessary party and a proper party in pleading in New York?

A. I undoubtedly do.

Q. And your reasons why a stranger is not bound by the judgment were two: First, that he did not have his day in court, and, secondly, that there was no mutuality. Now in order to constitute a judgment as an estoppel is it necessary that between the parties to the record in all cases there must be mutuality? Are there no exceptions to that general rule?

A. There are apparent exceptions to that general rule. I have explained the only exceptions that seem to me to be apparent. As I now recall, they are exceptions where the fact in issue between the two parties is an essential fact—by that I mean a disputed question of fact in the cause—an essential fact to be proved by one or the other of the parties in the second action, and it is the fact of the relations between the parties to the other cause,—such, for instance, as whether they sustained the relation to them of principal and agent, master and servant, principal and surety, husband and wife, and possibly similar cases of mutual relationship between the parties. In those cases the judgments are held to be the best evidence of the fact that there was a relation between the two parties, or that there was not a relation between the two parties. That question of the relationship between the parties and the particular relationship between the parties, having once been litigated between the parties, no better evidence of the fact of their relationship can be given, and the judgment is held to be the best evidence of the fact. The only other case that I now recall which is an apparent exception to the rule of mutuality is, as I have stated, where a person has elected his remedy and has chosen a remedy which is absolutely inconsistent with the second position assumed. In that case 1276 evidence of the election is admissible. If the election has gone beyond recall at the time of the institution of the suit, the mere fact of the institution of the suit is sufficient evidence of the election; if the election has not gone beyond recall until the entry of judgment, then you must show the entry of judgment. There are cases—I do not consider them exceptions to the rule with respect to mutuality—where the judgment in the first case is not entirely conclusive of the judgment in the second case. In such cases the judgment is conclusive in the second case with respect to all of the facts which could have been litigated in the first case under the issues made; but where there is an essential fact necessary to be proved in the second case, such as the fact that a man was principal or that he was surety, or facts with respect to the particular defence which he has, he is not bound by the determination against the person with whom he has been in some relation, because that question of his relation has not been litigated in the former suit.

Q. You say that there are exceptions to the rule, do you, of mutuality?

A. I have stated every exception I think of.

Q. The exceptions you have stated are those which you have at present in mind. Would you state that the exceptions you have stated are exhausted, and that there are no others?

A. No, I would not.

Q. They are simply all that you have in mind?

A. No, I would not state that anything is certain in the law. I have stated all that I can now think of.

Q. That is right. Well, now you have alleged or testified that in several cases to which you have referred there was no contribution between the defendants, and that the courts have so held——

A. No, the courts have not held that there is no contribution between defendants.

Q. Wait a moment.—have so held in actions in delicto. Now is that the universal rule, or are there exceptions to it?

A. I have stated the exceptions to that rule already. I have stated that where the cause of action grows out of neglect and there are two people, one of whom is answerable for the acts of the other by reason of the relation between them, they are not regarded as joint tort feasors if one is mutually responsible for the acts of the other and was not himself an actor in the wrong. In such cases there is not only contribution, there is indemnity, and the person who is not an actor is entitled to indemnity from the person whose wrong resulted in the injury; it is not a question of contribution at all.

Q. Then your answer would be: "Yes, there are exceptions"?

A. No, I have stated that there are what are apparently exceptions, but it is not a question of contribution at all.

Q. Well, then, will you state that there are no exceptions?

1277 It is immaterial to me which way you put it.

A. I will state that I know of no exception. I have characterized the case I suggested in my previous answers as not an exception to the rule, because it does not relate to contribution at all, but relates to indemnity.

Q. You said a great deal in your testimony on direct examination in regard to participation. Did you intend for the court to infer from your testimony that there was participation only in cases where a party had a right to appear?

A. I did not intend to say that there was participation only in those cases; I did intend to say that, in my opinion, based upon the cases which I have examined, the effect of participation is limited to cases where there was not a right to participate unless the party is admitted to the record as a party. In that event, his admission to the record constitutes him a party, and takes him out of the category by which I would describe a participant.

Q. Well, it takes him entirely out of the category——

A. —of mere participants, and makes him a party.

Q. Makes him a party of record?

A. Yes, but so far as the principle——

Q. Oh, I mean in the case of a suit where there is one plaintiff and one defendant only on the record.

A. Yes.

Q. Now does participation in the defence or with the plaintiff consist only in those cases where another party has a right to intervene and become a party to the record?

A. No; it does not extend necessarily only to cases where he has the right to become a party to the record. There are cases where he has no right to become a party to the record, where his relation to the matter is such that he has right to appear in court and be heard. There are cases where, after the institution of an action, an assignee will not be substituted in place of his assignor who was plaintiff at the inception of the action, and yet he has a right to be heard, although he is not a party to the record. That case is the case of Hirschbach v. Bock, to which I have already referred and in which I was of counsel. In that case the court refused to permit the assignee to be substituted, or the assignee's attorneys to be substituted, as a party; and yet the assignee, in my opinion, had a right to be heard in that action, because he had succeeded to the cause of action pending the litigation, and the Court of Appeals affirmed my view, I think, in the case of Hirshbach v. Fitzgerald, in 157 N. Y. So I would not use, as qualifying words, "the right to become a party on the record." I would limit it to the case of a party who has a legal right to appear and defend.

Q. Even in a case where a party has not the legal right to intervene and defend, does he not become a participant in the case when he does intervene and take part in a trial and endeavor to support either the plaintiff or the defendant? In such a case as that, is he not a participant in law, even although he is not a party 1278 on the record, and although he had no right to intervene?

A. You have used the word "intervene."

Q. I do not mean intervene in law; I do not mean it in that technical sense.

A. I assume that you do not. If he be a participant not intervening in the technical sense, my idea is that his mere participation, independent of the right, does not make him a party bound by the judgment. And I think that view is sustained by a large number of cases.

Q. Do you know of any cases in New York state that take the contrary view and say that a party is bound by the judgment because of the mere fact that he did intervene or did take part in the trial in court?

A. I know of no contrary decisions where the right did not exist.

Q. Well, now, you have stated the fact, the law of New York as a fact, that where there is a decision in the courts and a trial, that that becomes the law of that case?

A. I have so stated.

Q. Well, you do not assume that to be the law of the case, supposing it were pending before a single judge, there was a demurrer, the demurrer was overruled, the trial proceeds, and then it comes to a final decision, and the presiding judge says, "I have so ruled in reference to the demurrer; I think that I was mistaken in the law"?

A. At that stage?

Q. At that stage of the case wouldn't he have the right—isn't it usual and customary in the courts for judges to change their opinions and make a final decision in accordance with what they believe to be the law of the case, irrespective of what they may have ruled earlier in the trial as a question of law?

A. It depends on whether they are passing on the same question or not, properly before them for review.

Q. I assume the same question.

A. I say "properly before them for review." My understanding of the law of New York is if a presiding justice of the appellate division has determined the law of the case on demurrer and there is no ground at the time for reargument, and the case at a subsequent time comes up on a subsequent appeal and not on appeal from a former decision, that the court is bound by its former decision.

Q. The same judge?

A. The same judge.

Q. And the same court?

A. And the same court at a subsequent stage of the action, provided the point was decided by him properly at the previous stage of the action; I should think without motion for reargument that matter is determined by the court, and that the subsequent appeal will not bring that matter up for review, unless the matter is specified in the notice of appeal as ground for appeal.

1279 But you cannot appeal to a court in New York from its own decision; you must appeal to a higher court, and if you have not appealed to the Court of Appeals from interlocutory judgment to sustain the demurrer or overrule the demurrer, and you subsequently come up from appeal on the final judgment, and you have not specified the appeal to the Court of Appeals, but appeal from interlocutory judgment which has not been previously before the Court of Appeals, you cannot get the Court of Appeals to rule on that question. The Court of Appeals itself regards its decision which it has made at a previous stage in the action as binding on it. I say it so regards it; I do not know whether there is any "unless." I think the case of Getty v. Devlin in 54 N. Y. and the case of Getty v. Devlin in 70 N. Y. determines that fact as the law of New York when it refers to the previous decision in Getty v. Devlin in 54 N. Y. But it is not true, as far as I know, that the same judge passes again, at a later stage of the action, on the same question which he has previously passed upon, unless there is a motion before him, for reargument. It is also the rule in New York that a co-ordinate branch of the court will not review the decision of another branch of our court with equal power. Perhaps I ought to add to my answer that when a case has been appealed to the appellate division and a new trial has been granted on the ground that there was an error of law committed in the first trial, and the same case has gone to the Court of Appeals, and the Court of Appeals has declared the law applicable to the same state of facts, and it comes back to the lower court for a new trial, then the lower court is bound to apply, in my opinion, the law as determined by the Court of Appeals on the facts presented to it in the new trial rather than the law as determined by the appellate division in the same case. That is just what happened in the case of Hirshbach v. Bock, to which I have so frequently referred. When it came up on the new trial, they refused to regard the decision of the Court of Appeals as res adjudicata in the case, because the defendant had not appealed, but he regarded it as the rule of law applicable to the case and dismissed the complaint on the same state of facts. His action in that regard was not reported, so far as I know, and I am not aware of any similiar question having arisen in New York. But I was counsel in the case, and I know what he did.

Q. The doctrine of estoppel by reason of res adjudicata rests on public policy, and that public policy rests upon two grounds: that the plaintiff or defendant shall have but one day in court; secondly, that there should be an end of litigation: is that not true?

A. No, I do not think it is.

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is all.

The WITNESS: I ask leave of the court to say there were two questions submitted to me. I was asked if the two things were not true, and I answered, I do not think the two things are 1280 true. I should like to say which of the two I do not think is true.

HAMMOND, J.: If you desire to explain your answer, in justice to yourself, you may do so.

The WITNESS: I do: will you read the question, please?

[The question is read by the stenographer.]

The WITNESS: I think the second ground is true; I think the first ground is not true, as stated. I think if it were limited to people who were parties to the first litigation and their privies it would be true.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, gentlemen, are you through with this witness?

Mr. HEMENWAY: That is all.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That is all, Mr. Boston.

I have already offered, your Honor, a list of cases which I intended to make comprehensive of all that have been cited by any of the witnesses, but to avoid any possible omission I should like to ask that any cases that have been referred to by any of the witnesses or by Mr. Boston be admitted as part of the record.

Mr. HEMENWAY: I think it would be easy to look at the list of cases he has already put in, and, in order that we can have them all together, I think he had better add to it by name and volume because, in some instances, Mr. Boston does not state them in that way.

HAMMOND, J.: If the other side insist on that, I think you ought to do it.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: May I do that after the commissioner has written out the testimony, by putting it in the form of a list?

HAMMOND, J.: What you intend to do is to hand to him a list of the cases which have been alluded to by this witness in testifying?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Or by the deponents whose depositions have been put in by the defendant.

Mr. HEMENWAY: We have the same privilege, of course.

HAMMOND, J.: Yes, as to each of you, the cases you rely upon, whether they have been stated here or not.

Does that close the evidence, Mr. McClennen?

Mr. McClennen: Yes, your Honor; that is all the evidence for the plaintiff.

Hammond, J.: Anything in reply?

Mr. Hemenway: We expect to have here the deposition of Mr. Parker, and that we want to put in.

Hammond, J.: I would like to dispose of this matter to-1281 day in some way or other: have you reason to believe that the deposition of Mr. Parker is on the way?

Mr. Farley: I was informed by the commissioner from whom we expected to have it, that he was expected back to New York to-day. I think we can get it.

Hammond, J.: It is manifest that all this examination has gone on upon the depositions already in. I do not know what there will be in the direct of that other deposition to object to; I don't know that there will be anything further if he answers the same questions: I suppose it will be cumulative, will it not?

Mr. Hemenway: We do not expect it will be contradictory of anything we have put in: cannot we use the deposition, when it comes, just as we have the others, submitting it to the other side?

Hammond, J.: That might be, but if there is something in that deposition which would lead the plaintiff to put in additional testimony, that is the trouble about it. I think I will leave this question here; that the deposition can go in—in the first place, it is a question whether you get it or not—after you hear from them whether they want to make any objections or not.

Mr. McClennen: As to the Milburn deposition which has been put in, though not read, I simply would like to make the same objections as in the case of the other depositions.

Mr. Hemenway: I move to strike out the "not read;" it has been constructively read.

Mr. McClennen: Not read by me.

Hammond, J.: You desire to have your objections stand against the Milburn deposition?

Mr. McClennen: Yes, your Honor.

Hammond, J.: Very well, they may stand against it.

Mr. Hemenway: But not on the ground that it has not been read.

Hammond, J.: I think it is generally understood that this case is not to be argued before me. I have assumed that. I understand the expectation of both parties is that the case is not to be argued before me.

Mr. McClennen: I had assumed so, largely from what the court said.

Hammond, J.: I see no additional fact that it is necessary for me to find.

Mr. McClennen: I should suppose not.

Hammond, J.: Well, then, I suppose the proper disposition of this case will be, first, a reservation of the facts found upon the pleadings, the facts found by Judge Sheldon, and the evidence. You 1282 have reserved, I suppose, in every case—do you think it is open to you—that the evidence does not warrant the finding?

Mr. HEMENWAY: Certainly.

HAMMOND, J.: Very well, on the evidence and the findings of Judge Sheldon. The findings will stand, because under the rules applicable to the evidence in the case the court sees no reason to contradict them.

Mr. HEMENWAY: And to have no further force by reason of this reservation than when the case went up before?

HAMMOND, J.: It stands as it did before.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: That is, the reservation, in substance, is the same as if there were final decrees and appeals taken therefrom subject to such modification as the full court deems proper by reason of this new matter.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, I do not think you need to make it a matter of form. If you can agree about form, I will sign the reservation; if you cannot agree upon it, I will hear you as to form and then sign it. When can you do that?

Mr. MCCLENNEN: Well, I can submit to Mr. Hemenway a form this afternoon.

HAMMOND, J.: I think you ought to get it out at once in regular form.

Mr. HEMENWAY: Well, there are certain matters that have arisen, and upon which Mr. Justice Braley passed, as, for instance, that we ought to be enjoined from prosecuting a suit anywhere else, and that came up on a petition for such injunction. The injunction was entered and the defendant duly appealed. Now we want to make that a part of the record, so that the whole case may go before the court.

HAMMOND, J.: I suppose there is no objection to that.

Mr. MCCLENNEN: I assume that is all part of the record.

HAMMOND, J.: Well, that disposes of this case, then.

GEORGE C. BURPEE.
Commissioner.

Copy.

Attest:

—— ——, Clerk.

1283*i*

Index.

	Page
Title
Appearance (before Braley, J.)	877
Commissioner appointed	877
Deposition of Edward F. McClennen	877
Reading of deposition of Charles H. Altmiller	878
Appearances (before Hammond, J.)	896
Commissioner appointed	907
New York record	907
Previous testimony	907
Deposition of Charles T. Terry	908
Depositions offered	910
Designation of previous testimony	912
Depositions filed	934
Memorandum of objections made by plaintiff to respective witnesses for defendant	935
Deposition of Guy Fairfax Cary	944
James Byrne	945
Edward W. Hatch	950
Charles F. Brown	965
Martin L. Stover	986
John B. Stanchfield	1002
William A. Keener	1015
Peter B. Olney	1030
William H. Wadhams	1043
Dennis O'Brien	1058
John G. Milburn	1071
New York cases offered in evidence by defendant	1092
Correspondence between counsel	1104
	1117
	1119

Correspondence submitted by counsel for defendant:

1902, Sept.	4, Brandeis to Walter Lewisohn, executor	1119
	10, Bigelow to Brandeis	1120
	11, Bigelow to Brandeis	1121
1283*ii*
1902, Sept.	11, O. D. C. M. & S. Co. to Bigelow and executors	1121
	12, Brandeis to Bigelow	1121
	12, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1122
	12, Lauterbach to Brandeis	1122
	13, Lauterbach to Brandeis	1123
	13, —— to Brandeis	1124
	15, Brandeis to Hyams	1125
	16, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1125
	18, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1125

		Page
	20, Lauterbach to Brandeis	1126
	22, Brandeis to Hemenway	1126
	27, Brandeis to Hemenway	1127
	29, Brandeis to Hemenway	1127
Nov.	8, Brandeis to Hemenway	1128
	18, Brandeis to Hemenway	1128
1903, March	2, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1128
	17, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1129
	17, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1130
	17, Brandeis to Hemenway	1130
April	2, Brandeis to Hemenway	1131
May	1, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1131
	1, Brandeis to Hemenway	1132
	15, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1132
	18, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1132
	21, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1133
	21, Brandeis to Hemenway	1133
1904, Jan.	13, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1134
	25, Brandeis to Hemenway	1134
No date	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1134
April	6, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1135
	6, Brandeis to Hemenway	1135
	11, Brandeis to Hemenway	1136
	18, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1136
	21, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1137
	28, Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson to Brandeis	1137
	29, Brandeis to Hoadley, Lauterbach & Johnson	1137
1283*iii*
1904, June	3, Brandeis to Hemenway	1138
	6, Brandeis to Hemenway	1138
	7, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1139
	13, Brandeis to Hemenway	1139
	21, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1139
	28, Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson to Brandeis	1140
Sept.	9, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1140
	10, Lauterbach to Brandeis	1141
	14, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1141
	20, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1141
	22, Brandeis to Hemenway	1142
	23, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1142
Oct.	6, Brandeis to Hemenway	1143
Nov.	2, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1143
	3, Brandeis to Hemenway	1144
	11, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1144
	11, Brandeis to Hemenway	1145
Dec.	15, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1145
1905, Jan.	10, Brandeis to Lauterbach	1146
	12, Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson to Brandeis	1146

			Page
	18,	Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson to Brandeis.	1147
	26,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1147
Feb.	1,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1147
	13,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1148
	17,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1148
	17,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1149
	18,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1149
June	26,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1150
July	11,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1150
	14,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1151
	14,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1151
	17,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1151
Sept.	30,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1152
	30,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1152
Oct.	5,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1153
	9,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1153
1283*iv*
1905, Oct.	9,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1154
	14,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1154
	16,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1154
	21,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1155
	21,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1155
	23,	Lauterbach to Brandeis	1156
	28,	Brandeis to Hemenway	1156
	28,	Brandeis to Lauterbach	1157
	31,	—— to Brandeis	1157
Nov.	2,	Brandeis to Treadwell	1158
	24,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Treadwell	1158
	27,	—— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1158
Dec.	1,	Brandeis to Treadwell	1159
	2,	—— to Brandeis	1159
	4,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Treadwell	1159
	6,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Treadwell	1160
	7,	—— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1160
	12,	Treadwell to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1160
1906, Jan.	13,	Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1160
	15,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1161
March	2,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1161
	2,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Lauterbach	1161
	3,	—— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1162
	5,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1162
	27,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1162
	28,	—— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1163
April	17,	Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1163
	26,	McClennen to Hemenway	1163

			Page
	May	7, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1164
		8, —— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1165
		9, McClennen to Hemenway	1165
1283*v*
1906,	May	14, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1166
		15, McClennen to Hemenway	1166
		15, —— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1166
		16, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1167
		17, —— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1167
	July	6, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1167
		10, —— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1168
		12, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1168
		14, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1168
1907,	Feb.	8, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1169
		11, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1169
		12, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hemenway	1169
	March	19, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1170
1907,	March	25, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1171
	April	30, Brandeis to Hemenway	1171
	May	20, Brandeis to Hemenway	1172
		24, —— to Brandeis	1172
		28, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1173
		28, McClennen to Hemenway	1173
		31, —— to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter	1173
	June	3, —— to Brandeis	1174
	July	12, Brandeis to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1174
		12, Brandeis to Hemenway	1175
		16, —— to Brandeis	1175
		17, Brandeis to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1176
	Sept.	4, Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1177
	Oct.	3, Brandeis to Treadwell	1177
1283*vi*
1908,	Oct.	5, Farley to Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter
Testimony of John Wells Farley			1178
Deposition of Alton B. Parker			1192
		William B. Hornblower	1204

	Page
New York cases offered in evidence by plaintiff	1215
Stipulations by counsel	1220
Correspondence between counsel (additional)	1224
Extract from respondent's brief in United States Supreme Court case	1226
Extracts from complainant's brief and bill filed in Chancery of New Jersey	1228
Testimony from printed record	1230
Letter from Brandeis to Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson	1230
Testimony of Charles Anderson Boston	1231

1 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS:

BOSTON, December 17, 1909.

I certify the annexed to be a true copy of the opinion of the Supreme Judicial Court in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. vs. Albert S. Bigelow decided on the 14th day of September, 1909.

HENRY WALTON SWIFT,
Reporter of Decisions.

1½ RUGG, J.:

These are suits in equity, by which the plaintiff seeks to recover secret profits made by the defendnt as one of its organizers, in selling to it while under the absolute control and management of himself and his associate, one Lewisohn, certain mining properties belonging to him and Lewisohn. The allegations of the bills are set out at length in 188 Mass. 315, where one of the cases was considered upon demurrer. After the overruling of the demurrer the defendant answered, and the cases were heard before a single justice, who entered decrees in favor of the plaintiff in both cases and filed a report of the facts found by him. Except as to matters immaterial so far as the questions of law are involved, he found that the allegations were sustained. Briefly recapitulated, the facts appearing in the report upon which the plaintiff rests its claim are that in April, 1895, the defendant and Lewisohn formed a device to secure the control of the stock (the par value of which was $500,000) of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, called the Baltimore Company, and the title to certain other neighboring mining properties, called the outside properties, and to cause these properties and the real estate of the Baltimore Company to be transferrd to a new corporation (which they should procure to be organized with a much larger capital), for an increased price. Options were secured upon these properties, and the price agreed to be paid by the defendant and Lewisohn to the owners was $1,000,000, divided in the proportion of 547/1000 by the defendant, and 453/1000 by Lewisohn. The outside properties were regarded by all parties as of little or no value and were thrown in as a makeweight in the purchase of the stock of the Baltimore Company. The single justice, while finding that they could not be said to be of no value, was satisfied that their value did not exceed $50,000. No examination to ascertain their value was made by the defendant or Lewisohn, or by any one in behalf of the plaintiff. For the purpose of providing himself with funds to meet in part his financial obligations for the purchase of 2 the properties, the defendant, before taking up the options, organized an underwriting syndicate and another syndicate called the Old Dominion Syndicate. It is not necessary to state the details of these arrangements, further than to say that it is found as a fact that the defendant did not deal fairly with the members of the syndicate in the division of his profits, and did not disclose to the great majority of them the fact of the secret profit. The obligation of purchase was assumed wholly by the defendant and Lewisohn and the device for the organization of the new corporation was entirely theirs. Although, as first conceived, it was the avowed intention of the defendant and Lewisohn (which the defendant expressed to various members of the syndicate) to form a new corporation with a capital stock of $2,500,000 which should take the property of the Baltimore Company and the outside properties for $2,000,000 of its capital stock and procure a working capital of $500,000 by the sale of the rest of the capital stock to the public for cash at par, they proceeded to organize the plaintiff corporation under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $3,750,000, divided into one hundred and fifty thousand shares of the par value of $25 each. But it was the intention of the defendant and Lewisohn (as found by the single justice) that "twenty thousand shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff should be issued to new subscribers at par; and this was done in the summer and fall of 1895." This organization was conducted and controlled wholly by the defendant and Lewisohn through themselves and their agents and representatives. Without providing the plaintiff with an independent board of officers or representatives they, as the responsible and only managers of the plaintiff, acting in its name, contracted with themselves as mine owners to sell to it the real estate of the Baltimore Company for $2,500,000 of the capital stock of the plaintiff and the outside properties, of trifling value at best, for $750,000 of such capital stock, and to sell to the general public for working capital the remaining $500,000 of capital stock of the plaintiff at par, without disclosing that they had sold property costing them only $1,000,000 for three and a quarter times its cost.

The first meeting of the stockholders was held on July 7, 1895, at which $1,000,—the lowest amount of capital with which a 3 corporation organized under the laws of New Jersey could begin business,—was paid in by Lewisohn. This money, although deposited to the credit of the plaintiff company upon its organization, was afterwards returned by it to Lewisohn in an accounting with him. A meeting of the directors was held in New York on July 11, 1895, at which the defendant became a director and the president of the plaintiff and Lewisohn a director. Votes were passed to increase the capital stock and two separate votes for the purchase of the mining properties for the prices in stock before indicated. The stock, the market value of which was fully as great as its par value, was issued to the defendant and Lewisohn and one Dumaresq, their nominee, by votes of September 18, 1895, on that or the following day. At the same time a certificate for the remaining twenty thousand shares of stock of the par value of $500,000 was made out in the name of "Thomas Nelson, treasurer," but this stock is found to have belonged to the corporation, and Nelson had no right to act respecting it, as it was taken up by direct subscriptions of the public. The conveyances of the mines by the Baltimore Company and of the outside properties by Lewisohn were not made until December, 1895, or January, 1896. The intrinsic value of the property conveyed by the Baltimore Company is found to have been not more than $1,000,000, although its market value, largely due to the skillful manipulation of the defendant and Lewisohn, and "the ingenious manner in which they created a desire on the part of men interested in mines, as investors or speculators, to be allowed to join in the transaction they were carrying out," was something less than $2,000,000. The report proceeds: "But, taking the most favorable view of the situation possible for the defendants, he and Lewisohn did, by reason of their failure to disclose the real facts as aforesaid, make out of their sale to the plaintiff company a secret profit of fifty thousand shares of its capital stock, of which the defendant's portion was twenty-seven thousand three hundred and fifty shares, and Lewisohn's portion was twenty-two thousand six hundred and fifty shares. If he had fully disclosed the facts to the plaintiff company and secured for it independent advice, it would not have given to him this secret profit; * * * Lewisohn and he were acting in the formation and execution of the scheme together and in concert. Each of them was doing his part to carry out a joint scheme, which was intended to inure to the advantage of both. The control exercised by them over the plaintiff company was a joint control, and was exercised by them for the benefit of both. A proper disclosure of the real facts by either would have frustrated the schemes of both; they both acted together in pursuance of a common design, and for the profit of both." "During all these transactions the full control of the plaintiff company was in the hands of and was exercised by the defendant and Lewisohn, who were its promoters and who themselves determined upon and dictated, under the advice of their counsel, everything that was done by the plaintiff company or in its behalf; it had no directors, representatives, or advisers other than themselves or their agents; and they did not disclose to it any of the facts which have been stated. This continued to be the case until April, 1902. * * *

"The result of his and Lewisohn's transactions with the plaintiff company was that for the $1,000,000 of their own and their associates' money which they invested, they received, subject to the payment of legitimate expenses of not over $20,000, stock to the par value of $3,250,000, and of the actual value of at least that amount: that is, at the rate of more than three dollars for one. He gave to the members of his syndicate two dollars for one, either wholly in stock or half in cash and half in stock, as they elected. With a few individual exceptions he did not disclose the facts to them. The very great majority of the members of his syndicate did not become aware of the details of what he and Lewisohn had done." The capital stock issued to defendant and Lewisohn was stamped "Issued for property purchased." The law of New Jersey required that such stock be issued only "to the amount of the value" of the property so purchased. Pub. Laws of New Jersey, 1889, p. 414, § 4; 1893, p. 444, §2. The vote of July 11, 1895, to purchase the mining properties was in fact passed by a majority only of the board of directors, for three do not appear to have been present at that time. At the directors' meeting of September 18, 1895, when the votes to issue thirty thousand full paid shares to the defendant and Lewisohn and one hundred thousand like shares to their nominee Dumare were passed, seven directors were present, the five aside fro Bigelow and Lewisohn being their tools, and at the end of t record of that meeting all the directors signed an assent to t acts done, and Bigelow and Lewisohn, signing for thirty thousa shares of capital stock, Dumaresq signing for one hundred thousa shares of the capital stock, and "Thomas Nelson, Treasurer," signi for twenty thousand shares of capital stock, being the whole numb of shares, signified a written approval of the acts of that meetin

The single justice found that the twenty thousand shares were th property of the plaintiff, and that Nelson had no right to attem to act as their holder.

1. The defendant strenuously contends that certain facts foun by the single justice are not supported by the evidence. He firs attacks the finding, vital to the plaintiff's case, that the scheme o the defendant and Lewisohn, as framed and executed, contemplate that twenty housand shares of stock in the plaintiff corporation should be issued to new subscribers at par, and that the defendan and Lewisohn did not agree to take all the stock in the plaintiff corporation in return for the mining properties conveyed to it and $500,000 in cash for a working capital. He argues that the evidence required a finding that Bigelow and Lewisohn agreed as a part of their scheme to take all the capital stock in return for the mines and $500,000 in cash. He also assails the findings, that the property conveyed to the plaintiff by the defendant and Lewisohn for one hundred and thirty thousand of its shares of a par value of $3,250,000 was worth intrinsically not more than $1,000,000, and that its market value, due to the skilful manipulation of the defendant and Lewisohn and their ingenious baiting of the stock market, was less than $2,000,000; and he contends that the evidence demonstrates the truth to be that the plaintiff paid no more than it was worth.

The evidence was oral, documentary and in depositions. The rule of practice respecting such a contention as this has been often declared. In an appeal in equity from a final decree, where all the testimony is reported, it is the duty of the appellate court to examine the evidence and decide the case on its merits, both as to the facts and the law; but where the evidence upon disputed issues is partly oral, the findings of fact of a single justice will not be disturbed unless plainly wrong. Jennings v. Vahey, 183 Mass. 47. Lindsey
v. Bird, 193 Mass. 200. It becomes necessary, therefore, to examine the evidence upon this point somewhat in detail.

The offers of the Baltimore Company for the sale of its property to the plaintiff, and of Lewisohn for the sale of the outside properties, were in writing, and the votes of the plaintiff accepting them were spread upon the records of the directors' meeting of July 11, 1895. These provided distinctly for the issue of one hundred and thirty thousand shares of the plaintiff's capital stock in payment for these conveyances. The records of the plaintiff show no vote touching the issue of the remaining twenty thousand shares. If, as claimed by the defendant, it was then contemplated that these shares should be issued to him and Lewisohn at par for cash, it seems probable that a vote to this effect would then have been passed. The only vote respecting the issue of these remaining shares was that of the directors on September 18, 1895, when, after a vote authorizing the issue of a certificate for one hundred thousand shares to Dumaresq (who was the nominee of Bigelow and Lewisohn) and another for thirty thousand shares to Bigelow and Lewisohn, it was voted that the treasurer of the company be "instructed to issue twenty thousand shares * * * to such parties as have subscribed for the same." If it was then understood that Bigelow and Lewisohn had agreed to take all the shares, including the twenty thousand for cash at par and were the subscribers therefor, no sufficient reason appears for not saying so in the vote, instead of adopting a phrase suited to express an intent to issue the shares to the general public. Moreover, at this time, as shown by the only subscription list of the plaintiff, the general public had subscribed generously for stock. The language of the vote aptly refers to such subscribers. The only paper, which appears by the evidence to have been signed by subscribers for stock, was dated July 18, 1895, two months before the vote to issue the twenty thousand shares was passed. The certificate for the twenty thousand shares was issued in the name of "Thomas Nelson, Treasurer," he being the treasurer of the plaintiff. It is ingeniously argued that in this matter Nelson was acting as the treasurer of those who had become subscribers to stock and not as treasurer of the plaintiff. But he treated their payments as if made to the treasurer of the plaintiff. If this certificate had been in truth issued to the nominee of Bigelow and Lewisohn in return for their obligation to pay cash for its face value, naturally it would have been issued without any official title attached, as was that to their nominee, Dumaresq. It is a significant coincidence that the form of certificate selected was the same which, in other companies controlled by the defendant, was used when stock was in fact treasury stock. This certificate was subdivided in the autumn of 1895, and nineteen thousand six hundred and fifty shares were issued to various subscribers, who paid for them directly to the plaintiff, and not to Bigelow or Lewisohn. The remaining three hundred and fifty shares, although subscribed for, were not taken by subscribers. They were not taken or paid for by Bigelow or Lewisohn, but about two years later were sold by direction of Nelson, who was still the treasurer of the plaintiff, through brokers, and their face value credited on the plaintiff's books to treasury stock and the excess above par, for which they were sold, to the interest account. This sum does not appear to have been the equivalent of interest due from the defendant and which should have been paid, if he originally subscribed for the shares, and his name does not appear in connection with them on the plaintiff's books. The transaction respecting the subdivision of this certificate was conducted in substance on the footing of original subscribers, and not of purchasers from Bigelow. The names of those, to whom the shares were issued, appear upon the "Corrected List" of the plaintiff, which was its only record of subscription, and in which the shares taken by each are described as "allotments." If they were subscribers to the defendant and Lewisohn merely for stock held by them, there was no reason why their names should appear on the plaintiff's subscription list. Notices were sent to these subscribers by the treasurer of the plaintiff, and not by Bigelow, and checks were returned payable to the order of the treasurer, and were deposited directly to the credit of the plaintiff, although notices and subscriptions to the syndicate formed by Bigelow to aid him in furnishing the purchase price were sent by and returned to Bigelow. Various written statements of Bigelow, as for instance that they proposed "to open the bag just a little to the public" and that the public were 8 "starving" for the shares, appear inconsistent with the theory that he and Lewisohn were the subscribers for the entire capital stock. These and other circumstances are sufficient to warrant the finding of the single justice. Apparently he credited contemporaneous acts, entries and other writings with their natural inferences rather than the direct oral and other testimony to the contrary given at the trial. It cannot be said that in this he was plainly wrong.

The finding as to the value of the property conveyed by the defendant and Lewisohn to the plaintiff is also supported by testimony and cannot be disturbed. The evidence touching this matter came from various sources. The former owners had operated the mine with some degree of success on a capitalization of $500,000. They had greater experience and a more intimate knowledge respecting it than any one else, and they seem to have been men accustomed to large business operations and not unfamiliar with mining. They do not appear to have been under any compulsion to sell. The price for which such owners in fact sold their property might well have been regarded as the best test of its value. But the finding was approximately double this sum. Although other circumstances perhaps might have supported a higher valuation, there is no ground for holding this plainly, or even probably, wrong.

These are the main facts relied upon by the plaintiff. Other findings are controverted by the defendant. Without discussing them in detail it is enough to say that a careful examination of the voluminous record discloses no reason for doubting their correctness.

2. At the threshold lies the question as to what law determines the character of these transactions and the liability of the defendant therefor. The votes to purchase the real estate of the Baltimore Company and the outside properties were passed at a meeting of the plaintiff's board of directors held in New York, but they were not New York contracts in the sense that they are to be governed necessarily by the law of New York. As found by the single justice, "It was the intention of the parties that these agreements should be carried out and consummated by the delivery of the deeds and the issue of certificates of stock in Massachusetts, where it was intended that the offices of the company should be, and where they 9 were established, in Boston, and where, in fact, they were so carried out. It was intended that the business of the company, outside the actual mining and smelting operations, which were to be conducted in Arizona, should be carried on in Massachusetts; and this was done." Where a contract is made with a purpose by the parties to it that it shall be performed in a particular place, its validity and interpretation are to be determined by the law of the place where it is to be performed. It is made with a view to that law. Pritchard v. Norton, 106 U. S. 124. Hall v. Cordell, 142 U. S. 116. Andrews v. Pond, 13 Pet. 65. Hamlyn v. Talisker Distillery, [1894] A. C. 202. American Malting Co. v. Souther Brewing Co. 194 Mass. 89. The ruling of the single justice that the transaction is to be determined according to the law of this Commonwealth appears to have been right.

But, however that may be, the single justice has found as a fact that the law of New York applicable to the case is the same as that of Massachusetts. The only evidence as to the New York law before the single justice was the following cases decided by the courts of that State: Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 232; Seymour v. Spring Forest Cemetery Association, 144 N. Y. 333; Barr v. New York, Lake Erie & Western Railroad, 125 N. Y. 263; Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349; Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403; Campbell v. Cypress Hills Cemetery, 41 N. Y. 34; Colton Improvement Co. v. Richter, 55 N. Y. Supp. 486; and there were also admitted de bene Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 148 Fed. Rep. 1020; S. C. 136 Fed. Rep. 915; and McCracken v. Robison, 57 Fed. Rep. 375, decided in the United States Circuit Court for the district of New York.

The defendant's attack upon this finding stands upon a somewhat different basis from that upon the other findings of fact, because this rests wholly upon documentary evidence, and the appellate court stands precisely as did the justice, who heard the case, in respect of opportunities to weigh evidence and draw inferences from it. The trial court has not here the advantage of seeing the witnesses and judging of their credibility by personal observation. Hence no special presumption exists in favor of his finding. Harvey-Watts Co. v. Worcester Umbrella Co. 193 Mass. 138. But 10 the decision must be made upon the evidence which was before the single justice. The cases in the federal courts are not evidence as to the law of New York, for the reason that, this being a question of general law, the federal courts declare the law upon their own views and are not bound by decisions of State courts. Olcott v. Supervisors, 16 Wall. 678, 689. Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 33, 34. Pleasant Township v. Ætna Ins. Co. 138 U. S. 67, 73. Moreover, the federal cases cited do not purport to declare what is the law of New York. While none of the decisions of the New York courts is based upon facts precisely like those in the case at bar, Brewster v. Hatch, 122 N. Y. 349, and Campbell v. Cypress Hills Cemetery, 41 N. Y. 34, are so nearly akin in essential features, and the statement of legal principles in each is such as to lead to the conclusion that the finding of the single justice was correct.

Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 232, is relied upon by the defendant as announcing a different doctrine; but it does not so appear to us. Several corporations and their officers there joined in a written contract for the formation of a new corporation with a fixed capitalization and for the transfer of their several properties to it for a definite amount of its stock. The maximum amount that might be paid for the capital stock of a certain other corporation was fixed by implication in the agreement. All the persons contemplated, and none others, became members of the new corporation. These were treated by the court as together constituting the organizers of the corporation. The fact that the maximum price permitted by the agreement was in fact paid for the capital stock of the other corporation and that a great profit was obtained by some of the organizers was regarded not as a fraud upon the corporation but upon the associates in the organization. It was held not to be a case for the application of the law governing promoters. This case cannot be considered as stating a rule in conflict with the finding of the single justice.

In its practical results it is not of much consequence whether the law of the situs, either of Massachusetts or New York, or of the forum, governs, for upon this record and the findings before us, the law of this Commonwealth controls the rights and obligations of the parties.

3. The next inquiry is as to the liability of the defendant. The plaintiff seeks to establish this on the ground that the defendant and Lewisohn framed a scheme, which was an entirety and which as a whole comprised the organization and continued management of the plaintiff by themselves, their agents and representatives, until the completion of the project; this scheme was the capitalization of the plaintiff for $3,750,000; the sale to it of their property, costing and intrinsically worth $1,000,000, but having in the market a value not over $2,000,000, for $3,250,000; the sale to the general public at par for cash of the remaining $500,000 of stock; and all this without providing the plaintiff with any independent board of officers or advisers to pass upon the wisdom of the purchase and without disclosing the substance of the transaction and their extraordinary profit to the purchasers of its stock for cash at par. This scheme was an entity, one part of it was just as essential as any other part, and one part was the procurement of $500,000 in cash from the unenlightened public as a working capital for the new company. 11

It has been decided, apparently by a unanimous court, that such a transaction creates a liability on the part of the defendant to account for his profits to the plaintiff in this proceeding. Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 310. One of the present suits was before the court as reported in 188 Mass. 315, and after an elaborate review of the authorities and examination of the grounds for judgment, it was held that the defendant was liable, notwithstanding the opposing decision on the precise point by the United States Circuit Court in Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 136 Fed. Rep. 915. Since the decision reported in 188 Mass. 315, the above entitled case against Lewisohn has been considered by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals (148 Fed. Rep. 1020) and by the Supreme Court of the United States (210 U. S. 206) and without dissent a conclusion has been reached contrary to that of this court. The deference due to a decision by the highest court in the land and the intrinsic importance of the question at issue require a reconsideration of our own cases, a re-examination of the authorities and a careful consideration of the principles involved.

The plaintiff seeks to recover a secret profit made by the 12 promoters in the sale of their own property to the corporation, basing its claim on the general and well recognized proposition that a promoter cannot take lawfully a secret profit and will be held to account for it if he does.* Fundamently the action is to recover profits obtained by a breach of trust. There is a distinct finding by the single justice that the defendant and Lewisohn were the promoters of the plaintiff. This finding is amply justified by the evidence. In their brains it was conceived, by their direction the formalities of its incorporation were carried out, their resources provided its mines, their influence and reputation with those desiring to invest in mines procured its working cash capital. The word "promoter" has no precise and inflexible meaning in this country. In England it is defined by statute. St. 7 & 8 Vict. c. 110, § 3. See also St. 30 & 31 Vict. c. 131, § 38. But even there the duties of promoters as fiduciaries to the company are matters of common law cognizance. Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218, 1269. In a comprehensive sense "promoter" includes those who undertake to form a corporation and to procure for it the rights, instrumentalities and capital by which it is to carry out the purposes set forth in its charter, and to establish it as fully able to do its business. Their work may begin long before the organization of the corporation, in seeking the opening for a venture and projecting a plan for its development, and may continue after the incorporation by attracting the investment of capital in its securities and providing it with the commercial breath of life. It is now established without exception that a promoter stands in a fiduciary relation to the corporation in which he is interested, and that he is charged with all the duties of good faith which attach to other trusts.

In this respect he is held to the high standards which bind
13 directors and other persons occupying fiduciary relations.†

That the promoters stands in the relation of a fiduciary to the corporation which he organizes seems to be conceded in Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206,

---

* Parker v. Nickerson, 112 Mass. 195, 196. Parker v. Nickerson, 137 Mass. 487, 497. Bagnall v. Carlton, 6 Ch. D. 371. Emma Silver Mining Co. v. Grant, 11 Ch. D. 918, 936. Nant-y-Glo & Blaina Ironworks Co. v. Grave, 12 Ch. D. 738. Lyndney & Wigpool Iron Co. v. Bird, 33 Ch. D. 85. Whitley Bridge Calico Printing Co. v. Green, 5 Q. B. D. 109. Chandler v. Bacon, 30 Fed. Rep. 538. Yale Gas Stove Co. v. Wilcox, 64 Conn. 101, 119, 120. Hinkley v. Sac Oil & Pipe Line Co. 132 Iowa, 396, 402, 403. Fred Macey Co. v. Macey, 143 Mich. 138, 152. Zinc Carbonate Co. v. First National Bank of Shullsburg, 103 Wis. 125. Pietsch v. Milbrath, 123 Wis. 647. Cox v. Coal & Oil Investment Co. 61 W. Va. 291, 305.

† Dickerman v. Northern Trust Co. 176 U. S. 181, 202. Yetser v. United States Board & Paper Co. 107 Fed. Rep. 340. Chaffe v. Berkley, 141 Iowa, 344. Getty v. Devlin, 54 N. Y. 403; S. C. 70 N. Y. 504. Laudenslager v. Woodbury Heights Land Co. 73 Fed. 556, 560. Exter v. Sawyer, 146 Mo. 302, 322. Johnson v. Sheridan Lumber Co. 51 Ore. 35. Camden Land Co. v. Lewis, 101 Maine, 78. Cox v. Coal & Oil Investment Co. 61 W. Va. 291, 305. The Telegraph v. Loetscher, 127 Iowa, 383. Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 310, and cases cited at p. 318.

The questions to be answered are, whether this rule is applicable, and if it is, whether the plaintiff is in a position to assert its claim.

Notwithstanding this fiduciary relation the promoter may sell property to the company which he is promoting. But in order that the contract may be absolutely binding he must pursue one of four course: (a) He may provide an independent board of officers in no respect directly or indirectly under his control, and make full disclosure to the corporation through them; (b) He may make a full disclosure of all material facts to each original subscriber of shares in the corporation; (c) He may procure a ratification of the contract after disclosing its circumstances by vote of the stockholders of the completely established corporation; (d) He may be himself the real subscriber of all the shares of the capital stock contemplated as a part of the promotion scheme. The defendant does not contend upon this report that either of the first two courses was followed. He does rest his claim chiefly upon the third and fourth courses. As applied to the facts of this case these two come to the same thing, for the reason that on the findings of the single justice the defendant and his associate were subscribers for only one hundred and thirty thousand shares out of a total — one hundred and fifty thousand and in the light most favorable to them they held all the shares which had been issued at the time of the ratification, but not all which it was proposed to issue as a part of the scheme of promotion. The point to be determined, therefore, is whether the promoter is immune from liability if he and his associates are owners of all 14 the issued stock at the time of the act complained of, although intending as a part of their plan the immediate issue of further stock to the public without disclosure, and whether, while a substantial portion of the stock intended to be issued to the public remains unissued, a vote of ratification of the breach of trust will protect him.

A review of the authorities seems to demonstrate that there is a liability of the promoter to the corporation when further original subscribers to capital stock contemplated as an essential part of the scheme of promoters came in after the transaction complained of, even though that transaction is known to all the then stockholders, that is to say, to the promoters and their representatives.

Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218, is one of the most important and thoroughly considered cases, and, as it has been said to be a case often misunderstood (Lord Davey in Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22, 57), it is well to consider it at length. It was first heard by Vice-Chancellor Malins under the name of New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger (5 Ch. D. 73), then by the justices of appeal (5 Ch. D. 102), and finally by the House of Lords, where it was twice argued. The facts were these: Erlanger and his associates, hereafter spoken of as the syndicate, bought of the official liquidator of a broken down company the lease of a phosphate island, for £55,000. The agreement for purchase was signed on September 11, and was subject to the approval of the judge, which was given on September 15, 1871. By its terms the contract was to be completed on November 15, 1871. The syndicate then organized the New Sombrero Phosphate Company under St. 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89 (3 App. Cas. 1264). The articles of association of the new corporation were signed on September 20, 1871, and the company registered on September 20 or 21 (5 Ch. D. 76). On registration the corporation was created under 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, § 18 of which provided that upon registration "the subscribers * * * shall thereupon be a body corporate * * * capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company." The signers of the articles of association were tools of the syndicate. The members of the first board of directors were named in the articles

15 of association. Two were out of the country and would not attend meetings; others were an employee of Erlanger, a retired admiral of the English navy, whose shares necessary to qualify him as a director were paid for by Erlanger (5 Ch. D. 107, 108), and the mayor of London; three directors made a quorum, and the last three named attended the meetings. The syndicate anticipated its payments required by its contract and acquired the lease of the island on September 21, 1871. The first meeting of the directors was held on September 29, 1871, at which was produced and approved by resolution an agreement between one Evans (in whose name in behalf of the syndicate the contract for the purchase of the lease from the official liquidator was made), and one Pavy (acting for the new company), dated September 20, whereby Evans sold and Pavy for the company bought the lease of the island for £80,000 in cash and £30,000 in paid up stock. In the discussion of this case in 210 U. S. at p. 216 this contract is stated to have been "provisional on the shares being taken and the company formed," but we do not so understand it as set forth in 5 Ch. D. 75, 76 and 95. It was subject to the new company being registered (which was done on September 20 or 21), and to the contract with the official liquidator being approved by the judge (which was done on September 15) and duly performed (which was done on September 21) and to the confirmation by the company (which was given by vote of the directors on September 29, who were in this regard clothed by the articles of association with all the authority of the corporation itself, 3 App. Cas. 1273, 1274), but it contained no other provisional features. The directors adopted the contract between Evans and Pavy without investigation into its merits, and in ignorance of the profit made by the syndicate except as Evans had such knowledge. After this the public oversubscribed. The stock was issued, £30,000 to the syndicate and £100,000 to the public; and on November 2 £80,000 was paid to the syndicate by the company. 5 Ch. D. 96. Respecting this agreement for sale by the syndicate it is further said in 210 U. S. at p. 217, that "the contract seems to have reached forward to the moment when they [the public] subscribed. As it is put in 2 [I is meant] Morawetz, Corp. (2d ed.) § 292, there was really no company till the shares were issued," and on this ground it is 16 stated by the court at p. 216 that the English case "seems to us far from establishing a different doctrine for that jurisdiction." We cannot accede to this interpretation. The company was fully formed the moment it was registered. The subscription for the shares required as a prerequisite to registration under the English statute established the company as fully as the forty shares subscribed and the $1,000 for capital stock, paid into the plaintiff's treasury on or before July 11, 1895, established it. It was enabled to make any contract within the scope of its powers. That is settled by the plain language of 25 & 26 Vict. c. 89, § 18, quoted above. But it also has been expressly so decided. It was said in Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22, at p. 51: "When the memorandum is duly signed and registered, though there be only seven shares taken, the subscribers are a body corporate 'capable forthwith,' to use the words of the enactment, 'of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company.' Those are strong words. The company attains maturity on its birth. There is no period of minority—no interval of incapacity." This apparently demonstrates the error of the further statement in 1 Morawetz, Corp. (2d ed.) 279, that "Before any shares were issued the existence of the corporation was a fiction." The remark of Lord Cairns (3 App. Cas. at p. 1239) to the effect that the contract for the sale of the island was "provisional on the shares being taken and the company completely formed" was made in connection with the defense of laches and not in the discussion as to the liability of the defendants (which he had concluded on an earlier page), and refers only to the fact that the scheme of the defendants to get £80,000 in cash out of the new company under their contract with it was dependent as a practical matter on the shares being taken by the public, and does not and cannot apply to the phraseology of the contract itself, for respecting that it is not correct. The only conditions named in the contract were that the company should be registered and confirm the contract and the contract of the syndicate with the official liquidator be performed. (See 5 Ch. D. 75, 76 and 95.) The distinction which appears to be established between the Erlanger case and the present one, by the decision of the United States Supreme Court, 210 U. S. 206, is that if promoters organize a company with a capital of $3,750,000 17 and sell to it through their dummy directors property bought by them for this purpose, for $3,250,000, in paid up shares, and then get by public subscription $500,000 for working capital, the transaction is valid. But if promoters, having bought property for £55,000, organize a company with a capital of £130,000, and while they are the only bona fide stockholders by vote of their directors sell to it their property for £110,000, to be paid £80,000 in cash and £30,000 in paid up shares, £100,000 being subscribed in cash by the public, the transaction is void. The only difference between the two cases is that in the Erlanger case the promoters were paid a part of the purchase price in money, the proceeds of public subscription, and received paid up shares, which they took in payment of the balance of the purchase price when the stock was issued to subscribers, while in the present case the whole purchase price was paid in stock, which was issued before any stock was issued to the public although after a substantial public subscription. In other words, the order in which the transaction is carried out, and not its substantial nature, makes the difference between liability and immunity of the promoter. It is true that in the Erlanger case, until after ratification by the company of the contract previously made in its behalf for the purchase of the lease of the island, the mayor of London by acting as a director was liable to take shares of stock and intended to, and did subsequently, take and pay for fifty shares. He and possibly one other (3 App. Cas. 1228) appear to have been the only persons up to that time connected with the company, who subsequently became stockholders, who were not agents of the promoters. But it is also the fact (as stated by Jessel, M. R., in 5 Ch. D. at p. 112) that "Up to this time there was not really a single bona fida shareholder distinct from the promoters," and of course all these assented to the transaction. If this is a vital circumstance, that case is distinguishable in principle from the one at bar and from the case decided by the United States Supreme Court. This appears to us to be a difference upon an immaterial matter. It is of no consequence whether in fact the dummy directors know of the terms of sale and the breach of trust of the promoters. It does not appear in the present case that the nominees of Bigelow and Lewisohn knew any more about the profit the latter were making than did the directors of the New Sombrero 18 Company of the profits of the syndicate. The point is that in both cases the directors were selected with the purpose that they should be the mere instruments of the promoters, and they carried out the will of their masters. Under the English statute the instruments of the promoters in the New Sombrero Company, while its directors, were as fully clothed with all the powers of the corporation and as much the holders of all its stock as were the seven directors of the plaintiff holding in all forty shares of the plaintiff at the time the contract of sale in the present case was made. If the assent of all the stockholders is good in the one case, by the same token it should be equally good in the other; and the breach of trust in the one is equally a breach of trust in the other. This case seems to us an authority in favor of the plaintiff.

In New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 Ch. D. 73, 123, it was said by Baggallay, L. J.: "The syndicate were, in substance, not only the vendors of the property, but also the promoters of the company, and in such a case the syndicate, as promoters, being in a fiduciary relation to the company, it was essential that the public, who were invited to become, and who were expected to become, the shareholders of the company, and to constitute the company, should have the fullest information as to all the surrounding circumstances." See also Jessel, M. R., S. C. at p. 113. In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, at p. 471, it was said by Jessel, M. R.: "If promoters make an arrangement to get a profit for themselves out of what is apparently paid to the vendors, it is immaterial whether the contract with the vendors is approved of by the directors of the company, who are the promoters, just before the allotment or just after: in both cases it is intended to cheat the future shareholders; and of course it makes no difference whatever that the persons who, at the time the allotment was made, were in fact the promoters or their nominees, knew of the fraud. You can defraud future allottees as well as present allottees." In the same case on appeal Cotton, L. J., said (17 Ch. D. at p. 479): "The directors stand in a fiduciary relation to the whole company, that is, not only to the existing members but to all whom they intend to bring in." In Broderip v. Salomon, (1895) 2 Ch. 323, at p. 329, it was said 19 by Vaughan Williams, J. (whose conclusion was approved in S. C. sub nomine Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22): "Of course, purchasing at an exorbitant price may be a fraud, even if all the shareholders know of it, if there is an intention to allot further shares at a later period to future allottees." This point was apparently left open in the House of Lords, [1897] A. C. at p. 37. In In re Leeds & Hanley Theatres of Varieties, [1902] 2 Ch. 809, at p. 823, occurs this language: "At first there were only four directors * * * and the seven necessary signatories of the memorandum of the association. When it is said that the promoters stood in a fiduciary position towards the company, that does not mean that they stood in such a relation to these directors and these seven signatories. It means that they stood in a fiduciary relation to the future allottees of shares—to the persons who were invited to come and take up the shares of the company." In Gluckstein v. Barnes, [1900] A. C. 240, 257, Lord Robertson says: "The people for whom these gentlemen [the promoters] were bound to act were their coming constituents, the persons out of whose money they proposed to make their gain." In Densmore Oil Co. v. Densmore, 64 Penn. St. 43, at p. 50, it is said: "Where persons form such an association, or begin or start the project of one, from that time they do stand in a confidential relation to each other, and to all others who may subsequently become members or subscribers, and it is not competent for any of them to purchase property for the purposes of such a company, and then sell it at an advance without a full disclosure of the facts." This language is quoted with approval and applied in Burbank v. Dennis, 101 Cal. 90, 98, and in South Joplin Land Co. v. Case, 104 Mo. 572, 580. To the same point, Pittsburg Mining Co. v. Spooner, 74 Wis. 307, 321-323. In Pietsch v. Milbrath, 123 Wis., 647, at p. 656, it is held that "Persons who act as promoters of a corporation do not necessarily cease to be such when the corporation is organized to do business. * * * So long as there are prospective original subscribers for stock and the promoters and those concerting with them remain in control of the corporation, it is in a position to be deceived. * * * It is deceived in a legal sense when it is rendered helpless by its managers as to protecting those invited to subscribe for its stock, and is then used to aid in defrauding them."

This is supported by Fred Macey Co. v. Macey, 143 Mich.
20 138, 152, a case singularly like the one at bar in its essential features, where relief was granted to the corporation against the promoters although they subscribed for all the capital stock. Other cases which in principle reach the same result are Yeiser v. United States Board & Paper Co. 107 Fed. Rep. 340, 348; London Trust Co. v. Mackenzie, 62 L. J. Ch. (N. S.) 870; Hinkley v. Sac Oil & Pipe Line Co. 132 Iowa, 396. It was said in Groel v. United

Electric Co. 4 Robbins, 616, 622: "There can be no question that promoters are liable to the corporation for profits secretly made by them in its promotion, and that such liability arises in cases where future allottees of stock are concerned. Knoop v. Bohmrich, 4 Dick. 82. Plaquemines Tropical Fruit Co. v. Buck, 7 Dick. 219. Loudenslager v. Woodbury Heights Land Co. 13 Dick. 556, affirming the principle established in the court of chancery in Woodbury Heights Land Co. v. Loudenslager, 10 Dick. 78." In Central Trust Co. v. East Tennessee Land Co. 116 Fed. Rep. 743, and Camden Land Co. v. Lewis, 101 Maine, 78, 95, Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 310, to this point is cited with approval. St. Louis, Fort Scott & Wichita Railroad v. Tiernan, 37 Kans. 606, and Stewart v. St. Louis, Fort Scott & Wichita Railroad, 41 Fed. Rep. 736, were both decided on the assumption that the promoters took all the stock, although it appears that later some stock was issued to municipalities through which the tracks of the promoters' railroad corporation ran, but whether as a part of the original plan of promotion does not appear, and no weight is attached to this circumstance in the opinions. Numerous other cases which have been cited do not bear upon this point for the reason that in each of them the owners of the property conveyed have owned either the entire capital stock of the corporation or all that it was contemplated to issue. See Foster v. Seymour, 23 Fed. Rep. 65; McCracken v. Robison, 57 Fed. Rep. 375; Barr v. New York, Lake Erie & Western Railroad, 125 N. Y. 263; Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 232. In re Ambrose Lake Tin & Copper Mining Co. 14 Ch. D. 390; Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22; In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467; Seymour v. Spring Forest Cemetery Association, 144 N. Y. 333; Hutchinson v. Simpson, 92 App. Div. (N. Y.) 382; Tompkins v. Sperry, 96 Md. 560; Langdon v. Fogg, 18 Fed. Rep. 5; Flagler Engraving Machine Co. v. Flagler, 19 Fed. Rep. 468; Insurance Press v. Montauk 21 Fire Detecting Wire Co. 103 App. Div. (N. Y.) 472; Higgins v. Lansingh, 154 Ill. 301; In re Baglan Hall Colliery Co. L. R. 5 Ch. 346. In all these cases it was also true that no shares were ever issued (so far as appears) other than those to the promoters, except that in In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, at a time considerably subsequent to the organization of the corporation, a change in the scheme was made in good faith by which others were brought in as subscribers.

In this respect the question is one of intention of the promoters. If they actually intend at the time the company is brought out to remain its sole owners and that it shall not receive the money of innocent shareholders in the future, then although thereafter the exigencies of the company may be such as to require the issue of additional stock, they may not be responsible. In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, is an illustration of this principle. There it was found that the promoters were and intended to remain the sole proprietors of the property of the company and the sole members of the company. Cotton, L. J., at p. 479, said: "Here it is an established fact that when the company was formed it was intended to be a private company, that is, it was intended to carry it on without calling in the public, or issuing any shares except to the then existing shareholders. Therefore the doctrine that directors may not take a profit for themselves is inapplicable, because all the members knew that they intended to make a profit. It is true that some new members were subsequently taken in. If shortly after this transaction a prospectus had been issued and the public had been invited to come in and take shares, no court would have listened to directors who said that it was not intended to take in fresh members. But this was commenced and carried on entirely as a private company, and a considerable time elapsed before they asked any one to join them."

In Wills v. Nehalem Coal Co. 52 Ore. 70, a corporation was organized by promoters with a capital of $150,000. More than half was issued to promoters and their tools in return for property of one of them conveyed at an overvaluation. Afterwards shares were sold to the public without disclosure of the great profit made by promoters. Relief was granted. The contention that the corporation had assented with full knowledge of the facts by all who were the stockholders at the time of the sale was disposed of on the ground that in substance a wrong was done the corporation in diminishing the common fund held for the benefit of all the stockholders by issuing a part of its capital stock for property worth less than its face value. In Richlands Oil Co. v. Morriss, 108 Va. 228, the facts as stated in the opinion were that the promoters, having acquired the control of certain oil leases for an insignificant price, "proceeded to transfer these leases to a company which they organized upon a capitalization of 1,000,000 shares (the par value of each share being $1), and distributed 600,000 of those shares to themselves; and having perfected the organization of the company by making themselves the president, secretary, treasurer, and directors undertook to market the residue of the shares of stock, amounting to 400,000, without informing the public as to the true condition of affairs." The suit of the corporation was upheld. Upon the point we are now discussing these two cases are indistinguishable in principle from the cases at bar.

22

This review of decisions seems to establish abundantly the proposition that promoters stand in a fiduciary position toward the corporation, as well when as a part of the scheme of promotion uninformed stockholders are expected to come in after the wrong has been perpetrated, as when at that time there are shareholders to whom no disclosure is made. We find no authority opposed except the Lewisohn cases in the federal courts (210 U. S. 206).

If the question is examined on principle apart from authority, the same result appears clear. The starting point is that a promoter is a fiduciary to the corporation. To use the words of Lord Cairns in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218, at p. 1236: Promoters "have in their hands the creation and moulding of the company; they have power of defining how, and when, and in what shape, and under what supervision, it shall start into existence and begin business." The corporation is in the hands of the promoter like clay in the hands of the potter. It is to this person, absolutely helpless and incapable of independent

23 initiative or uncontrolled action, that the promoter stands as trustee. It is not necessary to inquire how far he may be trustee also for shareholders or associates. In the present case the inquiry relates wholly to his obligation to the corporation. The fiduciary relation must in reason continue until the promoter has completely established according to his plan the being which he has undertaken to create. His liability must be commensurate with the scheme of promotion on which he has embarked. If the plan contemplates merely the organization of the corporation his duties may end there. But if the scheme is more ambitious and includes beside the incorporation, not only the conveyance to it of property but the procurement of a working capital in cash from the public, then the obligation of faithfulness stretches to the length of the plan. It would be a vain thing for the law to say that the promoter is a trustee subject to all the stringent liabilities which inhere in that character and at the same time say that, at any period during his trusteeship and long before an essential part of it was executed or his general duty as such ended, he could, by changing for a moment the cloak of the promoter for that of director or stockholder, by his own act alone, absolve himself from all past, present or future liability in his capacity as promoter. The plaintiff was fully organized and authorized to do business on July 8 and 11, 1895, when only $1,000 in capital stock had been paid in. It would be an idle ceremony indeed to establish for promoters the obligations of trustees, and at the same time hold that by their tools and with only $1,000 paid in, and that as a mere form (for it was soon after repaid to one of them) they could vote to themselves a wholly unwarranted profit of $1,250,000, kept secret from other initial shareholders, because at that moment they were the only stockholders. By such a course the law would be holding out apples of Sodom to the wronged corporation. Corporations can be formed through irresponsible agents with ease. If these agents can vote away a substantial part of the capital stock for property of comparatively small value, and still with immunity to themselves and their principles receive from the uninformed public cash subscriptions for the rest of the capital stock, the organization and management of corporations might readily become a "system of frauds." Peabody v. Flint, 6 Allen, 52, 55. It is answered that the plaintiff
24 has assented to the transaction with full knowledge of the facts. But it has not assented when it stood where it could act independently. The assent to the wrongful act of the promoters was given at the behest and by vote of the promoters themselves, while still occupying the position of protectors to their own creature, while it was bound hand and foot by them and prevented from taking any action except through them as a step in its further exploitation, and while their trust was uncompleted. The corporation although by law fully organized was still in its swaddling clothes, so far as the plans of the promoters were concerned. The value of their stock taken in return for their mining property was dependent in a substantial degree upon the corporation having $500,000 in cash for a working capital. They could not perfect their plans nor reap their contemplated profit, except by retaining their hold upon the corporation until the public had made this contribution. In one sense it is true that the plaintiff was completely organized on July 11 and on September 20, 1895. It was fully competent to be bound by its contracts and ratification of contracts with those dealing with it at arm's length. But it was not free from its wardship to its promoters, whose scheme from the first looked forward to a corporation with treasury filled by subscriptions from the unenlightened public. The corporation was not dealing with these fiduciaries upon an independent ground. The plaintiff, although a legal corporation from July 8, leaned wholly upon its promoters, because they made it so to lean, until long after the events here in controversy. An assent under these conditions can be of no greater effect than the assent of a minor under guardianship to the breaches of trust of his guardian.

The situation is akin to the conveyance of property by a man solvent but in contemplation of insolvency. Such conveyance is not wrong until the contemplated indebtedness is incurred which makes him an insolvent. Then the executed evil intent stretches back and invalidates the original conveyance. Here the conveyance to the corporation with the secret profit, when there are no uninformed subscribers to stock, if nothing more is ever done, is not an actionable tort. But the vicious intent looks forward to the procurement of money from the ignorant public by means of original subscriptions and the execution of this evil intent extends backward to contaminate the sale and its profit.

Stress has sometimes been laid upon the fact that the promoters were paid a part of their purchase price out of the public subscriptions. But there is no difference in principle between such a case and the present, where a substantial part of the value of the stock taken by the defendant and Lewisohn depended upon the cash subscriptions to be made by the public for the remaining shares not issued to the promoters.

But it is further argued that, the entire capital stock outstanding at the time being in the hands of the promoters, the sale of the property to the corporation was merely changing the form of title of the promoters from owners of real estate to that of shares of stock, and that, there being then no other shareholders, no wrong was done. It has been decided that where persons own the entire authorized capital stock of the company and take it in payment for the conveyance of their property at a grossly exaggerated price, nobody can be heard to complain. The leading English cases upon this point are In re Gold Co. 11 Ch. D. 701, In re Ambrose Lake Tin & Copper Mining Co. 14 Ch. D. 390, In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, and Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22. But these and many other like cases cited on pages 185 and 186 ante are where the promoters owned all the outstanding capital stock and intended to remain the sole proprietors and did not purpose that there should be, as a part of the promotion plan, a substantial issue of stock for cash to the public. This is pointed out in London Trust

Co. v. Mackenzie, 62 L. J. Ch. (N. S.) 870, 875. The distinction is clear between cases of that class and those like the present, where the promoters took for themselves a large number of shares of stock without adequate consideration and without disclosure to the detriment of the corporation and all its future shareholders, at the same time planning that there should be immediate public subscriptions. It is one thing to take all the shares of a corporation in payment for physical property conveyed. It does not much matter to the stockholders in such a case whether the total is one hundred and thirty thousand shares or one hundred and fifty thousand shares. But it is a very different thing to take $\frac{130,000}{150,000}$ of capital stock of a 26 corporation whose assets consist of the same physical property, and in addition $500,000 in money subscribed by others. The latter course affects the other stockholders and the corporation itself, and it gives the promoters something appreciably more valuable than what they contribute. It is true that in Salomon v. Salomon and in some other cases there was a part of the authorized capital stock which was not issued, but it was not proposed to be issued as a part of the scheme of promotion and the original shareholders intended to remain the only shareholders. It was to be issued or not in the remote future, as the exigencies of the corporation in the actual conduct of its business might require, but, in any event, it was not to be issued for the purpose of starting the corporation on its course. This circumstance materially affects the question here to be considered. Most, if not all, corporation laws provide in some form for an increase of capital stock. It is of no consequence upon such a point as this, whether the capital stock originally authorized is large but not all issued or whether it is at first small and subsequently an increase is authorized. This seems to be the view taken by the English courts, for it is said by James, L. J., in In re British Seamless Paper Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, "If they [the promoters] were intending, although then constituting the whole company, that other people should come in afterwards to whom what had been done would be injurious, the court would feel no difficulty in saying as Lord Langdale did in Society of Practical Knowledge v. Abbott, 2 Beav. 559, that they intended to commit a fraud."

The fundamental reasoning upon which these cases can rest is not that no wrong has been committed, but there is no one to enforce the remedy. All courts recognize the soundness of the doctrine that no man can be on both sides of the same bargain with justice to all interests. The principle that one cannot rightfully sell property, belonging to him in his private right, to himself in a trust capacity is universal.

If this aspect alone is looked at and the corporation is regarded as a distinct person, it cannot be said that the corporation is not wronged by such a breach of duty by promoters. It is only when the corporate personality is disregarded and its component elements as stockholders alone are considered that it can be said 27 that no harm is done on the ground (as was said in Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. at p. 57) that "the company is bound in a matter intra vires by the unanimous agreement of its members." But looking through the form of the corporation to the stockholders and treating them as the corporation is an exception to the otherwise firmly established universal rule that the corporation is a separate legal entity for all purposes, even though all its stock be held by a single interest and it be to all practical intents merely the instrument of the stockholder. Conley v. Mathieson Alkali Works, 190 U. S. 406. Peterson v. Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway, 205 U. S. 364, 390. We perceive no reason for extending this exception to a case like the present.

The real ground of the decision of which Salomon v. Salomon is a type is that the corporation is estopped by the circumstance that all persons with financial concern in the matter have assented with knowledge, and thus the lips of everybody are sealed. It is not that no wrong has been done, but that whatever wrong has been done has been condoned. The maxim "Volenti non fit injuria" is invoked. This, however, is setting up confession and avoidance and not a bar to the main cause of action.

The theory upon which corporations are founded is that they are artificial persons, distinct and separate from officers and stockholders. Corporate liabilities do not attach to the latter. The wrong which the defendant and his associate did in this case was in selling property worth intrinsically $1,000,000 and in the market at most $2,000,000 for $3,250,000 without revealing that they were making a secret profit. The wrong was done to the corporation. It affected all its shareholders, present and future alike. It is generally admitted that if there are existing stockholders ignorant of the wrong, redress may be had. But it is had through the corporation or for the benefit of the corporation and not by the stockholder in his own right. The wrong is not done to the shareholders as individuals, nor to the shareholders collectively, it is done to the corporation as an independent being, and thus indirectly the rights of those who are or who may become stockholders are affected. In buying the promoters' mine, the directors of the corporation acted for the corporation, 28 as such, without regard to who were the then stockholders, or even if there were no stockholders. Whoever becomes an originally contemplated shareholder coming in afterwards has as much right to say that the rights of the corporation were not protected and to insist that it should assert its remedy for the wrong done it, as one in at first but not informed. Subsequent subscriptions to original stock as a part of the scheme of promotion do not change the identity of the corporation, but remove an impediment to the enforcement of a remedy for a wrong previously done the corporation. The wrong is not done when the innocent public subscribes, but when the sale was made to the corporation at a grossly exaggerated price with secret profit. The occasion for complaining of this wrong comes when the promoters issue to the public the balance of the stock in order to provide the money necessary to set the corporation on its feet and to give thereby the contemplated value to the stock taken by themselves in payment for their mines. The exemption of the promoter from liability to the corporation for a sale without disclosure when he takes the entire issue of capital stock is an exception to the general rule imposing upon him the liabilities of a trustee. If this exception is to be extended to a case like the present, it leaves nothing of substantial value in the original rule. It might still reach small and grosser forms of want of fidelity to corporations, but would leave unharmed the vastly greater and more refined variety illustrated by the present case. It would point the way to general immunity for the wary.

It is also urged that the maintenance of this suit works an injustice to the defendant in requiring a repayment to the corporation, which will result in a benefit to the thirteen fifteenths of the capital stock taken by the defendant and Lewisohn (who condoned the wrong) as well as to the two fifteenths subscribed for by the innocent public. The size of the repayment which may be required of the defendant is due to the enormous profit taken at the outset. Apart from the unjust profit taken by the promoters, their interest in the plaintiff was only eight seventeenths, or, tested by the cost and intrinsic value of the property conveyed, four seventeenths. The true answer, however, is given by Jessel, M. R., in New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, 5 Ch. D. 73, at p. 114. "It is said that is not doing 29 justice, and that the suit cannot be maintained in this form, because it will not do justice. But that argument goes too far, because it would apply to a case of the grossest fraud in every instance in which one or more of the actual shareholders of a company took part in that fraud. If the argument were once allowed to prevail, it would only be necessary to corrupt one single shareholder in order to prevent a company from ever setting the contract aside. It may be said you give to the shareholder, who was a party to the fraud, a profit, because he will take it in respect of his shares, and since as between co-conspirators there is no contribution, therefore his brother conspirators, who are made liable for the fraud, cannot make him repay his proportion. But the doctrine of this court has never been to hold its hand and avoid doing justice in favor of the innocent, because it cannot apportion the punishment fully amongst the guilty. A dozen parties to a fraud may be defendants, and one decree or judgment go against all, and if it is a fraud of such a character that none of them can bring an action for contribution, the plaintiff may at his will and pleasure enforce that judgment against any one of them, and perhaps pass over the most guilty of them: still there is no remedy as between those who commit the fraud. It is one of the punishments of fraud that there is no such remedy, and that a guilty party, though not the most guilty, may suffer the greatest amount of punishment. It is one of the deterrents to men to prevent their committing fraud." See also Stockton v. Anderson, 13 Stew. (N. J.) 486.

It is said further that the result reached is harsh from the business man's point of view. A discussion of this aspect of the case involves ethical consideration. Courts are constantly dealing with the various relations of the business world. Legal principles are applied to these transactions, but such principles "have almost always been the fundamental ethical rules of right and wrong." Robinson v. Mollett, L. R. 7 H. L. 802, 817. Upon its distinctly moral side, there is little to the credit of the defendant and his associate. The offering by the defendant as promoter for public subscription for cash at par a substantial part of the capital stock of a corporation, the rest of whose capital stock had been issued for property conveyed to it under a law which permitted such stock to be issued only for the real value 30 of property, was equivalent to a representation that no fictitious value had been placed upon the property so acquired. But the distinct finding of the single justice is that the real value was less than one third the price for which the defendant and Lewisohn sold it. Nothing can be said in support of a business enterprise carried on by promoters, which involves the purchase by them of mines, vesting and intrinsically worth $1,000,000, with money in substantial part solicited from associates on representations that a corporation is to be formed with a capitalization of $2,500,000, of whose stock $2,000,000 is to be issued for the conveyance to it by them of the mines, and the rest for cash; the actual organization of the corporation under the laws of a State which permitted the issuance of capital stock for property conveyed only to the real value of the property, with a capital stock of $3,750,000, of which $3,250,000 is issued as fully paid for the conveyance of the mines; the settlement with a very great majority of the associates on the basis of a sale for $2,000,000 of stock as at first represented, the promoters retaining $1,250,000 of shares as a secret profit, intending also to procure from the public subscriptions for $500,000 of stock in cash at par and actually carrying out this purpose, the promoters themselves during all these manipulations having entire control of all executive offices of the corporation. In the absence of compelling authority, we cannot set the seal of judicial approval upon such business policies. See Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. 4 Buch. (N. J.), 71 Atl. Rep. at pp. 176 and 177.

Both on authority outside of our own cases and on principle, it appears to us that the defendant should be held liable. But in this jurisdiction the matter does not stand quite on the basis of an original proposition. In two thoroughly considered opinions in recent years, Hayward v. Leeson, 175 Mass. 310, and Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, 188 Mass. 315, this court has held that liability existed in a case like this. It is not necessary to repeat the arguments of these decisions. There is thus added to considerations which otherwise exist, the force of the doctrine of stare decisis. One or both of these cases have frequently been cited by courts of other jurisdictions and always with approval until Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 148
31 Fed. Rep. 1020; S. C. 210 U. S. 206. No arguments have been adduced not considered in those cases, and no points now brought forward were not there discussed. While the rule of stare decisis does not prevent the overruling of those cases, they should not be disturbed unless they now appear to be so clearly wrong as to have no sound support. Mabardy v. McHugh, 202 Mass. 148. It must appear that the law was "misunderstood or misapplied." 1 Kent Com. 475. There was no misconception of the points involved when these cases were decided, nor any lack of discernment in their application to the affairs of corporations. It does not appear that they have become archaic or inapplicable by reason of business evolution since they were announced. On the contrary, the tendency of custom since the first case was decided has been rather in the direction of more strict accountability of those owing duties to corporations and their stockholders. At all events, we perceive no occasion to relax these principles of accountability for breaches of trust. The mere fact that the Supreme Court of the United States has since decided the question differently is not alone a sufficient consideration for reversing our decisions. It is only when the reasoning of its decision is of convincing power and compels the conclusion that our cases were wrongly decided that it must command our support in other branches of the law than those where it is supreme under the Federal Constitution. With great respect to the decision in 210 U. S. 206, we are constrained to adhere to the law as laid down in the earlier cases in this Commonwealth.

We have discussed the question as if the same legal principles are involved now as were presented upon the demurrer. There are, however, certain aspects of the evidence which seem to us to make it essentially different and materially stronger for the plaintiff. When the votes to purchase the mines of the promoters were passed on July 11, only forty shares of stock had been subscribed for or issued. The votes were passed by the directors alone and there was no vote by the stockholders at this time. It is true that the directors comprised all the stockholders, but on that date they were acting wholly in their capacity as directors, that is, as trustees. They did not attempt, so far as any records show, to shift their character
32 as trustees for that of individual stockholders. They did not pursue the careful course of separation of these dual capacities by calling a stockholders' meeting, which was followed in North-West Transportation Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 589, nor did they assent in writing as stockholders. So far as the records show up to this point, there was only a directors' vote for the purchase. Moreover, the records of the plaintiff show that at the opening of this meeting only six of the seven directors were present. Four of these six directors resigned as did also the absent seventh director, their resignations were accepted and their successors were chosen. But of the five newly chosen directors, only two were present and took their seats. Thus there were four directors, a bare quorum and majority, present when the offers for the sale of the mines were presented and the votes for their purchase were passed. These votes to purchase were not consummated until December, 1895, and January, 1896, when the deeds were delivered to the plaintiff. The vote to issue the certificates of stock in payment for the conveyances of mines was passed on September 18, 1895. Under date of July 18, 1895, the only subscription list of the plaintiff was signed. Upon this list appear the names of those outside persons who subscribed for the $500,000 of working capital for the plaintiff. The money was paid by some of the outside stockholders before September 18, and at least as early as September 10, 1895. Stock certificates were made out for the number of shares allotted to each under date of

September 18. The rights of all these persons as subscribers had become fixed at least as early as September 10, 1895, before which date the subscriptions were all received, and when notices of their acceptance and demands for payment were sent out. These circumstances amply support the finding of the single justice that issuance of the twenty thousand shares to the public was in the summer or fall of 1895. These stockholders were entitled to have a disclosure made to the corporation through independent officers. There is no pretense that any disclosure was made to these subscribers. On September 18, 1895, the directors of the plaintiff voted to issue the stock as before stated—thirty thousand shares to Bigelow and Lewisohn, one hundred thousand to their nominee Dumaresq, and there was made out the certificate for the remaining twenty thousand 33 shares to "Thomas Nelson, Treasurer," and these four, professing to represent all the stock of the plaintiff, signed the written approval of all previous acts of the directors. This is the first attempt of the stockholders to act respecting this subject. As before pointed out, the certificate to Nelson was wrongfully issued; except as it belonged to outside subscribers, it was treasury stock. There were then other stockholders of the plaintiff who had paid for their stock, although they had not received their certificates, but the plaintiff had their money and they were entitled to be treated as stockholders. Chester Glass Co. v. Dewey, 16 Mass. 94. Chaffin v. Cummings, 37 Maine, 76. Hawes v. Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Co. 101 Mass. 385, 395. Their certificates were dated September 18, 1895, and issued directly. These circumstances show that at the first and only time when there was an effort on the part of the promoters to secure a ratification of their wrongful acts, there were certain shareholders who were not represented and who did not themselves sign in assent and who were in fact ignorant of the wrong done the corporation. Further, they do not show that at any time from the organization of the corporation onward was there a moment when all the stockholders or directors knew of the material facts as to the defendant's relation to the corporation. In this view of the facts, which is supported fully by the evidence, there appears to be no assent by the corporation with knowledge of the facts by all those who at any time constituted all the stockholders, except by assuming the knowledge of Bigelow and Lewisohn on July 11, 1895, when there were only forty shares of stock for which the latter had paid, to be the knowledge of all the stockholders, although there were then seven shareholders as to whose actual knowledge of the scheme there is no evidence, although all were the tools of the defendant and Lewisohn. It is only by treating these subscriptions as a sham that knowledge even of the owners of the forty shares can be found. But these subscriptions were necessary to the organization under the New Jersey law. Hence the rule of Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22, and like cases has no application to these facts, nor does the difficulty meet "the petitioner at the outset that it has assented to the transaction with the full knowledge of the facts," (210 U. S. 211, 212,) unless it is said that in fact knowledge by 34 the plaintiff's dominant stockholders is knowledge by the corporation. But the defendant was committing a breach of trust on his principal, the plaintiff, and where one is committing a wrong in his own interest his knowledge does not bind the corporation, which might in an innocent transaction be affected by his knowledge. Indian Head National Bank v. Clark, 166 Mass. 27, Produce Exchange Trust Co. v. Bieberbach, 176 Mass. 577, 588. These considerations mark the case as different in material respects from that which was stated in Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206, and bring it clearly within the well recognized rule of promoters' liability, laid down in the numerous and undisputed cases, before cited. The Supreme Court of the United States has never passed upon these facts nor upon such a case as is thus presented. We know of no authority which countenances a different decision upon them than that here reached. The conflict between the federal courts and this court in this respect appears to be not upon the merits of the case as disclosed upon the present record. See Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. 4 Buch. (N. J.), 71 Atl. Rep. 153, 155.

But there is still another aspect in which the case differs from that presented in the federal court and in our previous decision. The defendant held out to subscribers of his syndicate, before the incorporation of the plaintiff, that its capital stock was to be $2,500,000 and that they would get for one share in the Baltimore Company two in the new company and that the rest would be sold to furnish the working capital. The right of these parties to become stockholders in the plaintiff company was fixed before its first meeting of stockholders was held, because they had signed the syndicate agreement and had made two payments on account of their subscriptions. They were sharers thus in the profit of $1,000,000 above the costs of mines. But they were also entitled to disclosure of the secret profit of $1,250,000 more taken by the defendant and Lewisohn and it is found that most of them were ignorant of it. Respecting any sale to the plaintiff in which they had agreed to become shareowners on any other basis than that of two for one, they were entitled to disclosure. This is quite aside from any rights they may have had against Bigelow for not treating them fairly on the division of profits. It stands on different ground. In that relation they were sharers in promoters' profits and they received what they expected. But they had also agreed to be subscribers to stock of the plaintiff. In that character they were not promoters, but stockholders and entitled to all their rights. That they knew there was to be a sale for $2,000,000 and a profit of two for one was no reasonable ground for expectation that the defendant would take a large additional secret profit. As to this secret profit, the members of the syndicate had the same rights as the outside public, that is, they were entitled to a disclosure to an independent and impartial board of officers who should be in a position to act for the interests of the corporation as opposed to those of the promoters. In this regard the case is like Arnold v. Searing, 3 Buch. (N. J.) 262, where the defendants were held liable.

4. It is argued that, even though the ratification in writing be disregarded, still the acts of the stockholders of the plaintiff after some of them knew of the fact that there was some profit to Bigelow and Lewisohn beyond that accruing to all the other members of the syndicate has amounted to a ratification. The complete answer to this argument is that the single justice has found that until shortly before the bringing of these suits neither the stockholders nor the company had gained any knowledge as to the facts upon which the claim is now based, that the very great majority of the stockholders never knew or assented to the operations by which the secret profit was obtained and did not have knowledge of or access to the books or records of the corporation. The votes of ratification of 1899 and 1901 being passed under these conditions do not bind the plaintiff.

5. Several other objections are made to the granting of relief to the plaintiff. It is urged that the plaintiff ought not to recover because, a large majority of its stock being held by a Maine corporation, an agreement has been entered into by that corporation and certain trustees by which it was attempted to provide for the conduct of these suits and sequestrate the proceeds to holders of negotiable certificates. But this agreement is one to which the plaintiff is not a party, and it was made long after these suits were instituted. If it is illegal, it may be set aside in appropriate proceedings, 36 but the rights of the plaintiff for the benefit of all its stockholders cannot be refused enforcement on such ground.

6. The defence of laches cannot prevail. It is found as a fact that as soon as the defendant and his associates released their absolute control of the plaintiff, the action was seasonably begun. The plaintiff is held to the exercise of diligence after the discovery of the facts, but there can be no laches so long as there is no knowledge of the wrong complained of and no failure to avail one's self of reasonable opportunities to ascertain the facts. So long as the plaintiff was wholly in the power of the defendant, it could not be charged with knowledge. Mere lapse of time is no bar to relief under these circumstances. Lydney & Wigpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 33 Ch. D. 85. Lagunas Nitrate Co. v. Lagunas Syndicate, [1899] 2 Ch. D. 392, 433. Twin-Lick Oil Co. v. Marbury, 91 U. S. 587.

7. Nor is the statute of limitations a bar. The time limited by the statute does not begin to run against a breach of trust, where there is a fiduciary duty to disclose the facts on which the cause of action rests, until the facts have or ought to have been discovered. Atlantic National Bank v. Harris, 118 Mass. 147. R. L. c. 202, § 11. The ground of the defendant's liability is his breach of trust as a promoter.

8. It follows from what has been said as to the nature of the wrong done by the defendant that he is liable in solido. The act of the defendant and Lewisohn was a joint act for the benefit of both. Their subdivision of the profits made cannot affect the right of the plaintiff. The breach of trust, which they as promoters committed, was in the nature of a tort. This renders them liable severally as well as jointly and for the whole damage. Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 10, 324, and cases cited. 188 Mass. at p. 329. Feneff v. Boston & Maine Railroad, 196 Mass. 575, 581. Gluckstin v. Barnes, [1900] A. C. 240. Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. 4 Buch. (N. J.), 71 Atl. Rep. 153, 176.

9. As to the character of relief which can be afforded, it is said first that rescission is the only remedy open to the petitioner. The single justice has found that the situation of the parties and the properties is not such as to make it just at this time to order
37 a rescission. The evidence justifies this finding. It was decided in this case at its earlier stage, 188 Mass. 315, 329, that rescission is not the only remedy. Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 310, 321. Parker v. Nickerson, 137 Mass. 487. We are not disposed to question the correctness of the decision upon this point. When one has committed a breach of trust, there is no occasion to be over-solicitous to see that the faithless fiduciary should not make reparation for the wrong done. In re Olympia, [1898] 2 Ch. 153, 169. Lyndney & Wigpool Iron Ore Co. v. Bird, 33 Ch. D. 85, 94. The essence of the suit is that a secret profit was taken by the promoters. The obvious remedy is a return of the secret profit. The difficulty of ascertaining the amount of that profit, which troubled the court in In re Cape Breton Co. 29 Ch. D. 795 does not exist here. See Bentinck v. Fenn, 12 App. Cas. 652; Gluckstein v. Barnes, [1900] A. C. 240; In re Leeds & Hanley Theatres of Varieties, [1902] 2 Ch. 809; Yale Gas Stove Co. v. Wilcox, 64 Conn. 101.

10. The plaintiff has also appealed from the decrees in its favor. It presses its appeals on the ground that it is entitled to recover the difference between the market value of the shares received by the defendant and Lewisohn and the cost to them of the property conveyed to it. This is the measure of recovery where there is a fiduciary relation at the time of the purchase. But there is no finding here that such relation existed at the time the defendant and Lewisohn purchased the property. There is no evidence which requires such a finding. The corporation was not organized until a considerable period after the options had been secured. The defendant and Lewisohn were, during all this time, free to do as they chose with their purchase so far as the plaintiff was concerned. This has been before decided, 188 Mass. 321. The plaintiff contends in the alternative that its measure of damage is the difference between the intrinsic value of the property conveyed and the value of the stock issued therefor. Market value is the standard commonly applied where property has such value. It is only in cases where the value of property cannot be fairly ascertained by the application of this test that resort is had to any other. The single justice appears to have experienced no difficulty in determining that value of 38 these mines. There are no exceptional circumstances which call for the application of any other than the ordinary rule.

11. Since the decision of this case on demurrer, reported in 188 Mass. 315, and the entry of the decrees by the single justice after a full hearing upon the facts, the defendant has been permitted to file a supplementary answer. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, 199 Mass. 488. He there sets up, as a bar to the plaintiff's claim, a judgment of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, entered on July 23, 1908, in favor of the defendants in a suit like one of the present suits in all particulars, except that it was prosecuted against the executors of the will of Lewisohn, the defendants' demurrer to the plaintiff's bill being sustained and the final decree being entered, whereby the claim against Lewisohn was held to be without foundation, and he contends that the matter is thereby res judicata as to himself. The supplemental answer further avers that the issues were the same as those here involved, and that the present defendant was a privy to the judgment in that case, and participated in the defense, and acted with Lewisohn's executors throughout the entire pendency of the suit. The Lewisohn suit was heard in the Circuit Court of the United States and on appeal in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and afterwards upon certiorari in the Supreme Court of the United States. 210 U. S. 206. On these supplemental answers a hearing was had before a single justice, who reserved questions arising thereon for the consideration of this court upon the pleadings and all the evidence.

One of the two suits before us seeks to set aside the conveyance of the outside properties and secure the return of the thirty thousand shares of capital stock issued therefor, and the other to recover damages resulting from the conveyance to the plaintiff of the mines and other real estate of the Baltimore Company for the excessive valuation of one hundred thousand such shares. In other respects the two bills are alike. Two suits (the bills in which have the same allegations as these, mutatis mutandis), were brought against the executors of Lewisohn in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. The one relating to the 39 outside properties and the issue of the thirty thousand shares was decided ultimately by the United States Supreme Court, and a final decree was entered dismissing the suit. In the other suit respecting the issue of one hundred thousand shares for the mines and other real estate of the Baltimore Company, no decree has been entered, and it appears to be still pending. Separate offers of sale were presented and separate votes were passed by the directors of the plaintiff for the purchase of the outside properties for thirty thousand shares of its full paid non-assessable capital stock and for the purchase of the property of the Baltimore Company for one hundred thousand like shares. Separate votes were also passed to issue the thirty thousand shares to the defendant and Lewisohn and to issue the one hundred thousand shares to Dumaresq. Probably the defense of res judicata cannot apply to the suit respecting one hundred thousand shares, for the suit touching those shares against Lewisohn's executors has never gone to judgment and is still pending. The res at issue in that suit, which appears to be somewhat different from that involved in the other, has therefore never become judicata. This circumstance is noted in passing. In some aspects of the case it may be important and perhaps decisive. In view of the ground, upon which this opinion is based, however, it makes no difference in the result and we do not further advert to it.

It appears that the fundamental questions in the suit in the federal court were precisely the same as those raised in the present suit relating to the thirty thousand shares and passed upon in 188 Mass. 315. The present defendant was not a party to the suit in the federal court, but there is evidence that he participated in the defense of it.

The plaintiff objects that the order of the single justice allowing the defendant to file the supplemental answers was erroneous. This order was made in the exercise of judicial discretion, and unless such discretion was wrongly exercised it must stand. The facts averred in these answers could not have been pleaded when the original answers were filed, for the events they set up have occurred since. It is urged that the decree in favor of the executors of Lewisohn was entered in the United States Circuit Court before the 40 trial upon the merits in this court, and might have been pleaded in bar notwithstanding the proceedings in the Supreme Court of the United States upon a writ of certiorari. But even if this be the law, the single justice cannot be said to have erred in permitting the defendant to set up a decree, which rests upon a decision of the court of last resort made after the close of the hearing upon the merits in the present suits. The decree in the federal court, although founded upon a demurrer, may under proper circumstances be a bar to another suit, as well as one founded upon a hearing of evidence. Yates v. Utica Bank, 206 U. S. 181, 183. Northern Pacific Railway v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 122, and cases cited at 130. In the view that we take of the case, it is not necessary to discuss other objections urged by the plaintiff to the force of this decree or the similarity of the issues in the two sets of suits.

12. The most important and difficult question is whether the contention of the defendant is sound that the decree of the federal court is a complete bar to the present suits. His argument is that under the law of New York the decree of the Circuit Court of the United States is a bar to the maintenance of another suit for the same cause of action by the same plaintiff against him, and that, under art. 4, §1, of the Constitution of the United States, the effect given by the law of New York to the decree must be given by this court, in order that it receive the constitutionally required full faith and credit. The constitutional provision is as applicable to a decree of the Circuit Court in the Southern District of New York as to a decree in the State courts. Deposit Bank v. Frankfort, 191 U. S. 499, 515. Central National Bank v. Stevens, 169 U. S. 432, 460. The general effect of the decree (except as to matters of law or practice arising under the statutes of the United States, which have no bearing in the present case) is governed by the law of the State of New York where the federal court was sitting. Hancock National Bank v. Farnum, 176 U. S. 640, 645, citing Crescent City Live Stock Co. v. Butchers' Union, 120 U. S. 141, 147; Metcalf v. Watertown, 153 U. S. 671, 676; Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad v. Long Island Loan & Trust Co. 172 U. S. 493.

But before we reach the consideration of the effect of the decree and the interpretation that should be given to it under the 41 laws of New York, there is a preliminary and fundamental question as to the precise meaning of the full faith and credit clause of the Federal Constitution as applied to the circumstances of this case.

An analysis of the defendant's contention shows that his defense of estoppel by res judicata rests upon the ground that he was either a party or privy to the New York judgment. It is not and cannot be urged that the New York suit was a proceeding in rem as to the plaintiff's cause of action. It was a personal suit. Except in proceedings in rem, there is no such thing known to the law as an adjudication of a cause of action, which can be availed of as res adjudicata by any others than by parties and their privies. The doctrine of stare decisis stands on a wholly different ground. The contention is that, even though the court was convinced that its former decision upon the merits was erroneous and desired to correct the mistake by deciding the later case differently, the decision against the plaintiff would prevent such correction of error. The fact that a party has fully litigated his cause of action in one suit and has been defeated is of no avail in another suit, to which a stranger to the first suit is a party, involving precisely the same issues. This principle is illustrated by many cases. Keokuk & Western Railroad v. Missouri, 152 U. S. 301. Crescent City Live Stock Co. v. Butchers' Union Slaughter-House Co. 120 U. S. 141, 155. Moore v. Albany, 98 N. Y. 396. Trimmer v. Rochester, 130 N. Y. 401. Stone v. New York, 138 N. Y. 124. Wallace v. Straus, 113 N. Y. 238. Collins v. Hydorn, 135 N. Y. 320. Groth v. Washburn, 39 Hun 324. Furlong v. Banta, 80 Hun, 248.

The defendant can prevail on his supplementary answers only upon the ground that he was either a party or privy to the judgment rendered in the United States Circuit Court. The defendant Bigelow was not a party to that suit, and he does not assert that he was. The extent of his contention is that he was in privity with the executors of Lewisohn, and therefore entitled to the benefit of the judgment in their favor.

The first matter for determination is this: Does the full faith and credit clause require the courts of all other States to give effect to the law of any particular State, where a judgment may be entered, as to who are privies to such judgment, or does it permit or require the courts of the State where a third person sets up the de-42 fense that he is privy to a judgment entered in the courts of another State to decide that question according to its own law? Hence it becomes necessary to inquire what has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, whose decisions upon this as a federal question are binding upon all State courts.

It was said in Smithsonian Institution v. St. John, 214 U. S. 19, at pp. 28 and 29: "Without doubt the constitutional requirement, art. IV. §1, that 'full faith and credit shall be given in each State to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other State,' implies that the public acts of every State shall be given the same effect by the courts of another State that they have by law and usage at home. This is clearly the logical result of the principles announced as early as 1813 in Mills v. Duryee, 7 Cranch, 481, and steadily adhered to ever since. Hancock National Bank v. Farnum, 176 U. S. 640, 642." But the broad language of this decision, as well as the comprehensive phrase of the Constitution itself and of the act of Congress in pursuance thereof are to be read and interpreted in the light of the thing intended to be accomplished, and "of some established principles, which they were not intended to overthrow." Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 685. Many cases have arisen in which this phase of the subject has been discussed. It has been generally held that, no matter how clear may be the language of the statute, nor how decisive the decisions of the courts, of the sister State, as to the scope and effect of judgments upon residents of other States, yet in certain aspects such judgments may and ought to be narrowly scrutinized and the constitutional injunction given a reasonable interpretation. It was said in Public Works v. Columbia College, 17 Wall. 521 at p. 528: "The clause of the Federal Constitution which requires full faith and credit to be given in each State to the records and judicial proceedings of every other State, applies to the records and proceedings of courts only so far as they have jurisdiction. Whenever they want jurisdiction the records are not entitled to credit." This was a case where three of five partners appeared in an action against the copartnership, the other two members being non-residents not served with process and not appearing, and under the law of New York a judgment could be rendered under these circumstances against the copartnership. But it was held that the absent partners were not bound by a judgment so entered. In D'Arcy v. Ketchum, 11 How. 165, a judgment was entered against a non-resident defendant, who had not appeared or been served with process, in accordance with a statute of New York, permitting such course where joint debtors were sued and one only appeared. This statute had been adjudged valid by the courts of New York. It was admitted that the defendant was a joint debtor with the person served in New York, yet it was held that the Constitution and acts of Congress did not purport to give effect to State judgments as binding upon non-resident defendants not served with process and not appearing. See Goldey v. Morning News, 156 U. S. 518, 521.

43

It was said, in the recent case of Brown v. Fletcher, 210 U. S. 82, 88, that "the constitutional question does not preclude the courts of a State in which the judgment of a sister State is presented from inquiry as to the jurisdiction of the court by which the judgment is rendered. See the elaborate opinion by Mr. Justice Bradley, speaking for the court, in Thompson v. Whitman, 18 Wall. 457. That opinion has been followed in many cases. * * * Even record recitals of jurisdictional facts do not preclude oral testimony as to the existence of those facts." Old Wayne Life Association v. McDonough, 204 U. S. 8, 15. These principles are illustrated in application to a variety of facts: for example, as to whether attachment of property gives power to enter a judgment of effect beyond the property attached, Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 730; as to the limits of jurisdiction of parish courts in the settlement of estates, Simmons v. Saul, 138 U. S. 439, 448; as to whether the return of service is sufficient to confer jurisdiction, Knowles v. Gaslight &

Coke Co. 19 Wall. 58; as to whether the judgment is responsive to the issues tendered, Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 U. S. 254, 265; as to whether an attorney had authority to appear, Cooper v. Newell, 173 U. S. 555, 566, Hall v. Lanning, 91 U. S. 160; as to whether the cause of action was such as to give the State court jurisdiction to render a judgment entitled, according to settled principles of public and international law, to enforcement by other courts, Wisconsin v. Pelican Ins. Co. 127 U. S. 265; as to whether judgment rendered upon appearance by prothonotary, authorized by statute of 44 the State where judgment was rendered, was within the terms of a power of attorney, Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Co. v. Radcliffe, 137 U. S. 287, 295; as to validity of decree of foreign court respecting devolution of real estate within another State, Clarke v. Clarke, 178 U. S. 186, 195; as to effect of decree for future payment of alimony, Lynde v. Lynde, 181 U. S. 183; as to whether divorce obtained by the court having jurisdiction of persons of both parties must be recognized in their domiciliary state, Andrews v. Andrews, 188 U. S. 14, German Savings & Loan Society v. Dormitzer, 192 U. S. 125, 128; as to effect of foreign divorces obtained ex parte, Bell v. Bell, 181 U. S. 175, Streitwolf v. Streitwolf, 181 U. S. 179, Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562; as to whether one was "holder" of note within the meaning of a warrant of attorney authorizing confession of judgment, National Exchange Bank v. Wiley, 195 U. S. 257, 269; as to whether determination of domicil of deceased person by appointment of personal representatives foreclosed similar inquiry in other States, Thormann v. Frame, 176 U. S. 350; as to whether service on public officer impliedly authorized to receive service for a foreign corporation, in respect of business transacted by it in one State, was also impliedly authorized to the same extent as to business not there transacted, Old Wayne Life Association v. McDonough, 204 U. S. 8, 22; as to whether a corporation is really doing business in the State in which service is made, within the rule that it is essential to jurisdiction over a foreign corporation having neither property nor agent in the State that it be doing business there, Commercial Mutual Accident Co. v. Davis, 213 U. S. 245 and cases cited at 255, Caledonian Coal Co. v. Baker, 196 U. S. 432; as to whether administration could be granted upon the estate of a living person, Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34; as to the sufficiency of service by publication, Smith v. Woolfolk, 115 U. S. 143 and cases cited, Clark v. Wells, 203 U. S. 164, 171; as to whether in fact hearing had been granted to one alleged to be an alien enemy, Windsor v. McVeigh, 93 U. S. 274; as to judgment of foreclosure against alien enemy, Lasere v. Rochereau, 17 Wall. 437; as to sufficiency of scire facias to keep alive a judgment, Owens v. Henry, 161 U. S. 642; as to legality of constructive service, Brooklyn v. Insurance Co. 99 U. S. 362,
45 Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185, Empire v. Darlington, 101 U. S. 87, Pana v. Bowler, 107 U. S. 529; as to validity of statute imposing personal liability for local assessment upon non-resident landowner, Dewey v. Des Moines, 173 U. S. 193; as to sufficiency of any steps necessary to confer jurisdiction, Howard v. De Cordova, 177 U. S. 609; as to validity of statute authorizing collection of execution for unpaid balance due on stock subscriptions from foreign stockholders in a corporation, Wilson v. Seligman, 144 U. S. 41; as to whether recital of settlement of cause in a judgment rested on an unfulfilled promissory agreement, Jacobs v. Marks, 182 U. S. 583; as to whether the State court having once rendered final judgment could without notice reopen case and enter a different judgment, Wetmore v. Karrick, 205 U. S. 141, 149. In all these cases it was held that judgments of the courts of sister States, valid there, might be refused recognition elsewhere without doing violence to the federal Constitution. This review of some of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States shows how full and complete is the inquiry permitted into the circumstances by which it is contended that the judgment of the court of the sister State binds the person as to whom it is invoked. Such judgments do not stand upon the same footing as domestic judgments. They may be attacked collaterally. Huntington v. Attrill, 146 U. S. 657, 685. There is nothing in the Federal Constitution or laws to prevent the most searching investigation, "into the jurisdiction of the court in which the judgment is rendered, over the subject matter, or the parties affected by it, or into the facts necessary to give such jurisdiction." Fuller, C. J., in Thormann v. Frame, 176 U. S. 350.

The present contention is that the judgment in favor of the executors of Lewisohn avails the defendant because they were privies respecting the subject matter of the suit. We do not find it to be the law of New York that in a suit in New York the defendant would be entitled to prevail on any other ground. The underlying question is one of jurisdiction. The defendant was not a party to the suit against Lewisohn. He was not served with process. No attempt was made by himself or by the plaintiff to join him as a party. Indeed, the bill in the Lewisohn suit alleges that Bigelow cannot be 46 made a party by reason of residence outside the jurisdiction, and this fact is not controverted. It follows that the United States Circuit Court for the District of New York acquired no jurisdiction to render a judgment binding upon or in favor of Bigelow, unless he was a privy with Lewisohn.

It has been several times said that a judgment concludes, and may be invoked by, one who is a privy. Minneapolis Association v. Canfield, 121 U. S. 295, 308. Mitchell v. First National Bank of Chicago, 180 U. S. 471, 480, and cases cited. These are general statements, however, and we do not find that the precise point has ever been decided as to the effect which must be given to the judgment in the courts of one State touching privies, non-resident in the first State, and domiciled in the one where the question arises. Strong arguments can be conceived to support the proposition that except as to property rights arising by succession only those can be bound as privies, who are domiciled within the State where the judgment is rendered. But we do not pursue this inquiry. For the purposes of this discussion we assume without deciding that such a judgment binds privies of this description. Whether or not he was a privy is fundamental to the jurisdiction of the United States Circuit Court to enter a judgment, which as to Bigelow was capable of becoming res adjudicata.

At the outset it is to be observed that the domicil of the defendant is in this Commonwealth, and that domicil generally determines the particular territorial jurisprudence to which every individual is subjected. Grover & Baker Sewing Machine Co. v. Radcliffe, 137 U. S. 287, 298.

The foundation of the doctrine of res adjudicata is that there has been a judicial inquiry into the subject matter, in which the person to be affected by the judgment has had an opportunity by representative to be heard fully. The inquiry as to jurisdiction is in its last analysis, whether one was in such relation to the action in the sister State as to be bound by its judgment. Ordinarily, the question of jurisdiction is whether one was in law a party to the judgment. Whether a court has jurisdiction of a person depends upon whether he was really a party to it. The cases we have reviewed show that this is to be determined by the courts of the government 47 where it arises according to its jurisprudence, subject to the duty imposed by the Constitution of the United States. The law of the State whose courts entered the judgment does not control. Where it is not contended that one was a party, it is equally an inquiry as to jurisdiction to determine whether he was a privy to one who was a party. By parity of reasoning, whether one is a privy to a judgment rendered in a sister or foreign State must also be determined by the law of the sovereignty where the question arises.

Privity was not a matter in issue in the suit, judgment in which is pleaded, nor can it be determined by an inspection of the judgment roll. It must be decided by evidence outside the record. It is not to be settled according to the law of the State where the judgment is rendered. This plainly appears from D'Arcy v. Ketchum, 11 How. 165. The substance of the New York statute, there decided not to be entitled to full faith and credit when followed by the courts in entering judgment, was that, in cases of joint debtors, all non-residents should be privies with any domestic fellow or joint debtor duly served with process and bound by the judgment. See to substantially the same effect Harris v. Hardeman, 14 How. 334; Ewer v. Coffin, 1 Cush. 23; Stone v. Wainwright, 147 Mass. 201; Phelps v. Brewer, 9 Cush. 390. The same principle is illustrated in Hall v. Lanning, 91 U. S. 160, and Public Works v. Columbia College, 17 Wall. 521, where, by statute or usage, all partners were treated as so much in privity that appearance and defense by one bound all his copartners. Yet such a statute or usage was held not entitled to full faith and credit in the sister State.

We understand these federal cases in principle to cover the question before us, and to decide in substance that legislation or judicial determination of one State, that its domestic judgments shall bind non-residents decided by it to be privies, have no extraterritorial force, and are not entitled to recognition under the full faith and credit clause of the Federal Constitution. The same conclusion follows from the cases above cited, which permit inquiry into the extent of the powers of an agent to subject his principal to the jurisdiction of a foreign court.

But whether or not we interpret these decisions aright, as being decisive against this contention of the defendant, it seems to us that on reason it must be the law that the ascertainment of those 48 non-residents not served with process nor appearing, who are bound by the judgment of a sister State as privies, must be by the courts of the jurisdiction where the question arises, and not by those of the State in which the judgment is rendered. This rests primarily upon the considerations touching the constitutional provision and the reason for its enactment. Its purpose was not to enlarge or change the jurisdiction of the courts of the several States. It was a recognized principle of international law, at the time the Constitution was adopted, that where parties had once fairly litigated a dispute in the courts of any civilized government, the same question ought not to be tried anew. But such judgments were commonly regarded as prima facie evidence of the matter decided and might be re-examined under some circumstances, the whole subject resting in comity and not in obligation. Bissell v. Briggs, 9 Mass. 462. Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 181. In this regard the several colonies before the Declaration of Independence were as to each other foreign nations. Differences of practice grew up, as to the way in which judgments of foreign courts should be proved, and the precise weight to be attached to them. It was in this state of the law that the Constitution was adopted. Diversity of practice was turned into uniformity by the Constitution, which prescribed the effect to be given to judgments of courts, and empowered Congress to legislate further as to forms of proof. But it was not intended to enlarge the jurisdiction of the courts of the several States, or confer any new power upon them. It has simply made certain and of universal application between the several States that which before rested only in comity, and does still as to judgments of courts of foreign nations. It was intended merely to be regulative. It "establishes a rule of evidence rather than of jurisdiction." Anglo-American Provision Co. v. Davis Provision Co. (No. 1) 191 U. S. 373. Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107, 112. Bissell v. Briggs, 9 Mass. 462, 467. "Judgments recovered in one State of the Union, when proved in the courts of another government, whether State or national, within the United States, differ from judgments recovered in a foreign country in no other respect than in not being re-examinable on their merits, nor impeachable for fraud in obtaining 49 them, if rendered by a court having jurisdiction of the cause and of the parties" Wisconsin v. Pelican Ins. Co. 127 U. S. 265, 292. Hanley v. Donoghue, 116 U. S. 1, 4. Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 185. Union & Planters' Bank v. Memphis, 49 C. C. A. 455, 465, and cases cited. This is further illustrated by what was said by Mr. Justice Gray, in Lynde v. Lynde, 181 U. S. 183, at pp. 186, 187: "By the Constitution and the act of Congress, requiring the faith and credit to be given to a judgment of the court of another State that it has in the State where it was rendered, it was long ago declared by this court: 'The judgment is made a debt of record, not examinable upon its merits; but it does not carry with it, into another State, the efficacy of a judgment upon property or persons, to be enforced by execution. To give it the force of a judgment in another State, it must be made a judgment there; and can only be executed in the latter as its laws may permit.'"

In other words, the question whether the plaintiff can try its case here against Bigelow after failing against the estate of Lewisohn arises after full faith and credit have been given to the New York decree, and is not included in giving it full faith and credit. The decree does not have the effect contended for by the defendant proprio vigore. Whether it should bar the plaintiff from another suit is a question of public policy. Such a question must be decided according to the law of the State where it arises.

This conclusion is strongly supported by the argument of convenience. It is a principle of the common law that a judgment binds the parties and their privies. But there is no generally prevailing definition of privity which can be automatically applied to all cases. Who are privies requires careful examination into the circumstances of each case as it arises. Its determination is often difficult for a court possessed of plenary jurisdiction. But if the question who are privies is to be decided as a fact under the law of a foreign jurisdiction upon such evidence as the parties may be able to produce complication is multiplied. The present case furnishes a capital illustration of the evil workings of such a rule. The courts of authority in New York seem not to have decided the precise question we now have to pass upon. Eminent lawyers have been called by both parties to testify as experts. But no two of them agree in their definition of privies, although several think that the executors of Lewisohn and the defendant were privies. There is great diversity in the details of the views expressed by those called by the defendant as to the exact grounds upon which they say the plaintiff would be barred in the courts of New York in a suit against Bigelow. We cannot conceive that it was the intent of the framers of the Constitution to put parties to the expense, inconvenience and unsatisfactory method of resorting to this class of testimony in order to establish their rights, when courts exist in every State, which could with much less difficulty determine the question according to the law of the forum. There is nothing inconsistent with this result in Whitman v. Oxford National Bank, 176 U. S. 559, and Hancock National Bank v. Farnum, 176 U. S. 640. These cases decided that the liability imposed upon stockholders in Kansas corporations, by the Constitution and laws of that State, were contractual in their nature, and were enforceable in the courts of other jurisdictions. These decisions in effect hold that the laws of a sovereign power, as to the rights and liabilities arising out of the relations between a domestic corporation and its stockholders, are binding upon the latter as contracts, because they assented to be so bound by voluntarily becoming such stockholders. Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 529. Tilt v. Kelsey, 207 U. S. 43, 47, simply decided in substance that a judgment in rem by a court having jurisdiction thereof binds everybody interested in it. Laing v. Rigney, 160 U. S. 531, held that on the facts shown the State court had juridiction of all persons sought to be charged. None of these decisions are apposite to the point now under discussion.

We are, therefore, of opinion that whether Bigelow was in such privity with the executors of Lewisohn, respecting the litigation in New York, as to be able to invoke, in his own defense, the judgment there rendered, is a jurisdictional question to be determined by the law of this Commonwealth, subject to the Federal Constitution.

It remains to inquire whether, according to the law of this Commonwealth, the Circuit Court for the District of New York had such jurisdiction of the defendant as to enable him to invoke its judgment as a bar in the present suit, on the ground of res judicata. This in turn depends upon the question whether the defendant was 51 a privy with the defendants in the Lewisohn suit, or in such relation to it that he can plead the judgment in favor of the Lewisohn estate, as an estoppel against the plaintiff. The evidence shows that he knew of the suit, and through his counsel gave such assistance in the preparation of the briefs for the arguments of that suit as might have been expected. But, as he was not a party, this fact is not of much importance. It is treated by most of the expert witnesses called by the defendant as to the New York law as of no consequence. Privity depends upon the relation of the parties to the subject matter, rather than their activity in a suit relating to it after the event. Participation in the defense because of general or personal interest in the result of the litigation does not make one privy to the judgment. Stryker v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. 527, 540. People v. Knickerbocker Ins. Co. 106 N. Y. 619.

The liability of the defendant, as has been pointed out, according to the law of this Commonwealth, is one arising ex delicto. The wrong committed was a tort, in which the defendant and Lewisohn acted in concert. The finding of the single justice, supported by the evidence is, in substance, that they were joint tortfeasors. The inquiry then is, whether one of several joint tortfeasors can plead a judgment in favor of his joint tortfeasor against a plaintiff claiming to have been injured by their joint act as an estoppel in a suit by the same plaintiff against himself.

This can hardly be regarded as an open question in this Commonwealth. In Sprague v. Oakes, 19 Pick. 455, which was an action for trespass quare clausum fregit, it was said, respecting such a defense, "The defendant was neither a party nor privy to that judgment, was not bound by it, nor could he take advantage of it." This case has never been overruled or questioned and must be regarded as stating the law of this Commonwealth. There are other authorities to the same point. Lansing v. Montgomery, 2 Johns. 382. Marsh v. Berry, 7 Cowen, 344. Moore v. Tracy, 7 Wend. 229. Gittleman v. Feltman, 122 App. Div. (N. Y.) 385. Atlantic Dock Co. v. Mayor & Aldermen of New York, 53 N. Y. 64. Tyng v. Clarke, 9 Hun. 269. Calkins v. Allerton, 3 Barb. 171, 174. Goble v. Lillon, 86
52 Ind. 327. Thompson v. Chicago, St. Paul & Kansas City Railroad, 74 Minn. 89. Three States Lumber Co. v. Blanks, 118 Tenn. 627.

The reason upon which these decisions rest is that there can be no estoppel arising out of a judgment, unless the same parties have had their day in court touching the matter litigated, and unless the judgment is equally available to both parties. It requires no discussion to demonstrate that a judgment in the Lewisohn suit against the defendants would not have fixed liability upon the present defendant. Hence there can be no estoppel under our law or under the general principles of jurisprudence, because it is not mutual. Brigham v. Fayerweather, 140 Mass. 411, 415. Dallinger v. Richardson, 176 Mass. 77, 83. Worcester v. Green, 2 Pick. 425, 429. Biddle & Smart Co. v. Burnham, 91 Maine, 578. Moore v. Albany, 98 N. Y. 396. "Estoppels to be good must be mutual." Litchfield v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. 549, 552. Nelson v. Brown, 144 N. Y. 384, 390. Bigelow could not have appeared as of right and made a defense to that suit. No judgment can be regarded as res judicata as to any matter where the rights in the subject matter arise out of mutuality, and not by succession, unless the party could, as matter of right, appear and defend, even though he may have had knowledge of the suit. Otherwise, he might be bound by a judgment as to which he had never had the opportunity to be heard, which is opposed to the first principles of justice. Brabrook v. Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, 104 Mass. 228, 233. There is no privity between joint wrongdoers, because all are jointly and severally liable. Corey v. Havener, 182 Mass. 250. Feneff v. Boston & Maine Railroad, 196 Mass. 575, 581. Pinkerton v. Randolph, 200 Mass. 24, 28. There is no right of contribution between joint wrongdoers, where they are in pari delicto with each other. Churchill v. Holt, 127 Mass. 165. They are equally culpable, and the wrong complained of results from their joint effort. The right of recovery over by a municipality against a person, whose wrong created a defect in the highway (Holyoke v. Hadley Co. 174 Mass. 424) is no exception to this rule, because the tort committed by each of the wrongdoers is diverse in character, and rests upon a different basis of liability, and there is a right of indemnity in favor of the municipality. Lowell v. Glidden, 159 Mass. 317, 319. We are aware of no instance of joint participation in a common tortious en-53 terprise where there is any right of contribution. One comprehensive definition of privies is such persons as are "privies in estate—as donor and donee, lessor and lessee and joint tenants; or privies in blood—as heir and ancestor; or privies in representation—as executor and testator or administrator and intestate; or privies in law—where the law without privity in blood or estate casts land upon another, as by escheat." Buckingham v. Ludlum, 10 Stew. 137, 141. Douglass v. Howland, 24 Wend. 35, 53. Joint tortfeasors come within none of the classes thus described. The definition in 1 Greenl. Ev. § 535, adopted by the Supreme Court of the United States, in Litchfield v. Goodnow, 123 U. S. 549, 551, namely, "Mutual or successive relationship to the same rights of property" equally fails to include joint tortfeasors. If we turn to the law of privity as illustrated in actions against partnership and joint debtors, the soundness of this conclusion is confirmed. It has been repeatedly decided that an administrator of a decedent in one jurisdiction is not in privity with an administrator of the same estate appointed in another jurisdiction, and that a judgment against one such administrator is not res judicata to the other. Ingersoll v. Coram, 211 U. S. 335, and cases cited. Johnson v. Powers, 139 U. S. 156. In Chase v. Henry, 166 Mass. 577, it was held that discharge in insolvency in this Commonwealth did not bar the debt of a copartnership, one member of which was a non-resident, although two were residents and the copartnership had a regular place of business here. It has been several times held that judgment against one surviving partner upon a claim against the partnership was not admissible in evidence against the executors of a deceased partner, although the existence of the partnership was not disputed. Buckingham v. Ludlum, 10 Stew. 137. Moores' Appeals, 34 Penn. St. 411. Sturges v. Beach, 1 Conn. 507. Larison v. Hager, 44 Fed. Rep. 49. The converse, which is exactly parallel to the present case, namely, that a judgment in favor of one partner or joint and several debtor will not avail his associate in liability, has often been decided. Townsend v. Riddle, 2 N. H. 448. McLelland v. Ridgeway, 12 Ala. 482. State Bank v. Robinson, 13 Ark. 214, 221. Detroit v. Houghton, 42 Mich. 459, 460. It is difficult to conceive of persons more closely identified with their common 54 business than joint debtors and partners, and if judgments against one do not bind his associate, we do not see how persons occupying the less intimate relation to each other, which Bigelow and Lewisohn did, can be bound as privies. See also Williams v. Bankhead, 19 Wall. 563, 570.

Apart from authority and on principle the same result seems necessary. Joint tortfeasors act in unison respecting a common wrongful enterprise. It is one of the penalties, which the common law (differing in this respect from the civil law) inflicts upon those who jointly engage in intentional violation of the rights of others, that each shall be left to bear the natural results of his conduct. Courts will not lend their aid in adjusting the conflicting claims of wrongdoers touching their own turpitude.

An injured party is given the right to pursue his remedy, either singly or together, against those who thus cause injury, and may proceed to judgment against all in separate actions. He is barred only by a satisfaction. An inevitable corollary of these generally undisputed propositions and one consonant with a fundamental sense of justice is that a party has a right to try his case against everybody who has done him a wrong by immediate and direct culpable action. He is not precluded by a failure against one alleged joint wrongdoer from attempting to pursue another. He is entitled to his day in court against a particular adversary. We believe there are no exceptions to this rule stated in this form. The cases where judgment in favor of an active agent or servant avails a passive principal or master (Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Stratton's Independence, 158 Fed. Rep. 63 and cases cited), or where the relation of indemnitor and indemnitee exists (Port Jervis v. First National Bank of Port Jervis, 90 N. Y. 550) do not constitute exceptions to this rule, but stand on a different ground.

For another reason the New York judgment in favor of Lewisohn seems not to be a bar. The joint actor with the defendant was not the defendant in the New York suit, but it was prosecuted against his executors. If it be assumed that there was a kind of privity between the two who acted in concert, that privity was broken by the death of one. There is no privity between Lewisohn's exec-
55 utors and Bigelow. Ela v. Edwards, 13 Allen, 48. Merrill v. New England Ins. Co. 103 Mass. 245, 249. Thomson v. American Surety Co. 170 N. Y. 109. It cannot be said that the plaintiff has elected to pursue his remedy against the estate of Lewisohn to the exclusion of his rights against Bigelow. As between joint tortfeasors the doctrine of election has no application, and moreover the plaintiff sought the New York forum voluntarily only in the sense of being compelled to go there that a court might acquire jurisdiction of those defendants.

The determination that the relation between Lewisohn and Bigelow was that of joint tortfeasors respecting a cause of action arising ex delicto disposes also of the argument pressed by the defendant, that Lewisohn was trustee, agent or representative of Bigelow to such an extent that he was in privity with him. See Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. 4 Buch. (N. J.), 71 Atl. Rep. 153, 176.

The conclusion is, therefore, that the matters set up in the supplemental answers do not preclude the plaintiff from continuing the prosecution of the present suits.

Both parties have introduced a large amount of evidence as to the law of New York touching the effect which would by its courts be accorded to the judgment against the plaintiff in the Lewisohn litigation in a suit like the present pending in its courts against the defendant. In the view which we take of this case that question has become wholly immaterial, and we do not pass upon it.

13. The defendant has briefly argued that a decision for the plaintiff in these suits involves a denial to him of due process of law, the equal protection of the laws, and an impairment of the obligation of contracts. It does not seem necessary to discuss these arguments further than to say that they do not appear to us to have any application to the issues here pending.

14. The present cases were upon the calendar of the full court for argument at its January sitting, 1908. Upon motion of the defendant based upon representations as to the need of delay to enable him to prepare a brief, they were assigned as the first cases for argument at the March sitting of this court, 1908. A few days before the coming in of the court at that sitting, the present defend-56 ant applied to the Court of Chancery in the State of New Jersey, where the plaintiff is domiciled, and secured a temporary injunction against its prosecution of these suits. The suit in New Jersey was decided adversely to the plaintiff by the chancellor, in whose elaborate opinion one of the vice-chancellors concurred, on August 8, 1908. Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. 4 Buch. (N. J.), 71 Atl. Rep. 153. This decision was not by the court of last resort, and the present defendant, the plaintiff there, asserted that he intended to prosecute an appeal to the highest court in the State of New Jersey. Thereupon, on motion, an interlocutory decree was entered by a single justice of this court, restraining the defendant, "his attorneys, agents and servants from further prosecuting the action commenced by said Bigelow against the plaintiff in the Court of Chancery in the State of New Jersey * * *; and from commencing or prosecuting any other suit or proceeding either in law or in equity, except in this court, against the plaintiff to prevent it from obtaining the final decision and decree of this court or in any manner to delay or impede the presentation of said case." These suits were then pending before the full court under R. L. c. 159, § 19. This statute, however, does not prevent the entering by a single justice of decrees respecting interlocutory matters which may call for a speedy hearing and decision, but in no wise affecting the questions covered by the final decree. R. L. c. 159, §§ 17, 21, 22. Parker v. Nickerson, 137 Mass. 487, 491. The defendant appealed from this interlocutory decree and from a refusal of the single justice to modify or vacate it.

It is a general principle of chancery jurisprudence that, as between courts of co-ordinate and concurrent jurisdiction, the court which first obtains possession of a transaction shall dispose of it without interference from other courts. Riggs v. Johnson Co. 6 Wall. 166, 196. Home Ins. Co. v. Howell, 9 C. E. Green, 238. The jurisdiction of courts of equity to restrain a citizen suitor from prosecuting litigation in another State is well settled. Cunningham v. Butler, 142 Mass. 47; S. C. sub nomine Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107. The present suits were begun October 7, 1902. This court plainly had jurisdiction of the subject matter and the parties. The defendant made no contest in these respects, but proceeded to hearing upon the merits and accepted the jurisdiction of the 57 court up to the point of argument before the full bench. It was manifestly proper that at this stage of the proceedings, in view of his conduct of the suits theretofore, he shoul dbe restrained from attempting to interfere in courts of other jurisdiction with the conclusion of this litigation. It is hardly necessary to say that the interlocutory decree does not purport to restrain him from enforcing whatever rights he may have to a writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States to the final judgments which may be entered in this court. His ful rights under the Federal Constitution are preserved. The decrees are to be so modified as to include the costs of these appeals, and as modified are affirmed.

So ordered.*

KNOWLTON, C. J.:

This is an important case. The decrees from which the appeal was taken to this court call for the payment of considerably more than two million dollars. The questions of law involved are far-reaching. As I do not agree to the opinion of the majority of the court, I deem it my duty to state the reasons for my dissent.

* The case was taken to the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error.

The fundamental question is, what right and power has a corporation to bind itself, acting through its stockholders in confirmation of the doings of its directors, in the transaction of business, after it has been completely organized under the law of the State of New Jersey, and after the amount of the capital required to authorize it to do business under the statute has been paid in, but before the whole of its capital stock has been issued or subscribed for. The plaintiff corporation was established under the laws of the State of New Jersey. Its rights and powers, and the rights of its stockholders, depend upon the law of that State. Unless it has suffered a wrong as a corporation of that State it has no standing here.

To organize a corporation under the laws of New Jersey, articles of association in writing must be signed by not less than three persons, stating the name of the company, the place or places where its business is to be conducted, the object for which it is to be formed, "the total amount of the capital stock of such company, which shall not be less than two thousand dollars, the amount with which they will commence business, which shall not be less 58 than one thousand dollars, and the number of shares into which the same is divided, and the par value of each share." It must also contain a statement of the names and residences of the stockholders and the number of shares held by each, with the "period at which such company shall commence and terminate, not exceeding fifty years." Gen. Sts. of New Jersey, 912-946, §§ 10-189. The certificate must be proved and acknowledged, and then recorded as deeds of real estate are required to be recorded. It must also be filed in the office of the secretary of state. When this has been done, the company is a corporation from the time of the commencement of the period fixed in the certificate.

The report of the single justice, with the evidence, shows that the plaintiff corporation was organized in all respects in compliance with the statute, that the requisite amount of capital to qualify it to commence business was paid in in cash, and that the corporation was legally authorized to do any business within the purposes of its organization. Although but a small part of its authorized capital had been paid in or subscribed for, it was permitted by law to exercise all the powers of a corporation and to perform all its contemplated functions for fifty years, if it could obtain money or credit sufficient for the purpose. It then made contracts with the defendant Bigelow and his associate Lewisohn, who were the promoters of it, and who therefore stood in fiduciary relations to it, which contracts would be voidable as fraudulent for that reason, unless there was a full and fair disclosure of the facts to the corporation, as represented either by an independent board of directors who were in a position properly to protect its rights, or by its existing stockholders who were the owners of it. The directors were selected by the defendant and Lewisohn, and they were not impartial and independent officers, qualified properly to represent the corporation in matters where its interests might be adverse to those of the promoters. Indeed, as stockholders, they were then the representatives of the promoters. The capital which they paid in under their subscriptions was paid with money furnished by the promoters, and the beneficial interest in all the stock of the company, as it was then organized, was in the defendant and Lewisohn, who were the real owners of the entire corporation. Under these con-59 tracts, and in payment for property conveyed to the corporation, thirty thousand shares of stock were issued to the defendant and Lewisohn and taken in their names, and one hundred thousand shares were issued to Philip E. Dumaresq, "who took them as the nominee and for the benefit and subject to the orders of the defendant and Lewisohn." These shares "were held for and controlled by the defendant and Lewisohn." Twenty thousand shares more, which made up the total authorized capital of the company, were found by the judge to have been still the property of the corporation itself, and they were intended to be issued to independent subscribers for a working capital. They then stood in the name of Thomas Nelson, treasurer. More than two months after the original contracts were made, and while the ownership of the stock was as above stated, all the directors of the corporation signed, in the record book, a statement approving of the previous action of the board in making these contracts, and a similar statement was signed by the defendant and Lewisohn and Dumaresq as stockholders, and by Nelson as a stock-holding treasurer.

Upon these findings the defendant and Lewisohn were the owners of all the authorized capital stock of the corporation, except the twenty thousand shares in the treasury, which belonged to the corporation, and through the corporation they owned that also. As stockholders, they knew all the facts affecting the validity or propriety of the contracts which they had made with the company. At that time they had no interest adverse to that of the corporation, for they were the sole owners of the corporation. One question is whether this ratification with full knowledge, by all the stockholders, was binding upon the corporation. Another question is whether the contracts were valid when originally made, having been agreed to with full knowledge by the only persons beneficially interested in the corporation. More specifically, the broad question is whether a corporation, which has full power to make every other kind of a contract within the purposes of its organization, is powerless to make a contract, or through its stockholders to ratify a contract, with one standing in a fiduciary relation to it.

There is no question of fraud upon the corporation; for all of the owners of it were fully informed in regard to the transactions, and approved of them. Under such circumstances there can 60 be no fraud. After a corporation is fully organized, the stockholders for the time being own and control it. In a broad sense, they are the corporation, although the corporation as a separate entity may exercise its powers as an individual, under their direction and for their benefit. The power of a corporation through its stockholders, choosing proper agents, to deal formally with those in a fiduciary relation to it is established beyond the possibility of question. It matters not that the fiduciaries are themselves stockholders, if the other stockholders are not misled. And it matters not whether they constitute all of the stockholders, or only a part of them, if all the stockholders know all the facts and consent to the transaction.

The only question that seems to me debatable, on this branch of the case, is whether the power of the corporation, or of its stockholders, to act in matters of this kind is taken away by the fact that its stock is not all issued, and that a part of it is retained to be issued to obtain working capital, or for other purposes. On principle, it is difficult to see how this can affect its right under the law to do business of this kind, as it may do business of every other kind.

It is suggested that to make contracts with one in a fiduciary relation may be detrimental to the interests of the corporation, and constitute a fraud upon persons subsequently subscribing for stock not then issued, even if the existing stockholders know all the facts and are content. But it is to be noticed that, under the law of New Jersey, the organization of a corporation does not necessarily give any indication or suggestion as to the value of its stock. It does not indicate that more than $1,000 of capital has been actually paid in, if that sum is fixed in the articles of association as the amount necessary to qualify it to do business. As to the balance of the shares, it does not show whether much, or little, or nothing at all has been paid upon them. It does not indicate that contracts have or have not been made with the corporation, and if they have been made, whether they are advantageous or disadvantageous to it. Under this system, everybody is bound to know that, apart from the general facts of organization which appear of record, one buying stock or subscribing for it must ascertain by inquiry if he would know whether it is of large value or of no value. Evidently the statute was intended 61 to give very broad latitude to organizers of corporations, and to give corporations full powers to contract, while only a small amount of stock has been issued, which may be owned by a very few persons.

Promoters, as well as directors, stand in a fiduciary relation to a corporation. They do not stand in such a relation directly to particular stockholders, or to a particular class of stockholders. Their relation to stockholders is only as the stockholders claim through the corporation by virtue of their ownership of it. Through the corporation, promoters and directors stand in this relation to those who own stock while their fiduciary relation to the corporation continues. They are never in such a relation to those who become stockholders after their relation to the corporation has ended. Their fiduciary relation to the corporation extends through it to all the owners of it. The stockholders for the time being are all the owners of it. These stockholders can sell its property, or wind it up, or control it as they please. No one else has any interest in it, and the directors or promoters have no relations, as such, to any one else. If additional stock is issued after their relations to the corporation are terminated, they are not and they never were in fiduciary relations to the takers of this new stock. In this respect there is no difference between directors and promoters. All this is said in reference to corporations which are regularly and completely organized, and are authorized to do business and fully to exercise their powers and franchises under the law, notwithstanding that a part of their authorized capital has not been taken. Of course, if a corporation is merely in an inchoate condition, and has not acquired the power to exercise its franchises, a different rule would apply.

So too, promoters may enter into arrangements with underwriters or syndicates or single persons who expect to take stock, and may thus assume obligations. In the present cases I do not intimate that the defendant might not be held liable to some of the persons who arranged with him to take a part in the enterprise.

But whatever may be thought of the conduct of promoters who make contracts with a corporation while they are the sole owners of it, and whether it be held that their fiduciary relations
62 extend to future stockholders or only to those who are the owners while this relation exists, the question before us is whether, under the law of New Jersey, a corporation is powerless to bind itself as to such contracts, when they are entered into with the assent of the existing stockholders, all of whom have full knowledge of the facts. On principle, I think that a corporation organized in that State is not so crippled. Let us consider the authorities.

In re Ambrose Lake Tin & Copper Mining Co. 14 Ch. D. 390, was a case in which a sale of property was made to a corporation by the promoters of it, which would have been voidable for fraud if the promoters had not been the owners of its stock. It was held that, inasmuch as the vendors were themselves the stockholders of the company and knew all the facts, there was no fraud upon the corporation. In this case the judges thought that one of the purposes of these promoters was to obtain profit from future purchasers of the stock who were ignorant of the transaction; but under the circumstances the corporation could not avoid the contract. In North-West Transportation Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 589, a contract or purchase of property by a corporation was entered into by directors with one of their number. It was held that the vendor was entitled to exercise his voting power as a stockholder to ratify the contract. He controlled a majority of the votes through ownership of his stock, acquired in a manner authorized by the constitution of the company. It was held that his exercise of his power could not be deemed oppressive for this reason. Sir Richard Baggallay, in delivering the unanimous opinion of the privy Council, said, "Unless some provision to the contrary is to be found in the charter or other instrument by which the company is incorporated, the resolution of a majority of the shareholders, duly convened, upon any question with which the company is legally competent to deal, is binding upon the minority, and consequently upon the company, and every shareholder has a perfect right to vote upon any such question, although he may have a personal interest in the subject matter opposed to, or different from, the general or particular interests of the company." Referring to dealings with a director acting in a fiduciary capacity, he said: "Any such dealing or en-about by unfair or improper means, and is not illegal or fraudulent or oppressive towards those shareholders who oppose it." In this case ratification was by only a small majority of the stockholders.
63 gagement may, however, be affirmed or adopted by the company, provided such affirmance or adoption is not brough'

Salomon v. Salomon, [1897] A. C. 22, was a case in which the proprietor of a business organized a corporation with a capital stock of forty thousand shares, of the par value of one pound each. He, his wife, his daughter and his four sons took one share each. With only seven shares taken, he sold out his business to the corporation for a price which might be found to be much more than it was worth. He then took twenty thousand shares more of the stock; the remaining nineteen thousand nine hundred and ninety-three shares never were issued. The company soon became insolvent, and a receiver, in the interest of creditors, sought to hold this organizer and promoter for fraud upon the corporation. It was held upon these facts that there was no fraud and no liability. Lord Chancellor Halsbury quoted from the headnote in Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218, and then said, "But if every member of the company—every shareholder—knows exactly what is the true state of the facts (which for this purpose must be assumed to be the case here) Vaughan Williams, J.'s conclusion seems to me to be inevitable, for no case of fraud upon the company could here be established." He said this in which only seven shares of stock out of an authorized capital of forty thousand shares had been issued when the contract with the promoter was made. This case seems to me fully to cover the case at bar, in which the only fraud proved was the constructive fraud of a sale to a corporation from one in a fiduciary relation to it.

Other cases establish the proposition that it makes no difference that not all the stock of the company has been issued, if the holders of all outstanding stock agree. In St. Louis, Fort Scott & Wichita Railroad v. Tiernan, 37 Kans. 606, and Stewart v. St. Louis, Fort Scott & Wichita Railroad, 41 Fed. Rep. 736, a part of the stock, although not a large amount, was issued to municipalities after the transaction to which the stockholders agreed. In Hutchinson v. Simpson, 92 App. Div. (N. Y.) 382, a large amount of stock 64 was held in the treasury for other corporate uses. The same was true in Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 232, which in its reasoning and the authorities cited is a very strong case for the defendant. Only a part of the authorized stock had been issued when the contract was made in In re British Seamless Box Co. 17 Ch. D. 467, and more was issued about a year and a quarter afterwards. Tompkins v. Sperry, 96 Md. 560, is an important case supporting the proposition that stockholders may bind the corporation in transactions of this kind which are voidable for constructive fraud. Except as I shall state hereafter, I know of no case which holds that it makes any difference that not all the stock has been issued, if the corporation is completely organized and authorized to go on with its ordinary business. There are dicta of some English judges, indicating that such a transaction, when it is expected that a prospectus will be issued under the English practice inviting subscriptions for stock from the public, would be fraudulent as against future stockholders. These are in opinions in which the judges hold that there is no fraud upon the corporation as there was knowledge and consent of the stockholders, and they seem to assume that the corporation is not fully organized and qualified to do business. But they are without discussion or seeming consideration of the question when a corporation and its stockholders become competent to make binding contracts as to such matters. Other cases which support the defendant's position are Foster v. Seymour, 23 Fed. Rep. 65, McCracken v. Robison, 57 Fed. Rep. 375, and Barr v. New York, Lake Erie & Western Railroad, 125 N. Y. 263.

This court, in Hayward v. Leeson, 176 Mass. 310, in dealing with a corporation established under the laws of Tennessee, held that the receivers of the company might maintain a suit for fraud against promoters, notwithstanding that the stockholders, at the time of the transaction, knew all the facts and agreed to the contract. The particulars of the statute of Tennessee, as to the organization of corporations, do not appear in the report of the case. When the present suits came before the court upon a demurrer, Hayward v. Leeson was followed and held to govern them. 188 Mass. 315. The precise questions which were then before us have been considered by the Circuit Court of the United States and the United States Cir-
65 cuit Court of Appeals in the second circuit, in a suit brought by this plaintiff against Lewisohn's heirs and upon a demurrer to averments of fact against Lewisohn substantially identical with those against the defendant in the present suits, there was a decision for the defendants. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 136 Fed. Rep. 915; S. C. 148 Fed. Rep. 1020. As appears by the record before us, five judges of the federal courts in that circuit, at different stages of the proceeding, agreed in their view of the law of the case. The suit was then carried to the Supreme Court of the United States, and the justices of that court were unanimous in sustaining the defendant's demurrer. Upon the averments of the bill, they treated Bigelow and Lewisohn as the real owners of the corporation when the contracts were made, through their appointees, who took the stock which they paid for. The judge who wrote the opinion sat as Chief Justice with those other members of this court who took part in the decision of Hayward v. Leeson. The view expressed in the opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States is at variance with a part of the reasoning and with the decision in Hayward v. Leeson. This latest decision must be treated as establishing the law for the federal courts. The cases cited show that the law is settled in the same way in some of the State courts.

In addition to the deference that a unanimous opinion of the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States should receive in any other court, it is for me a very important consideration that, upon questions which will often be litigated in the federal tribunals by reason of the diverse citizenship of the parties the law ought to be the same in the State courts as in the federal courts. It would be unfortunate if, in this large class of cases, the rights of a suitor should depend upon whether he is finally held subject to the jurisdiction of a federal court or to that of a State court.

It seems to me that the great weight of authority, upon the turning point of this case, is in favor of the defendant. I do not regard the case of Erlanger v. New Sombrero Phosphate Co. 3 App. Cas. 1218 (5 Ch. D. 73), relied on by the plaintiff, as having any bearing upon the question on which the present case turns, namely, when is a corporation so far organized that its stockholders, acting with full knowledge, can bind it? No such question arose in that 66 case, and there was no occasion to consider such a question. So far as appears, the question was never thought of. The court was dealing with a fraud upon a corporation whose stockholders were ignorant of the facts that constituted the fraud, and took no action in regard to the matter. It seems to me that the dicta of certain English judges relied on by the majority of the court overlook the fact that the fiduciary relation of promoters of a corporation is of no practical consequence if the promoters are the sole owners of the corporation, and if, at the time of the transaction in question, the corporation is legally organized and qualified to do every kind of business, although this fact is generally recognized by the English courts. I also think that the judges uttering the dicta were influenced by the statutory provision in the English law for the issuing of a prospectus to the public, inviting subscriptions to the stock, after the corporation is organized in other particulars. There is no such provision in the statute of New Jersey.

It is also to be remembered that the dicta were uttered in connection with decisions that the corporation was bound by the knowledge and action of all its existing stockholders, notwithstanding that only a part of the authorized stock had been taken. One or two of the dicta are in other cases in which no question in regard to action by all the stockholders with knowledge arose. In Pietsch v. Milbrath, 123 Wis. 647, 651, it appears that the plaintiffs took their stock upon grossly false representations as to the organization of the corporation, and they were allowed a remedy. Yeiser v. United States Board & Paper Co. 107 Fed. Rep. 340, 348, was a case of gross, active fraud, and some stockholders who were ignorant of the facts were brought in before the transaction in question was consummated. Of course, this decision is of no effect as against the later adjudication in 210 U. S. 206, covering the precise question before us. Neither of these two cases seems to me important in reference to the question on which the present decision depends. I think the corporation in the present case is bound by the knowledge and consent of its stockholders.

The defendant relies upon the independent defense that the decision against the plaintiff, upon the same averments of fact in 67 the suit against the other of the two joint actors, is a bar to the present claim, as res judicata. Evidence was introduced to prove the law of New York, where the decree was entered. The defendant called thirteen witnesses of the greatest eminence and distinction, who testified as experts in law that, in their opinion, under the law of New York, the decree would be a bar to these suits if they were brought against this defendant in the courts of that State. Many of these witnesses had had a long judicial experience. Three of them had sat in the Court of Appeals, two of them for long terms, and one as a Chief Judge. Several others had served a long time in the Supreme Court of New York, sitting in the general term and the appellate division. Others had held other high positions in their profession, and all of them were lawyers whose opinions are entitled to great weight. The plaintiff called two eminent lawyers who expressed a contrary opinion. Many decisions of the courts of New York were also put in evidence. The defendant contended that, if the decree is a bar under the law of New York, it is equally so when pleaded in Massachusetts.

If it were necessary to consider this branch of the defense, it perhaps would be a grave question whether the defense was or was not made out. But as to that I express no opinion, preferring to rest this opinion on the other ground.

I am authorized to say that Mr. Justice Morton concurs in this opinion.

HAMMOND, J.: Upon the questions (1) whether the facts found by the single justice are supported by the evidence and should stand, (2) whether "the transaction is to be determined by the law of Massachusetts," (3) whether the plaintiff has been guilty of laches, (4) what shall be the nature of the relief (if there is any relief), (5) what effect shall be given to the judgment rendered in the Lewisohn case by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, (6) whether a decision for the plaintiff in these suits involves a denial to the defendant of due process of law, or the equal protection of the laws, and (7) whether the interlocutory order entered by a single justice enjoining the defendant from further prosecuting his suit against the plaintiff elsewhere except in this court should stand, I agree with the majority of the court.

But upon the question on the merits, namely, whether upon the facts found the defendant is answerable to the plaintiff, I agree with the dissenting opinion filed by the Chief Justice; and for the reasons stated therein I think that the bills should be dismissed.

68 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
Suffolk, ss:

Supreme Judicial Court.

In Equity. No. 8098.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
ALBERT S. BIGELOW.

Application for Writ of Error.

To the Honorable Marcus P. Knowlton, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court:—

And now comes the defendant in the above entitled cause and respectfully represents that on the twenty-sixth day of October,

1427

1909, this Court upon and in accordance with a rescript from the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, the highest Court in the State, entered a final decree in said cause in favor of the plaintiff and against the defendant, in which decree, and in the proceedings had prior thereto in this Court, certain errors appear, to the prejudice of the defendant, as recited in the annexed assignment of errors.

Wherefore, the defendant prays that a writ of error to this Court from the Supreme Court of the United States may issue in his behalf for the correction of the errors so complained of, and that a transcript of the record, proceedings and papers in this cause, duly authenticated, may be sent to the Supreme Court of the United States.

By His Attorneys, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
C. H. TYLER.
O. D. YOUNG.
B. E. EAMES.

69 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA:

Supreme Court of the United States.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW, Plaintiff in Error.
v.
OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY, Defendant in Error.

Assignment of Errors by Plaintiff in Error.

And now comes Albert S. Bigelow, plaintiff in error in the above entitled cause, and, in connection with his application for a writ of error, makes this his assignment of errors.

(1) The Court erred in deciding that the final judgment or decree dated July 23, 1908, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the suit brought by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial, was not a bar to the prosecution of this action against the plaintiff in error in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and that said decree did not estop the plaintiff (defendant in error) from prosecuting its said cause in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and did not render the matters in issue in said suit in said Circuit Court res adjudicata in said cause in the Supreme Judicial Court in Massachusetts, and thereby denied to said decree full faith and credit in violation of Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States and of the Acts of Congress 70 enacted pursuant thereto.

(2) The Court erred in not giving full faith and credit to the decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, made in the suit duly brought and pending in the said Court by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, as set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial of this cause, in violation and disregard of Section 1, Article IV, of the Constitution of the United States.

(3) The Court erred in not granting a decree herein in favor of the plaintiff in error dismissing the complaint for the reason that the decree entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the suit brought by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, as set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial, conclusively adjudged and determined in favor of the plaintiff in error that no cause of action existed in favor of the defendant in error against the plaintiff in error by reason of the matters set forth in the bill of complaint herein, and in refusing to so adjudge, the Court denied to the plaintiff in error the right claimed by him under the Constitution of the United States, to wit,—that full faith and credit be given in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to the judicial proceedings of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

71 (4) The Court erred in not granting a decree herein in favor of the plaintiff in error dismissing the complaint, inasmuch as the defendant in error was estopped from maintaining in the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts the bill of complaint in this action against the plaintiff in error by reason of the decree entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the suit brought therein by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, since the decree in favor of the defendants in said action was also in favor of the plaintiff in error as a privy or representative of the defendants therein and of the decedent, Leonard Lewisohn, and in refusing so to adjudge, the Court denied to the plaintiff in error the full faith and credit of the judicial proceedings in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, above referred to, contrary to Section 1, Article IV of the Constitution of the United States.

(5) The Court erred in not granting a decree in favor of the plaintiff in error dismissing the complaint, inasmuch as the decree entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, in the suit duly brought and pending therein by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn, and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, as set forth in the supplemental answer herein and proven upon the trial, conclusively adjudged and determined in favor of the plaintiff 72 in error that the defendant in error was not entitled to recover against the plaintiff in error by reason of the matters alleged in the bill of complaint herein; and inasmuch as the plaintiff in error was a party by representation to the said action in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, and inasmuch also as he participated in the said action in connection with the defendants therein and became and was entitled to the benefit of the said decree in all respects to the same extent as though he had been an actual party defendant therein; that, therefore, the Court denied to him in this action the full faith and credit of the decree therein in violation of Section 1, Article IV of the Constitution of the United States.

(6) The Court erred in not granting a decree herein in favor of the plaintiff in error dismissing the complaint upon the ground that the decree entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, in the suit brought therein by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, set forth in the supplemental answer herein and proven upon the trial under the laws of the State of New York inured to the benefit of the plaintiff in error as fully and completely as though he had been a party defendant in said action; and that in refusing to give such effect to the said decree, the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts denied to the plaintiff in error the right claimed by him under the Constitution of the United States, to wit,—that full faith and credit be given in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to the judicial proceedings
73 of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, aforesaid, in violation of Section 1 of Article IV, of the Constitution of the United States.

(7) The Court erred in deciding that the final judgment or decree dated July 23, 1908, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in the suit brought by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial, was not a decree in rem or the equivalent thereof, establishing that as between the defendant in error, on the one side, and the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn, on the other side, the title to the outside properties, so called, was in the defendant in error and the title to the stock issued in exchange therefor was in the plaintiff in error and the said Lewisohn, and that said decree was not a bar to the prosecution of this action against the plaintiff in error in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and did not render the matters in issue in said suit in said Circuit Court res adjudicata in said cause in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and thereby denied to said decree full faith and credit in violation of Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States and of the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(8) The Court erred in deciding that the validity of the contracts and transactions in issue was not governed by the laws of the State of New York and that by said laws as existing at the time said contracts and transactions were entered into the same were 74 not valid and binding, and thereby impaired the obligation of such contracts and transactions in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the laws with respect to such contracts and transactions in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and denied full faith and credit to the laws of the State of New York in violation of Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States and of the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(9) The Court erred in deciding that the corporate action necessary to be taken by the defendant in error in order to authorize its irrevocable assent to the contracts and transactions in issue and to become bound by the same, was not governed by the law of the State of New Jersey, and that by such law as existing at the time said contracts and transactions were entered into, the necessary corporate action was not taken by the defendant in error to constitute its assent to the contracts and transactions in issue and to bind the corporation irrevocably thereby, and thereby impaired the obligation of such contracts and transactions in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the law with respect to such contracts and transactions in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States and denied full faith and credit to the laws of the State of New Jersey, in violation of Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States and of the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

75 (10) The Court erred in deciding that the contract entered into between the defendant in error on the one side and the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn, late of the City of New York, deceased, on the other side, duly authorized by the defendant in error and assented to with full knowledge by all existing shareholders and directors of the defendant in error, was not valid and binding and in holding that the same was voidable and rescindable by the defendant in error or that the defendant in error had any right of action arising out of the matters included in said contract, and thereby impaired the obligation of such contract in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(11) The Court erred in deciding that the validity of the contracts and transactions in issue was not conclusively established by the final judgment or decree entered on July 23, 1908, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, upon a mandate from the Supreme Court of the United States, in the suit brought by the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, defendants, set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial, and thereby denied full faith and credit to the decision of said Circuit Court and of the Supreme Court of the United States in violation of Article IV, Section 1, of the Constitution of the United States, and of the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto, and impaired the obligation of said contracts and transactions
76 in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States, and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the law with respect to such transactions in violation of Section 1, of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(12) The Court erred in deciding that where the defendant in error entered into a contract with the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn, which contract was duly authorized by the defendant in error and assented to with full knowledge of all the facts by thirteen fifteenths (13/15) of the entire authorized capital stock of the defendant in error, (being all the then existing shareholders) a recovery could be had in the name of the defendant in error from the plaintiff in error charging the latter with the whole results of said transaction so that the proceeds of such recovery inured to the benefit of holders of said 13/15 of the stock which so assented to the transaction with full knowledge, and thereby impaired the obligation of said contract and transaction in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error the due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(13) The Court erred in that its decision permitting avoidance or rescission by the defendant in error of a contract entered into between the defendant in error on the one side and the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn on the other side, duly assented to by the defendant in error and by all its existing shareholders with full knowledge of all the facts and in the absence of any breach of duty or wrong whatsoever as to the subsequent purchasers of the 77 remaining authorized capital stock is an attempted creation of a fictitious right in the name of the artificial entity called a corporation in the absence of any injury direct or indirect to the rights or interests of any shareholder and is a denial to the plaintiff in error of the due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(14) The Court erred in deciding that the Estate of Leonard Lewisohn having been discharged from liability in connection with the matters and transactions in issue by final decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York in an action there brought and prosecuted by the defendant in error, which decree was set forth in the supplemental answer herein and duly proven upon the trial, the plaintiff in error, a joint actor with said Lewisohn in said transactions, could be held liable to the defendant in error in solido, not only for alleged profits made by him but also for alleged profits made by said Lewisohn in connection with said matters and transactions, and thereby denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the law in violation of Section 1, of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(15) The Court erred in deciding that, the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn having jointly contracted with the defendant in error and an action to rescind or avoid the contract having been brought by the defendant in error against the Estate of said Lewisohn (the plaintiff in error being out of the jurisdiction) and such rescission or avoidance having been denied on the merits, a similar action could be maintained against the plaintiff in 78 error in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and thereby impaired the obligation of such contract in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the laws in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(16) The Court erred in deciding that, the contract between the defendant in error on the one side and the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn on the other side being valid where made, could, nevertheless, be avoided and rescinded and that such decision could be reached under the guise of judicial interpretation and was not in fact and law judicial legislation, and thereby impaired the obligation of such contract in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States, and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(17) The Court erred in that its decision that the contract between the defendant in error on the one side and the plaintiff in error and Leonard Lewisohn on the other side, being valid where made, could, nevertheless, be avoided and rescinded was in effect and substance an act of judicial legislation retroactive in character, purporting to create a breach of duty on the part of the plaintiff in error to the defendant in error as of the time when said contract was made by reason of matters taking place subsequently at the time the additional stock of the defendant in error was issued to the public, and purporting to create a right of action in the corporation nunc pro tunc, and was in violation of the provisions of the 79 Constitution of the United States and the amendments thereof requiring a separation between legislative and judicial powers and was an abridgment of the privileges and immunities of the plaintiff in error as a citizen of the United States and a denial to him of due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(18) The Court erred in deciding that, where the defendant in error, by its own act and during the pendency of this action in causing substantially all its capital stock to be impounded in the treasury of a Maine corporation had deprived the plaintiff in error of the power of obtaining and returning an amount of such stock equal to the amount issued by it to the plaintiff in error and said Lewisohn, the defendant in error was entitled to any remedy other than rescission and in deciding that, even if the plaintiff in error was unable to return such stock he was not entitled to account for its value and receive a reconveyance of the property and was liable to respond in damages as in an action at law, and the Court thereby denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(19) The Court erred in deciding that the defendant in error could recover from the plaintiff in error money damages in two separate actions based upon parts of one and the same transaction offering rescission as to one part and not as to the other, and the Court thereby impaired the obligation of said contract and transaction in violation of Article 1, Section 10, of the Constitution of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due 80 process of law and the equal protection of the laws with respect thereto in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(20) The Court erred in deciding that it could lawfully enjoin the plaintiff in error from prosecuting his appeal from the judgment or decree obtained against him by the defendant in error in the Courts of the State of New Jersey or from taking action elsewhere than in Massachusetts, even in the Federal Courts, and thereby abridged the privileges and immunities of the plaintiff in error as a citizen of the United States and denied to the plaintiff in error due process of law and the equal protection of the laws, all in violation of Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

(21) The Court erred in deciding that the defendant in error was entitled to recover from the plaintiff in error on account of the matters and things in issue in this cause and thereby denied and violated the rights of the plaintiff in error under the provisions of Article 1, Section 10, and Article IV, Sections 1 and 2, of the Constitution of the United States, and Section 1 of the 14th amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to the foregoing provisions.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
C. H. TYLER,
O. D. YOUNG,
B. E. EAMES,
Attorneys for Plaintiff in Error.

81 Supreme Court of the United States.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW, Plaintiff in Error,
v.
OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY, Defendant in Error.

Prayer for Reversal.

To the Honorable the Supreme Court of the United States:

And now comes the above named Plaintiff in Error, and, in connection with his writ of error issued by this Court to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, he prays for a reversal of the judgment or decree against him entered by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in an action brought by the Defendant in Error against the Plaintiff in Error in said Supreme Judicial Court, sitting in Suffolk County, and numbered there in Equity, No. 8098.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
C. H. TYLER,
O. D. YOUNG,
B. E. EAMES,
Solicitors of Albert S. Bigelow, Plaintiff in Error.

82 Citation on Writ of Error.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, ss:

The President of the United States to Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a New Jersey corporation, Greeting:

You are hereby cited and admonished to be and appear in the Supreme Court of the United States in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, on the* twenty-seventh day of January, next, pursuant to a Writ of Error filed in the Clerk's Office of the† Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, wherein Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, is and you are defendant in error, to show cause, if any there be, why the judgment rendered against the said plaintiff in error as in the said writ of error mentioned, should not be corrected, and why speedy justice should not be done to the parties in that behalf.

Witness, the Honorable Marcus P. Knowlton, Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, this twenty-ninth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred nine.

[SEAL.] MARCUS P. KNOWLTON,
Chief Justice of Supreme Judicial Court.

*Not exceeding 30 days from the day of signing.
†Name of Court to which Writ of Error is directed.

83 BOSTON, MASS., December 30, 1909.

Due and sufficient service of the within citation is hereby acknowledged this day on behalf of the defendant in error within named, Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, reserving all rights including the right to move to dismiss.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Attorneys for Defendant in Error,
Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company.

[Endorsed:] 8098. Eq. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. vs. Alert S. Bigelow. Citation.

84 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Suffolk, ss:

Supreme Judicial Court.

I, Walter F. Frederick, Clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court within and for the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, hereby certify that the papers hereunto annexed are an exemplification of the Record in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, Plaintiff, against Albert S. Bigelow, Defendant, in said Supreme Judicial Court determined, and attached thereto and transmitted with said Record, are true copies of the Commissioner's Reports of the Evidence; copies of the opinion of the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, attested by the Reporter of Decisions; a copy of the application for writ of error; a copy of the assignment of errors; and the original citation with acceptance of service endorsed thereon.

In Testimony Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of said Court, at Boston, this fourth day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and ten.

[SEAL.] WALTER F. FREDERICK, Clerk.

85 8098.

[Bond on Writ of Error.]

Know all Men by these Presents, That we, Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, as Principal, and American Bonding Company of Baltimore, a Maryland corporation, as surety, are held and firmly bound unto Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a New Jersey corporation, in the full and just sum of Five Hundred Dollars ($500.00) to be paid to the said Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, its successors or Assigns; to which payment well and truly to be made we bind ourselves, our Heirs, Executors, and Administrators, and successors, jointly and severally, by these Presents.

Sealed with our seals, and dated the twenty-second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine.

Whereas lately at a sitting of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, at Boston, within and for the County of Suffolk, in a suit depending in said Court between said Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, plaintiff, and said Albert S. Bigelow, defendant, a decree was entered against the said defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and the said Defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, having procured a writ of error and filed a copy thereof in the clerk's office of the said Court to reverse the decree in the aforesaid suit, and a citation directed to the said Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, citing and admonishing it to be and appear at a Supreme Court of the United States to be holden at Washington on the second Monday of October next:

Now the condition of the above obligation is such, that if the said Albert S. Bigelow, plaintiff in error, shall prosecute his said writ of error to effect, and answer all costs, if he fail to make his plea good, then the above obligation to be null and void; otherwise to remain in full force and virtue.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW. [L. S.]
AMERICAN BONDING COMPANY OF BALTIMORE. [L. S.]
By BERTRAM G. WATERS, Vice Pres't.

Attest:

A. A. DORITY, Ass't Sec'y.

Signed, sealed and delivered in presence of
W. A. S. CHRIMES.

Approved:
But not to operate as supersedeas.

MARCUS P. KNOWLTON, C. J. S. J. C.

A true copy of the bond taken by the Chief Justice at the time of allowing the writ of error named in said bond, which bond is on file in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Judicial Court for the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Attest:

WALTER F. FREDERICK,
Clerk Supreme Judicial Court

86 [Endorsed:] 8098. Eq. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co'y vs. Albert S. Bigelow. Copy of Bond in Proceedings in error to United States Supreme Court. Original bond filed & lodged in Clerk's office Dec. 31, 1909.

Endorsed on cover: File No. 21,981. Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court. Term No. 191. Albert S. Bigelow, plaintiff in error, vs. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company. Filed January 26th, 1910. File No. 21,981.

TRANSCRIPT OF RECORD

71895

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1911.

No. 192.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW, PLAINTIFF IN ERROR,

vs.

OLD DOMINION MINING & SMELTING COMPANY.

IN ERROR TO THE SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT OF THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

FILED JANUARY 26, 1910.

(21,982.)

(21,982.)

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCTOBER TERM, 1911.

No. 192.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW, PLAINTIFF IN ERROR,

vs.

OLD DOMINION MINING & SMELTING COMPANY.

IN ERROR TO THE SUPREME JUDICIAL COURT OF THE STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

INDEX.

	Original	Print
Writ of error	a	1
Return on writ of error	b	2
Caption	1	2
Bill of complaint	1	2
Exhibit A—Proposition of Old Dominion Copper Co. of Baltimore to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. of New Jersey, July 11, 1895	23	14
Schedule of property	23	14
B—Proposition of Leonard Lewisohn to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co., July 11, 1895	24	16
Memorandum as to service of summons, etc	25	16
Demurrer to whole bill	25	16
Demurrer to part of bill	26	17
Order on demurrer, &c	27	18
Answer	29	18
Issue joined on defendant's answer	38	23
Substituted answer	38	23
Amendment to bill of complaint	55	34
Report of facts found at the hearing, etc	56	35

JUDD & DETWEILER (INC.), PRINTERS, WASHINGTON, D. C., OCTOBER 28, 1911.

	Original	Print
Exhibit A—Agreement, Simpson et al. with J. Morris Meredith, May 4, 1895	72	44
B—Agreement of William Keyser, June 13, 1895, and receipt of June 20, 1895	76	46
C—Agreement of Luce, Bigelow, Coram, Whitney, Meredith, and Nelson, May 22, 1895	79	48
D—Agreement to form the Old Dominion syndicate, May 21, 1895	80	48
E—Minutes of directors, July 11, 1895	81	49
F—Minutes of directors, July 11, 1895	82	50
G—Minutes of directors, July 11, 1895	82	50
H—Minutes of directors, July 11, 1895	83	51
Final decree, December 10, 1907	83	52
Complainant's claim of appeal	84	52
Defendant's claim of appeal	84	52
Petition for injunction and attachment for contempt	85	53
Exhibit 1—Bill of complaint of Albert S. Bigelow in chancery court of New Jersey	93	57
Exhibit A—Report on property of Old Dominion Copper Co. of Globe Arizona, June 18, 1895	119	74
Certificate of incorporation of Old Dominion Mining and Smelting Co.	131	81
Exhibit F—Agreement between Old Dominion Co. and Smith & Hoar, Jan. 15, 1904	134	84
Exhibit B—Form of certificate of Old Dominion trust	140	87
Exhibit 2—Order to show cause in case of Bigelow vs. Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. in chancery court of New Jersey	141	88
3—Act of New Jersey concerning corporations	144	89
Memorandum decision on petition for injunction, &c	145	90
Decree for injunction, &c., August 14, 1908	151	94
Motion to vacate decree of August 14, 1908, etc	151	94
Motion to modify decree of August 14, 1908, etc	154	95
Motion to modify decree of August 14, 1908, etc	156	97
Defendant's claim of appeal from decree of August 14, 1908	157	97
Rescript from supreme judicial court, September 4, 1908	157	97
Motion for leave to file supplemental answer	159	98
Supplemental answer	168	103
Exhibit A—Bill of complaint in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	180	109
Exhibit A—Proposition and schedule	204	123
Exhibit B—Proposition of Lewisohn	207	125
B—Demurrer to whole bill in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	209	126
B[1]—Demurrer to part of bill in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	210	127

	Original.	Print
Exhibit C—Order on demurrers in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	212	128
C¹—Opinion of Lacombe, J., on demurrers	214	129
D—Amended bill of complaint in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	217	131
Exhibit—Schedule of property	245	146
Exhibit A—Proposition of Bigelow	247	148
Exhibit B—Proposition of Lewisohn	248	148
E—Demurrer to whole bill in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	249	149
E¹—Demurrer to parts of bill in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	251	150
F—Order on demurrers in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	253	151
G—Decree in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	254	152
H—Petition for appeal to United States circuit court of appeals by Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co.	256	153
I—Assignment of errors by Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co.	257	154
J—Bond on appeal of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co.	259	155
J¹—Section 716 and 1012, Revised Statutes	261	156
K—Opinion of the United States circuit court of appeals, second circuit, in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al.	263	157
L—Decree of the United States circuit court of appeals, second circuit, in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al.	266	159
M—Petition for writ of certiorari in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al., addressed to the Supreme Court of the United States	267	159
N—Writ of certiorari issued by the Supreme Court of the United States in case of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al.	275	164
O—Opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes in case of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al	276	165

	Original	Print
Exhibit P—Mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States in case of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al.	287	170
Q—Decree on mandate in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al. in circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York	289	172
R—Papers in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co. vs. Lewisohn et al., in the circuit court of the United States, southern district of New York.	291	173
Præcipe for subpœna	291	173
Subpœna	292	174
Appearance	293	175
Stipulation as to time to answer	294	175
Stipulation as to time to hear demurrer	295	176
Stipulation as to depositions	295	176
Stipulation as to depositions	297	178
Stipulation as to depositions	299	179
Opinion of Holt, J., on demurrer	300	179
Notice of entry of order	301	180
Notice as to costs	302	181
Bill of costs	303	181
Citation on appeal	304	182
Mandate of United States circuit court of appeals	305	183
Order on mandate	309	185
Petition to stay execution, &c	312	187
Order staying execution	313	188
Petition to stay execution	314	188
Affidavit of Eugene Treadwell	315	189
Order for decree on mandate	318	191
Docket entries	319	192
Order extending time	321	193
Appearance in United States circuit court of appeals	321	193
Stipulation in United States circuit court of appeals	322	194
Motion to stay mandate in United States circuit court of appeals	323	194
Decree of United States circuit court of appeals	324	195
Bill of costs in United States circuit court of appeals	325	196
Stipulation as to return to writ of certiorari	326	196
Decree of the Supreme Court of the United States	326	197
Docket entries in United States circuit court of appeals	327	198
Reservation for supreme judicial court for the Commonwealth by Braley, J.	328	198
Defendant's claim of appeal	329	199
Reservation for the supreme judicial court for the Commonwealth, Hammond, J.	330	199
Rescript from the supreme judicial court for the Commonwealth	331	200
Final decree, October 26, 1909	331	200
Clerk's certificate	332	200

	Original	Print
Order appointing commissioner, November 6, 1907	1	201
Evidence	2	201
Deposition of Albert S. Bigelow read	2	201
Godfrey M. Hyams read	6	205
J. Morris Meredith read	7	206
Walter Lewisohn read	8	206
Adolph Lewisohn read	8	206
John Stanton read	8	206
Joseph A. Coram read	8	206
Frederick Lewisohn read	8	207
Albert Lewisohn read	8	207
Ferdinand Roxhauser read	9	207
Edward C. Westerveldt read	9	207
Jesse Lewisohn	9	207
Edward C. Westerveldt read	10	208
Ferdinand Roxhauser read	10	208
W. A. S. Chrimes	10	208
Samuel N. Brown	10	208
Oral testimony of Charles H. Altmiller	11	208
Deposition of Charles H. Altmiller read	13	210
Exhibit 4—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Hyams, May 6, 1895	13	211
5—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Beaman, May 6, 1895	14	211
15—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Hyams, May 16, 1895	14	211
289—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Henry & Co., August 6, 1895	15	212
Exhibits 18, &c., read	16	213
Exhibit 256—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Garland, June 21, 1895	18	214
Additional depositions read	19	215
Testimony of Charles H. Altmiller	19	215
Allen W. Evarts	26	222
Edward C. Perkins	38	233
Exhibit 502—Book called "Corrected List"	45	240
Deposition of Cleveland H. Dodge read	58	252
Joseph H. Costello read	58	252
Thomas H. O'Neil	58	252
Statutes and citations, &c	59	252
Stipulation as to testimony, &c	66	258
Deposition of Albert S. Bigelow	68	260
Exhibit 1—Agreement, Simpson and Meredith, April 30, 1895	220	394
2—Agreement, Simpson et al. and Meredith, May 4, 1895	221	395
3—Agreement, Hodge et al. and Bigelow, May 21, 1895	224	398
4—Agreement, Somers et al. and Bigelow, May 24, 1895	225	398
5—Agreement, Coe et al. and Bigelow, June 14, 1895	226	399
6—Agreement, Ray et al. and Bigelow, ——, 1895	228	401
7—Letter, Lewisohn to Bigelow, May 28, 1895	229	402
8—Agreement of Wm. Keyser, June 13, 1895	231	403
9—Plan of procedure, June 20, 1895	232	404
10—Subscription of June 18, 1895	233	405

	Original	Print
Exhibit 13—Report of Colquhoun and Hyams, June 18, 1895	237	408
14—Report of directors, April 3, 1901	245	415
15—Report of directors, December 31, 1901	247	418
16—Account headed "Old Dominion Syndicate"	256	426
17—A. S. Bigelow, Old Dominion investment account	257	428
18—Meeting of directors, June 17, 1895	258	429
19—Meeting of directors, June 20, 1895	259	429
20—Agreement of Luce, Bigelow, Coram, Whitney, Meredith, and Nelson, May 22, 1895	262	431
21—Telegram, Meredith to Lewisohn Bros.	263	432
22—Certificate of incorporation of the Old Dominion Copper Co. of Baltimore city	263	432
Certificate to deposition of Bigelow	266	435
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	266	435
Deposition of Godfrey M Hyams	266	436
Exhibit 2*a*—Assignment, Meredith to Lewisohn, May 4, 1895	318	480
7*a*—Agreement, Lewisohn with Simpson et al., May 28, 1895	318	480
11—Old Dominion Copper Co. statement, June 19, 1895	319	481
12—Bond, Simpson et al. to Lewisohn, June 20, 1895	320	482
23—Letter, Hyams to Bacon & Burpee, June 19, 1903	322	483
24—Account	324	485
25—Division of certificate 73	324	486
26—Division of certificate 81	327	488
Certificate to deposition of Hyams	329	489
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	329	489
Deposition of Joseph A. Coram	329	490
Certificate to deposition of Coram	343	501
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	344	501
Deposition of Galen L. Stone	344	502
Certificate to deposition of Stone	351	508
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	352	508
Deposition of Charles H. Altmiller	352	508
Exhibit 1—Minutes of first meeting, July 9, 1895	412	565
Minutes of July 11, 1895	422	575
Minutes of July 24, 1895	428	580
Minutes of September 18, 1895	429	581
Minutes of November 24, 1895	433	584
Minutes of December 16, 1897	436	586
Minutes of April 5, 1899	436	587
Minutes of May 10, 1899	438	588
Minutes of June 15, 1899	440	590
Minutes of February 13, 1900	453	600
Minutes of March 2, 1901	454	601
Minutes of April 3, 1901	455	602
Minutes of April 10, 1901	457	604
Minutes of October 17, 1901	459	605

	Original	Print
Exhibit 1 (Continued)—
Minutes of March 4, 1902	640	606
Minutes of March 25, 1902	461	607
Exhibit 2—Bill of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, and statement of disbursements in re Old Dominion Syndicate	462	608
3—Bill of Edward C. Perkins	464	609
4—Account, Old Dominion Copper Co. with Lewisohn Bros	465	610
5—Letter, Evarts, Choate & Beaman to Bigelow, April 28, 1896	469	614
6—Letter, Nelson to Pierce, September 10, 1895	470	614
Certificate to deposition of Altmiller	470	615
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	470	615
Deposition of Wm. Howard Reed	471	615
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	474	618
Deposition of Samuel N. Brown	474	619
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	477	622
Deposition of Richard Fairfax Bolles	478	622
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	482	626
Deposition of Charles R. Batt	482	627
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	484	629
Deposition of W. B. Mossman	484	629
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	486	630
Deposition of Charles L. Davenport	486	631
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	488	632
Deposition of Homer V. Snow	488	633
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	491	635
Deposition of Arthur W. Hale	491	635
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	493	637
Deposition of Samuel B. Capen	494	638
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	500	644
Deposition of Walter A. S. Chrimes	500	644
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	532	674
Deposition of Henry Wood	533	674
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	536	677
Deposition of Stephen M. Crosby	536	677
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	539	679
Deposition of Edward M. Dodd	540	680
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	542	681
Deposition of Wm. A. Rust	542	681
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	548	687
Deposition of David M. Anthony	548	687
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	551	689
Deposition of George Marshall Preston	551	690
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	554	691
Deposition of James F. Ormand	554	692
Josiah Grout	555	693
Frank D. Stocker	565	702
Fred B. Stocker	567	704
Angus H. McLeod	571	708
Walter P. Smith	576	713

	Original	Print
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	581	717
Deposition of Joseph S. Bigelow	581	717
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	582	718
Deposition of Clarence H. Bissell	582	718
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	584	719
Deposition of J. Morris Meredith	584	720
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	619	749
Deposition of Wm. J. Ladd	620	749
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	621	750
Deposition of Charles S. Smith	621	751
Stipulation to take testimony, &c	624	753
Deposition of Eugene V. R. Thayer	624	753
Deposition of John Stanton	625	754
Stipulation to employ stenographer, &c	629	758
Deposition of Walter Lewisohn	630	759
Ferdinand L. Rahaeuser	636	764
Adolph Lewisohn	657	787
Walter Lewisohn (continued)	667	796
Frederick Lewisohn	678	807
Albert Lewisohn	690	819
Ferdinand L. Rahaeuser (recalled)	694	823
Edward C. Westervelt	708	837
Jesse Lewisohn	711	840
Edward C. Westerveldt (recalled)	719	847
Ferdinand Rahaeuser (recalled)	724	852
Henry A. Root	729	857
Exhibit 18—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Keyser, June 3, 1895	736	863
20—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Bigelow, June 4, 1895	736	864
36—Letter, L. Lewisohn to Keyser, June 13, 1895	737	864
38—Letter, Keyser to Lewisohn, June 13, 1895	737	864
39—Letter, Lewisohn to Bigelow, June 13, 1895	738	865
43—Agreement to form Old Dominion Syndicate	738	865
45—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Bigelow, June 17, 1895	739	865
67—Letter, Lewisohn Bros to Beaman, June 28, 1895	740	866
81—Letter, L. Lewisohn to Evarts, July 5, 1895	740	867
134—Letter, Stern to Lewisohn Bros., Sept. 20, 1895	741	867
135—Letter, Stern to Lewisohn Bros., Oct. 4, 1895	741	867
136—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Stanton, Oct. 4, 1895	741	867
137—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Stern, Oct. 4, 1895	742	868
138—Letter, Gaston to Lewisohn Bros., Oct. 5, 1895	742	868
152—Letter, Stern to Lewisohn, December 4, 1895	743	869
162—Letter, L. Lewisohn to Meredith, April 29, 1895	744	869
174—Letter, L. Lewisohn to Spencer, June 21, 1895	744	870
187—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Stern, July 24, 1895	744	870
258—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Brooker, June 25, 1895	745	871
267—Letter, Schiff to Lewisohn, July 12, 1895	746	871
273—Letter of July 24, 1895, to Charles J. Brooker	746	872
276—Letter of July 25, 1895, to E. Hawley	747	872
288—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Behrens & Sohne, August 6, 1895	748	872
296—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Henry & Co., August 20, 1895	748	873

	Original	Print
Exhibit 305—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Henry & Co., August 26, 1895	749	873
315—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Sally Mainz, September 12, 1895	749	874
335—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Caspary, Oct. 1, 1895	750	874
363—Letter, Lewisohn Bros. to Iselin & Co., October 10, 1895	750	874
Deposition of Charles F. Brooker	750	875
Deposition of Simon H. Stern	754	878
Correspondence introduced by defendants	765	887
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	778	898
Deposition of Joseph F. Costello	778	898
Stipulation to take deposition, &c	786	905
Deposition of Thomas H. O'Neil	786	905
Deposition of Charles H. Altmiller (recalled)	789	907
Order appointing commissioner, December 10, 1907	824	941
Report of commissioner on proceedings in court, Dec. 10, 1907	824	941
Deposition of Cleveland H. Dodge	827	943
Exhibit 231—Account, Old Dominion Copper Company Syndicate	836	953
232—Old Dominion stock subscription account	842	959
233—Old Dominion Syndicate subscription No. 2	846	966
C—Memorandum	850	971
504—Complaint in case of Blum vs. Whitney	856	976
Exhibit A—Deposit agreement	869	987
B—Statement to stockholders	874	991
Alphabetical index	876-i	993
Chronological index	876-xviii	1005
Index of exhibits by number	876-xxvii	1011
Index of meetings of directors and stockholders	876-xxxi	1013
Index of evidence	876-xxxii	1014
Order appointing commissioner, August 11, 1908	877	1020
Deposition of Edward F. McClennen	878	1020
Deposition of Charles H. Altmiller	896	1037
Hearing on matters set up in supplemental answers, &c	907	1047
Order appointing commissioner, September 29, 1908	907	1047
Evidence	908	1047
Deposition of Charles T. Terry	912	1051
Court proceedings, October 2, 1908	934	1070
Memorandum of objections to questions to certain witnesses	945	1079
Deposition of Guy Fairfax Cary	950	1084
James Byrne	965	1097
Edward W. Hatch	986	1116
Charles F. Brown	1002	1130
Martin L. Stover	1015	1142
John B. Stanchfield	1030	1156
William A. Keener	1043	1167
Peter B. Olney	1058	1180
Wm. H. Wadhams	1071	1192
Denis O'Brien	1092	1210
John G. Milburn	1104	1221
New York cases offered by defendant	1117	1233
Correspondence between counsel	1119	1234
Testimony of John Wells Farley	1178	1280

	Original	Print
Deposition of Alton B. Parker	1192	1294
Deposition of Wm. B. Hornblower	1204	1304
New York cases introduced by plaintiff	1215	1314
Stipulations offered	1220	1317
Stipulations as to taking testimony, &c	1220	1318
Additional correspondence between counsel	1224	1323
Extracts from respondent's brief in United States Supreme Court case	1226	1323
Extract from complainant's brief in chancery of New Jersey	1228	1325
Testimony from printed record	1230	1326
Letters between counsel	1230	1326
Testimony of Charles Anderson Boston	1231	1327
Further index	1283-i	1374
Opinion of supreme judicial court (Loring, J.), June 9, 1905	5-a	1382
Opinion of supreme judicial court (Rugg, J.), September 14, 1909	1½	1389
Dissenting opinion of Knowlton, C. J.	57	1430
Dissenting opinion of Hammond, J.	67	1437
Application for writ of error	68	1438
Assignment of errors	69	1439
Prayer for reversal	81	1445
Citation and service	82	1446
Clerk's certificate	84	1446
Copy of bond on writ of error	85	1447

a UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, ss:

[Seal of the Circuit Court, Massachusetts.]

The President of the United States to the Honorable the Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, holden at Boston, within and for the County of Suffolk, Greeting:

Because, in the record and proceedings, as also in the rendition of the judgment of a plea which is in the said Supreme Judicial Court before you, or some of you, being the highest court of law or equity of the State of Massachusetts in which a decision could be had in the suit between Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a New Jersey corporation, Plaintiff and Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Defendant, in a suit in equity, wherein was drawn in question the validity of a treaty or statute of, or an authority exercised under, the United States, and the decision was against their validity, or wherein was drawn in question the validity of a statute of, or an authority exercised under, said State on the ground of their being repugnant to the Constitution, treaties, or laws of the United States, and the decision was in favor of such their validity; or wherein was drawn in question the construction of a clause of the Constitution, or of a treaty, or statute of or commission held under, the United States, and the decision was against the title right, privilege, or exemption, specially set up or claimed under such clause of the said Constitution, treaty, statute, or commission, a manifest error hath happened, to the great damage of the said defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, as by his complaint appears.

We being willing that error, if any hath been, should be duly corrected, and full and speedy justice done to the parties aforesaid in this behalf, do command you, if judgment be therein given, that then under your seal, distinctly and openly, you send the record and proceedings aforesaid, with all things concerning the same, to the Supreme Court of the United States, together with this writ, so that you have the same in the said Supreme Court, at Washington, within thirty days from the date hereof, that the record and proceedings aforesaid being inspected, the said Supreme Court may cause further to be done therein to correct that error, what of right, and according to the laws and customs of the United States, should be done.

Witness, the Honorable Melville W. Fuller, Chief Justice of the United States, the twenty-ninth day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and nine.

CHARLES K. DARLING,
Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States, District of Massachusetts.

Allowed by
MARCUS P. KNOWLTON,
Chief Justice of Supreme Judicial Court.

But writ not to operate as supersedeas.

b COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Suffolk, ss:

And now, here, the Judges of the Supreme Judicial Court make return of this writ by annexing hereto and sending herewith, under the seal of the said Supreme Judicial Court, a true and attested copy of the record and proceedings in the suit within mentioned, with all things concerning the same, to the Supreme Court of the United States, as within commanded.

In testimony whereof, I, Walter F. Frederick, Clerk of said Supreme Judicial Court, have hereto set my hand and the seal of said Court this fourth day of January A. D. 1910.

[SEAL.] WALTER F. FREDERICK, Clerk.

[Endorsed:] 8098. Eq. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co'y vs. Albert S. Bigelow. Writ of Error. Suffolk, ss: Supreme Judicial Court. Received Dec. 31, 1909. Attest: Walter F. Frederick, Clerk.

1 COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Suffolk, ss:

To all persons to whom these presents shall come, Greeting:

Know ye, that among the Records of our Supreme Judicial Court, sitting at Boston in said County of Suffolk, for the hearing of all causes in equity between the first day of January in the year one thousand nine hundred and nine, and the thirty first day of December in the same year, both inclusive, it is thus contained, the following being the entire record in the case:

Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and having a usual place of business at Boston in our County of Suffolk brings its Bill of Complaint against Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk, having his usual place of business in said Boston.

Said Bill of Complaint being in the words following, to wit:

Bill of Complaint.

First. The plaintiff, the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, is a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey and having a usual place of business in Boston in said County of Suffolk. Said corporation is the owner of 2 copper mining and smelting works in the Territory of Arizona, and is carrying on the business of mining, smelting, and selling copper.

Second. On and prior to March 24, 1895, there existed a certain corporation called the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City (hereinafter called the Baltimore Old Dominion Company) organized under the laws of the State of Maryland and having a usual place of business in said Baltimore. Said Baltimore Old Dominion Company was then the owner of mines and mining claims in Arizona. It had a capital stock of five hundred thousand (500,000) dollars divided into twenty-five thousand (25,000) shares of the par value of twenty (20) dollars each. Of said shares there were then owned by the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson, late of said Boston, deceased, about seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17857) shares and the balance of said shares were then owned by one William Keyser of Baltimore in the state of Maryland and others. Said Keyser also then held the title in his own name to certain mines and mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, the New York Mine, the Chicago Mine, the Keystone Mine, and a certain parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called all in said Arizona, but whether said Keyser held said property solely in his own right or in trust, wholly or in part for others or for said corporation the plaintiff is ignorant.

Third. At some time prior to March 24, 1895, the defendant and one Leonard Lewisohn, late of New York City, deceased, formed the plan of acquiring all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and all said real estate, title to which then 3 stood in the name of said Keyser, as aforesaid, and of organizing a new corporation to acquire and of selling to such new corporation at a large advance in price, all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and all the real estate held by said Keyser, as aforesaid, and putting upon the market and selling to such of the public as might be induced to buy the same a large number of the shares of such new corporation in order to provide the same with a working capital, and make necessary improvements in the plant, and acquire additional mining claims, and of thereby securing for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit from the purchase and resale to said new corporation to be organized by them of said property; and said defendant and said Lewisohn thereupon conspired together to carry out said plan and thereby to injure the future stockholders in said new corporation, and to secure for themselves as the promoters and organizers thereof a large secret profit.

Fourth. Pursuant to said plan and conspiracy said defendant alone or in conjunction with said Lewisohn at some time prior to March 24, 1895, procured a number of persons, whose names are to the plaintiff unknown, to subscribe to the Old Dominion Syndicate so-called; said syndicate was formed for the purpose of raising about one million (1,000,000) dollars or so much thereof as was necessary to carry out said plan and conspiracy of the defendant and said Lewisohn above described for the benefit of the members of said syndicate. The terms of said subscription were that the subscribers should pay in fourteen (14) per cent. of the amount of their respective subscriptions on March 24, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds (28 2/3) per cent. on July 24, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds (28 2/3) per cent. on August 25, 1895, and twenty-eight and two-thirds (28 2/3) per cent. on 4 September 21, 1895, and with each of said last three instalments five (5) per cent. interest thereon from March 24, 1895; and that the amount so subscribed and paid in should be used so far as required for the purpose of acquiring the property or all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and that the subscribers to said syndicate should receive in cash or in stock of the new corporation to be formed to purchase said property from said syndicate two million (2,000,000) dollars to be distributed pro rata according to their several subscriptions. The precise terms of said syndicate agreement are to the plaintiff unknown and the plaintiff has no copy thereof which it can attach hereto, but said defendant well knows the terms of said agreement and has a copy or the original thereof in his possession or control.

Fifth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about March 24, 1895, said defendant, alone or in conjunction with said Lewisohn received the first instalment payable by the subscribers to said syndicate amounting to about one hundred and forty thousand (140,000) dollars. Thereafter, to wit, on or about May 2, 1895, said Bigelow, alone or in conjunction with others, for the purpose of carrying out said plan and conspiracy and the purposes of said syndicate, made an agreement with the executors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson for the purchase from said executors of seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17857) shares of the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, being five-sevenths (5/7) of the total capital stock of said corporation, at a price not exceeding six hundred and thirteen thousand one hundred and thirty-seven dollars and thirty-nine cents ($613,137.39); the plaintiff is ignorant of the precise terms of said agreement, but is informed and believes, and therefore charges that said agreement was in the form of an option for which a sum not exceeding one hundred thousand (100,000) dollars was paid, under which option said defendant and his said associates were entitled to acquire said stock at the price aforesaid by making further payments at a further time or times.

Sixth. At some time prior to July 1, 1895, said defendant, alone or in conjunction with others, for the purpose of carrying out said plan and conspiracy and for the purposes of said syndicate, made an agreement with said William Keyser and with other persons to the plaintiff unknown by which the defendant and his associates acquired the remaining two-sevenths (2/7) of all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, to wit, seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares at a price not exceeding one hundred and seventy-five thousand one hundred and eighty-two dollars and eleven cents ($175,182.11). The plaintiff is unable to state more particularly the terms of said purchase, but the terms thereof are well known to the defendant.

Seventh. At about the time of the purchase from said Keyser and others of said seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company said defendant or said Lewisohn, or the two in conjunction, for their common benefit acquired from said Keyser for the same consideration paid for said seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares, but, as they claimed, for their own benefit and not for the benefit of said Old Dominion Syndicate, the parcels of real estate in Arizona, title to which then stood in the name of said Keyser, as above set forth, to wit, the four mining claims known as said Old Dominion Mine, said New York Mine, said Keystone Mine, and said Chicago Mine, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks. All said real estate was acquired in the name of and 6 was conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn, but for the common benefit of said Lewisohn and said Bigelow, as hereafter set forth, and pursuant to and as a part of the plan and conspiracy and for the purposes hereinbefore set forth.

Eighth. On or about July 8, 1895, said defendant in conjunction with said Lewisohn, in pursuance of said plan and conspiracy and for the purpose of carrying out the same for the benefit of themselves and of the subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate so-called, caused the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, the plaintiff herein, to be organized under the general corporation laws of the State of New Jersey. Said corporation was formed by seven persons selected and employed for the purpose by said defendant and said Lewisohn, to wit, Jesse Lewisohn, Allen W. Evarts, Edgar Buffam, Charles W. Welch, Sidney Riddlestorffer, William V. Rowe, and William R. Montgomery. None of said seven persons, except said Jesse Lewisohn, who was a brother of said Leonard Lewisohn, had any actual interest in said corporation or acted in the formation thereof otherwise than as the representative and agent of said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn. Each of said individuals nominally subscribed and paid for four (4) shares of the capital stock of said corporation except said Jesse Lewisohn who subscribed and paid for sixteen (16) shares; but in fact all said subscriptions were made for the benefit and at the request of the defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn, and each subscription was paid for by said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn or one of them.

7 Ninth. On July 9, 1895, the first meeting of said corporation, organized as aforesaid, was held in Jersey City and all of said incorporators were then present. By-laws were adopted and upon an election of directors by ballot said seven incorporators above named were duly chosen directors, and it was further voted to increase the capital stock to three million seven hundred and fifty thousand (3,750,000) dollars, divided into one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) shares of twenty-five (25) dollars each. A recess was taken by said meeting, and thereupon said seven directors met and organized and elected officers, to wit, said Allen W. Evarts, president, said Sidney Riddlestorffer, vice-president, said Jesse Lewisohn, treasurer, and said Edgar Buffam, secretary. Said meeting of directors confirmed the action of the prior meeting of incorporators increasing the capital stock, as above set forth. The organization of said corporation and the proceedings of said meetings of incorporators and directors were duly had according to the laws of the State of New Jersey, and the by-laws adopted, as aforesaid, and thereby the plaintiff became duly organized as a corporation and the individuals above named became the lawful officers of the corporation holding respectively the offices above named.

Tenth. A meeting of the directors, of said plaintiff corporation, organized as aforesaid, was duly held on July 11, 1895, at the office in New York City of the firm of Lewisohn Brothers, of which firm said Leonard Lewisohn was a member; all of the directors except said Montgomery were present. Pursuant to instructions from the defendant the resignation of said Montgomery as a director was presented and duly accepted, and the defendant was 8 thereupon chosen a director in his place. Thereupon, pursuant to instructions from the defendant, the successive resignations of said Rowe as a director, of said Welch as a director, of said Jesse Lewisohn as treasurer and as director, of said Evarts as president, and of said Riddlestorffer as vice-president and as director were presented and duly accepted, and said Leonard Lewisohn, one Henry M. Whitney, one Thomas Nelson, and one Joseph G. Ray were successively duly chosen directors, and said Thomas Nelson was duly chosen treasurer, and said defendant was duly chosen president of said corporation. Said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn were present at said meeting, and upon their respective elections as directors took their places in said meeting. All said resignations were duly received and acted on and said elections to fill the vacancies caused by said resignations were duly had pursuant to the laws of the State of New Jersey and the by-laws of said corporation.

Eleventh. At some time prior to July 11, 1895, to wit, on or about July 8, 1895, said defendant in pursuance of said plan and conspiracy, either alone or in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn, completed the purchase of all said shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company upon the terms of the agreement with the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson and with William Keyser and others hereinbefore referred to, and all said stock was delivered and transferred to the defendant or to persons designated by him, and the directors and officers of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company resigned and new directors nominated by said defendant were duly chosen and said defendant was duly 9 chosen president and said Allen W. Evarts secretary of said corporation. At the same time, to wit, on or about July 8, 1895, and prior to July 11, 1895, said Keyser conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn said real estate in Arizona above referred to, pursuant to said agreement, and the legal title to said real estate became vested in said Leonard Lewisohn.

Twelfth. At said meeting of the directors of the plaintiff corporation on July 11, 1895, above referred to, after the several changes of directors and other officers by resignation above set forth, and after said defendant had been elected president of said corporation there remained present four directors, to wit, said defendant, said Leonard Lewisohn, said Evarts, and said Buffam. Said Evarts was the attorney employed by said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn to attend to the incorporation of the plaintiff corporation and to carry out their said plan and conspiracy; said Buffam was a person selected by them and employed by them to act as director and assist them in carrying out said plan and conspiracy. The remaining directors were said Thomas Nelson, Henry M. Whitney, and Joseph G. Ray, no one of whom was present and each of whom was a subscriber to said Old Dominion Syndicate and interested to assist said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn in their plan to sell said property to the plaintiff and in the success of said plan and conspiracy.

Thirteenth. At said meeting of the directors of the plaintiff company on July 11, 1895, after the change of directors and officers above set forth and after said defendant had been chosen 10 president as aforesaid, said defendant through said Evarts presented to said board of directors of the plaintiff an offer to the plaintiff to sell and convey substantially all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the plaintiff, except the cash assets, for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff corporation to be issued to said Baltimore Old Dominion Company or its nominees. Said offer was signed by the defendant as president of and by said Evarts as secretary of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company. A copy of said offer and of the schedule therein referred to is hereto annexed and marked "A" and made a part of this bill. Upon presentation of said offer, on motion of said Leonard Lewisohn, seconded by said Evarts, it was unanimously voted to accept said offer and to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock in payment for said property, and the defendant and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fourteenth. Immediately after the passage of the vote last above referred to at said meeting of directors of the plaintiff on July 11, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn presented to said board of directors of the plaintiff a proposition to the plaintiff to sell and convey to the plaintiff said real estate in Arizona acquired by said Leonard Lewisohn from said Keyser as above set forth for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff to be issued to said Lewisohn or his nominees, accompanied with a request to issue said shares to the defendant and said Lewisohn. A copy of said proposition is hereto annexed and marked "B" and made a part of this bill of complaint. Upon presentation of said proposition the defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn caused 11 the directors to unanimously vote to accept said proposition and to issue thirty thousand ($30,000) shares of the capital stock in payment for said property, and the defendant and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fifteenth. Thereafter the defendant and said Lewisohn, pursuant to the original plan and conspiracy, and for the purpose of furnishing the plaintiff corporation, promoted by them as aforesaid, with working capital and with funds required to develop its plants and other properties, caused to be offered twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff corporation, not theretofore disposed of, for public subscription and sale at the price of twenty-five (25) dollars per share; and all of said shares were so subscribed for and sold and the price therefor paid by said subscribers to the plaintiff. Said subscribers and purchasers of said shares were ignorant at the time said shares were offered for subscription and at the time they severally subscribed and paid therefor and received their shares, as hereinafter set forth, of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the promotion and organization of the plaintiff corporation by the defendant and said Lewisohn, and the large profit to be made by said defendant and said Lewisohn and by the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate therefrom.

Sixteenth. Thereafter the sale and conveyance of the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, included in the offer marked Exhibit "A" and the schedule thereto annexed, 12 was consummated by the transfer of said property to this corporation, and the sale and conveyance of the property included in the proposition of said Leonard Lewisohn marked Exhibit "B" was consummated by the transfer of said property to this corporation. Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 18, 1895, the board of directors of the plaintiff corporation at a meeting duly called voted at the request of said Baltimore Old Dominion Mining Company to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation to one Philip K. Dumaresq as representing said corporation as and for the price of said property so transferred and conveyed, and said shares were duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said board of directors of this corporation at said meeting further voted to issue thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation to the defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn as and for the price of said property transferred and conveyed by the latter to this corporation, as above set forth, and said shares were thereupon duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said board of directors of this corporation at the same meeting voted to issue twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock thereof to persons who had subscribed therefor, as above set forth, upon receiving payment of twenty-five (25) dollars per share therefor.

Seventeenth. Said parcels of real estate sold and conveyed by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff as aforesaid, to wit, said several mining claims known as Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, and Keystone Mine respectively and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, were in fact of substantially no value, to wit, of a value not exceeding five thousand (5,000) dollars, and were known by said Lewisohn and by the defendant when said Lewisohn acquired the same, as aforesaid, and when he offered to sell and convey the same to the plaintiff, as aforesaid, to be 13 of substantially no value. And said parcels were acquired by said Lewisohn in the manner aforesaid with intent on the part of himself and of said defendant to sell the same for a large price. No disclosure was at any time made to the plaintiff corporation of the fact that said real estate was of substantially no value, and by reason of the control by said defendant and said Lewisohn of the plaintiff corporation and its board of directors, as above set forth, said purchase was made without any disclosure to or inquiry by the plaintiff corporation as to the reasonable value of said property; and no disclosure was ever made to any of the persons who subscribed for or afterwards purchased shares of stock in the defendant corporation, or to any other persons of the facts as to the purchase of said property or as to the reasonable value thereof, and said facts were not known to any of said persons or to any of the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, except said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn.

Eighteenth. By the transactions above set forth, said defendant and said Lewisohn carried out their said plan and conspiracy, and having, for the purpose of promoting a corporation and selling to such corporation at a price much in excess of the cost thereof the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the property so conveyed to said Lewisohn, acquired all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for the sum of less than eight hundred thousand (800,000) dollars, and acquired without making any further payment, but for themselves as they claim, all the property conveyed by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff, and promoted the plaintiff corporation and caused the same to be organized, and 14 thereupon did sell to it the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation of the par value of twenty-five (25) dollars each, to wit, the aggregate par value of two million five hundred thousand (2,500,000) dollars, and also sold to it all the property conveyed to said Lewisohn for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of said stock of the aggregate par value of seven hundred and fifty thousand (750,000) dollars.

And for the purpose of providing the corporation so promoted and formed by them pursuant to and in execution of said plan and conspiracy, to wit, the plaintiff corporation, with working and other capital, said defendant and said Lewisohn, in further execution and performance of said plan and conspiracy, sold to the public twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock of said corporation so formed as aforesaid, to wit, this corporation. The shares of this corporation so issued in payment for the property sold to it as aforesaid were at the time of the fair market value of twenty-five (25) dollars each, and continued for a long time thereafter to be of such or greater value, and said defendant and said Lewisohn thus made for themselves and their associates in said syndicate from the sale of the property conveyed by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company a profit of more than one million five hundred thousand (1,500,000) dollars, and in addition thereto made for themselves alone on the property conveyed by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff a profit of over seven hundred and fifty thousand (750,000) dollars.

Nineteenth. The subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate so-called were entitled by the terms of the agreement forming said syndicate to receive each his proportionate share of two million 15 (2,000,000) dollars in repayment of his original advance and as his share of profits. To effect this division each member of said syndicate was permitted to apply for shares of this corporation at par to the amount so payable to him, and said shares were thereupon issued to such applicant in lieu of his proportionate share of said sum. All or substantially all the subscribers to said Syndicate availed themselves of this privilege, and so far as such privilege was not availed of, the money required was advanced by the defendant or others interested, and the corresponding number of shares was issued to the person so advancing the money. Of the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation issued to Philip K. Dumaresq, as above set forth, upon and as consideration for the conveyance of all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as aforesaid eighty thousand (80,000) shares were thus distributed to and among the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, or persons exercising the privilege of such members in the manner above set forth. And of this amount more than one-half was a profit made in the manner above described, and said Syndicate thereby made a profit of not less than one million (1,000,000) dollars. Of the eighty thousand (80,000) shares thus divided, the defendant received as his proportion four thousand (4000) shares, not less than one-half of which represented and was a profit to him as a member of said syndicate from the purchase of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the sale of its property as aforesaid, to this corporation, pur-

16 suant to the plan and conspiracy formed by said defendant and said Lewisohn, as hereinbefore set forth.

Twentieth. The defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn by agreement between themselves, and as the plaintiff is informed and believes, without the knowledge or assent of the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, took from the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares issued to Philip K. Dumaresq, as above set forth, ostensibly in payment of expenses and their own services in connection with the matter, the twenty thousand (20,000) shares remaining after dividing eighty thousand (80,000) shares among the members of said Syndicate, as above set forth. The expenses actually incurred by them did not exceed six thousand (6000) dollars. These twenty thousand (20,000) shares were divided between the defendant and said Lewisohn, said defendant receiving ten thousand nine hundred and forty (10,940) shares as his proportion thereof, and said Lewisohn nine thousand and sixty (9060) as his proportion thereof, and said thirty thousand (30,000) shares issued to said defendant and said Lewisohn for said conveyance of real estate by said Lewisohn were also divided between the defendant and said Lewisohn, said defendant receiving sixteen thousand four hundred and ten (16,410) shares thereof and said Lewisohn thirteen thousand five hundred and ninety (13,590) shares.

Twenty-first. Prior to the formation of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, and prior to making the several agreements hereinbefore referred to for the acquisition of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and for the acquisition by said Lewisohn of said several parcels of real estate in Arizona conveyed to him by said Keyser, as aforesaid, said defendant and said Lewisohn had formed the plan and intention of organizing a corporation to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and to 17 acquire said several parcels of real estate; and had formed the plan and intention of selling said property and said real estate to such new corporation at a large advance in price and of thereby securing and obtaining for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit from such sale to said corporation so to be formed, and of selling to the public a sufficient number of shares in the corporation so formed to provide said corporation with a working capital. And said defendant and said Lewisohn formed said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, and purchased said stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said real estate conveyed to said Lewisohn, as aforesaid, for the purpose and with the intent of carrying out the prior plan and intention so formed by them as aforesaid, and of selling the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the property so conveyed to said Lewisohn, to the plaintiff corporation when the same should be formed, at a large advance in price; and said defendant and said Lewisohn caused the plaintiff corporation to be organized and to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and to acquire the real estate conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn, and caused said corporation to offer for sale and to sell to the public sufficient shares, to wit, twenty thousand (20,000) shares to provide it with working and other capital, in the manner aforesaid in further execution and performance of said plan and intention. When said offer was made by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the plaintiff corporation and when said proposition was made by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff corporation, and when said offer and proposition were accepted, said defendant and said Lewisohn were in absolute control of the plaintiff corporation through the ownership by them and their associates of all stock in said 18 plaintiff corporation then outstanding and through the selection of a board of directors and other officers chosen by them and selected for the purpose of enabling them to carry out said plan, and consisting of themselves, their employees, and associates, all of whom were expressly chosen for the purpose of carrying out said plan and intention and had expressly undertaken to do so; and said offer of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said proposition of said Lewisohn were accepted by the plaintiff corporation through its board of directors, as above set forth, by the direction of said defendant and said Lewisohn, and the other directors in acting thereon acted solely at the direction of and pursuant to previous agreement with said defendant and said Lewisohn, and for the express purpose of carrying out the said plan and intention of said defendant and said Lewisohn, and all of said action was taken and was intended by the individuals who took part therein to carry out said plan and intention and to enable said defendant and said Lewisohn and such persons as they had associated with them, to make a large profit by the sale of said property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate to the plaintiff corporation at a price greatly in excess of the cost to said defendant and said Lewisohn and their associates of all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate. And when said twenty thousand (20,000) shares of stock were offered to and were sold to the public, as above set forth, said defendant and said Lewisohn were in absolute control of the plaintiff corporation, as aforesaid and said shares were so offered for sale and sold to carry out said plan and conspiracy of said defendant and said Lewisohn aforesaid.

19 Twenty-second. From July 11, 1895, when said purchase in behalf of the plaintiff corporation of the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate from said Lewisohn was consummated, as above set forth, until April 4, 1902, the defendant was continuously the president and chief executive officer of the plaintiff corporation; throughout said period the board of directors of the plaintiff corporation was continuously composed of persons selected by the defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn, and at all times until April 4, 1902, a large majority of the persons so acting as directors were personal friends of the defendant and had been interested with the defendant in the transactions above set forth, and had received some share in the profits thereof, and the remaining directors took no active part in the management of the plaintiff corporation, and were ignorant of the facts hereinbefore set forth. No disclosure was at any time made to any of the subscribers for or to any purchasers of the capital stock of the plaintiff corporation not disposed of to the defendant and his associates, or to any purchasers thereof from them or any of them of the profit made by the defendant as above set forth as promoter of the plaintiff corporation or of any part thereof, and no disclosure was made to those persons other than the defendant and said Lewisohn who shared in the distribution of the eighty thousand (80,000) shares of stock distributed to the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate of the profit made by said defendant and said Lewisohn in the division between them of said additional twenty thousand (20,000) shares derived from the sale of the property formerly held by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company or of the thirty thousand (30,000) shares derived from the sale of the property conveyed by said Lewi-

20 sohn, as above set forth, in the proportion of twenty-seven thousand three hundred and fifty (27,350) to the defendant and twenty-two thousand six hundred and fifty (22,650) to said Lewisohn, and this plaintiff had not until after April 4, 1902, any knowledge or information of any of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the profit derived by said defendant in the manner above stated as promoter of this corporation, or of any profit having been derived by him, or by any other person interested or participating in the promotion and organization of this corporation, and immediately upon receiving information relating thereto investigated the same, and thereupon promptly made demand upon the defendant.

Twenty-third. Said Leonard Lewisohn died on March 5th, 1902, and was at the time of his death a citizen and resident of the City, County, and State of New York. The executors of the estate of said Lewisohn, who are also citizens and residents of said City, County and State, have been duly appointed by the courts of said state, but no executors or legal representatives of said Lewisohn have been appointed or are within this Commonwealth, and there is no property within this Commonwealth belonging to said estate which could be reached by any process, and it is impossible to get service within this Commonwealth upon the executors of said Leonard Lewisohn.

Twenty-fourth. The property conveyed to the plaintiff by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as above set forth, consists mainly of the copper mine which was then and ever since has been in active operation, and from which large amounts of ore have since been taken, and upon which large expenditures have been made in 21 the development and establishment of the necessary plant. The property conveyed to the plaintiff by Leonard Lewisohn as above stated consists merely of mining claims and a parcel of land for a mill site, all of which property has since said conveyance remained undeveloped and is now in substantially the same condition that it was in at the time of the conveyance by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff.

Twenty-fifth. The plaintiff desires to rescind the sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Lewisohn as hereinbefore set forth, and has offered to convey all said last named real estate to the defendant or to such person as he may request upon receiving from said defendant the consideration paid by this plaintiff for the conveyance thereof to it, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or if and in so far as said shares have been disposed of, upon said defendant's duly accounting therefor, but said defendant refused to make any such restitution or accounting; and the plaintiff is still ready and willing, and hereby offers, to convey said last named real estate to such person as this Honorable Court may direct.

Wherefore the plaintiff prays:

1. That this Honorable Court will declare said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the plaintiff, as hereinbefore set forth, rescinded, and will direct this plaintiff to execute such reconveyance thereof, if any, to such person as this Honorable Court shall think proper.

2. That said defendant be required to return to the plaintiff the consideration paid by this plaintiff for said conveyance, to 22 wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or if, and so far as said shares are no longer in his control, to account to the plaintiff therefor.

3. In the alternative in case this Honorable Court shall deem that the plaintiff has not rescinded and is not entitled to rescind said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff as above set forth, that this Honorable Court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the plaintiff by reason of the sale of said parcels of real estate as above set forth, and will by its decree establish the right of the plaintiff to recover said amount and order said defendant to pay said amount to this plaintiff.

4. For such other relief as to this Honorable Court shall seem meet.

By Their Solicitors, BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
WILLIAM H. DUNBAR,
Of Counsel.

23 A.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a Corporation Organized and Existing Under the Laws of the State of New Jersey:

The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland being the owner of certain mines and mining properties at Globe in the Territory of Arizona described in the annexed Schedule and of machinery, lumber, wood, tools, implements and other personal property for use for and in connection with the operation and maintenance thereof hereby makes the following proposition. To convey, assign and transfer all its property, both real and personal of every kind and nature whatsoever and wheresoever situated by good and sufficient deeds and instruments properly executed so as to confer absolute title thereto to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company upon receiving from said Company one Hundred thousand shares of its capital stock to be issued to said Old Dominion Copper Conapany or to its nominees.

It being understood that the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company shall assume all obligations of The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City incurred since the first day of June 1895, and shall be entitled to all earnings and profits of said Company since that date.

July eleventh 1895.

A. S. BIGELOW, President.

A. W. EVARTS, Secretary.

Schedule.

First. The Globe Mine, patented by the United States Government to B. W. Reagan on the 18th day of October 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona on the 19th day of November 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Second. The Globe Ledge Mine, patented by the United States Government to Benjamin W. Reagan on the eighteenth day of October 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona on the nineteenth day of November 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Third. The Copper Jack Mill Site of which the location is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County Arizona in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 311, and to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site, and upon which the Smelting Works, formerly owned by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Co. are situated.

Fourth. The Globe Mill Site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 311, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site.

Fifth. The Globe Ledge Mill Site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 310, to which record reference is hereby made for a description of said Mill Site.

24 A (Continued).

Sixth. The South-east Globe Mine, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 312, and reference is hereby made to said records for a fuller description of said Mine.

Seventh. All of the certain Mining claim known as the Interloper in Globe District, County of Gila, Territory of Arizona, and recorded in Globe District Records on pages 116 and 117 in Book 3, reference to which will more fully show, being the same property conveyed to William Keyser by Thomas H. Mason, by deed bearing date January 3rd, 1887 and recorded at page 586, Book 2, record of deeds to Mines Gila County, Arizona Territory.

Eighth. The Fraction Mine of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 569, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said mine.

Ninth. The Alice Mine or lode, located October 10th, 1875 by A. R. Hammond and J. W. Reed and notice of location recorded in Book 1, page 131, Globe District Mining Records (now a part of the Records of Gila County) and relocated February 28th 1879, and notice of location recorded in Book 5, Globe District Mining Records (now a part of the Records of Gila County) on pages 184 and 185, said Mine or Lode being more particularly described in the last mentioned notice of location, as follows to wit:—Commencing at this monument of stones in a gulch, being the centre of South west end of claim, and upon which this notice is posted, thence South east 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence North east 1400 feet to a monument of stones, thence north west 300 feet to a monument of stones, being the centre of the North east end of claim, thence North west 300 feet to a monument of stones thence South west 1400 feet to a monument of stones, under a tree, thence South east 300 feet to the place of beginning, being the same mining claim conveyed to Michael H. Simpson, deceased, by deed of the Globe City Mining Company dated July 1st, 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds to Mines Book 2 page 227 et seq.

Tenth. The Mining Claim called and known as the Hypatia Mine, situated, lying and being in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Territory of Arizona and more particularly described in the notice of location recorded at page 66, Book 2, Records of Mines, Gila County Records, to which record reference is made for a more definite description of said Mine. Said Mine was formerly known as the South west Alice Mine, being the same mining claim conveyed to said Michael H. Simpson, lately deceased, by deed of William H. Cook, dated November 18th 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds, Book 2, page 305.

B.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company:

I hereby offer to convey the following described property now owned and held by me upon receiving thirty thousand shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company to be issued to me or to my nominees.

1st. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry #267, Lot #45 situated in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

2nd. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry #268, Lot #46 in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

3rd. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry #269, Lot #51, in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

4th. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1885, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry #384, Lot #54 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

5th. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company, Deed recorded in Book 1 of Deeds to Real Estate at page 126 and 127 in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land.

New York, July 11, 1895.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

Please issue said 30,000 shares of stock to Mr. A. S. Bigelow and myself.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

This Bill was filed and entered in this Court on the seventh day of October, A. D. 1902, and thereupon a writ of summons and attachment was issued, returnable at the Rules holden at Boston aforesaid on the first Monday of November then next ensuing, which said writ was returned with acceptance of service by the defendant endorsed thereupon by his attorney, Alfred Hemenway, Esquire.

And on the second day of December A. D. 1902, the defendant filed his demurrer, the same being in the words following, to wit:

Defendant's Demurrer to the Whole Bill.

The defendant, by protestation, not confessing all or any of the matters and things in the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, doth demur to said bill, and for cause of demurrer doth show that it appears by said bill that the same sets up against the de-26 fendant different and distinct cases which are inconsistent with each other and cannot properly be joined, that different reliefs inconsistent with each other are prayed for, and that the said bill is altogether multifarious. Wherefore the defendant doth demur thereto, and demands judgment of this Court whether he shall be compelled to make any further or other answer to the said bill; and prays to be hence dismissed with his costs and charges in this behalf wrongfully sustained.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Solicitor for Defendant.

I certify that this demurrer is not intended for delay.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Solicitor for Defendant.

Defendant's Demurrer to a Part of the Bill.

The defendant, by protestation, not confessing all or any of the matters and things in the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, and not waiving his demurrer to the whole bill, but insisting and relying thereon, further doth demur to so much of said bill as seeks to have the sale of certain parcels of real estate conveyed to the plaintiff by Leonard Lewisohn rescinded, and to have the defendant ordered to return to the plaintiff the consideration paid by the plaintiff for said conveyance; and for causes of demurrer the defendant doth show:

1. That the plaintiff has not in and by said bill stated such a case as entitles it to the aforesaid relief against the defendant.

2. That it appears by said bill that the legal representa-
27 tives of Leonard Lewisohn therein referred to are indispensable parties defendant to said bill, so far as it seeks the rescission of the aforesaid sale, but that they have not been made parties defendant.

Wherefore the defendant doth demur to so much of the plaintiff's bill as is above specified, and demands judgment of this Court whether he shall make any further or other answer to such part of the said bill as is so demurred unto as aforesaid, and prays to be hence dismissed with his costs in this behalf sustained.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Solicitor for the Defendant.

I hereby certify that this demurrer is not intended for delay.

ALFRED HEMENWAY,
Solicitor for the Defendant.

And on the sixth day of June, A. D. 1904, the case was reserved for the consideration and determination of the Full Court, said reservation being in the words following, to wit:

This cause came on to be heard at the Equity Sitting in Boston upon the bill of complaint and the demurrers of the defendant thereto, and upon consideration thereof I now reserve for the determination of the Full Court the cause and the questions so raised.

If the demurrers, or either of them, are sustained on the merits, the bill or such part as the demurrer applies to, is to be dismissed with costs. If they, or either of them, are sustained on matter of form or non-joinder of proper parties, such order or decree 28 is to be made as the court shall deem meet. If the demurrers are overruled the defendant is to have leave to answer over.

JOHN LATHROP,
J. S. J. C.

June 6, 1904.

And thereafterwards on the nineteenth day of June, A. D. 1905, it was ordered by the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, by its Rescript, that the Clerk of this Court for the County of Suffolk make the following entry under this case in the docket of the Court, viz:

"So called demurrer as to part of the bill shall stand as an assignment of a cause of demurrer. Demurrer overruled, defendant to answer over."

And on the sixth day of December, A. D. 1905, the defendant filed his answer, the same being in the words following, to wit:

Defendant's Answer.

1. The defendant admits the allegations contained in the first, second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth paragraphs of the plaintiff's bill, but avers that the title alleged in the second paragraph to have been held by William Keyser was held by him in trust for the Baltimore Old Dominion Company. The defendant admits the allegations contained in paragraphs eight, nine, ten, twelve, thirteen, fourteen and sixteen of the bill, subject to the qualifications
29 stated in paragraph seven of this answer and except in so far as inconsistent with later matter set forth in this answer, in which case the allegations are denied.

2. The defendant denies the allegations contained in paragraphs three, four, five, six, seven, eleven, fifteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two and twenty-five of the bill, except as to such matters and things set out in said allegations as are hereinafter specifically admitted.

3. Further answering, the defendant says that on April 30, 1895, J. Morris Meredith procured from one of the executors of the will of Michael F. Simpson an option to himself and his assigns for the purchase of 17,857 shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company belonging to the state of said Michael F. Simpson. This option was superseded by a contract executed May 4, 1895, by and between said Meredith and all the executors of said will. By the terms of this contract Meredith was given the right in consideration of $2000 paid by him to the executors, to purchase said 17,857 shares of stock from said executors on or before May 28, 1895, for $40 a share, or $714,280 in all, payable $100,000 in cash and the balance in satisfactory notes of thirty, sixty and ninety days, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, the shares of stock to be delivered endorsed in blank to the Old Colony Trust Company in trust to hold as collateral security for the payment of the notes, and upon their payment to deliver to said Meredith or his assigns. It was stipulated that the surplus assets of the company, consisting of ingot copper, pig copper, and notes and bills receivable should be paid over to said executors and to William Keyser, who owned the remaining shares of the capital stock of the company, and that all debts of the company should be met by said executors. Said Meredith agreed that if required to and upon notice and tender he would purchase the shares of stock owned by said Keyser at the same pro rata price and upon the same general terms and conditions as above set forth. The contract ran to Meredith and his assigns. Upon its execution it was sold and assigned by said Meredith to Leonard Lewisohn.

4. Thereafterwards, but prior to May 24, 1895, said Lewisohn agreed to give the defendant one-half of his interest under said contract, and the defendant agreed with said Lewisohn to furnish one-half of the purchase price provided for by said contract. Subsequently it was arranged between them that as to the Keyser stock, the defendant's interest should be two-thirds, and Lewisohn's interest one-third.

On May 24, 1895, a syndicate called the Old Dominion Syndicate, and consisting of the defendant, said Lewisohn and others, was formed as a pool for purposes to be determined and carried out by the defendant and said Lewisohn, in the exercise of their own discretion exclusively, after their acquisition of the shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company to be purchased by them from the Simpson Estate and from William Keyser. It was agreed that said Lewisohn and the defendant should purchase and pay for said shares as aforesaid, and in their own names hold and deal with the same and with the property of said company as to them should seem best; and that their associates in the syndicate should receive so much only of the profit realized in the enterprise as the defendant and said Lewisohn might deem it proper to distribute among them, and that the remaining profit should be retained by said Lewisohn and the defendant to their own use. The members of the syndicate agreed to pay into the pool stated sums upon the terms aforesaid, and to pay such sums to the defendant and said Lewisohn as follows. Fourteen per cent. May 27, 1895; twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent. July 26, 1895; twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent. August 26, 1895; twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent. September 24, 1895; with interest at the rate of five per cent. Said payments were duly met as they severally became due.

On May 28, 1895, the defendant and said Lewisohn exercised the option conferred by the aforesaid contract with the executors of the will of Michael Simpson, paying to said executors $100,000, which they furnished in equal shares from their own moneys, and delivering notes made by said Lewisohn and indorsed by the defendant for $614,280, payable in thirty, sixty and ninety days, with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum; and said executors delivered to the Old Colony Trust Company the said 17,857 shares of stock, endorsed in blank, to be held by said company upon the trust aforesaid.

5. At and prior to the time when the defendant and said Lewisohn exercised the option to purchase the shares of stock held by the Simpson estate, they had no knowledge of the fact that the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was the beneficial owner of the mines, mining claims and lands known as the Old Dominion mines, the New York mine, the Chicago mine, the Keystone mine, and a certain parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, in Arizona, being the mines, mining claims and land referred to in the plaintiff's bill. During the negotiation for the purchase of the shares of stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company held by William Keyser, they learned that, although the legal title to said mines and mining claims stood in the name of said William Keyser, that the 32 Baltimore Old Dominion Company was the beneficial owner of said mines, mining claims and land. Thereupon they insisted that said mines, mining claims and land should follow the ownership of the stock. The said Keyser and the executors of the will of Michael Simpson thereupon agreed that said mines, mining claims and land should be conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn upon payment of the notes given in accordance with the requirements of said contracts for the purchase of the shares of stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, hereinbefore and hereinafter referred to.

6. On June 10, 1895, William Keyser agreed to sell his shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, to wit, 7143 shares, to said Lewisohn for $40 per share or $285,720 in all, and upon the same general conditions set out in the aforesaid contract between Meredith and the executors of the Simpson will; and thereupon notes for said amount of $285,720 made by said Lewisohn and endorsed by the defendant were delivered to said Keyser, and said Keyser delivered the shares of stock endorsed in blank, to the Old Colony Trust Company to hold as collateral security for the payment of said notes, and to turn over to the defendant and said Lewisohn when said notes should be paid.

7. It was agreed between said Lewisohn and the defendant that said Lewisohn should hold, when conveyed to him, the title to said mines, mining claims and land as property acquired under the aforesaid contracts, to be dealt with by the said Lewisohn and the defendant according to the terms of their agreement with the syndicate hereinbefore set out.

8. On or about June 20, 1895, the notes which had been 33 executed by said Lewisohn and the defendant to the executors of the will of Michael Simpson and to William Keyser as aforesaid were paid by said Lewisohn. The shares of stock held by the Old Colony Trust Company were given over to said Lewisohn and the defendant, and a meeting of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was held at which all the shares of the capital stock were transferred to said Lewisohn and the defendant. At the same time the said mines, mining claims and land were conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn. The defendant avers that said stock and said mines, mining claims and land were purchased by himself and by said Lewisohn as aforesaid, and were paid for out of their own moneys before any steps were taken towards the promotion or formation of the plaintiff corporation, or before the defendant and said Lewisohn had formed the purpose, intent or plan of forming said corporation; that said stock and said mines, mining claims and land were purchased by the said defendant and Lewisohn as and for their own individual property, subject only to their agreement with the said syndicate; that they made and had the right to make the purchase for themselves, and that the plaintiff corporation is not entitled to claim the benefit of the purchase or their profit.

9. At the said meeting of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company a new board of directors was chosen consisting of said Lewisohn, the defendant, William Keyser, P. Brent Keyser and George A. Pope. The defendant was chosen president and Allen W. Evarts secretary. The defendant and said Lewisohn upon acquiring the shares of stock of the said Baltimore company continued the operation of the mines of the said Baltimore company under and through the said Baltimore Company at a profit until the plaintiff corporation was formed and the said mines and the property were conveyed to it.

The said mines of the said Baltimore company had been worked by the Baltimore company at a large profit for many years. In addition to the purchase price paid for the shares of stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the defendant and said Lewisohn paid out large sums of money for necessary expenses incurred by them in the transactions hereinbefore set forth. All said cash transactions, expenditures and operations took place before the said defendant had determined upon the organization of the plaintiff corporation or decided upon their plans as to the final operation and disposition of the property of the said Baltimore Old Dominion Company.

10. On or about July 8, 1895, the plaintiff corporation was organized. The defendant admits that the allegations as set forth in paragraphs 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14 and 16 of the plaintiff's bill contain a substantially correct statement of the facts and dates of the formation of the plaintiff corporation, but he denies all the allegations contained in said paragraphs as to conspiracy, purpose and plan therein set forth and the allegations as to the selection, nomination and employment by the defendant of attorneys, incorporators, directors and officers of the plaintiff corporation and as to instructions, orders and directions by the defendant to said attorneys, incorporators, directors and officers; and as to the manner in which said directors and officers became shareholders in order that they might be qualified to act as directors and officers and as to their actual non-interest.

11. Thereafter it was agreed between the plaintiff corporation and the defendant and said Lewisohn that the defendant and said Lewisohn should convey or cause to be conveyed to the plaintiff corporation all the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion

35 Mining Company, including the mines, mining claims and land in which the said Baltimore Old Dominion Company held the beneficial interest, and which then stood in the name of said Lewisohn, and should furnish the plaintiff corporation with a working capital of $500,000 in cash. That in consideration therefor the plaintiff corporation should issue to the defendant and said Lewisohn or their nominees its entire capital stock, to wit, 150,000 shares.

12. The transactions which thereafter took place, though in form separate, were in fact all in pursuance of the said agreement. In form the transactions were separable as to the property held by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the said mines, mining claims and lands held by Lewisohn, and the capital to be furnished by the said Lewisohn and the defendant; but in fact the contract for the purchase and sale of all said property and for the furnishing of said capital was an entire contract and for an entire price, namely, all the capital stock, to wit, 150,000 shares of the plaintiff corporation.

13. The said transactions which thereafter took place as above stated were the conveyance to the plaintiff corporation of the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the conveyance by said Lewisohn of said mines, mining claims and land to the plaintiff corporation, the obligation and later fulfillment of said obligation by the defendant and said Lewisohn to furnish a working capital of $500,000 to said plaintiff corporation. Upon the conveyance of said property, mines, mining claims and land, and upon the undertaking of the defendant and said Lewisohn to furnish the said capital of $500,000, the plaintiff corporation issued all of its said shares, to wit, 150,000 shares, to the following named persons: the defendant and said Lewisohn, and Philip K. Dumaresq and Thomas Nelson as 36 agents and nominees of the defendant and said Lewisohn, that is to say, one hundred thousand shares to said Dumaresq nominally on account of the property standing in the name of the Baltimore Old Dominion Mining Company, thirty thousand shares to the defendant and said Lewisohn nominally on account of the mines, mining claims and land, and twenty thousand shares to said Nelson nominally on account of the working capital of $500,000 to be furnished by the defendant and said Lewisohn. And the defendant further says that said persons, as holders and owners of the entire capital stock of the plaintiff corporation, procured and consented to the issue of said entire capital stock to themselves, as performance by the plaintiff corporation of its part of the aforesaid agreement; that the defendant and said Lewisohn fully performed their part of said agreement; that subsequent shareholders acquired their shares not from the plaintiff corporation but from the owners of said shares, namely, the defendant and said Lewisohn, either directly or through their agents, the said Nelson and Dumaresq; and that none of said shares were offered to the public, by prospectus or otherwise, by or in behalf of the corporation, but were disposed of to various persons by the defendant and said Lewisohn under contracts of subscription which they took and received wholly on their own account, as the owners of said shares.

14. At the time when the plaintiff corporation made the said purchases and both before and after the issue of its shares in payment for the mining properties of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company as hereinbefore stated, and for the mines, mining claims and lands from said Lewisohn as hereinbefore stated, and for the obligation for the furnishing of working capital as hereinbefore stated, the defendant and said Lewisohn and their associates in the 37 syndicate were the only shareholders of the plaintiff corporation, and all said shareholders had full knowledge of all the facts relative to the purchase by the defendant and said Lewisohn of the shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said mines, mining claims and lands and the price paid therefor, and also of the facts in connection with the formation and organization of the plaintiff corporation and the purchase by it of the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said mines and mining claims. The authorized capital of the plaintiff corporation is $3,750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of $25 each. The defendant and said Lewisohn and their associates in the syndicate held all the captial stock, both before and after the authorization and issue of said full amount of capital stock. There were at the time of the transaction hereinbefore set forth no shares of stock held by persons who did not have full knowledge of all these transactions and who had not consented and assisted in the same, nor was there at that time any unissued stock, nor has any further stock in said corporation since been issued. There is at this time no share of stock in the plaintiff corporation which was not originally issued to and held by a person with full knowledge of the aforesaid transactions and who ratified and consented to the same.

15. And the defendant, in addition to the foregoing answer, avers that the cause of action, if any there may be, arising to the plaintiff corporation on account or by reason of the several allegations and complaints in the bill contained, did not accrue within six years before the said bill was filed and that the plaintiff is guilty of laches; and this allegation the defendant makes in bar of the bill and 38 prays that he may have the same benefit therefrom as if he had formally pleaded the same.

By His Attorney, ALFRED HEMENWAY.

And on the twenty third day of said December the plaintiff joined issue upon the defendant's answer. And on the sixth day of November A. D. 1907 the defendant filed his Substituted Answer, the same being in the words following, to wit:

Defendant's Answer.

1. The defendant admits the allegations contained in the first, second, twenty-third and twenty-fourth paragraphs of the plaintiff's bill, but avers that the title alleged in the second paragraph to have been held by William Keyser was held by him in trust for the Baltimore Old Dominion Company. The defendant admits the allegations contained in paragraphs eight, nine, ten, twelve, thirteen, fourteen and sixteen of the bill, subject to the qualifications stated in paragraph nineteen of this answer and except in so far as inconsistent with later matter set forth in this answer, in which case the allegations are denied.

2. The defendant denies the allegations contained in paragraphs three, four, five, six, seven, eleven, fifteen, seventeen, eighteen, nineteen, twenty, twenty-one, twenty-two, and twenty-five of the bill, except as to such matters and things set out in said allegations as are hereinafter specifically admitted.

3. Further answering, the defendant says that on April 30, 1895, J. Morris Meredith procured from one of the executors of the will of Michael F. Simpson an option to himself and his assigns for the purchase of 17,857 shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old
39 Dominion Company belonging to the estate of said Michael F. Simpson, said 17,857 shares being five-sevenths of the entire capital stock of said Baltimore Company. This option was superseded by a contract executed May 4, 1895, by and between said Meredith and all the executors of said will. By the terms of this contract Meredith was given the right in consideration of $2,000 paid by him to the executors to purchase said 17,857 shares of stock from said executors on or before May 28, 1895, for $40 a share, or $714,285 in all, payable $100,000 in cash and the balance in satisfactory notes of thirty, sixty and ninety days, bearing interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum, the shares of stock to be delivered endorsed in blank to the Old Colony Trust Company in trust to hold as collateral security for the payment of the notes, and upon their payment to deliver to said Meredith or his assigns. It was stipulated that the surplus assets of the company, consisting of ingot copper, pig copper, and notes and bills receivable should be excepted and that the company should be free of debt. Said Meredith agreed that if required upon notice and tender he would purchase any or all of the remaining two-sevenths of the shares of stock of said Baltimore Company at the same pro rata price and upon the same general terms and conditions as above set forth. This contract ran to Meredith and his assigns, and after its execution it was sold and assigned by said Meredith to Leonard Lewisohn.

4. Thereafter, on or before May 15, 1895, said Lewisohn agreed to give the defendant one-half of his interest under said contract, and the defendant paid said Lewisohn $1000 as one-half the consideration given for said contract, and agreed to take one-half in-40 terest in said contract and to furnish one-half of the purchase price provided for by said contract. At this time there was no contract, plan or understanding in regard to the acquisition of said remaining two-sevenths of said stock of said Baltimore Company other than a willingness to purchase the same in accordance with the terms of said contract between said Baltimore Company and said Meredith, as above set forth.

5. Thereafter the defendant and said Lewisohn, each having severally undertaken to provide one-half ($357,142.50) the consideration ($714,285) provided for in said contract, each made arrangements to provide for obtaining his share of said consideration. In this respect, however, there was no privity or understanding between the defendant and said Lewisohn, each making his own arrangements irrespective of the other, said arrangements in no wise affecting the relation of said Lewisohn and the defendant, and said Lewisohn and the defendant remaining the sole persons holding said option or contract for said five-sevenths of said capital stock of said Baltimore Company.

The defendant accordingly entered into an arrangement with five other persons, whereby the defendant and said persons agreed to take and pay for the defendant's proportion of said 17,857 shares of the Baltimore Company, to-wit, 8928 shares, at the same price, to-wit, $40 per share, as provided in said contract or option of Meredith which had been assigned to said Lewisohn.

The terms of said arrangement are set forth in the following copy of the original agreement, but although said agreement is dated May 22, 1895, said arrangement had been made with said five other persons on or prior to May 16, 1895.

"Whereas A. S. Bigelow has contracted to purchase eighty-nine hundred and twenty-eight (8928) shares of the stock of the Old 41 Dominion Copper Company, a Corporation organized under the laws of Maryland, and owning property in Arizona, at Forty Dollars ($40) per share, or thereabouts, the under-signed hereby agree to take the number of shares set opposite their respective names and pay for the same at the rate of Forty Dollars ($40) per share; the said stock to remain in the hands of A. S. Bigelow, and the management of the property to be left with him.

Payments to be made as follows:—

May 27th, 1895, fourteen per cent (14%)

July 26th 1895, Twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2-3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

August 25th, 1895, Twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2-3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

September 21, 1895, Twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2-3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

The conditions, covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding on the substitutes, successors, heirs, representatives and assigns of the respective subscribers hereto.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and opposite thereto the amounts of our subscriptions respectively, this 22d day of May A. D. 1895.

Matthew Luce	$100,000
A. S. Bigelow	50,000
J. A. Coram	100,000
Henry M. Whitney	50,000
J. Morris Meredith (in pencil)	25,000
Thomas Nelson	32,142.50
(in pencil)	$357,142.50

42

6. By reason of the circumstances hereinafter set forth the parties to the said agreement were never called upon to fulfill the terms thereof, but it was the intention and understanding of the defendant that said Luce, Coram, Whitney, Meredith and Nelson should thereby become entitled to an interest with the defendant in the profits of said contract or option of said Meredith, and the defendant thereafter divided with said persons profits made by him, not only from his interest in said contract or option of said Meredith, but also profits made by him from the entire transaction.

7. On or about May 24, 1895, the defendant began to form a syndicate called the Old Dominion Syndicate as a means of reimbursing himself in part for moneys to be expended in the fulfillment of said contract or option of said Meredith. This Syndicate was formed as a pool for purposes to be determined and carried out by the defendant in the exercise of his uncontrolled discretion, the terms of said syndicate subscription being set forth in several papers of the same tenor but different dates.

A copy of the form of said papers follows:

"We the undersigned propose to form a syndicate to be called the Old Dominion Syndicate.

And we hereby agree to pay to A. S. Bigelow the sums set against our respective names.

Subscriptions to this syndicate shall be payable as follows:

May 27, 1895, fourteen per cent (14 per cent).

July 26, 1895, twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2-3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

August 25, 1895, twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 43 2-3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

September 24, 1895, twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2-3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

It is expressly agreed and understood that each subscriber hereto acts for himself alone and that the relation of partners shall not exist or be deemed to exist between the subscribers hereto by virtue hereof.

The conditions, covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding on the substitutes, successors, heirs, representatives and assigns of the respective subscribers hereto.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and opposite thereto the amounts of our subscriptions respectively this twenty-first day of May, A. D. 1895."

8. It was the intention, understanding and agreement of all parties that said Lewisohn and the defendant, having purchased and paid for said shares as aforesaid and holding them in their own names, should deal with the same as to them should respectively seem best; and that the associates in the syndicate should receive so much only of the profit realized in the enterprise as the defendant might deem it fair and proper to distribute among them, and that the remaining profit should be retained by the defendant to his own use.

9. On or about May 28, 1895, the defendant and said Lewisohn exercised the option conferred by the aforesaid contract of Meredith with the executors of the will of Michael Simpson, paying to said executors $100,000, which they furnished in equal shares from their own moneys, and delivering notes made by said Lewisohn
44 and endorsed by the defendant for $514,285, payable in thirty, sixty and ninety days, with interest at the rate of five per cent. per annum; and said executors delivered to the Old Colony Trust Company the said 17,857 shares of stock, endorsed in blank, to be held by said company upon the trust aforesaid.

10. On or about June 13, 1895, the owners of the remaining two-sevenths of the stock of said Baltimore Company, to-wit, William Keyser and others, agreed, in the name of Keyser, to sell their shares of the capital stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, to-wit, 7143 shares, to said Lewisohn for $40 per share, or $285,715 in all, $40,000 in cash payable June 20, 1895 and the balance in notes then to be delivered, and upon the same general conditions set out in the aforesaid contract between Meredith and the executors of the Simpson will.

11. It was also agreed between the defendant and Lewisohn that in said two-sevenths of the stock of said Baltimore Company the defendant should have an interest of two-thirds and said Lewisohn of one-third; so that the defendant's interest in the entire transaction was one-half of five-sevenths plus two-thirds of two-sevenths, or twenty-three forty-seconds, or 547 1000ths.

12. At and prior to the time when the defendant and said Lewisohn exercised the option to purchase the shares of stock held by the Simpson estate, they had no knowledge of the fact that the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was the beneficial owner of the mines, mining claims and lands known as the Old Dominion mines, the New York mine, the Chicago mine, the Keystone mine, and a certain parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, in Arizona, being the mines, mining claims and land referred to in the plaintiff's bill.

During the negotiation for the purchase of the shares of stock
45 of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company held by William Keyser, they learned that although the legal title to said mines and mining claims stood in the name of said William Keyser, that the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was the beneficial owner of said mines, mining claims and land. Thereupon they insisted that said mines, mining claims and land should follow the ownership of the stock. The said Keyser and the executors of the will of Michael Simpson thereupon agreed that said mines, mining claims and land should be conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn upon payment of the notes given in accordance with the requirements of said contracts for the purchase of the shares of stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, hereinbefore referred to; and it was agreed between said Lewisohn and the defendant that said Lewisohn should hold, when conveyed to him, the title to said mines, mining claims and land as property acquired under the aforesaid contracts.

13. After the said agreement for the purchase of said remaining two-sevenths of the shares of said Baltimore Company was concluded, and it was thereby determined that the total amount of money to be paid by said Lewisohn and the defendant was to be $1,000,000 in all, the said Old Dominion Syndicate was enlarged on the same terms as heretofore set forth.

14. On or about June 20, 1895, all the shares of the said Baltimore Company having been theretofore deposited in the Old Colony Trust Company in accordance with the terms of the said agreements with the executors of said Simpson and William Keyser, the cash payment to Keyser was made and the first notes to Keyser and the said executors were paid by said Lewisohn and the defendant. On the same date there was held in Baltimore a meeting of the 46 Baltimore Old Dominion Company at which the control of said Company was transferred to said Lewisohn and the defendant; at the said meeting of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company a new board of directors being chosen consisting of said Lewisohn, the defendant, William Keyser, P. Brent Keyser and George A. Pope. The defendant was chosen president and Allen W. Evarts secretary.

15. The said mines of the said Baltimore Company had been worked by the Baltimore Company at a large profit for many years; and the defendant and said Lewisohn continued the operation of the mines of the said Baltimore Company under and through the said Baltimore Company until the plaintiff corporation was formed, the said mines and property were conveyed to it and it undertook the operation thereof. In addition to the purchase price paid for the shares of stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the defendant and said Lewisohn paid out large sums of money for operating expenses at the mines and for necessary expenses incurred by them in the transactions hereinbefore set forth, and expended a large amount of valuable time and service in regard to said transactions.

16. It was not until some time about July 1st, 1895, or thereafter, that the defendant and said Lewisohn formed any definite plan or intention for the ultimate disposition of said stock of said Baltimore Company, and not until long after said Lewisohn and the defendant, as purchasers, had paid for said stock to said executors of said Simpson and said Keyser, was the formation of a new corporation determined upon.

17. Thereafter said Lewisohn and the defendant consulted eminent counsel, to wit, Messrs. Evarts, Choate & Beaman of New York, who advised the formation of a New Jersey corporation. Said
47 Lewisohn and the defendant informed counsel that they would convey or cause to be conveyed to such new corporation all the property of the said Baltimore Company, the said mining claims which said Keyser had agreed to convey to said Lewisohn, and $500,000 for working capital; and in return said Lewisohn and the defendant were to have all the capital stock of said new corporation. Said Lewisohn and the defendant thereafter determined that the new corporation should be capitalized at $3,750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $25 each, and thereupon left the details of the organization of said corporation to their counsel.

18. The defendant avers that said stock and said mines, mining claims and land were purchased by himself and by said Lewisohn as aforesaid, and were paid for by them before any steps were taken towards the promotion or formation of the plaintiff corporation and before the defendant and said Lewisohn had formed the purpose, intent or plan of forming said corporation; that said stock and said mines, mining claims and land were rightfully purchased by the said defendant and said Lewisohn as and for their own individual property, and that the plaintiff corporation is not entitled to claim the benefit or profit of such purchase.

19. On or about July 11th, 1895, the plaintiff corporation was organized. The defendant admits that the allegations as set forth in paragraphs 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14 and 16 of the plaintiff's bill contain a substantially correct statement of the facts and dates of the formation of the plaintiff corporation, but he denies all the allegations contained in said paragraphs as to conspiracy, purpose and plan therein set forth and the allegations as to the selection, nomination and employment by the defendant of attorneys, incor-
48 porators, directors and officers of the plaintiff corporation, and as to instructions, orders and directions by the defendant to said attorneys, incorporators, directors and officers; and as to the manner in which said directors and officers became shareholders in order that they might be qualified to act as directors and officers and as to their actual non-interest.

20. Thereafter it was agreed between the plaintiff corporation and the defendant and said Lewisohn that the defendant and said Lewisohn should convey or cause to be conveyed to the plaintiff corporation all the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, including the mines, mining claims and land conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn, and which then stood in the name of said Lewisohn, and should furnish the plaintiff corporation with a working capital of $500,000 in cash. That in consideration therefor the plaintiff corporation should issue to the defendant and said Lewisohn or their nominees and to the nominees of said Baltimore Company, of which said Lewisohn and the defendant owned the entire capital stock, its entire capital stock, to wit, 150,000 shares.

21. The transactions which thereafter took place, though in form separate, were in fact all in pursuance of the said agreement. In form the transactions were separable as to the property held by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the said mines, mining claims and lands held by Lewisohn, and the capital to be furnished by the said Lewisohn and the defendant; but really the contract for the purchase and sale of all said property and for the furnishing of said capital was an entire contract and for an entire price, to wit, all the capital stock, or 150,000 shares, of the plaintiff corporation.

49 22. The said transactions which thereafter took place as above stated were the conveyance to the plaintiff corporation of the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, the conveyance by said Lewisohn of said mines, mining claims and land to the plaintiff corporation, the obligation and later fulfilment of said obligation by the defendant and said Lewisohn to furnish a working capital of $500,000 to said plaintiff corporation. Upon the conveyance of said property, mines, mining claims and land, and upon the undertaking of the defendant and said Lewisohn to furnish the said capital of $500,000, the plaintiff corporation issued all of its said shares, to wit, 150,000 shares, to the following named persons: the defendant and said Lewisohn, Philip K. Dumaresq, as the agent and nominee of said Baltimore Company, the total capital stock whereof was owned by said defendant and said Lewisohn, and Thomas Nelson, acting for the defendant, the syndicate managed by the defendant and said Lewisohn, that is to say, one hundred thousand shares to said Dumaresq nominally on account of the property standing in the name of the Baltimore Old Dominion Mining Company, thirty thousand shares to the defendant and said Lewisohn, nominally on account of the mines, mining claims and land, and twenty thousand shares to said Nelson, nominally on account of the working capital of $500,000 to be furnished by the defendant and said Lewisohn. And the defendant further says that said persons, as holders and owners of the entire capital stock of the plaintiff corporation, procured and consented to the issue of said entire capital stock to themselves, as performance by the plaintiff corporation of its part of the aforesaid agreement; that the defendant and said Lewisohn fully performed their part of said agreement; that subsequent shareholders acquired their shares, not from the plaintiff corporation but from the owners of said shares, namely, the defendant and said Lewisohn, either directly or through their agents, the said Nelson and Dumaresq; and that none of said shares were offered to the public, by prospectus or otherwise, by or in behalf of the corporation, but were disposed of to various persons by the defendant and said Lewisohn under contracts of subscriptions which they took and received wholly on their own account, as the owners of said shares.

23. Thereafter the defendant was solicited by many friends and acquaintances to allow them to purchase some of his shares of stock in the plaintiff corporation. In order to in part reimburse the defendant and said Lewisohn for the moneys paid by them for the purchase of the stock in the said Baltimore Company, and in order to assist said Lewisohn and the defendant in fulfilling their obligation of furnishing $500,000 to the plaintiff corporation, the defendant formed a list upon which were set down the offers to him to purchase his said stock.

24. It thereafter appeared that many of the persons who, by the Old Dominion Syndicate papers, had agreed to pay certain sums of money to the defendant, desired in some way to take all profit or reimbursement to which the defendant might determine them entitled in the form of stock in the plaintiff corporation, in lieu of money. It was moreover agreed between the defendant and said Lewisohn that said Lewisohn should take as part reimbursement for the moneys paid by him for the purchase of the stock of said Baltimore Company, stock in the plaintiff corporation.

25. Accordingly the defendant on July 19th sent a circular letter to the members of the Old Dominion Syndicate, including said Lewisohn, a copy of the form of said circular letter being as follows:

51 (Letter of July 19.)

"A number of the largest subscribers to the Old Dominion syndicate have requested that they be allowed to take shares in the new company at a par value of $25 in lieu of the money which they originally advanced and which was to be repaid to them from the proceeds of the new stock. As a subscriber to the syndicate, you are hereby informed that it has been decided to grant this request. If you wish to avail yourself of the opportunity, you must notify me in writing on or before August 1, 1895, after which date this option will positively expire.

(Signed) A. S. BIGELOW."

26. Nearly all of the members of the Old Dominion Syndicate notified the defendant that they desired to purchase his stock in the plaintiff corporation to the extent of the option afforded them by said letter of July 19th, and certain members of the syndicate also offered to buy from the defendant further shares of said stock at the rate of $25 per share, and certain other friends and acquaintances offered to buy still further shares of stock at the same rate.

27. The defendant determined to allot to the members of the Old Dominion Syndicate as their profit in the transaction 40,000 shares, and further determined to sell 60,000 shares of the stock owned by him and said Lewisohn in accordance with these several offers. Said offers in the aggregate were for 72,120 shares, were all addressed to the defendant personally, were from friends and acquaintances of the defendant, and neither the defendant nor anyone on his behalf or on the behalf of the corporation made any representation, misrepresentation or solicitation to obtain said
52 offers and concealed nothing from anyone. Thereupon it was determined to accept said offers in part, and the defendant did so according to his personal and uncontrolled discretion, arbitrarily determining which of said offers he would accept, which he would reject, and which accept in part and reject in part.

28. It having been determined by the defendant to return to each syndicate member one share for each $25 subscribed to the defendant by the Old Dominion Syndicate paper, and for how many shares he would accept the offer of those persons offering new cash, whether said persons were originally members of the Old Dominion Syndicate or otherwise, the defendant thereupon notified said persons appearing on the said "List of July 18" by sending to each circular letters of one of the following forms:

"Sears Building, Boston, Mass., Aug. 13, 1895.

Referring to your subscription to the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, you are hereby notified that — shares have been allotted to you at $25 a share. Notice will be sent in due course when payment for this should be made.

Besides this, you will receive — shares on your subscription of $— to the Old Dominion Syndicate, being the stock taken by you in accordance with circular of July 19th, 1895; and, of course, in addition, the — shares to which you are entitled under your original subscription to the Old Dominion Syndicate.

In other words, on a further payment by you of $— you will be entitled to — shares of the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company. When the stock is ready for delivery you will be notified.

To —— ——.

A. S. BIGELOW."

52½ "Boston, Mass., August 23, 1895.

Referring to your subscription to the stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, you are hereby notified that — shares have been allotted to you at $25 a share. Notice will be sent in due course when payment for this should be made and also of the time when the stock will be ready for delivery.

(Signed) A. S. BIGELOW."

29. The defendant by this acceptance having obligated himself to deliver shares to those persons whose offer he had accepted, thereafter delivered said shares in accordance with this obligation.

30. The entire capital stock of the plaintiff corporation, to wit, 150,000 shares, was issued to the defendant, to said Lewisohn or to their nominees, and to persons having full and complete knowledge of all transactions entered into by the corporation and all matters in relation thereto or connected therewith, and each and every stockholder in the plaintiff corporation acquiesced in the transaction complained of or acquired his interest or share in said corporation from some one or more of the persons who so acquiesced.

31. All the aforesaid transactions were done with the utmost publicity, full and truthful information being given to all persons making inquiry, and the account of said transactions appeared in the public press and in the columns of financial journals, before there was any contract completed between the defendant and the persons offering to buy his stock. Absolutely no mis-representation of any kind was made by the defendant or by anyone connected with the corporation, and there was no concealment of any of 53 said transactions or of anything in relation to them. There was absolutely no solicitation of purchasers for the defendant's stock in the plaintiff corporation, and no stock was sold by the defendant or by the corporation except stock of the defendant's to persons who had requested the defendant personally to allow them to purchase said stock, and no contracts for the sale or purchase of stock were made except between the defendant individually and persons purchasing from him.

32. In return for the said 150,000 shares of the stock of the plaintiff corporation, the defendant and said Lewisohn gave the plaintiff corporation moneys and property purchased with their own money and for their own use, which moneys and property were and are, and which they then believed and still believe to be of far greater value than the par value of said 150,000 shares of the plaintiff corporation's stock. No shareholder paying $25 for his share or shares of stock has been in any wise deceived; he has received full value, and said stock has been and now is of far higher value than its par value.

33. The conveyance to the plaintiff of said mining claims was a part of the entire transaction, as above stated, and moreover was a part of a contract by the defendant and said Lewisohn to convey or cause to be conveyed the property of said Baltimore Company and said mining claims as an entire transaction and contract and not severally; and for an entire price and not a several price; and neither said Lewisohn and the defendant nor the plaintiff corporation intended or was willing to separate said transactions or would have been willing to make or perform one part of said contract without the other. Said property of the Baltimore Company and said mining claims were and are and were believed and still are believed by the defendant to be of a 54 fair value greatly in excess of the par value of the stock received therefor.

34. The stockholders of the plaintiff corporation have on September 18th, 1899, April 5, 1899, June 15th, 1899 and April 3d, 1901, ratified and acquiesced in all said transactions, and at none of those times, except perhaps the first, did the defendant and said Lewisohn or either of them control the said plaintiff corporation or the action of its stockholders.

35. The transactions, matters and contracts complained of in the plaintiff's bill took place and were made in the state of New York, by the laws whereof said transactions, matters and contracts are valid and cannot be complained of.

36. The defendant denies each and every allegation in the plaintiff's bill contained as fully and specifically as if each of said allegations was separately recited and denied, except in so far as said allegations have been herein specifically admitted.

37. And the defendant, in addition to the foregoing answer, avers that the cause of action, if any there may be, arising to the plaintiff corporation on account or by reason of the several allegations and complaints in the bill contained, did not accrue within six years before the said bill was filed and that the plaintiff is guilty of laches; and this allegation the defendant makes in bar of the bill and prays that he may have the same benefit therefrom as if he had formally pleaded the same.

Wherefore the defendant prays that the plaintiff's bill may be dismissed with costs.

By His Solicitor, J. W. FARLEY.

Of Counsel:

ALFRED HEMENWAY.
EUGENE TREADWELL.

55 And on the eleventh day of said November, the plaintiff filed its amendment to its Bill of Complaint, which was allowed, the said amendment being in the words following, to wit:

Amendment to Bill of Complaint.

In the above entitled case the plaintiff amends the Bill of Complaint therein by striking out the Tenth paragraph thereof and substituting therefor the following:

Tenth. The defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn caused all the directors aforesaid, except said Montgomery, to assemble at the office in New York City of the firm of Lewisohn Brothers, of which firm said Leonard Lewisohn was a member, and all said directors except said Montgomery were present, and said Montgomery was absent, was not notified of said meeting, and did not waive notice thereof. Pursuant to instructions from the defendant, the resignation of said Montgomery as a director was presented to said other six persons and accepted, and the defendant was thereupon chosen by them a director in his place. Thereupon, pursuant to instructions from the defendant, the successive resignations of said Rowe as a director, of said Welch as a director, of said Jesse Lewisohn as treasurer and as director, of said Evarts as president, and of said Riddlesdorffer as vice-president and as director were presented and duly accepted, and said Leonard Lewisohn, one Henry M. Whitney, one Thomas Nelson and one Joseph G. Ray were successively chosen directors by said persons present, and said Thomas Nelson was duly chosen treasurer and said defendant was duly chosen president of said corporation. Said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn were present at said meeting, and upon their respective elections as directors took their places in said meet-

56 ing, but said Whitney, said Nelson and said Ray were not present at said meeting, had no notice thereof, and did not waive notice thereof; and said meeting was not a legal meeting of the Board of Directors of the plaintiff corporation under and in accordance with the laws of the State of New Jersey, and the acts done at said meeting were not valid and binding acts of said corporation or of the Board of Directors thereof.

The plaintiff further amends the Bill of Complaint in the above entitled case by adding in the Sixteenth paragraph thereof, in the tenth line of said paragraph, after the word "called" the words "and held in Boston in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts."

By Its Attorneys, BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

And thereafterwards on the fifth day of December, A. D. 1907, after having heard the parties and their evidence and the arguments of counsel, the following Report of Facts and Order for Decree was filed by the Court (this case and case numbered 8099, between the same parties, having been heard together upon the same evidence) to wit:

Report of Facts Found at the Hearing and Order for Decree.

At the request of counsel for the plaintiff, I file the following statement of facts found by me, and this report, although filed in only one case, is intended to be applied to both of them.

For some time prior to April 1, 1895, the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore, Maryland, a corporation organized under the laws of Maryland and hereinafter called the Baltimore company, had been operating copper mines in Arizona. It had 57 had a fair success, and had been paying dividends upon its stock, but to what amount did not appear. The defendant was largely interested in copper mining, and was the president of and interested in several mining companies. Leonard Lewisohn, of New York, both individually and as a member of the firm of Lewisohn Brothers and of a corporation of the same name, was also largely interested in copper. At some time in April, 1895, they formed a plan or device to secure control of the stock of the Baltimore company and to cause its property to be transferred to a new corporation which they should procure to be organized with a much larger capital, for a much increased price. The capital stock of the Baltimore company was $500,000, divided into 25,000 shares, of the par value of $20 each; and 5-7 of this stock, or 17,857 shares, were held by the executors of Michael H. Simpson, deceased, and 2-7, or 7,143 shares, were held by one William Keyser of Baltimore, and others represented by him. The defendant and said Lewisohn procured J. M. Meredith, a real estate broker of Boston, to negotiate with the executors of Simpson, and he did so. The executors were unwilling to deal with the defendant or to make any sale to him; but Meredith finally did obtain from them a written agreement, signed by one of them, dated April 30, 1895, for the sale to himself of their stock at the price of forty dollars a share upon the terms therein stated, for which Meredith paid them down the sum of two thousand dollars. This agreement he forwarded to Lewisohn. Its form and provisions were unsatisfactory to Lewisohn's attorneys, and a new agreement or option was substituted for it, dated May 4, 1895, of which a copy is annexed, marked "A." Lewisohn repaid the $2000 to Meredith, and Meredith assigned the agreement to him. The defendant then repaid $1000 of this sum to Lewisohn. Afterwards, on June 13,
58 1895, a somewhat similar agreement was made by Lewisohn with William Keyser, for the purchase of the remaining 7,143 shares of the stock of the Baltimore company. A copy of this agreement is annexed, marked "B." There are mentioned also in this agreement certain other mining properties in Arizona, hereinafter called the outside properties. The legal title to these was held by William Keyser, but really in trust, one-half for the Baltimore company and one-half to Simpson; but Keyser agreed, and all other parties in interest consented, that these should go with the stock of the Baltimore company, without any further consideration being paid.

The defendant, by the understanding between himself and Lewisohn, was to pay for and have one-half of the Simpson stock and two-thirds of the Keyser stock; Lewisohn was to take and pay for the rest; and they arranged to take, pay for and hold the whole, including both stock and outside properties, in the proportion of 547 parts to the defendant and 453 parts to Lewisohn, so that of the $1,000,000 dollars needed to carry through the transaction ($714,285 to the Simpson estate and $285,715 to Keyser and his associates) $547,000 was to be furnished by the defendant and $453,000 by Lewisohn. The defendant and Lewisohn availed themselves of these agreements; paid the price thereof before July 10, 1895, in advance of the coming due of their notes given therefor; and the stocks were delivered to them, and the outside properties were conveyed to Lewisohn for them.

In the meantime they had proceeded to make their respective arrangements for the raising of the money needed to make these payments; for each one of them was to provide separately his money, although they were acting together in dealing with Simpson's executors and Keyser, and intended to act together in disposing of the stock when they should have acquired it.

59 For this purpose, the defendant, before taking up either of these options and before any agreement had been made with Keyser, procured first an underwriting agreement, which was made verbally before May 16, 1895, and afterwards was reduced to writing and dated May 22, 1895, and signed by Matthew Luce, J. A. Coram, Henry M. Whitney, —— Meredith, Thomas Nelson, and the defendant, whereby each of these parties agreed to take a certain number of the shares of the Baltimore company at $40 a share, the total price amounting to $357,142.50, or the amount to be paid by the defendant for his one-half part of the Simpson shares. But it was understood that these men, called the underwriters, were to be called upon to pay only for what should not be paid by the members of the syndicate hereafter mentioned, which was intended to be formed and which was soon after formed. A copy of this underwriting agreement is hereto annexed, marked "C."

The defendant also formed what was called the "Old Dominion Syndicate," hereinafter called his syndicate, to provide the means for making his payments, and to share in the profits expected to be realized. Those who joined the syndicate signed written agreements, of which the first (though actually subsequent to the underwriting agreement) was dated May 21, 1895. A copy of this first agreement is annexed, marked "D." Other papers of the same purport were dated May 24 and June 14, and a blank date, 1895. The amounts so subscribed on these four papers were respectively $100,000; $20,000; $179,119; and $123,500; or in all $422,619. In addition to this, of the underwriters, Whitney was treated as a syndicate subscriber for $50,000; Meredith for $25,000; and the defendant himself for $50,000; making in all $547,619,—practically the amount that the defendant was to pay.

The members of the syndicate made their payments, and 60 the defendant and Lewisohn made their payments to Simpson and Keyser, taking up their notes as aforesaid, on July 9, 1895.

When the scheme was first formed, it had been the plan and the avowed intention of the defendant and Lewisohn to form a new corporation with a capital stock of $2,500,000, which should take the property of the Baltimore company and the outside properties for $2,000,000, and raise $500,000 of working capital with the rest of its stock. This would give the defendant stock for the money raised and applied by him at the rate of just two for one, and he expected, and stated to various members of his syndicate that he expected, to give to each subscriber to his syndicate cash to the full amount of his subscription and stock at par to the same amount, the cash to be raised by selling the surplus stock, which at par would produce just that amount. They proceeded, however, to organize the plaintiff corporation under the laws of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $3,750,000, being one hundred and fifty thousand shares of the par value of $25 each.

The organization of this corporation was controlled entirely by the defendant and Lewisohn, with the advice of the latter's attorneys. The formal written agreement for its formation was signed by Lewisohn's son, one of his attorneys, and five of the employees of Lewisohn Brothers. The first meeting of the stockholders was held July 7, 1895, and the seven incorporators above mentioned were elected directors. Six of these appeared to have taken and paid for four shares each, and the seventh to have taken and paid for sixteen shares, or forty shares in all. These forty shares really had been paid for by Lewisohn; and although the money was deposited in bank to the credit of the company upon its organization, it afterwards was returned by the company to Lewisohn in accounting with him. Through these incorpo-61 rators the organization was effected; and they were elected directors of the plaintiff company.

A meeting of these directors was held in New York, at the office of Lewisohn Brothers, on July 11, 1895, at which some of these directors successively resigned, and the vacancies thus created were filled by the board, so that the new board of directors consisted of the defendant, Lewisohn, Thomas Nelson, and Messrs. Whitney, Ray, Buffum and Evarts. These directors were all selected and were controlled by the defendant and Lewisohn. The defendant and Lewisohn had now taken full control of the Baltimore company; the quick assets and working capital of that company including all the surplus assets mentioned in the first and — clause of the Simpson agreement, marked "A," had been divided among its former stockholders; the defendant had become its president, and its board of directors had come under the control of the defendant and Lewisohn.

At the meeting of the directors of the plaintiff company held as aforesaid at New York on July 11, 1895, there were present, after the new appointments, four directors, being the defendant, Lewisohn, their attorney Mr. Evarts, and Lewisohn's employee, Mr. Buffum. The three absent directors, Nelson, Ray and Whitney, were members of the defendant's syndicate, and Nelson and Whitney were two of the defendant's original underwriters. Whether these three directors had had any notice of the meeting did not appear; the records of the company do not show that any such notice had been given to them. At this meeting, under these circumstances, the defendant, through Mr. Evarts, presented an offer from the Baltimore company to transfer all its property and assets to the plaintiff company in return for 100,000 shares of the plaintiff company, to wit, a par value of $2,500,000. A copy of this offer is hereto annexed, marked E. Thereupon Lewisohn 62 proposed and Evarts seconded a resolution accepting this offer and appointing the defendant and Nelson a committee to supervise and carry out the details. The resolution was passed. A copy of this resolution is hereto annexed, marked F. In fact no report as to the value of the property had been made to the plaintiff corporation; but one Hyams and one Colquhoun had examined the property and had made a report to Lewisohn and the defendant for their guidance in buying from Simpson and Keyser, which was put in evidence. This report was not communicated to the plaintiff.

Lewisohn then presented a written proposition to convey to the plaintiff company the outside properties acquired from Keyser, in return for 30,000 shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff company, to wit, a par value of $750,000. A copy of this offer is annexed, marked "G," with a request to issue said stock to the defendant himself. Thereupon Evarts moved and Buffum seconded a resolution accepting the offer, and appointing the same committee to supervise and carry out the details. This resolution was carried. A copy of the resolution is annexed, marked "H." No examination had been made of these properties, and no report was or had been submitted about them either to the plaintiff company or the defendant or Lewisohn, as they were not regarded by the defendant or by Lewisohn, or, so far as appeared, by any one else, as possessing any substantial value. These transactions were carried out; deeds from the Baltimore company of its properties, and from Lewisohn of the outside properties, were delivered to the plaintiff company in December, 1895, or January, 1896, and the stock aforesaid, amounting to 130,000 shares of the par value of $3,250,000, and then of fully as great market value, was issued to Lewisohn and the 63 defendant, or to their nominees, on September 18 and 19, 1895.

During all these transactions, the full control of the plaintiff company was in the hands of and was exercised by the defendant and Lewisohn, who were its promoters, and who themselves determined upon and dictated, under the advice of their counsel, everything that was done by the plaintiff company or in its behalf; it had no directors, representatives or advisers other than themselves or their agents; and they did not disclose to it any of the facts which have been stated. This continued to be the case until April, 1902, as hereinafter stated.

It was intended also by Lewisohn and the defendant that 20,000 shares of the capital stock of the plaintiff should be issued to new subscribers at par; and this was done in the summer and fall of 1895.

Neither the defendant nor Lewisohn disclosed to the new corporation the fact that they had paid only $1,000,000 for the stock representing all the mining property of the Baltimore company, or that they procured the outside properties without any other consideration; nor did they or either of them see that the new company had any independent advice before accepting the offers made to it as aforesaid, really by themselves. On the contrary they organized and promoted the plaintiff company for the purpose of having it accept, and they exercised their control over it to cause it to accept, said offers, and really, through their own action and that of their employees, themselves accepted said offers in the name of the corporation. The stock which they thus took was then of fully its par value, this being due mainly to the skilful conduct and manipulation of the defendant and Lewisohn, and continued to be so for some time, and until the defendant had sold out substantially all the stock that he took for his own use.

64 If it be material, I find also that the defendant did not act towards the members of his syndicate with the good faith which they had a right to expect. The result of his and Lewisohn's transactions with the plaintiff company was that for the $1,000,000 of their own and their associates' money which they invested, they received, subject to the payment of legitimate expenses of not over $20,000, stock to the par value of $3,250,000, and of the then actual value of at least that amount; that is at the rate of more than three dollars for one. He gave to the members of his syndicate two dollars for one, either wholly in stock or half in cash and half in stock as they elected. With a few individual exceptions, he did not disclose the facts to them. The very great majority of the members of his syndicate did not become aware of the details of what he and Lewisohn had done; they did receive what it had been represented to them that they would receive; and they generally contented themselves in their ignorance with the fact that they had doubled their money. The residue of the gain received by the defendant he dealt with as he chose, taking a part of it to himself, distributing a part among some of the underwriters, or otherwise disposing of it. But the averments of the eighth paragraph of the defendant's final answer (filed November 6, 1907) are not according to the facts.

The defendant contended that the real transaction as intended to be carried out between Lewisohn and himself on the one side and the plaintiff company on the other was that they should convey or cause to be conveyed to the plaintiff company the property of the Baltimore company and the outside properties, and should supply to it the sum of $500,000 for working capital, and should receive therefor all the capital stock of the plaintiff company; that this was actually

65 done, though put in the form of different transactions; that Lewisohn and the defendant really took accordingly themselves the 20,000 shares which were to be used for raising the working capital, and bound themselves to pay to the plaintiff company therefor the said sum of $500,000; that the parties who afterwards subscribed for and received these shares really took them from the defendant and Lewisohn and not from the plaintiff company; and that at the time of the transactions above stated Lewisohn and the defendant became and were the real owners of all the authorized capital stock of the plaintiff company. There was some evidence in support of this contention; but I find that the real facts are as already stated.

The mining property of the Baltimore Company so conveyed to the plaintiff company was not of the intrinsic value of more than $1,000,000. But its market value at the time of its transfer to the plaintiff company seems to have been greater than this. This increased market value may have been, and probably was, due in large part to the skilful manipulation of the defendant and Lewishon, and the ingenious manner in which they created a desire on the part of men interested in mines as investors or speculators to be allowed to join in the transaction they were carrying out. This market value however was less than $2,000,000. But taking the most favorable view of the situation possible for the defendant, he and Lewisohn did by reason of their failure to disclose the real facts as aforesaid make out of their sale to the plaintiff company a secret profit of 50,000 shares of its capital stock, of which the defendant's portion was 27,350 shares and Lewisohn's portion 22,650 shares. If he had fully disclosed the facts to the plaintiff company and had secured for it independent advice, it would not have given to him this secret profit; if he had dealt fairly and openly with the mem-66 bers of his syndicate, he would have shared with them this secret profit less a comparatively small sum to reimburse his expenses. Unless one of his independent defenses is made out, he must account to the plaintiff for his secret profit. This amount of 50,000 shares includes however the 30,000 shares received for the outside properties, so that in the suit numered 8,099 the defendant is to be held accountable only for 20,000 shares, or for 10,940 shares if he is not liable in solido for the total amount received by Lewisohn and himself.

I am of opinion that the defendant is liable in solido, and must account to the plaintiff company for the whole of the secret profit realized by Lewisohn and himself, and not merely for the part which he himself actually received. Lewisohn and he were acting in the formation and execution of the scheme together and in concert. Each of them was doing his part to carry out a joint scheme, which was intended to inure to the advantage of both. The control exercised by them over the plaintiff company was a joint control, and was exercised by each for the benefit of both. A proper disclosure of the real facts by either would have frustrated the schemes of both; they both acted together in pursuance of a common design, and for the profit of both. The equitable tort of which the plaintiff complains was the act of both; and they must be held responsible for it both jointly and severally.

In the other suit, that numbered 8,098, the outside properties conveyed by Keyser to Lewisohn for the benefit of himself and the defendant, and then turned over to the plaintiff in return for 30,000 shares of stock, were acquired by them really for nothing. They were thrown in as a mere make-weight in the purchases made by Lewisohn and the defendant from Keyser and the Simpson estate. It cannot be said that they were of no value; nor can I find on the evi-

67 dence exctly what their value was. But I am satisfied on the evidence that this value could not have exceeded the sum of $50,000. The plaintiff seeks in the first instance to rescind this transaction, and, upon reconveying to the defendant these outside properties, to have him ordered to return to it the 30,000 shares issued therefor. But I think that the situation of the parties has so far changed that this ought not now to be permitted. The properties themselves have not been worked; and are in the same condition as when conveyed to the plaintiff. But substantially all the capital stock of the plaintiff company has been transferred to another company, the Old Dominion Company of Maine, a holding company; the defendant disposed of his stock some time before the suit was brought, has not the 30,000 shares to surrender, and apparently could not procure them in the market. He ought not to be required to buy them of the holding company at whatever price that company might choose to fix. Moreover, since these transactions the plaintiff company has increased its capital stock to 200,000 shares, of the amount at par of $5,000,000, and has bought new and additional mining properties, the value and profitableness of which have not been shown. 30,000 shares out of 200,000 representing a larger number of mines cannot be said to be the same thing as the same number of shares out of 150,000 shares representing a smaller number of mines. Accordingly I do not think that the plaintiff can now have this transaction rescinded. But as the shares issued were then of the value of at least $750,000, while the properties received for them were worth less than $50,000, the plaintiff has sustained damages in this transaction of not less than $700,000, of which $382,900 went to the advantage of the defendant, and $317,100 to that of Lewisohn; and for the reasons already stated as to the other transaction, I think that the defendant is liable for the whole $700,000.

68 It has been claimed that the agreements made at the directors' meeting of July 11, 1895, are governed by the law of New York. That meeting was held in New York city, and the proposals were made and accepted there. The plaintiff is a New Jersey corporation, and was to have places of business also in Arizona, New York and Massachusetts. I find that it was the intention of the parties that these agreements should be carried out and consummated by the delivery of the deeds and the issue of certificates of stock in Massachusetts, where it was intended that the offices of the company should be, and where they were, established, in Boston, and where in fact they were so carried out. It was intended that the business of the company, outside the actual mining and smelting operations, which were to be conducted in Arizona, should be carried on in Massachusetts; and this was done. I rule on these findings that the agreements in question are governed by the law of Massachusetts. If however they are governed by the law of New York, then I find that the law of New York applicable to the case upon the facts which I have found, does not differ from the law of Massachusetts.

As to the claim that the transactions in question have been ratified and acquiesced in by the stockholders of the plaintiff company, I find that at a meeting of the directors of the plaintiff company, held at Boston September 18, 1895, it was voted that 100,000 shares of the company's full paid stock be issued to Philip E. Dumaresq, and 30,000 shares to the defendant and Lewisohn; and this was done. The 100,000 shares were for the property of the Baltimore company, and Dumaresq took them as the nominee for the benefit and subject to the orders of the defendant and Lewisohn. The 30,000
69 shares were for the outside propeties. At the end of the records of this meeting, which had been attended only by five directors, all the directors signed on the record of the company a statement that all the action taken by the directors at that meeting was confirmed and approved of in all respects; and the following statement was then appended:

"The undersigned, stockholders of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co., do hereby approve of the action of the Directors shown by the above record of meeting held on the 18th day of September, 1895."

This was signed by the defendant and Lewisohn, purporting to represent 30,000 shares; by Dumaresq, 100,000 shares; and by Thomas Nelson, Treasurer, 20,000 shares, being the total authorized capital of the company. The Dumaresq shares, as already stated, were held for and controlled by the defendant and Lewisohn. Thomas Nelson was treasurer of the defendant company, and the 20,000 shares which he claimed to represent were the stock which was to be issued to independent subscribers for a working capital as already stated, and were still the property of the corporation itself; and Nelson had no right to sign for them. This action, like everything else in the conduct of the company at, and for some years after, that time, was taken at the dictation of the defendant and Lewisohn, in the manner and for the purpose already stated.

On June 15, 1899, a special meeting of the stockholders was held, having been duly called "to consider and act upon the question of increasing the capital stock of the corporation." At this meeting a majority in interest of the stockholders were represented, all of them by proxies running to Stone, King, Sheehan and Dumaresq. These men were controlled by the defendant and Lewisohn. At the meeting, after transacting the business for which the meeting had 70 been called, it was voted: "That all acts, matters and things which have been entered into or performed by the board of directors are hereby approved, ratified and confirmed." The terms of the proxies held by the four men who passed this vote did not appear. Neither the stockholders nor the company itself had gained any knowledge of the matters hereinbefore stated as to the transactions in question.

On April 3, 1901, an annual meeting of the stockholders of the plaintiff company was held, at which were present in person two stockholders, representing together 1,700 shares; Dumaresq, representing by proxy 85,200 shares; and three other proxies, representing together 4,563 shares. The terms of none of the proxies appeared.

Dunaresq was still under the control of the defendant. At this meeting, it was by vote "Resolved, that all acts, matters and things entered into and performed by the officers and directors of this company since the organization of this company be and they hereby are fully and in all respects ratified, confirmed and approved." At this meeting the defendant as president of the company had presented a report in which he stated the net profits of the company at a greatly exaggerated amount; and at this time neither the corporation nor the subscribers to the 20,000 shares of stock, nor the other stockholders outside of a few who were in the confidence and under the control and acting in the interest of the defendant and Lewisohn, had learned or knew of the transactions hereinbefore set forth. Full reports of these meetings and of the other meetings of the directors and of the stockholders were in evidence. The very great majority of the stockholders, including both those who took their shares directly from the corporation and those who acquired their stock as mem-
71 bers of the defendant's syndicate, never except as already stated consented to or, until after April, 1902, knew of the operations by means of which the defendant and Lewisohn acquired their 50,000 shares as a secret profit. They had not, until after that date, knowledge of or access to the books or records of the corporation from which some of these operations might have been and afterwards were discovered.

Upon these facts, I rule that these actions are not barred by the acquiescence or ratification of the stockholders of the plaintiff company.

As to laches and the statute of limitations, it appeared that the defendant Lewisohn or the defendant alone, remained in full control of the plaintiff company until April, 1902. The working of the mines had yielded but very scanty profits, and no dividends. At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the company in 1902, a new board of officers was elected. They at once began investigations, learned many of the facts without any unnecessary delay, and thereupon promptly brought these suits. I rule that upon these facts the bills are not barred by laches or by the operation of the statute of limitations.

Of the special findings which the plaintiff has asked me to make, I refuse the one marked D, and make the others. I place on file the request for such special findings. As I have stated my rulings so far as they seem to me material, I have not stated the requests for rulings in detail. So far as not stated to have been given, they may be treated as refused.

In No. 8,098, a decree is to be entered that the defendant pay to the plaintiff the sum of $700,000 with interest from September 18, 1895. In No. 8,099, that the defendant pay to the plaintiff the sum of $480,000, (being the sum of $500,000 less $20,000 allowed 72 for legitimate expenses,) with interest from the same date.

HENRY N. SHELDON,
J. S. J. C.

A.

Memorandum of Agreement Between Frank E. Simpson of Framingham, Massachusetts, and William Butler of Boston, Massachusetts, for Themselves and the Other Executors of Michael H. Simpson, Parties of the First Part, and J. Morris Meredith of Boston, Massachusetts, Party of the Second Part, Made at New York This Fourth Day of May, Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-five.

The Old Dominion Copper Company is a corporation organized under the laws of Maryland, having a capital of five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) divided into twenty-five thousand (25,000) shares of twenty (20) dollars each and owns certain property in Arizona known as the Old Dominion mine, which has been worked for some years, and other property in Arizona and elsewhere. The estate of Michael H. Simpson is the owner of seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17,857) shares of the capital stock of said company and is desirous of selling the same. The property owned by the company consists of mines, mining rights, smelting furnaces, buildings, mining tools and other appurtenances; also ores in dump and in process and in the furnaces; also pig or ingot copper and cash and certain notes receivable and amounts due.

Mr. Meredith is desirous of buying the seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty seven (17,857) shares of the capital stock owned by the said Simpson estate.

Now, therefore, in consideration of two thousand dollars paid to the parties of the first part by the said Meredith, the parties of the first part agree with the said Meredith, his executors, administrators and assigns as follows:

73

First. The said parties of the first part agree to sell, transfer and deliver to the said Meredith seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty seven (17,857) shares of the capital stock of the said Old Dominion Copper Company at and for the price of seven hundred and fourteen thousand two hundred and eighty five dollars ($714,285) and an additional sum not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($250,000), such additional sum to be equal to the value of five sevenths of the pig or ingot copper and of the cash and notes receivable and amounts due which shall constitute part of its assets when the first payment on account of said sale shall have been made as hereinafter provided and which are hereinafter called surplus earnings.

Second. Payments for said stock are to be made as follows: One hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) on the deposit of the said capital stock endorsed in blank with the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston on or before the twenty eighth day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five, said stock to be held by said trust company in trust to secure to the said parties of the first part the balance of the said payments. The balance of said seven hundred and fourteen thousand two hundred and eighty five dollars ($714,285), namely, six hundred and fourteen thousand two hundred and eighty five dollars ($614,285) shall be evidenced by three notes made by the said Meredith or his assigns, of equal amount each, namely, for two hundred and four thousand seven hundred and sixty one dollars and sixty six cents ($204,761.66), bearing interest at the rate of five per cent per annum and payable respectively in sixty, ninety and one hundred and twenty days from the date of the deposit of said stock, said stock to be held as security for the payment of said notes and the said notes also have an endorsement satisfactory 74 to the said parties of the first part.

Third. It is understand and agreed that the payment of any or all of said notes may be anticipated by the said Meredith with interest down to the date of payment, and the stock shall be delivered to the said Meredith when all of the said notes are paid, and the said parties of the first part will try in all practicable ways to cause such steps to be taken that whenever the first of said notes shall have been paid, the majority of the board of directors of said Old Dominion Copper Company shall be persons satisfactory to said Meredith or his assigns, and that the president or other officers of said company and the superintendent of said mine shall be persons satisfactory to the said Meredith or his assigns.

Fourth. It is further agreed that the value of the five sevenths of said surplus earnings shall be determined as follows: As soon as practicable and prior to the fourteenth day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five the parties of the first part will give to the said Meredith a written memorandum showing in detail said surplus assets, and if the said Meredith purchases the said seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty seven (17,857) shares of the capital stock, such of the said surplus assets as remain shall either be retained by the company and five sevenths of the value thereof be paid by said Meredith to the parties of the first part or shall be divided in kind pro rata to the said parties of the first part and to the holders of the remainder of the capital stock of said company.

Fifth. The said parties of the first part guarantee and agree that the said mining company and its property is or will be at the time of said [sic.] of said stock free from all debts, claims, liens or mortgages, and that there are no outstanding contracts between it
75 and any other person or corporation except as stated in the list thereof to be furnished to the said Meredith on or before the fourteenth day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five.

Sixth. It is also agreed that at the time of depositing said seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty seven (17,857) shares of stock as above provided and paying said one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) said Meredith shall give a good and satisfactory guarantee to the said parties of the first part that at any time within sixty days thereafter on ten days' notice and tender he will take and pay for at the same pro rata price and on the same general terms and conditions as hereinbefore provided any part or all of the remainder of the capital stock of said company.

Seventh. Said parties of the first part give to said Meredith the option until and during the twenty eighth day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five to purchase said shares of stock on the terms herein set forth and agree that meanwhile and until that time said Meredith shall have every facility by himself or by his assigns to examine the property of said company and its title thereto.

Eighth. It is understood and agreed that the two thousand dollars ($2000) paid on the signing of this agreement shall form part of the first one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) to be paid thereunder.

Ninth. It is understood and agreed that the foregoing agreement binds the estate of Michael H. Simpson and is for the benefit of the executors, administrators and assigns of the said Meredith.

In Witness Whereof the parties hereto have set their hands and seals — day of —— eighteen hundred and ninety five.

76 I, Lucius W. Smith of Boston, Massachusetts, one of the executors of Michael H. Simpson, for value received do hereby approve, ratify and make the agreement hereinbefore made by Frank E. Simpson and William Butler for themselves and other executors of Michael H. Simpson with J. Morris Meredith.

(NOTE.—The following is written in ink on the margin of the first page of this agreement.)

"Received from Leonard Lewisohn, assignee of J. Morris Meredith, one hundred thousand dollars, being the payment due this date under the within agreement on the deposit with the Old Colony Trust Co. of 17,857 shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Company.

(Signed) WILLIAM BUTLER,
For Self and Co-executor of Thos. C. Simpson's Estate of M. H. Simpson.

Boston, May 28, 1895."

B.

William Keyser of Baltimore and associates are the owners of seven thousand one hundred and forty three shares of twenty dollars each of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City. Leonard Lewisohn and associates have already bought seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty seven shares of the capital stock of the said company from the estate of Michael H. Simpson, and Lewisohn and associates are desirous of buying the other seven thousand one hundred and forty three shares and Keyser and associates and Lewisohn and associates have agreed together as follows:

Keyser and associates agree to sell their shares of stock for 77 two hundred and eighty five thousand seven hundred and fifteen dollars, forty thousand dollars of which shall be payable on Thursday the twentieth day of June, and the balance of the payments shall be made by three promissory notes, each for eighty one thousand nine hundred and five dollars bearing interest at five per cent from the twenty eighth day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five, and running respectively sixty, ninety and one hundred and twenty days from that date. The payments of any or all of these notes may be anticipated, and on the payment of the first note Keyser and associates agree to do everything practicable to turn over to Lewisohn and associates the board of directors and the absolute management of the company.

The stock is to be deposited with the Old Colony Trust Company in Boston as security for the parties here and for the payment of the notes, the general understanding being that this sale is made in pursuance of and in general accordance with the agreement made between Frank E. Simpson and others representing the estate of Michael H. Simpson and J. Morris Meredith for himself, dated the first day of May eighteen hundred and ninety five, Lewisohn and associates having become the assignees of the rights of said Meredith under said contract.

It is further understood that so far as this particular sale is concerned of the seven thousand one hundred and forty three shares Lewisohn and associates are to protect Keyser and associates from any claim for commissions by J. Morris Meredith, the understanding being that Keyser and associates are to receive their agreed price net.

There are certain mines in Arizona near the property of the Old Dominion Copper Company which are known as the Old Dominion mine, the Keystone mine and the Chicago and New York 78 mine. Those mining properties now stand in the name of William Keyser, but he states that he is only interested to the extent of one-half thereof, and that Michael H. Simpson's estate is the owner of the other half thereof, and Mr. Keyser agrees that in consideration of the purchase of the stock hereinbefore arranged for, he will transfer, deliver and assign to Leonard Lewisohn or to his order all his interest in the said mines without any additional consideration than the purchase of the stock herein provided for.

Keyser and associates agree to guarantee to Lewisohn and associates that they will hold them and the Old Dominion Copper Company harmless from all debts, claims, liens or mortgages or outstanding contracts existing between it and any other person or corporation as of May twenty-eight. It is understood that in this matter William Keyser represents himself and all associates, and that payments may be made to him and the note made payable to his order.

Baltimore, June 13th, 1895.

WILLIAM KEYSER.

Witness:
N. S. WHEAT.

Received June 20th, 1895, of Leonard Lewisohn & associates one hundred & twenty two thousand one hundred & 66/100 dollars and two notes of eighty one thousand nine hundred and five dollars each in accordance with the foregoing agreement, said money and notes having been paid to the Old Colony Trust Co., Boston, for my account.

WM. KEYSER.
P. P. R. BRENT KEYSER.

C.

Whereas A. S. Bigelow has contracted to purchase eighty-nine hundred and twenty-eight (8928) shares of the stock of the 79 Old Dominion Copper Company, a Corporation organized under the laws of Maryland, and owning property in Arizona, at Forty dollars ($40) per share, or thereabouts, the undersigned hereby agree to take the number of shares set opposite their respective names and pay for the same at the rate of Forty dollars ($40) per share; the said stock to remain in the hands of A. S. Bigelow, and the management of the property to be left with him.

Payments to be made as follows:

May 27th, 1895, fourteen per cent (14%).

July 26th, 1895, Twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent (28 2/3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

August 25th, 1895, Twenty-eight and two thirds per cent (28 2/3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

September 24, 1895, Twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent (28 2/3%) and interest at 5% from date of first payment.

The conditions, covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding on the substitutes, successors, heirs, representatives and assigns of the respective subscribers hereto.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and opposite thereto the amounts of our subscriptions respectively, this 22d day of May, A. D. 1895.

MATTHEW LUCE,	$100,000
A. S. BIGELOW,	$50,000
J. A. CORAM,	$100,000
HENRY M. WHITNEY,	$50,000
J. MORRIS MEREDITH,	$25,000
	(in pencil)
THOMAS NELSON,	$32,142.50
(in pencil)	$357,142.50

80 D.

We the undersigned propose to form a syndicate to be called the Old Dominion Syndicate.

And we hereby agree to pay to A. S. Bigelow the sums set against our respective names.

Subscriptions to this syndicate shall be payable as follows:

May 27, 1895, fourteen per cent (14 per cent).

July 26, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent (28 2/3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

August 25, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent (28 2/3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

Sept. 24, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds per cent (28 2/3 per cent) and interest at five per cent from date of first payment.

It is expressly agreed and understood that each subscriber hereto acts for himself alone and that the relation of partners shall not exist or be deemed to exist between the subscribers hereto by virtue hereof.

The conditions, covenants and agreements herein contained shall be binding on the substitutes, successors, heirs, representatives and assigns of the respective subscribers hereto.

In witness whereof we have hereunto set our hands and opposite thereto the amounts of our subscriptions respectively this twenty-first day of May, A. D. 1895.

CHARLES J. HODGE.	Ten thousand dollars,	$10,000.
D. L. DEMMON.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
HENRY T. COE.	Six thousand dollars.	6,000.
By S. B. CAPEN.
C. H. PALMER,	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
81
JAMES S. CUMSTON AND WILLIAM CUMSTON.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
By S. W. RICHARDSON.
STEPHEN M. CROSBY.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
SAMUEL N. BROWN.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
GEORGE H. BALL.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
H. H. STEVENS,	Five thousand dollars,	5,000.
A. S. MALTMAN.	Ten thousand dollars,	10,000.
By J. A. CORAM, Atty.
		$91,000
J. A. CORAM,	Nine thousand dollars,	9,000
		$100,000

MEMO.—See other paper.

E.

Minutes of a Meeting of the Directors, Duly Called, Held at the Office of Lewisohn Brothers, at 81 Fulton Street, in the City of New York, on the Eleventh Day of July, 1895, at 12 O'clock Noon.

* * * * * * *

"Mr. Evarts presented and read a proposition from 'The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City' as follows:

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey.

The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland being the owner of certain mines and mining properties at Globe in the Territory of Arizona described in the annexed Schedule and of machinery, lumber, wood, tools, implements and other personal property for use for and in connection with the operation and maintenance thereof hereby makes the following proposition: To convey, assign and transfer all its property, both real and personal of every kind and nature whatsoever and wheresoever situated by good and sufficient deeds and instruments properly executed so as to confer absolute title thereto to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company upon receiving from said Company one hundred thousand shares of its capital stock to be issued to said Old Dominion Copper Company or to its nominees.

It being understood that the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company shall assume all obligations of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City incurred since the first day of June 1895, and shall be entitled to all earnings and profits of said Company since that date.

July eleventh 1895.

A. S. BIGELOW,
President.

A. W. EVARTS, Secretary."

82 F.

* * * * * * *

"Whereupon Mr. Lewisohn moved and Mr. Evarts seconded the adoption of the following resolutions:—

"Whereas The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City has made and submitted a proposition to convey all of its property to this Company which has just been presented and read; and

Whereas it is reported and appears that such property is reasonably and fairly worth the par value of the stock proposed to be paid and issued and received therefor,

Resolved: that said proposition be and the same is hereby accepted and that this Company do purchase and acquire all said property upon the terms contained in said proposition and in payment therefor issue one hundred thousand shares of its capital stock to said The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City or to its nominees, all such stock to be full paid and not subject to assessment: and

Resolved that Messrs. Bigelow and Nelson be appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details of such purchase and issue of stock, which were thereupon duly adopted."

G.

"Mr. Lewisohn presented and read a written proposition as follows:

"To the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company:

I hereby offer to convey the following described property now owned and held by me upon receiving thirty thousand shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company to be issued to me or to my nominees:

1st. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883 in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 267, Lot No. 45, situated in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

2nd. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 268, Lot No. 46 in Globe Mining District, in Gila County, Arizona.

3rd. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 269, Lot No. 51 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

4th. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 384, Lot No. 54 in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

5th. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company. Deed recorded in Book 1 of Deeds to Real Estate at page 126 & 127 in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land.

83

New York, July 11th, 1895.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

Please issue said 30,000 shares of stock to Mr. A. S. Bigelow & myself.

LEONARD LEWISOHN."

II.

"Whereupon Mr. Evarts moved and Mr. Buffum seconded the adoption of the following resolutions:

"Whereas Mr. Leonard Lewisohn of the City of New York has made and submitted a proposition to convey certain mining properties in Arizona to this Company which has just been presented and read: and

Whereas it is reported and appears that such properties are reasonably and fairly worth the par value of the stock proposed to be paid and issued and received therefor:

Resolved that said proposition be and the same is hereby accepted and that this Company do purchase and acquire said properties upon the terms contained in said proposition and in payment therefor issue thirty thousand shares of its capital stock to said Leonard Lewisohn or to his nominees all such stock to be full paid and not subject to assessment: and

Resolved that Messrs. Bigelow and Nelson be appointed a Committee to supervise and carry out the details of such purchase and issue of stock, which were thereupon duly adopted."

And on the tenth day of said December, the following Final Decree was entered by the Court to wit:

Final Decree.

This cause came on to be further heard this tenth day of December, 1907, for the entry of a final decree, and was argued by counsel for both parties, and was considered by the Court, and upon consideration thereof it was and hereby is Ordered, adjudged and decreed that the complainant the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company recover of the respondent Albert S. Bigelow the sum of seven hundred thousand dollars ($700,000) and interest thereon from September 18, 1895, amounting to five hundred and thirteen thousand five hundred and sixty-six and 67/100 dollars ($513,566.67),—being the total 84 sum of one million two hundred and thirteen thousand five hundred and sixty-six and 67/100 dollars ($1,213,566.67), and costs taxed by the clerk at twenty six dollars and sixty six cents ($26.66); and that execution issue for said total sum and costs in common form in favor of said Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company against said Albert S. Bigelow.

By the Court:

WALTER F. FREDERICK,
Ass't Clerk.

December 10, 1907.

And on the twenty fourth day of said December, the plaintiff appealed from the Final Decree, the claim of appeal being in the words following, to wit:

Claim of Appeal.

Now the complainant appeals to the Full Court from the final decree entered in this case on December 10, 1907, by reason of the fact that the amount of said final decree should have been larger.

By Its Attorneys, BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

And on the sixth day of January, A. D. 1908, the defendant appealed from the Final Decree, the claim of appeal being in the words following, to wit:

Respondent's Claim of Appeal.

And now comes the respondent in the above entitled cause and appeals to the full Court from the final Decree entered therein 85 on December 10th, 1907.

ALBERT S. BIGELOW,
By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY,
J. W. FARLEY.

And on the sixth day of August, A. D. 1908, the plaintiff filed his petition for injunction and attachment for contempt, the same being in the words following, to wit:

Petition for Injunction and Attachment for Contempt.

The complainant in the above entitled cases says as follows:

1. These cases were upon the printed list of cases for argument before the Full Bench of this court at its sitting beginning on January 6, 1908, and said cases were ready for argument at said sitting.

2. On January 6, 1908, the respondent, by his attorney, Alfred Hemenway, moved for a postponement of the cases in terms as follows:

"I have asked for a postponement of this case until March, so that the other cases the defendant appeals may be argued at the same time."

3. The court thereupon made this order, namely:

"The court is unanimously of the opinion that the case should be continued and assigned for the first case at the March sitting."

4. On February 26, 1908, six days prior to the beginning of said sitting, the respondent filed in the Court of Chancery of New Jersey a bill of complaint, a copy whereof is hereunto annexed
86 Exhibit 1, and made a part hereof. The record referred to in said bill of complaint as "Exhibit C" is a facsimile of the record of these cases in this Supreme Judicial Court, pages 1-78, both inclusive.

5. At this time the only office of the complainant corporation in New Jersey was in the city of Jersey City, which is the most accessible place in the state of New Jersey to persons going there from the state of Massachusetts. The solicitors of said Bigelow in said bill of complaint was John Griffin, Esquire, who is a resident of said City of Jersey City, and has his only office for the practice of law in said city.

6. Said Court of Chancery of New Jersey is presided over by the Chancellor of the State of New Jersey, and he has as his advisers seven Vice Chancellors. The respondent Bigelow presented his bill of complaint to the Vice Chancellor sitting—with one exception—more remotely than any other from said Jersey City, namely, in the city of Trenton.

7. Said Vice Chancellor directed the issuance of a restraining order and order of notice, a copy whereof is hereunto annexed marked Exhibit 2.

8. Notwithstanding the fact that said order of notice was issued on said day, and that the complainant corporation had an office in said Jersey City, no notice of the intention to file said bill or to apply for said order, or of the fact that said order had been granted, was served upon said corporation or anyone connected therewith until February 28, 1908, three working days prior to the time at which this case was assigned for argument before this Supreme Judicial Court.

9. The time when said notice was served did not permit of an adequate hearing before said Court of Chancery of New 87 Jersey, nor, except by the exertion of unusual effort, of an appearance before said court before the time set for the argument of these cases in this Supreme Judicial Court.

10. All the facts alleged as a basis for relief from said Court of Chancery of New Jersey had for a long time been well known to the respondent Bigelow. The suits of the complainant corporation against the Executors of the Estate of Leonard Lewisohn—which suits are referred to in said bill of complaint—were begun in the year 1903, and the fact that they were then begun was then well known to the respondent Bigelow. The decision of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York sustaining the demurrer of said executors was rendered February 24, 1905, was known to the respondent Bigelow on or about said date, and was referred to in the opinion of this Supreme Judicial Court filed June 19, 1905. The decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals in the suit against said executors was rendered on December 4, 1906, and was known to the respondent Bigelow on or about said date. There has been no change in the laws of the state of New Jersey favorable to the respondent Bigelow, and no announcements by the courts of said state concerning the laws thereof favorable to said Bigelow since the institution of these present suits in this Supreme Judicial Court.

11. The law of the state of New Jersey is no more favorable to the respondent Bigelow upon the facts appearing in these cases before this Supreme Judicial Court than the laws of this Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

12. When these suits were called for argument on March 3, 1908, before this Supreme Judicial Court, the complainant corporation was ready, able and willing to argue said cases, and had filed its briefs, but deemed it impossible to argue said cases with due 88 respect to the restraining order issued by said Court of Chancery of New Jersey.

13. On or about March 24, 1908, the respondent Bigelow caused to be introduced into the legislature of the state of New Jersey a bill, a copy whereof is hereunto annexed and marked Exhibit 3, and made a part hereof; and thereafter the respondent, by his attorneys, was actively engaged in seeking to obtain the passage of said bill; and no persons except the respondent and his attorneys and persons whom they interested in said bill sought the passage thereof; but said legislature refused to pass said bill and has adjourned for the year.

14. Said bill, so far as by its terms it purported to affect the rights of a corporation against an individual standing in the position occupied by the complainant corporation and the respondent Bigelow, would be contrary to the provisions of the Constitution of the United States,—which fact was well known to said Bigelow and the attorneys acting for him.

15. Said bill of complaint did not present to the Court of Chancery of New Jersey any question open to legitimate argument under the laws of said state, but on the contrary it is the law of said state, well established by decisions rendered therein, that where a suit is pending before a court having jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter of the nature of these suits before this Supreme Judicial Court, the courts of the state of New Jersey will not interfere by injunction against the parties with the prosecution of such suits before the courts already having jurisdiction of them. These announcements appear in numerous reported cases in said state, and among other in these cases, namely:

89 Home Ins. Co. v. Howell, 24 N. J. Eq. 238.
N. J. Zinc Co. v. Franklin Iron Co., 29 N. J. Eq. 422.
Title Guaranty & Trust Co. v. Trenton Potteries Co., 56 N. J. Eq. 441.
Shaw v. Frye, 69 N. J. Eq. 321.
Minchin v. Second Nat. Bank, 36 N. J. Eq. 436.

And the complainant corporation makes said decisions a part of this petition, and prays leave to refer thereto.

16. In accordance with the law of the state of New Jersey, the court first acquiring jurisdiction—as this Supreme Judicial Court has acquired jurisdiction—has the right to enjoin, and should enjoin, any interference with the prosecution of a suit before it, although said interference is in the form of a proceeding subsequently begun before another court.

17. The grounds assigned by said Bigelow for relief in the said bill of complaint in the Court of Chancery in New Jersey are not, according to the law of the state of New Jersey, grounds for relief therein, and said Court of Chancery of New Jersey has no greater power or jurisdiction than that of this Supreme Judicial Court to consider said various grounds for relief and to give to said grounds such weight as, in accordance with the principles of law and equity, should be given to them.

18. The complainant corporation promptly applied to the Chancellor of said Court of Chancery of New Jersey to dismiss said bill of complaint, and said motion and arguments thereon by the counsel for complainant and counsel for defendant were heard by said Chancellor on April 6, 1908.

19. According to the practice in the Court of Chancery of the State of New Jersey, said motion to dismiss is equivalent to a demurrer filed to a bill in equity in this Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

90 20. On August 4th, 1908, said Chancellor entered an order dismissing said bill of complaint.

21. Said order has the same effect under the practice of said court as a final decree dismissing a bill of complaint in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts after hearing upon demurrer, and also has the effect of dissolving any restraining order or preliminary injunction issued in said suit.

22. Under the law and practice of the state of New Jersey, the respondent Bigelow has the right to appeal from said order dismissing said bill of complaint, and will appeal from said order unless restrained therefrom by this Supreme Judicial Court.

23. An appeal from said order takes the case to the Court of Errors and Appeals of the State of New Jersey, which is the court of last resort of said state.

24. There is grave danger that the respondent will, unless restrained by this court, not only prosecute said appeal, but will also seek to obtain other restraining orders and injunctions, and bring other suits and proceedings, and seek other legislation,—all solely for the purpose of harassing the complainant corporation and preventing it from obtaining a final decision and decree in this Supreme Judicial Court in these pending cases.

25. None of the proceedings undertaken by the respondent Bigelow as aforesaid have presented any question for legitimate argument before a court; none of them have been brought for said purpose; on the contrary, they have been brought solely for the purpose of hampering the complainant corporation and preventing it from presenting these cases to this Supreme Judicial Court and obtaining the decision of this court thereon and final decrees therein; and the delay in bringing said suit and in notifying 91 the complainant corporation thereof and of the restraining order therein until within three working days prior to the time set for the argument of these cases in this Supreme Judicial Court, was solely for the purpose of permitting so short a time to elapse after said proceedings had been begun that it would be impossible to get these cases before this Supreme Judicial Court for hearing at its March sitting in 1908.

26. The conduct of the respondent in the respects aforesaid was in contempt of the power, dignity and authority of this Supreme Judicial Court.

27. Unless these cases are heard by this Supreme Judicial Court before its regular sitting in November, 1908, the purpose of the respondent to delay these cases until said sitting will have been accomplished.

28. The complainant corporation is without any security for the satisfaction of any final decrees that may be entered in these cases except an attachment bond in the sum of $500,000.

29. The complainant corporation makes the allegations contained in the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 12th, 18th, 20th, 27th and 28th paragraphs of its own knowledge, and those contained in the 5th, 6th, 10th, 11th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th, 17th, 19th, 21st, 22nd, 23rd, 24th, 25th and 26th paragraphs as it has made careful investigation thereof, been credibly informed, and verily believes that they are true.

Wherefore the complainant corporation prays as follows:

First. That the respondent Albert S. Bigelow, his servants, agents, attorneys and representatives, be forthwith enjoined from instituting any suits or prosecuting any suits, taking any appeals therein, prosecuting any appeals, or taking any other action, or attempting 92 to take any other action not in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts tending to prevent the plaintiff corporation from arguing the cases pending in said court, or to prevent the obtaining of final decrees therein, and the orderly and regular use of process thereon to secure satisfaction of said decrees, or in any manner tending to delay or impede the arguing of said cases in said court, the obtaining of final decrees therein, and the obtaining of satisfaction of said decrees.

Second. That said injunction be made permanent.

Third. That said Albert S. Bigelow be attached and held to answer for contempt of this court by reason of the proceedings set forth in this petition.

Fourth. That these cases be heard by this court forthwith.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY,
By Its Solicitors, BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Solicitors for Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
County of Hampden, ss:

AUGUST FIFTH, 1908.

I Edward F. McClennen being duly sworn depose and say that I am one of the solicitors for the complainant in this case, that I have read the foregoing petition and am familiar with the contents thereof and that as therein set forth the allegations thereof are true of my own knowledge except as to those matters alleged on information and belief and as to them I believe them to be true and this affidavit is not made by an officer of the complainant company, solely because the knowledge of all of said officers concerning said matters has come from reports, coming 93 through me or my firm, of the facts aforesaid and because it has been impossible, since the dismissal of said bill of complaint in New Jersey to obtain the presence of such officer.

EDWARD F. McCLENNEN

Subscribed and sworn to before me

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
Justice of the Peace.

EXHIBIT 1.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

To his Honor Mahlon Pitney, Chancellor of the State of New Jersey:

Humbly complaining, showeth unto your Honor your orator Albert S. Bigelow of Cohasset, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts:

(1) That prior to March, 1895, the Executors of the Will of Michael H. Simpson owned 17857 shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, a corporation of the State of Maryland (hereinafter called the Baltimore Company), and one William Keyser of Baltimore owned 7143 shares of the capital stock, making in all the sum of 25,000 shares, being the entire capital stock of said Baltimore Company, which shares were of the par value of $20 each, and the aggregate capitalization amounted to $500,000. That one Leonard Lewisohn of the City, County and State of New York, who had a great familiarity and experience with mining properties, and was an expert in their management and operation began to acquire the capital stock of said Baltimore 94 Company. That one J. Morris Meredith of Boston entered into negotiations with the Executors of the Will of said Simpson, to procure a contract to purchase the stock held by them, the final executed copy of said contract being prepared by and the legal work in connection therewith being done under the advice and direction of C. C. Beaman of the firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, which resulted finally in said Meredith procuring a contract to purchase the said shares from said Executors at $40 a share, amounting in the whole to $714,285, payable $100,000 in cash and the balance in notes at thirty, sixty and ninety days, bearing interest at the rate of 5% per annum, the shares of stock to be delivered, endorsed in blank, to the Old Colony Trust Company, in trust to hold as collateral security for the payment of the notes, and upon their payment to deliver the stock to said Meredith or his assigns; that there was paid by said Meredith, on account of his contract, the sum of $2,000, which sum was repaid to him by said Lewisohn, as so used for that purpose. That thereafter said Meredith assigned said contract to said Leonard Lewisohn. That on or before May 15th, 1895, said Lewisohn agreed that your orator was to receive one-half of his interest under said contract, and complainant paid to him $1,000, being one-half the sum paid by Meredith on the contract to purchase.

That on or about May 28th, 1895, your orator and said Lewisohn completed said contract and paid said executors $100,000, which they furnished in equal shares from their own moneys, and delivered notes, made by said Lewisohn and endorsed by your orator, for the sum of $614,285, payable in 30, 60 and 90 days, with interest at 5% per annum, and said stock, endorsed in blank, was delivered by said executors to the Old Colony Trust Company, to be held by it upon the trust aforesaid.

That on or about June 13, 1895, the owners of the remain-
95 ing two-sevenths of the stock of said Baltimore Company agreed to sell their shares of said capital stock namely 7143 shares, to said Lewisohn at $40 per share, or $285,715 in all, $40,000 in cash, payable June 20, 1895, and the balance in notes then to be delivered upon the same general conditions set out in the aforesaid contract between Meredith and the executors of Simpson's Will. That of this latter stock so agreed to be purchased your orator, by agreement with the said Lewisohn, was to receive two-thirds and the said Lewisohn to retain one-third thereof.

And your orator further shows that while the title to the mines, mining claims and lands, known as the Old Dominion Mines, the New York Mine, the Chicago Mine, the Keystone Mine, and a certain parcel of land, near the Bloody Tanks so-called, in Arizona, stood in the name of William Keyser, said Keyser held the same in trust for the sole benefit of the Baltimore Company; that these facts were not known to said Lewisohn or your orator at the time of the negotiations with the executors of Simpson, but the facts were learned during the negotiations for the purchase of the Keyser stock, and thereupon the said Lewisohn and your orator insisted that the said mines, mining claims and land so held should follow the ownership of the stock, which was agreed to by said Keyser and the executors of the Simpson Will and the Baltimore Company, and that the said Keyser should convey said mines, mining claims and lands to said Lewisohn upon payment of the notes given on account of the purchase price of the stock; that it was agreed between the said Lewisohn and your orator that when so conveyed to said Lewisohn he should hold the title to said mines, mining claims and land as property acquired under the contracts for the purchase of the stock.

96 (2) And your orator further shows unto your Honor that on or about the 20th day of June, 1895, the cash above provided to be paid to the said executors and the said Keyser having been paid, and the first notes of the said Lewisohn, endorsed by your orator, to the said executors and Keyser having been paid a meeting of the Baltimore Company was held, in which the control of said company was transferred to Lewisohn and your orator, and a new board of directors was chosen, consisting of Lewisohn, William Keyser, R. Brendt Keyser, George A. Polk, and your orator; that your orator was chosen president, and Allen W. Evarts, a member of the law firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman of New York City, secretary.

(3) And your orator further shows unto your Honor that he is thoroughly familiar with mining properties and investment and the management and operation thereof and is and has for many years been the President and Manager of various large mining properties which have been successfully and profitably operated; and both he and the said Lewisohn had a thorough investigation made of these mining properties, to ascertain their value, prior to the purchase; that this investigation was made by Messrs. Hyams and Colquhoun, experts in such matters, who reported that the minimum earnings of said properties should not be less than $350,000 annually, a copy of such report being hereto annexed and marked "A." That said mining properties had been worked by the Baltimore Company at a large profit for many years and justified the report of said experts, and your orator and Lewisohn continued the operations of the mines under and through the Baltimore Company until the defendant herein was formed as a corporation of the State of New Jersey and the said mines and property were conveyed to it and it undertook the operation thereof.

97 That the subsequent notes were paid to said executors and Keyser before maturity and before the formation of the defendant company and in addition to the purchase price paid for the shares of stock your orator and said Lewisohn expended a large amount of valuable time and rendered very valuable service in regard to said transactions.

(4) And your orator further shows that at the time of the making of the contracts for the purchase of said stock and the taking over of the control of the Baltimore Company, your orator and said Lewisohn had no definite plans with respect to the disposition of the stock of said Baltimore Company or the property thereof, and it was not until about July 1, 1895, or some time thereafter, that the formation of a new corporation was determined upon. That thereafter your orator and said Lewisohn consulted Messrs. Evarts, Choate and Beaman, eminent counsel of the city of New York, and fully advised them of the facts above stated and were advised by them throughout as to the legality of the subsequent acts of your orator and Lewisohn and all such acts were done under the advice of said counsel and with their approval as to the legality thereof, said counsel advising the formation of a New Jersey corporation; that your orator and said Lewisohn informed counsel that they would convey or cause to be conveyed to such new corporation all the property of said Baltimore Company, the said mines, mining claims and lands which said Keyser had agreed to convey to said Lewisohn, and furnish $500,000 for working capital, in return for all the capital stock of the corporation, which should be capitalized at $3,750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $25 each; and the details of the organization and the carrying out of said plan was left to counsel.

(5) And your orator further shows unto your Honor that on or about July 8, 1895, the Old Dominion Copper Mining and 98 Smelting Company was organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, with an authorized capital stock of $3,750,000, divided into 150,000 shares of the par value of $25 each, and the amount said company was to begin business with was $1000, divided into 40 shares of the par value of $25 each; a copy of the certificate of incorporation of which company is hereto annexed as part thereof. That said corporation held its first meeting on or about the 9th day of July, 1895, at which all the incorporators were present, and by-laws were adopted, and the first directors duly elected, viz.—Jesse Lewisohn, Allen W. Evarts, Edgar Buffum, Charles W. Welch, Sydney Riddlesdorffer, William V. Rowe, and William R. Montgomery. That the following officers were elected by said directors: Allen W. Evarts, president; Sydney Riddlesdorffer, vice-president; Jesse Lewisohn, treasurer, and Edgar Buffum, secretary.

(6) And your orator further shows unto your Honor that at a meeting of the directors of the defendant, held on July 11, 1895, Messrs. Montgomery, Rowe, Welch, Lewisohn and Riddlesdorffer resigned as directors, and as each one resigned another director was lawfully appointed in his stead, pursuant to the by-laws, with the result that the following persons then and there constituted the board of directors: Allen W. Evarts, Leonard Lewisohn, Henry M. Whitney, Joseph G. Ray, Thomas Nelson, Edgar Buffum and your orator.

(7) And your orator further shows that thereafter it was agreed between your orator and Lewisohn and the defendant company that your orator and Lewisohn should convey or cause to be conveyed to the defendant company, all the property of the Baltimore Company, including the mines, mining claims and land conveyed by said Keyser to said Lewisohn, and which then stood in the 99 name of said Lewisohn, and should furnish the defendant corporation with a working capital of $500,000 in cash, in consideration whereof the defendant corporation should issue to your orator and said Lewisohn, or their nominees, and to the nominees of said Baltimore Company (of which your orator and said Lewisohn owned the entire capital stock) its entire capital sotck of 150,000 shares.

(8) And your orator further shows that the transactions which thereafter took place, though in form separate, were in fact all in pursuance of the said agreement; that in form the transactions were separable as to the property held by the Baltimore Company, the said mines and mining claims and lands held by Lewisohn and the capital to be furnished by the said Lewisohn and your orator; but really the contract for the purchase and sale of all of said property and for the furnishing of said capital was an entire contract for an entire price, viz., the capital stock of 150,000 shares of the defendant corporation. That an offer was made by the Baltimore Company, through its proper officers, to the defendant company, to sell and convey substantially all the property of the Baltimore Company to the defendant company (excepting cash assets) for 100,000 shares of the capital stock of the defendant corporation, to be issued to the Baltimore Company or its nominees; that there was then at the same meeting presented the offer of Lewisohn to sell the real estate acquired by him as aforesaid for 30,000 shares of the capital stock of the defendant company, to be issued to him, or his nominees, which offer was accompanied with a request that the stock be issued to said Lewisohn and your orator. That said offers were unanimously accepted by the defendant company, and thereafter the said Baltimore Company requested that said 100,000 shares of capital
100 stock of the defendant company be issued to Philip K. Dumaresq.

(9) And your orator further shows that thereafter the said properties were conveyed by the Baltimore Company to the defendant company, and that the said Lewisohn conveyed to the defendant company the properties conveyed to him by Keyser, and having performed the obligation to furnish $500,000 for working capital, the said defendant company issued 150,000 shares of its capital stock to the following persons: to your orator, said Lewisohn, Philip K. Dumaresq, as the nominee of the Baltimore Company (the total capital stock whereof was owned by your orator and said Lewisohn), Thomas Nelson, acting for your orator, a Syndicate formed by your orator and said Lewisohn for the purpose of furnishing said $500,000; that said stock was issued in the following manner: 100,000 shares to Dumaresq, nominally on account of the property standing in the name of the Baltimore Company; 30,000 shares to your orator and Lewisohn, nominally on account of the mines, mining claims and land conveyed by Lewisohn to the Company; and 20,000 shares to sa. Nelson, nominally on account of the working capital of $500,000 so furnished by your orator and said Lewisohn, which said sum of $500,000 was actually procured by your orator and said Lewisohn through the sale of stock to their friends.

(10) And your orator further shows that the persons, holders and owners of the entire authorized capital stock of the defendant company, procured and consented to the issue of said entire capital stock as aforesaid as performance by the defendant company

101 of its part of the aforesaid agreement, and no person who was a stockholder at the time of the consummation of the transaction objected or dissented thereto, or therefrom, but on the contrary all and every one assented, ratified and approved formally and on the books of record of the New Jersey Company, such assent, ratification and approval being with full and complete knowledge of all the facts. That subsequent shareholders acquired their shares, not from the defendant company, but from the owners of said shares, viz., your orator and said Lewisohn; that none of said shares were offered to the public by prospectus, or otherwise, by or on behalf of the defendant corporation, but were disposed of to various persons by your orator and said Lewisohn, under contracts of sale which they took and received wholly on their own account as the owners of said shares.

(11) And your orator further shows that prior to the commencement of the suit in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts for the County of Suffolk, hereinafter stated, no claim was made by the Baltimore Company, the defendant company, or any of the stockholders of the defendant company that the property which was conveyed and turned over to the defendant company, in consideration of the issue of 130,000 shares of the capital stock of the defendant company, was not worth the par value of said stock in cash. And your orator charges and insists the truth to be that the property so turned over by your orator and the said Lewisohn and the Baltimore Company to the defendant company was and still is worth a much greater sum than $3,250,000, and has been worth more than said sum continuously since the date of said sale; that while there have been some fluctuations in the prices paid for stock sold, due to the conditions of the market, said stock sold, in Boston, in September 1907, at $100 per share, being four times its par value, and 102 in February 1907, for $106 per share, being more than four times its par value; and that your orator believes that said stock cannot be purchased at the present time at $100 a share.

(12) And your orator further shows unto your Honor that at the present time about 140,000 shares of the capital stock of the defendant company are owned by a corporation of the State of Maine, known as the Old Dominion Mining Company, as a holding corporation, which company has little other property of known value; that the par value of the stock of said Maine Company is $25 a share; that its issued and outstanding capital stock is $7,200,000, and its stock is selling in the market from $35 to $40 a share, which is accounted for by the fact that the stock of the defendant company has been, and still is, worth at least four times its par value.

(13) And your orator further shows to your Honor that the various transactions, matters and contracts touching and concerning the purchase of the property aforesaid and the issuance of the stock aforesaid, were duly ratified by the stockholders of the defendant company at meetings held on April 5, 1899, June 15, 1899, and April 3, 1901, at none of which times did your orator and said Lewisohn, or either of them, control the said defendant Company or the action of its stockholders.

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that the defendant company, treating the contracts of sale from the Baltimore company and the said Lewisohn to the defendant company and the issue of the 100,000 shares and the 30,000 shares, as afore-said, as separable and distinct contracts, filed two separate bills against your orator, in the Supreme Judicial Court of Suffolk County, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in equity, the prayers of which bills are as follows:

103 (a) As to the 30,000 share transaction:

1. "That this honorable court will declare said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the plaintiff, as hereinbefore set forth, rescinded, and will direct this plaintiff to execute such reconveyance thereof, if any, to such person as this honorable court shall think proper.

2. "That said defendant be required to return to the plaintiff the consideration paid by this plaintiff for said conveyance, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or if, and so far as, said shares are no longer in his control, to account to the plaintiff therefor.

3. "In the alternative in case this honorable court shall deem that the plaintiff has not rescinded, and is not entitled to rescind, said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Lewisohn to the plaintiff as above set forth, that this honorable court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the plaintiff by reason of the sale of said parcels of real estate as above set forth, and will by its decree establish the right of the plaintiff to recover said amount, and order said defendant to pay said amount to this plaintiff.

4. "For such other relief as this honorable court shall seem meet.

(b) As to the 100,000 share transaction:

1. "That said defendant be required to account to the plaintiff for all shares of stock in the plaintiff corporation other than the thirty thousand (30,000) shares issued to him and said Lewisohn, ostensibly as consideration for the conveyance by said Lewisohn of said parcels of real estate, to wit, for all of said one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of stock orignally issued to said Philip K. Dumaresq as hereinbefore set forth, which were received by said defendant or by said Lewisohn, or by any other person or persons as profit in the transaction set forth in the foregoing bill of complaint in connection with the promotion of the organization of the plaintiff corporation.

2. "In the alternative that the damages suffered by the plaintiff corporation from the acts of the defendant above complained of, other than the sale to the plaintiff of said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Lewisohn, be ascertained, and that the defendant be ordered to pay to the plaintiff the amount so ascertained.

3. "For such other relief as to this honorable court shall seem meet."

Copies of which bills and answers and other documents forming the record (excluding the testimony) are hereto annexed as part thereof Marked "C".

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that he is advised by counsel that said bills were, in effect, filed to recover from your orator, as one of the promoters of said defendant company, undisclosed profits made by them in the formation of said corporation and the turning over of said property to the defendant 104 company at a much greater sum than they paid for the same. That upon the filing of said bills your orator filed a demurrer in the 30,000 share suit, and answered in the 100,000 share suit; that said demurrer was argued before the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and in the opinion of said court (which will be found in 188 Mass. 315) the demurrer was overruled, and your orator then answered in said suit, and the causes proceeded to trial. That both said causes were heard together before his Honor Henry N. Sheldon, Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts sitting within and for the County of Suffolk; that said Justice decided said causes in favor of the defendant company and against your orator, in the 100,000 share suit for $832,160, principal and interest, with costs of suit, and in the 30,000 share suit gave judgment for $1,213,566.67, with costs of suit, making in all the sum of $2,045,726.67; that decrees were accordingly entered in said two suits, on the 10th day of December, 1907, and after the entry thereof both parties thereto appealed to the full bench of the Supreme Judicial Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the argument of said appeals is set for hearing on March 3rd next, which appeals, by both parties, your orator is advised by Massachusetts counsel, vacated said decrees.

And your orator further shows that after the commencement of the suits against your orator, the defendant Company likewise began two suits in equity, in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, against Frederick Lewisohn et al. executors of the last will and testament of said Leonard Lewisohn, who was then deceased; that the two bills filed against Lewisohn's executors were identical with the two bills filed against your orator and were predicated and founded upon the same identical 105 state of facts and transactions set out in the bills against your orator; to one of which bills, viz., the 30,000 share bill, the defendants demurred, and answered in the other, following the course of your orator in the Massachusetts suits; that the cause on demurrer was argued before his Honor Judge Lacombe, who filed an opinion (which may be found in 136 Fed Rep. 915) sustaining the demurrer and is as follows:

LACOMBE, Circuit Judge:

It was conceded by complainant upon the argument that the bill prayed no relief except rescission of a contract for the sale of certain mining rights and a parcel of real estate in Arizona. Irrespective of such concession, the court would be inclined so to construe the bill. Therefore the objection that it is multifarious cannot be sustained.

The demurrer asserts that the complainant has not by the bill stated such a case as entitled it to have such contract and sale rescinded. This sufficiently challenges the equity of the bill. The facts as averred in the bill are as follows: The deceased, Leonard Lewisohn, and one Albert S. Bigelow were the promoters of the complainant company, and caused it to be organized under the laws of New Jersey on July 8, 1895, by seven persons selected and employed for said purpose, none of whom had any actual interest in the corporation, or acted in the formation thereof other than as the representative and agent of the promoters. Forty shares were nominally subscribed and paid for by these persons, but, as in fact, all of said subscriptions were made for the benefit and at the request of Bigelow and Lewisohn, and each subscription was paid for by them. The company having been organized, elections for officers and directors ensued, as a result of which, on July 11, 1895, Bigelow and Lewisohn both became directors, and Bigelow the president of the Company. Prior to July 11th they had become the owners of several mining claims and a parcel of real estate in Arizona, which were worth on that day, as the bill alleges, not more than $5,000. On that day, at a directors' meeting attended by themselves and two of their dummy directors, they sold and conveyed to the corporation the said mining claims and real estate for 30,000 shares of the capital stock of the par value of $25 a share. Thereafter, at times not specified, additional shares of capital stock (to the amount of 20,000) were from time to time offered and sold to the public at par, to obtain working capital. The bill also alleges a similar sale, for stock, on July 11th, of a mine owned by the promoters, at an excessive valuation, but no relief is prayed as to that transaction. The prayer of the bill is that the sale of the mining claims and real estate be rescinded, the property reconveyed, and the shares of stock returned or accounting had therefor, or, in the alternative of rescision, that the court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the complainant, and decree therefor.

[106] Whether the contract for the sale of the real estate was voidable, so as to give the corporation the right to rescind or to demand damages, must be determined under the conditions which existed when it was made. Ordinarily, when a director or promoter contracts to sell property to his corporation, the corporation not being independently represented, it may rescind the contract, upon the theory, of course, that the relation between the parties is fiduciary, and that the other stockholders and subscribers to the stock are to be protected against an abuse of trust. But where there are no other stockholders nor subscribers, there is no one who is deceived, no stockholder or subscriber who is defrauded, since all the profit put into one pocket by the "faithless" directors is taken out of their other pocket as the sole stockholders. This principle is abundantly established by decisions controlling here, so it will be unnecessary to cite numerous authorities from other courts. In Foster v. Seymour (C. C.) 23 Fed. 65, which was decided in this court (Wallace, J.) the facts were very similar, except that the sale was for scrip, the stock not having yet been issued. The court said:

"There was no fraud on the corporation. At the time the scrip was exchanged for the mining property, the trustees were all there were of the corporation. There were no stockholders unless they were stockholders. What was done was done by the corporation: By the exchange the corporation got the mining property, and gave it back again to those from whom it got it, divided into 100,000 shares of the nominal value of $100 each."

And it held that whether or not a subsequent purchaser of stock could recover against those who had misled him, against the corporation or the trustees, "the corporation has no cause of action against the trustees." Subsequently the same question came before the Court of Appeals in this circuit (McCracken v. Robinson, 57 Fed. 375, 6 C. C. A. 400), where, as the court expressed it,

"When they entered into the contracts they owned the corporation and all its stock, and represented only themselves. While directors in fact, they were principals in name."

It was held that in such a case the rule prohibiting persons in a fiduciary relation from contracting for their own advantage in the name of their beneficiaries had no application.

This demurrer to the bill is well taken, and it is therefore unnecessary to discuss the special demurrer as to defect of parties. The bill is dismissed with costs.

and a final decree was entered thereon; that from said decree this defendant company appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, and said Court affirmed the decree of the Court below in sustaining the demurrer (the opinion may be found in 148 Fed. Rep. 1020) and is as follows:

107 The Bill prays for relief as follows:

First. That the sale of the mining claims to the complainant by Leonard Lewisohn—the defendants' testator—and Albert S. Bigelow—a citizen of Massachusetts and not a party to this action, be rescinded and the real estate reconveyed to the defendants upon receipt by the complainant of the consideration paid therefor.

Second. That defendants return to the complainant the consideration paid by complainant for said property, namely, 30,00- shares of its capital stock, or account therefor.

Third. That if the Court shall decide that the complainant is not entitled to rescind the sale of said real estate to it, then, and in that event, that the court ascertain the amount of damages sustained by complainant and direct the defendants asexecutors to pay the amount to complainant.

We are unable to perceive how this relief or any part thereof can be granted the complainant upon the facts alleged in the bill.

The fundamental difficulty with the bill is that it fails to state any facts showing that the complainant was in any way injured or defrauded by the transactions complained of. At the time of the transfer by Bigelow and Lewisohn to the company Bigelow and Lewisohn and their representatives owned the entire issue of stock of the corporation. The sale by them to the corporation was in effect a sale by them to Bigelow and Lewisohn. A corporation can only act through the human beings who compose it; it cannot be deceived or defrauded unless its stockholders and directors are deceived or defrauded. The corporation knew all that Bigelow and Lewisohn knew and no one of the original parties to the transfer was defrauded by the exchange of the stock controlled by Bigelow and Lewisohn for the real estate controlled by them.

It may be that such a large over-capitalization as is alleged in the bill might mislead and deceive careless and credulous purchasers of the stock, but we are not now dealing with the case of a stockholder alleging concealment, fraud and misrepresentation. The stockholders, apparently, have no complaint: at least they have not propounded any.

Indeed, it is not easy to see how a purchaser, who paid $25 per share, could be defrauded in view of the allegation of the bill that "The shares of this corporation so issued in payment for the property sold to it as aforesaid were at the time of the fair market value of twenty-five (25) dollars each, and continued for a long time thereafter to be of such or greater value." It is enough, however, that this is not a stockholders' action.

The subscribers for the 20,000 shares subsequently issued 108 were not deceived; they asked for no statement and received none; they got what they purchased and are not complainants here.

A protracted discussion is unnecessary for the reason that this court and the Circuit Court of the Southern District have decided the question adversely to the complainant's contention.

Foster v. Seymour (23 Fed. Rep. 65); McCracken v. Robinson (57 Id. 375).

To the same effect are the decisions of the New York Court of Appeals.

Barr v. N. Y. L. E. & W. R. Co. (125 N. Y. 263); Blum v. Whitney (185 N. Y. 232).

It is true that the Supreme Court of Massachusetts (188 Mass. 315) has taken a different view, but we feel constrained to adhere to the prior adjudication of this circuit.

The decree is affirmed with costs.

That thereupon the defendant company presented its petition to the Supreme Court of the United States for a writ of certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, alleging as a reason why said Court should take jurisdiction of the cause, that there was conflict between the decisions of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Second Circuit and the Circuit Court of Appeals of the Sixth Circuit and the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and that the questions involved were of great public importance; that thereupon the Supreme Court of the United States granted the petition and allowed the writ of certiorari.

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that the order of the decrees on the demurrers of your orator in the Massachusetts Court and of Lewisohn in the United States Circuit Court was as follows: (1) The United States Circuit Court sustained the Lewisohn demurrer; (2) The Supreme Court of Massachusetts overruled your orator's demurrer; and (3) The United States Circuit Court 109 of Appeals affirmed the judgment below sustaining the demurrer.

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that the total profit of your orator on the whole transaction was the sum of $151,000, but that in the decrees entered in Massachusetts said Court charged your orator not only with the sum which it conceived he would have been primarily liable for if Lewisohn had been a party to the suit and it had likewise been adjudged against him, but with the whole sum it conceived. That your orator and Lewisohn should return to the company as appears by Judge Sheldon's finding copy of which is hereto annexed and marked "C."

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that he is advised by New Jersey counsel (1) that under the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey your orator is not liable to respond to the defendant company in manner and form set out in said decrees, or otherwise; (2) that if your orator is liable for any sum such sum should not exceed the profit he personally realized on the transaction. (3) That the liability of your orator on the matters and facts set out in the bills filed in the Massachusetts Court is fixed and governed by the laws of our State, the decisions of our courts, and the policy of our State, and not by the laws, decisions and policies of other States; that the decision of the Massachusetts Court, in said suits, is contrary to the laws, decisions and policies of this State, and charges your orator with a liability not existing in this State. (4) That if the judgment of the Massachusetts Court sounds in tort, the judgment of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York likewise sounds in tort; and as the proceeding in the United States Circuit Court was instituted by the defend-110 ant company without the assent of your orator, and the decree entered therein, if affirmed by the United States Supreme Court, operates as an absolute discharge of the estate of said Lewisohn, it likewise operates as a discharge of the causes of action set out in the bills filed in Massachusetts as against your orator, the decrees therein not having been entered until after the final decree was entered in the United States Circuit Court on demurrrr and the decree on remittitur from the Circuit Court of Appeals had been entered. (5) That he is advised that said judgment of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York estopped the defendant company from further proceeding with its suits in Massachusetts. (6) That if the United States Supreme Court upholds the judgment of the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, and the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts should affirm the decree of its Court below, then your orator will be without remedy against the estate of said Lewisohn, because it was judicially determined, in the suits against said executors, that they were not liable.

And your orator further shows that in view of the fact that the defendant company is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New Jersey, that the matters in controversy between the defendant company and your orator, as well as their several rights and liabilities, arise under the laws of the State of New Jersey and should be decided in conformity with the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey, and in view of the fact that there is a conflict between the decisions of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, in suits where the pleadings are identically the same, and where the legal responsibility, if any, of the 111 estate of Lewisohn, for the acts complained of, is is at least as great, if not greater, than that of your orator, on the facts alleged in said bills, and the decision of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts is also in conflict with the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey, and charges your orator with a liability not existing under the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey, and thereby the defendant company has obtained an unconscionable and inequitable advantage over your orator, due solely to the selection of the court in which the proceedings were instituted, and may, if permitted to proceed with the prosecution of said cause in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, obtain a further unconscionable and inequitable advantage over your orator, by the said court following the doctrine theretofore enunciated in the decision of the cause on your orator's demurrer, wherein it refused to follow the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey, as well as the decision of the United States Circuit Court in the Lewisohn suit, this honorable court should assume jurisdiction of the controversy between the defendant company and your orator, to determine and fix the rights and liabilities of the defendant company, your orator and all parties to the controversy, in accordance with the laws and decisions of the State of New Jersey, and to prevent the manifest injustice and unconscionable and inequitable advantages which have heretofore been obtained in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, on the argument of said demurrer, being availed of by the defendant company, and the further manifest injustice and unconscionable and inequitable advantages which may be done, and which the defendant company may obtain, if it is permitted to proceed with the prosecution of the cause above stated, before the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, being the same court which 112 decided the cause on demurrer, which court is the court of last resort in said Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

And your orator further shows unto your Honor, that in said suits in Massachusetts your orator gave a surety bond or bonds in the sum of $500,000 to indemnify the defendant company; that the term of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts following the March term is the November term; that the case of the defendant company against the executors of Lewisohn now pending on certiorari in the Supreme Court of the United States, it is expected, will be argued during the month of March of this year, and it is practically sure that the cause will be decided by the United States Supreme Court prior to the November term of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, and that to restrain the defendant company from prosecuting its cause in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and from proceeding further in said suit, in Massachusetts, will do no injury whatsoever to the defendant company; whereas, in the situation as it now presents itself, if the cause is prosecuted in Massachusetts and the final decrees entered therein against your orator, your orator will be without remedy, and will suffer an irreparable injury.

And your orator further shows unto your Honor that it is the intention of said defendant company, unless restrained by the injunction or decree of this honorable court, to prosecute said causes before the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, on the third day of March next, or as soon thereafter as counsel can be heard, and to proceed therein, after which procedure the decisions of the court below can be affirmed and final decrees entered therein, without the intervention of the defendant; and that to permit such procedure of said causes places the defendant company beyond the control of 113 this honorable court, in that if the above court should decide in favor of the defendant company against your orator, it would thereby obtain an inequitable and unconscionable advantage against your orator, and your orator might be bound thereby and without remedy, even though the Supreme Court of the United States should, on the same subject matter and cause of action, enunciate a different rule to that found in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and declare that the defendant company was not entitled to the relief prayed for in its bills.

And your orator further shows that he submits himself to the jurisdiction of this honorable court, and is willing to submit himself to the jurisdiction of this honorable court, in any proceeding which may be brought by the defendant company against him, touching the subject matters set out in said bills in the Massachusetts suits, and to do and perform every act and thing required by this court, and to obey such decrees, and pay such sums of money, if any, as this court may make or direct in the premises.

And your orator further shows that the estate of said Lewisohn owns a large amount of property within the State of New Jersey and can, and he believes that said executors may, be brought within the jurisdiction of this honorable court, and that it is proper in the settlement of the matters in controversy that the estate of Lewisohn and your orator should be joined in the same suit, to the end that all the parties interested or who should be affected by the decrees, will be brought before this court, and the court, by its decree, may then and there settle once for all, all controversies existing between the parties.

And your orator further shows that in the suit against your orator in Massachusetts the said defendant company urged as an excuse for not making the executors of the estate of Lewisohn parties 114 to the suit, on the ground of non-residents, and stated in its bills as follows:

"Said Leonard Lewisohn died on March 5, 1902, and was at the time of his death a citizen and resident of the City, County and State of New York. The executors of the estate of said Lewisohn were also residents of said City, County and State and have been duly appointed by the courts of said State, but no executors or legal representatives of said Lewisohn have been appointed or are within this commonwealth, and there is no property within this commonwealth belonging to said estate which could be reached by any process, and it is impossible to get service within this commonwealth upon the executors of said Leonard Lewisohn."

That in the bills filed in the United States Circuit Court as aforesaid, the defendant company excused its failure to make your orator a party to said suit, alleging as follows:

"Said Bigelow is a citizen and resident of Boston, in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and cannot be served with process in this District or in the State of New York."

But by reason of the willingness of your orator to appear in a suit brought in the State of New Jersey, and the presence of property of the estate of Lewisohn within the State of New Jersey, jurisdiction can be obtained over all the parties concerned in the state of New Jersey.

And your orator further shows to your Honor that in view of the premises the determination of the controversies existing between the defendant Company and your orator and the Lewisohn estate should be and is properly cognizable before this Honorable Court to prevent a multiplicity of suits and to prevent injustice through technical conflicts in different jurisdictions, and to the end that a decision might ultimately be reached binding on all the parties in conformity with the spirit of the laws of the State of New Jersey, under whose laws said corporation was organized and the duties and obligations of the parties were created and exist.

That after the institution of the suits aforesaid certain in-115 terests owning or controlling about 100,000 out of the total 150,000 shares of the capital stock of the New Jersey Corporation, caused to be formed a Maine Company known as the Old Dominion Copper Company, and caused to be conveyed to such Maine Company at or about the time of its incorporation 100,804 shares of the capital stock of the New Jersey Company, and since such time have caused to be conveyed to the Maine Company further shares of the New Jersey Company to the amount of about 10,000 shares, and as a part of such conveyance and transfer and as a part of the plan of organization of said Maine Company, an agreement was entered into between the New Jersey Company and the Maine Company and one Charles Sumner Smith, Vice-President of the Maine Company and President of the New Jersey Company, and one D. Blakely Hoar, a partner or associate of counsel for the New Jersey Company in all four suits, providing that the Maine Company as a majority shareholder of the New Jersey Company should cause the New Jersey Company to realize upon these four suits against your orator and the Lewisohn estate and distribute the proceeds thereof, as in said agreement provided, a copy of which said agreement is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit F." Thereafter or substantially at the same time the said Smith and Hoar executed a trust deed in which they declared themselves to be Trustees of any fund obtained by virtue of the foregoing arrangement, and issued certificates of interest known as Old Dominion Trust Receipts, a copy of one of such trust receipts which is referred to in Wainwright's affidavit (as annexed) hereto annexed and marked "B." Such trust receipts are sold from time to time in the markets of Boston, New York and elsewhere, and the holders of such certificates are not in any substantial part the holders of the shares of the Maine Company or the holders of the shares of the New Jersey Company, and the complainant is ad-

116 vised and therefore alleges that the holders of the trust receipts are the persons ultimately entitled to the sums of money to be paid by the Maine Company to the respondents Smith and Hoar under the agreement aforesaid. The complainant is informed and believes that the voting power on the stock of the New Jersey Company held and owned by the Maine Company as aforesaid, has been as to the matters referred to in said agreement between the Maine Company and the said Smith and Hoar, transferred to the said Smith and Hoar, Trustees as aforesaid, who are not in that capacity shareholders in the New Jersey Company, and the prosecution of the claims and suits against Bigelow and Lewisohn is not being had with the object or purpose of benefiting the New Jersey Company, but for the purpose of realizing the largest sum possible on the trust certificates issued as aforesaid, so that the above trust receipts are simply evidences of the owners' interest in the law suits which the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company of New Jersey in name has brought against the Lewisohn Estate and your orator, and the buying and selling of such certificates constitutes the trading in a law suit and the proceeds of any recovery in any or all of the aforementioned four law suits will neither go to any persons who were originally interested in the New Jersey Company as stockholders, syndicate subscribers or in any other way whatsoever, nor will it go substantially as far as fourteen-fifteenths is concerned, to the New Jersey Company, but to persons who are entire strangers to the transactions but who have bought in purchasing such trust receipts as a speculative interest in law suits.

All which actings and doings of the said defendants are contrary to equity and good conscience, and tend to the manifest, wrong, injury and oppression of your orator in the premises.

117 In tender consideration whereof, and forasmuch as your orator is without adequate remedy in the premises, at and by the strict rules of the common law, and can only obtain relief in this Honorable Court where matters of this nature are properly cognizable and relievable.

To the end therefore, that the said Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company of New Jersey may, to the best and utmost of its knowledge, remembrance, information and belief (but without oath, the oath being waived), full, true and perfect answer make to all and singular the matters aforesaid, and that as fully and particularly as if the same were here repeated and they and every of them distinctly interrogated thereto, and that the said Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, its officers, servants, agents, attorneys, solicitors, counsel and employés, be by the injunction and decree of this Honorable Court perpetually restrained and enjoined from proceeding in any manner to enforce or establish its claims against your orator as stated in two bills of complaint in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts entitled, Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey and having a usual place of business at Boston in said County of Suffolk, against your orator, described as Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having his usual place of business in Boston, and from taking any further action or proceedings in said suits or otherwise, and from in any manner instituting proceedings and suits with respect to or touching the claims against your orator set out in said two bills filed as aforesaid, in any court or jurisdiction whatsoever excepting the courts of the State of New Jersey, 118 and that this court will take jurisdiction of the controversies alleged to exist between the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company and your orator and determine if any liability exists from your orator to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, and that if any liability is found the estate of said Leonard Lewisohn being made a party hereto, this Honorable Court will determine the respective rights of your orator and the said estate, and do equity between them whether by contribution or otherwise, and that your orator may have such further or other relief in the premises as the nature of the case may require, and as shall be agreeable to equity and good conscience.

May it please your Honor, the premises considered, to grant unto your orator not only the state's writ of injunction, issuing out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, to be directed to the said Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, its officers, servants, agents, attorneys, solicitors, counsel and employés, restraining them and each of them from proceeding in any manner to enforce or establish its claims against your orator as stated in two bills of complaint in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, entitled Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey and having a usual place of business at Boston in said County of Suffolk, against your orator, described as Albert S. Bigelow, of Cohasset in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having his usual place of business in Boston, and from taking any further action or proceeding in said suits or otherwise, and from in any manner instituting proceedings and suits with respect to or touching the claims against your orator set out in said two bills filed as aforesaid, in any court or jurisdiction whatsoever, excepting 119 the courts of the State of New Jersey, and from in any manner assigning, selling or disposing of said claims, but also the state's writ of subpœna, issuing out of and under the seal of this Honorable Court, to be directed to the said Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, commanding it by a certain day and under a certain penalty therein to be expressed, to be and appear before your Honor in this Honorable Court, then and there to answer all and singular the premises and to stand to, abide by and perform such order and decree therein as to your Honor shall seem meet, and shall be agreeable to equity and good conscience.

And your orator, as in duty bound, will ever pray, &c.

(Signed) JOHN GRIFFIN,
Solicitor and Counsel with Complainant.

A.

CLIFTON, ARIZONA, June 18th, 1895.

To Messrs. A. S. Bigelow and Leonard Lewisohn.

GENTLEMEN: In compliance with your instructions we have examined the property of the Old Dominion Copper Co., of Globe, Ariz., and we now take pleasure in submitting our report on the same.

Globe is situated about 100 miles to the Northwest of the Clifton copper belt and is reached by the G. V. G. & N. Ry. which terminates at Fort Thomas, 61 7-10 miles distant from the connection with the Southern Pacific Railway at Bowie, and 71 miles distant from Globe. From Fort Thomas freight and passengers are presently conveyed by wagons and by stage. We may here state that for the proper and economical working of the Globe properties it is necessary that the G. V. G. & N. Ry. should be extended to 120 Globe.

In our calculations we have considered the completion of the railroad as an assured fact. The property of the Old Dominion Co. comprises the following:—

The Globe Mine.
" Globe Ledge.
" Fraction.
" S. E. Globe.
" Interloper.
" Globe, S. W.
" Hidden Globe.
" Alice.
" S. W. Alice of Hypatia.
" S. E. Globe Millsite } Of these the present Smelting Plant
" Interloper " } is built.
" Hidden Globe " }
" S. W. Globe Millsite.
" Hypatia "
" Alice "

Smelting Plant.

The smelting plant consists of 2 60-ton water jacket furnaces and 1 40-ton furnace, each supplied with an independent Baker blower propelled by independent engines. The steam boilers and machinery we found ample for the requirements of the plant. The building covering the plant and the ore bins we found roomy and commodious, the ore bins having a capacity of 3500 tons. On a self-fluxing charge the furnaces could be pushed to 80 or 90 tons per day, as the ore is probably the finest smelting ore in the world, being remarkably free from fines and admirably suited for rapid and economical running. For matting the ores a somewhat 121 larger furnace, say 7 ft. x 3' 3" would be required. But if the object be to make black copper, in that case the present plant is probably as economical as any, and it had the advantage of being ready to commence work at a moment's notice. The admirable condition of everything connected with this plant showed that the management had taken the greatest pains to keep everything in perfect order.

The Interloper shaft, the main outlet for the mines, is situated less than a quarter of a mile from the smelting Works on an upper slope of the same hill, and a Bleichert tramway, with a capacity of 200 tons in 10 hours, furnishes a cheap and exceedingly convenient method of haulage. For the present system of working, the Smelting Plant and the haulage leave but little to be desired.

Mines.

In locating the Mines of the property the locators have been singularly happy in covering in length and width what we cannot but regard as the principal lode of the district and one of the largest in Arizona. The surface level and the first level are tapped without hoisting, both delivering their ores direct to the Bleichert tramway. The second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh levels are connected to and deliver their ores through the Interloper shaft, which has been sunk to the eighth level, the latter being at the present time no more than a pumping station. The levels have not been run in straight lines and they are therefore longer than is shown by the figures given below, which represent the length in a straight line opened up by each level.

Surface level	625	feet.
Alice Tunnel	600	"
No. 1 level	2500	"
122 No. 2 level	2500	feet.
No. 3 level	1500	"
No. 4 level	850	"
No. 5 level	1650	"
No. 6 level	1350	"
No. 7 level	1700	"
No. 8 level	375	"

Surface Level.

The surface level, run in at an average depth of 50 feet below the surface of the hill, exposes large ore bodies at three different points on each of which stoping to a considerable extent has been done. At the main outcrop the vein is 200 feet in width and practically all ore, mainly of the low grade self-fluxing character. The tremendous outcrop, the most noticeable feature on the property, at once stamps the lode as one of extraordinary character. In stoping here, as on all the other levels, only the rich streaks have been followed, and the main portion of the vein has, therefore, been but little disturbed.

The rich ore descends in sheets with layers of the low grade ore and occasionally of vein matter between. This characteristic we found repeated on the lower levels. A careful examination satisfied us that there is every reason to expect a continuous ore body for a distance of 700 feet on this level. In opening up this ground the footwall should be closely followed and in stoping upwards the ore should be followed to its junction with the hanging wall, and this also applies to the lower levels. The low grade ore in the backs will nearly all pay to smelt and in running we expect that sheets of richer ore will be uncovered.

First Level.

Development on this level has been done altogether between the Moony shaft and the outcrop, the total length of vein broken into being 600 feet, the main working being on the downward 123 extension of the outcrop which showed as strong here as it did on the surface 160 feet above. With the exception of the work on the extension of the outcrop, stoping has not been conducted to a height greater than from 20 to 25 feet above the level, the lower grade ores being as usual left untouched in the backs. The promising ground lying to the Southwest of the Moony shaft lies untouched. Here there should be no difficulty in finding the extension of the ore body. It is evident that this level should produce much more than it has done heretofore.

Second Level.

On this level ore has been touched in spots for a length on the vein of 1200 feet, but only over a distance of 500 feet has stoping been done to a considerable extent and that altogether on the hanging wall and away from the main contact. At the Moony shaft, ore is to be seen in place on the footwall. Ore is again exposed at a point 50 feet to the Southeast of the same shaft. At this point the vein narrows to a few feet in width, but it opens out immediately. In the belt of ground 1400 feet in length practically no work has been done along the footwall. Judging from the relative position of the stopes it would appear as if the ore body might have left the footwall immediately below the first level and folding out horizontally had again descended on the hanging wall. This theory however finds no support in the developments on the levels above and below which invariably expose the main ore body making on the footwall. The development of the ore bodies on the hanging wall has no doubt been due to the driving of the main levels through the limestone. These ore bodies will I have no doubt be ultimately followed to their starting point,—the footwall. With ore to commence upon at the Moony shaft it should not be 124 difficult to prove up this ground.

Third Level.

With the exception of two small stopes on the footwall on the S. W. end of the property, all the development work has been done in the hanging wall. The work to the N. E. of the Moony shaft has been run too far into the country rock and has been done in ground which cannot be considered as in the vein or as likely to be ore bearing. We consider this level as practically so much undeveloped ground. As the ore is very strong on the footwall in the fourth level we see no reason why it should not be found in the same position on the third.

Fourth Level.

With the exception of a block of 90 ft. the ore has been followed on the footwall and found to be continuous for a distance of 900 feet. All of this work has been done to the S. W. of the Moony shaft. Stoping as usual has been done only on the rich ore sheet, good fluxing ore being left in the back. Ore has also been mined to a considerable extent along the footwall. The vein shows a width between walls of fully 200 feet for quite a distance. Much good stoping ground remains, and between the walls there is a big unprospected territory which can hardly fail to be highly productive. The ground lying to the N. E. of the Moony shaft should be tested along the footwall.

Fifth Level.

On this level the ore body on the footwall has been shown up and stoped for a distance of about 800 feet on the vein, the work being done to the S. W. of the Moony shaft. Most of this ground being inaccessible on account of a large cave due to insufficient timbering, it is impossible to judge with any degree of accuracy how much ore has been left. As only the rich ore was stoped, it is obvious 125 that the bulk of it will pay to turn over, and we should expect it to yield besides the low grade fluxing ores quite abundantly in high grade ore. With the exception of a stone situated 600 feet to the Northeast of the Moony shaft no ore has been developed or touched on the extension of the vein in that direction. No doubt this is due to the fact that the main level and all cross-cuts have been driven in the country rock and away from the vein. In a distance of 850 feet not a single cross-cut has been run to test the footwall. While indications point to a narrowing of the vein on its Northeast extension there is good reason to believe that ore will be found by prospecting along the footwall and by following up the ore body in the stope last referred to. This view is strengthened by the work on the sixth and seventh levels which show the extension of the vein for a distance of 600 feet N. E. of the Moony shaft.

Sixth Level.

Ore has been stoped at intervals for a total distance of 1100 feet on the vein. In a total number of nine crosscuts run in to cut the footwall, no less than eight of them struck ore, which is an excellent proof of the continuity of the ore body and emphasized the need of systematic work in this direction. The most noticeable feature of this and of the fifth level has been the development of the ore body to the S. W. of the Interloper shaft. The ground in this direction justifies further prospecting in height, length and width. We consider it very important ground.

Seventh Level.

The continuation of the ore body in depth is shown by three large stopes opened at widely separate points on the vein. As on the upper levels the bulk of the development work has been done in the hanging wall and in no case has ore been found on this 126 level in cross-cutting into the limestone. All the ore found has been discovered in cross-cutting towards the footwall. Rich sulphide ore in pay streaks shows for a considerable distance, along the floor and roof of the main level. These streaks should be followed downward and upward, especially downward in order to develop the sulphides as rapidly as possible. So little real development work has been done that this level must be regarded as new and undeveloped. The vein is undoubtedly slimmer here than on the upper levels, but it is still wide enough to hold large ore bodies. Development work to the S. W. of the Interloper should also be pushed with vigor as the ground is very favorable and inviting.

Summary.

We need not encumber this report with a detailed description of the geological conditions which obtain in the Mines at Globe. It will suffice for your clear understanding of the situation if we explain only its more important features. The ores occur altogether in a strong fissure between the diorite which forms the footwall and the limestone which is the country rock lying to the East of the vein. The ore body has been found in the various levels, at intervals, over a total length of 1800 feet, and it has been followed to a depth of 515 feet from the surface of the main outcrop to the floor of the seventh level, where such small developments as have been made go to show that it is still a strong body. Near the fissure the limestone has been fractured, leaving fissures and pockets in it which have in places been filled with ore derived no doubt from the same source which impregnated the main vein. This is particularly evident on the third level where the ore makes in the limestone and away from the vein.
On the same level the ore is also found in the vein on the foot-
127 wall. The nature of the vein being such—and in this it resembles most limestone formations—it was impossible to block out and measure the ore in sight, and we were compelled to rely altogether on our own judgment of the ground, assisted, of course, by our knowledge of what it had produced in the past, and by our experience in other limestone formations and also by a close study of the geological conditions. The immensity of the vein and of the ore bodies in sight made this a fairly simple task. Particularly were we impressed by the enormous bodies of low grade fluxing ores, nearly all of which can be treated to profit with the assistance of the cheap coke which will be obtained when the railroad is completed. With coke ranging from 40 to 60 per ton, all low grade ore had to be avoided, and wherever struck it was left standing in the Mine. Sulphide ore, in like manner, whenever found were at once abandoned, on the ground that it was difficult to treat.

Metallurgy.

The method of treatment heretofore followed had been the simple one of smelting oxidized ores into black copper of high grade. The same method can still be followed and with good profit, but there are heavy losses in it which can be avoided by converting all the ores into copper matte and then bessemerizing. But to make the ores, a great deal more sulphur will be required than is presently in sight. It is therefore highly necessary that while the plant is shut down the development of the sulphides should proceed with vigor. The sinking of the Interloper shaft for a further depth of 500 feet we look upon as an immediate necessity. At the same time winzes should be sunk in the sulphide ores to prove them in depth and thus work should keep pace with the shaft sinking. As this work proceeds, short campaigns should be made in 128 smelting to treat the ores now in stock and those that will be derived from the prospecting. If necessary the production of black copper may be commenced at any time; but as the present shaft would not be able to keep up a large output and at the same time allow of its being sunk, we deem it better to sink before commencing to smelt on the large scale. The rich sulphide ores will probably be found for a considerable depth, possibly 200 to 300 feet below the eighth level, and much of it will be associated with considerable vein matter, forming a low grade ore which will require to be concentrated. For the treatment of this ore a concentrator will be required. Later it will be necessary to erect a leaching plant, but this need not be thought of until a sufficiency of iron pyrites has been developed. Since the commencement of the Company there has been produced about 68,000,000 lbs. fine copper, and we think that a very conservative estimate would give a like amount still to be extracted from the ground opened by the Old Company. This would give a supply of five and a half years at the rate of 6,000 tons copper per annum. Taking the figures of the Old Company as a basis and reducing them to figures based on present situation of the railroad showing a wagon haul of 65 miles, will show a net profit at present price of black copper (10½c.) of $60. per ton, or $360,000. on 6,000 tons of copper per annum. To this can be added $60,000. when the railroad is completed into Globe.

Of course when the low grade sulphides are mined and the matter obtained treated by the Bessemer process, this yield can be materially increased, but of this we have taken no account in our calculations. Calculating on a yearly output of 6,000 tons of black copper and on the market value of the same of 8½ cents per pound, and also the completion of the railroad, the profit should be $480,000.

per annum; with black copper realizing 9½c. per pound, the 129 profits should be $300,000. per annum; with black copper realizing 10 cents per pound, $350,000. per annum, and with black copper realizing 10½ cents, $420,000. per annum.

In this estimate we have counted upon a yield from the ores of 9 per cent. of copper, an average which can easily be sustained, and we have not counted upon the richer sulphides likely to be opened out in depth. With this much assured from the ground already opened out, and with every prospect of an extension of the ore bodies both in length on the vein and in depth, we consider the property as certain to be a heavy producer for many years to come.

Attached hereto is a plan showing the ground covered by the various claims and also the trend of the footwall through the Globe Ledge and Globe claims, which have produced nearly all of the ore so far produced.

The following analysis shows the composition of the ore, amounting to 4,600 tons, now in the furnace bins and ready for smelting. The sample was taken from all over the surface of the ore pile:

	Per cent.
Moisture and volatile matter	12.40
Silica	22.48
Oxide of Copper (Metallic copper 16.9%)	21.18
Oxide of Iron (F2O)	27.26
Alumina	9.44
Oxide of Manganese	2.09
Lime (Ca O)	1.35
Alkalies, Oxygen and loss	3.80
	100.00

This ore should form a slag not exceeding 36% in silica. It is perfectly self fluxing. Samples of the sulphide ores taken from various parts of the Mine assayed as follows:—

	Per cent. copper.
Sulphide streaks in raise from 5th level	28.85
" " " Main drift "	9.60
" ore from stope near 7th level	12.90
" from main drift 7th level	34.90

130 During the 18 months ending at the time the Works were closed down, 50,947 tons of ore were smelted, resulting in a yield of 6,068 tons of black copper, being equal to an average yield of 11.9%.

The cost of Pocohontas coke during the same time was $13.10 per ton at Wilcox or $39.60 per ton at Globe. Timber is obtained from the Pinal Mountains where the Company own a saw mill. The fuel is wood from the same mountains. Water is obtained from Pinal Creek which flows past the smelter dump. A small quantity will also be obtained from the Mines.

We consider that the railroad should make you a rate of $5 per ton on coke, coal and copper hauled between Bowie and Globe and vice versa. On all other material they should be allowed to make their own rate.

For smelting purposes an ample supply of water can be obtained from the creek and from the Mine. The latter will undoubtedly give an increased supply in depth.

Globe is situated at an elevation of 3500 feet above sea level. The climate is superb, being cool and pleasant every night in the year. The water being of most excellent quality, and the climate so superior, Globe has long been considered the healthiest camp in Arizona.

In conclusion we would say that we consider the property one of very great value. We have found nothing either above ground or below the surface pointing in the slightest degree to a shortening or narrowing of the ore bodies either in depth or length. The work done in the past has served to open up vast ore bodies from which only the richest streaks running from 15 to 30 per cent. copper have been removed, while the large bodies of rich sulphide ores have hardly been touched. The Mining and Smelting Plant is ample for present purposes except a boiler or two, and everything about the property is in excellent shape. We have no hesitation in recommending it as a safe and profitable investment and one which will undoubtedly increase rapidly in value as new development work is completed.

131

All of which is respectfully submitted.

JAMES COLQUHOUN.
G. M. HYAMS.

This is to certify, that we, the undersigned Jesse Lewisohn and Allen W. Evarts of the City, County and State of New York, Edgar Buffum, of Newark, in the County of Essex in the State of New Jersey, Charles W. Welch, of the City of Brooklyn in the State of New York, Sidney Riddlesdorffer, William V. Rowe, and William R. Montgomery, of the City, County and State of New York, do hereby associate themselves into a Company under and by virtue of the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "An Act concerning corporations" approved April 7, 1875, and the several supplements thereto and Acts amendatory thereof for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, and to that end we do by this our Certificate set forth:

First. That the name which we have assumed to designate such Company and to be used in its business and dealings is "Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company."

Second. That the place in the State of New Jersey where the business of such company is to be conducted is the City of Jersey City, in the County of Hudson. That the principal part of the business of such Company within said State of New Jersey is to be transacted at said Jersey City, in the County of Hudson, and the places out of said State where the same is to be conducted are the town of Globe and other places in the Territory of Arizona, the City of Boston, in the State of Massachusetts, the City of New York, the States of Massachusetts and New York, and such other states and territories of the United States and such foreign Countries as shall, from time to time be deemed necessary or convenient for any of the purposes of the Company.

That the objects for which such Company is formed are the purchase, acquisition and sale of copper and other mines and mining property and the working, operation and maintenance of the same; the holding, purchase and conveyance of real property useful or convenient for the purposes of its business either in or out of the State of New Jersey and the mortgaging or leasing thereof; the construction and maintenance of water-works, reservoirs, dams, and aqueducts, the erection and maintenance of works, mills, factories, shops and other structures, engaging in and carrying on the business of treating, smelting and refining copper and other ores; manufacturing, buying, selling and dealing in copper, copper ores and other metals and ores and articles made wholly or in part of the same; issuing bonds, debentures or other obligations and securing the same by mortgage of any of the property, rights and franchises of the Company; the acquisition, purchase and sale or other disposition of the stocks, bonds or other securities of other Companies; and in general doing all acts and transacting all business necessary for and incident to the objects aforesaid, or in any wise connected therewith.

That the portion of the business of such Company which is to be carried on out of the State of New Jersey is the owning and operation of mines and such other part of its business as may be lawful and as may from time to time be deemed necessary or convenient by reason of locality, or other conditions, or circumstances.

132 That the principal office and place of business of such Company out of the State of New Jersey is to be situated in the town of Globe in the County of Gila, in the Territory of Arizona. That such Company proposes to carry on operations in the town of Globe and other places in the Territory of Arizona, the States of Massachusetts and New York, and in such other States and Territories of the United States and in such foreign Countries as shall from time to time be deemed necessary or convenient for any of the purposes of the Company.

Third. That the total amount of the capital stock of such Company is to be three millions seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, divided into one hundred and fifty thousand shares of the par value of twenty-five dollars each.

That the amount with which said Company will commence business is One thousand dollars, divided into forty shares of the par value of twenty-five dollars each as aforesaid.

Fourth. That the names and residences of the Stockholders and the number of shares held by each are as follows, to-wit:

Jesse Lewisohn, of the City, County and State of New York, Sixteen Shares., Allen W. Evarts of the City, County and State of New York, Four shares.

Edgar Buffum, of Newark, Essex County, New Jersey, Four shares.

Charles W. Welch, of the City of Brooklyn, in the state of New York, Four shares.

Sydney Riddlesdorffer, of the City, County and State of New York, Four shares.

William V. Rowe, of the City, County and State of New York, Four shares.

William R. Montgomery, of the City, County and State of New York, Four shares.

Fifth. That the period at which such Company shall commence is the eighth day of July, One thousand eight hundred and ninety five and the period at which it shall terminate is the eighth day of July one thousand nine hundred and forty five.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands and seals the eighth day of July, One thousand eight hundred and ninety five.

JESSE LEWISOHN.	[L. S.]
ALLEN W. EVARTS.	[L. S.]
EDGAR BUFFUM.	[L. S.]
CHARLES W. WELCH.	[L. S.]
SIDNEY RIDDLESDORFFER.	[L. S.]
WM. V. ROWE.	[L. S.]
WM. R. MONTGOMERY.	[L. S.]

STATE OF NEW YORK,
City and County of New York, ss:

Be it remembered that on this eighth day of July One thousand eight hundred and ninety five, before me the subscriber, a 133 Commissioner of Deeds for the State of New Jersey, personally appeared Jesse Lewisohn, Allen W. Evarts, Edgar Buffum, Charles W. Welch, Sidney Riddlesdorffer, William V. Rowe, and William R. Montgomery, who I am satisfied are the persons named in and who executed the foregoing certificate, and I, having first made known to them the contents thereof, they did each acknowledge that they signed, sealed and delivered the same as their voluntary act and deed.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my official seal the day and year last aforesaid.

[SEAL.]

GEO. H. COREY,
Commissioner of Deeds for the State of New Jersey in New York.

Endorsed: "Received in the Hudson Co., N. J. Clerk's Office July 8 A. D. 1895 and Recorded in Clerk's Record No. 25 on Page —. John G. Fisher Clerk. Filed Jul- 8, 1895. Henry C. Kelsey, Secretary of State."

State of New Jersey.
[SEAL.]
Department of State.

I, S. D. Dickinson, Secretary of State of the State of New Jersey, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the Certificate of Incorporation of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company," and the endorsements thereon, as the same is taken from and compared with the original filed in my office on the Eighth day of July, A. D. 1895, and now remaining on file and of record therein.

[SEAL.]

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my Official Seal at Trenton, this Twenty-fifth day of February, A. D., 1907.

134 (Signed) S. D. DICKINSON,
Secretary of State.

Endorsed: Certified copy of Certificate of Incorporation of "Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company."

F.

Agreement Between the Old Dominion Company, a Corporation Organized under the Laws of Maine, and Charles Sumner Smith and D. Blakely Hoar.

Whereas, pursuant to a proposal embodied in an agreement signed by F. S. Mosely & Company and others, dated December 30th, 1903, the Old Dominion Company has been organized and is the corporation referred to in said agreement as the Maine Company, and is about to acquire one hundred thousand eight hundred and four (100,804) shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company (hereinafter called the Mining Company); and

Whereas by Article First, section 6, of said agreement, it is stipulated that upon such acquisition of stock by said Old Dominion Company, it shall provide for realizing upon certain assets of 135 said Mining Company and the distribution of the proceeds thereof, as in said agreement, to which reference is hereby made, more fully set forth; and

Whereas Charles Sumner Smith and D. Blakely Hoar (hereinafter called the Trustees) have consented to act as trustees, under a declaration of trust of even date herewith executed by them, for the benefit of said assenting stockholders of said Mining Company referred to in said agreement:

Now, therefore, this agreement witnesseth:

First: The Old Dominion Company acknowledges that the assets of the Mining Company referred to in Article First, section 6, of the agreement above referred to, comprise certain claims against one Albert S. Bigelow and against the estate of one

Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, on which suits are now pending brought by said Mining Company in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts for the County of Suffolk and in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, together with the other assets enumerated in the schedule hereto annexed marked "A."

Second: Said Old Dominion Company covenants and agrees with said Trustees to use all reasonable efforts;

1. To cause said Mining Company to realize upon said other assets specified in Schedule "A" in such manner as said Trustees may from time to time direct, subject, however, to the provisions hereinafter contained.

2. To cause said Mining Company actively to prosecute said claims above referred to against said Bigelow and against the estate of said Lewisohn, in such manner and through such counsel and attorneys as said Trustees may from time to time request, and 136 upon like request to make any settlement and adjustment of said claims or any of them, subject, however, to the provisions hereinafter contained.

3. To cause said Mining Company, if and so far as any sums of money are realized from said other assets or from said claims:

(a) To pay all expenses that may have been incurred in realizing on said other assets or said claims, including the repayment of all sums that may have been advanced by said Trustees and the satisfaction of all liabilities that may have been incurred by them in realizing on said other assets of said claims; or authority to do so;

(b) To apply any surplus moneys then remaining to the payment of all debts and unliquidated claims of said Mining Company incurred prior to January 1, 1904, in excess of Twenty five thousand ($25,000) dollars, other than those incurred for new construction.

(c) To receive such part, if any, as said Trustees may request of any surplus then remaining for use in providing for the further expenses of prosecuting said claims and realizing on said other assets, if and so far as the same have not been finally disposed of and realized on;

(d) To distribute any surplus then remaining as a dividend among its stockholders, if it lawfully may do so, and if it
137 cannot then lawfully make such a dividend to make the same as soon thereafter as any legal impediment is removed.

Third: The Old Dominion Company agrees to pay over to said Trustees, after making the deductions hereinafter provided for, any and all sums received by it as a stockholder in said Mining Company, or that would have been so received by it if it had at all times remained the holder of the same proportions of the capital stock of said Mining Company outstanding as all the stock in said Mining Company now held and that may hereafter be acquired by said Old Dominion Company bears to the capital stock of said Mining Company now outstanding, whether so received under the foregoing provisions of this agreement or otherwise, so far as each sum is derived from the other assets and claims of said Mining Company herein referred to.

Said Old Dominion Company shall first deduct from sums so payable amounts advanced under this agreement by the Old Dominion Company for expenses, including counsel fees of the Old Dominion Interest, so called, in connection with the proposal and agreement dated December 30th, 1903, above referred to. It shall pay over the balance of sums so payable to the Trustees from time to time as the same are received or would have been received for distribution by said Trustees among the assenting stockholders of said Mining Company and their assigns, but without responsibility on the part of said Old Dominion Company for the application of any sum so paid over.

Fourth. The Old Dominion Company agrees to use all reasonable efforts, so far as it lawfully may in the performance of Article Second, Section 1, of this agreement, to cause said Mining Company to permit said Trustees in the name and behalf of said Mining 138 Company, but for the purposes set forth in this agreement, to take from time to time all such action as said Trustees shall deem desirable in prosecuting or settling or otherwise realizing on or discounting said claims or any of them, of said other assets or any of them; and to cause said Mining Company from time to time and as often as in writing requested, at the expense of said Trustees so far as any expenditure is required but without charge so far as acts by the officers or employees of the Mining Company or of the Old Dominion Company are concerned, to assist said Trustees in preparing and maintaining any and every suit at law or in equity or other proceedings now pending or that may hereafter be brought to enforce or realize on any of said claims or other assets, and particularly to permit said Trustees to have free access at all reasonable times to the papers and records of said Mining Company relating thereto, and to take for use in any suit or other proceeding any document or books relating to said corporation.

Fifth. Said Old Dominion Company agrees, in case for any reason it is impossible lawfully to carry out this agreement in the manner hereinbefore provided or any part thereof, to do all that it lawfully and reasonably can do to cause said Mining Company to take such action that said other assets and claims shall be realized on to the best advantage reasonably possible, and the net proceeds thereof as defined in said proposal and agreement distributed among the stockholders in said Mining Company, and all sums received by said Old Dominion Company as a stockholder in said Mining Company or that would have been so received by it had it at all times remained the holder of the same proportion of the capital stock of said Mining Company outstanding that all the stock in said Mining Company now held and that may hereafter be acquired by 139 said Old Dominion Company bears to the capital stock of said Mining Company now outstanding, shall be paid over to said Trustees for distribution by them as above provided.

Sixth. Said Old Dominion Company agrees:

1. Upon request of said Trustees to satisfy all expenses incurred by the Old Dominion interest, so called, for the incorporation fees and incidental expenses connected directly with the organization of the Old Dominion Company.

2. Upon request of said Trustee to pay all expenses including counsel fees, incurred by the Old Dominion interest, so called, in connection with the proposal and agreement dated December 30th, 1903, above referred to.

Seventh. The Old Dominion Company agrees that in case at any time anything is done by which it will cease to hold a majority of the capital stock of the Mining Company it will before such act is done make provision reasonably satisfactory to the Trustees by which the holders of a majority of all the stock of said Mining Company shall until all the purposes of this agreement are carried out be bound to do all things then remaining undone which the Old Dominion Company is hereby bound to do.

Eighth. The word "Trustees in this agreement shall mean the trustees above named and their successors in office who are for the time being such trustees.

(Signed) OLD DOMINION COMPANY,
By JAMES R. PARSONS,
President.
WM. M. BRADLEY,
Treasurer.

(Signed) CHARLES S. SMITH.
(Signed) D. BLAKELY HOAR.

Jan. 15, 1904.

140 "B."

No. —. — Shares.

Old Dominion Trust.

This certifies that —— —— is entitled to — shares in the trust (known as the Old Dominion Trust) created by declaration of trust executed by Charles Sumner Smith and D. Blakely Hoar, dated January 15, 1904, and to all the rights and benefits of a share-holder under the terms of said declaration of trust, to which the holder by acceptance of this certificate fully assents. Shares in said trust are transferable only in writing on the books of the trustees by the shareholder in person or by duly authorized attorney and upon surrender of the certificate therefor.

Witness our hands this — day of —— A. D. 190—.

——— ———,
——— ———,
Trustees.

Countersigned

———
Transfer Agent.

Exhibit 2.

In Chancery of New Jersey.

Between Albert S. Bigelow, Compl't, and
Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Def't.

On Bill, &c.

Order to Show Cause.

141 On reading and filing the bill, with the affidavits thereto annexed and the exhibits, in the above entitled cause:

It is on this twenty-sixth day of February, nineteen hundred and eight, on motion of John Griffin, solicitor of complainant, Ordered that until the further order of this court the defendant, Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, its officers, servants, agents, attorneys, solicitors, counsel and employees be and they are hereby enjoined and restrained from proceeding in any manner to enforce or establish by trial, argument or otherwise the claims of the said defendant against the complainant as stated in two bills of complaint filed in the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, entitled Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey and having a usual place of business at Boston in said County of Suffolk, against the complainant, described as Albert S. Bigelow of Cohasset, in the County of Norfolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, having his usual place of business in Boston, and from taking any further action or proceedings by trial, argument or otherwise in said suits, or any other suits or otherwise, and from in any manner instituting proceedings and suits with respect to or touching the claims against the complainant set out in said two bills filed as aforesaid, in any court or jurisdiction whatsoever, excepting the courts of the State of New Jersey, or from selling, assigning or disposing of said claims, and that the defendant entirely stay its present proceedings and suits against the complainant Bigelow.

And it is further Ordered, that said defendant do show cause before this court, on Tuesday, the seventeenth day of March, nineteen hundred and eight, at half past ten in the forenoon, at the 142 Chancery Chambers, in the city of Trenton, why said injunction and restraint should not be continued to final hearing.

And it is further Ordered, that true copies of this order and the bill which copies need not be certified be served upon the statutory agent of the defendant in this State, within five days from the date hereof.

(Signed) MAHLON PITNEY, C.

Respectfully advised
E. R. WALKER, V. C.

A true copy:
VIVIAN M. LEWIS.

(Endorsed on back:) In Chancery of New Jersey. Between Albert S. Bigelow, Compl't, and Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Def't. On Bill, &c. Rule to Show Cause. John Griffin, Sol'r, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J. Filed Feb'y 26, 1908. E. R. W., V. C.

Chancery of the State of New Jersey, the same being a Court of Record, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the Order to Show cause filed Feb. 26, 1908, in a cause wherein Albert S. Bigelow is complainant and Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company is defendant now on the files of my office.

[SEAL.]

In testimony whereof, I have hereto set my hand and 143 affixed the seal of said Court, at Trenton, this Twenty-seventh day of February A. D. nineteen hundred and eight.

(Signed) VIVIAN M. LEWIS, Clerk.

I, Mahlon Pitney, Chancellor of the State of New Jersey, do hereby certify that Vivian M. Lewis, whose name is subscribed to the above certificate, was, at the date thereof, and now is, the Clerk of the Court of Chancery of the State of New Jersey; that said attestation is in due form, that the seal thereto annexed is the seal of said Court, and that the signature of the said Vivian M. Lewis is in his own proper handwriting.

Witness my hand at the City of Trenton this Twenty-seventh day of February A. D. nineteen hundred and eight.

(Signed) MAHLON PITNEY, C.

NOTE.—This certificate is made pursuant to an act of Congress (Rev. Stat. U. S. 1875, sec. 905, p. 170).

A true copy.
Attest:
ALBERT C. TILDEN.
Deputy Sheriff.

EXHIBIT 3.

As Amended in Committee.

Committee Substitute for Assembly, No. 368.

STATE OF NEW JERSEY:

A Supplement to an Act Entitled "An Act Concerning Cor-144 porations (Revision of 1896)," approved April twenty-first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six.

Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

1. When any director, officer, organizer, promoter or agent of any corporation of this State has been heretofore sued or shall be hereafter sued without this State by any such corporation on account of any bonus, profit or reward of any kind whatsoever heretofore made or received, or hereafter made or received, out of, or on account of, any transaction taking place within or without this State for or with such corporation because of failure to disclose the fact of such bonus, profit or reward, or failure to obtain the approval of the corporation thereto, he may, at any time after the passage of this act, file a petition in the Court of Chancery making the corporation a party defendant, and have such liability, if any, finally determined on such petition in accordance with the rules and practice of the Court of Chancery.

2. After the filing of such petition the Court of Chancery may, upon the motion of the petitioner, enjoin the corporation from prosecuting, maintaining or continuing any pending or bringing any new suits or proceedings at law or in equity for the enforcement of the liability in question elsewhere in the State of New Jersey.

3. On the hearing of such petition the petitioner, if found liable, may be held and adjudged to be liable only for his own actual net profits, and no more.

4. If any section or part of this act shall be held to be void or unconstitutional, it shall in no wise impair the validity of the balance hereof.

5. This act shall take effect immediately.

And on the fourteenth day of said August, the following memorandum of decision and order for decree was filed by the Court, to wit:

In the matter of the motion or petition of the Plaintiff for 145 an injunction restraining the Defendant from beginning or prosecuting before other courts any action or actions involving the same issues, pending the suit, and for an attachment for contempt, and for a speedy hearing by the Full Court of the Appeal now before it.

Memorandum of Decision.

The hearing having been confined to the first ground only and the allegations as to the course of litigation between the parties both in Massachusetts and in New Jersey either having been proved or not denied, I find them to be true.

From this general finding it appears that after having voluntarily tried before a Justice of this Court all questions of law or fact which, under the pleadings so far as material, either were involved in the controversy or could have been raised by him not only by the pleadings as they stood but by any amendment which became necessary for the presenation of such questions and while the case was pending for argument before the Full Court on cross-appeals from the final decree, Mr. Bigelow, by a bill filed in the Chancery Court of New Jersey, obtained an injunction restraining the plaintiff, whose domicile was in that state, from any further prosecution of the case before this court. In substance, with the exception of the allegation as to the effect upon the present suit of the decision, in favor of the defendants, of the Circuit Court of Appeals of the United States for the Southern District of New York, in the case of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co. vs. Frederic Lewisohn, et al, Executors of Leonard Lewisohn, who is alleged in the present suit to have been a copromoter with the defendant and equally liable with him, the issues on the merits of both suits appear to be similar. That Bigelow during the litigation, 146 from the filing of the bill here on October 7, 1902, up to the time of the present petition, was domiciled in Massachusetts, in whose courts the plaintiff had a right to implead him has not been doubted or denied. Indeed it is undisputed that this court has lawfully obtained jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the parties. There is now no question "that whenever the parties are resident within a country, the courts of that country have full authority to act upon them personally with respect to the subject of suits in foreign courts as the ends of justice may require, and with that view to order them to take, or omit to take any steps and proceedings in any other court of justice, whether in the same country or in any foreign country," or the courts of one state may enjoin its citizens from taking such proceedings in the courts of a sister state.

2 Storey Eq. Jur. 13th Ed., Sec. 900.
Bushby v. Munday, 5 Madd. 297.
Carron Iron Co. v. McLaren, 5 H. L. Cas. 416.
De Hon v. Foster, 4 Allen, 545.
Cunningham v. Butler, 142 Mass. 47.
Cole v. Cunningham, 133 U. S. 107,—where may be found a very full review of the cases by Mr. Chief Justice Fuller.

See also on this point the exhaustive opinion of Chancellor Pitney of New Jersey in Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Co.

This power may be exercised not only to enjoin the bringing of suits, but to stay the prosecution of suits already begun.

Bushby v. Munday, ubi supra.
Dinsmore v. Neresheimer, 32 Hun, 204, 207.
Carson v. Dunham, 149 Mass. 52.

While the bill in New Jersey having been dismissed by the Chancellor and "no order of stay" having yet been granted, the injunction theretofore issued was thereby dissolved, Mr. Bigelow, through counsel there, announced his intention to take and prosecute an appeal from the decision to the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, the laws of which permit him again to make application for 147 an "order of stay" to the Chancellor; or upon making an appeal then such application may be made to the appellate court itself. If such an application is granted the injunction would be in force, and all further action here would again be indefinitely postponed.

As I have said, the entire merits of the controversy either have been or could have been tried before the single Justice who heard the case. It would seem as if the time elapsing between the filing of the bill and the filing of the final amended answer, November 6, 1907, was sufficient to enable the defendant to avail himself of every opportunity of defense that he might deem advisable or material. It was only until defeated before a tribunal and in a forum, where he was content up to that point to make the contest,—presumably with all the legal weapons that eminent and learned counsel could furnish,—that Mr. Bigelow sought the courts of New Jersey to obtain, if possible, a different decision, and to prevent any further proceedings here. If he is now to be left either to prosecute at will the appeal in New Jersey, or to begin other suits in the courts of sister states in which, however deftly phrased, substantially the same issues are again presented, he obtains an unjustifiable advantage over the plaintiff by preventing it from prosecuting to a final determination a suit in which it has been so far successful as to obtain a finding and decree for the payment of large damages. Obviously this Court cannot do justice between the parties unless he is enjoined from taking this threatened or possible course of procedure.

Home Ins. Co. v. Howell, 24 N. J. Eq. 238.
See Kempson v. Kempson, 58 N. J. Eq. 94.

What are the objections urged by him against the entry of such an order?

148 First, that a single Justice has no jurisdiction to pass upon the question, as the whole case is before the Full Court on the appeal.

Under R. L. ch. 159, Sec. 19, upon an appeal in equity from the final decree of a single justice and the entry of the appeal in the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth, the decree is vacated, and the case, as shown by the record, whether of law or law and fact is pending before the Full Court which "shall affirm, reverse or modify the decree appealed from." This means that the case is before the Full Court upon the record as made up at the time of the appeal. If that record is to be either enlarged or diminished, it would seem that the application must be made to a single justice.

Commonwealth & Suffolk Trust Co., 161 Mass., 550, 551.

But is is plain enough that in practice after such an appeal has been taken and perfected, and while it is pending, interlocutory questions, often of much importance, may arise calling for a speedy hearing and decision, but in no wise affecting the questions covered by the final decree.

It was not the purpose of the Legislature, as shown by sections 17, 21 and 22, that the Full Court should hear and determine such matters, but that a single justice in the first instance should hear and pass upon them.

Dorr vs. Tremont Nat'l Bank, 128 Mass., 349.
Parker vs. Nickerson, 137 Mass., 487, 491.

The order asked for does not affect "the proceedings under such decree," but is remedial and purely interlocutory and distinct.

R. L., c. 159, sec. 17.

It is next urged that the equities are such that the Court in its discretion should refuse to interfere. But this objection has been already generally considered and need not be further dis-149 cussed.

It is also claimed that "the remedy sought by the plaintiff is in violation of a privilege and immunity granted the defendant by the constitution of the United States." But I am unable to see that any federal question is involved.

The defendant further says that "the plaintiff is estopped from further prosecuting these actions by the judgment against it in the Federal Court of New York;" since affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States.

It is sufficient upon this last objection to say that while the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Lewisohn is in favor of the position as to liability taken by the defendant, I am bound by the decision of this Court in Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company v. Bigelow, 188 Mass., 315, that the bill stated a case for equitable relief, and by the finding on the merits by Mr. Justice Sheldon, who decided that Bigelow was accountable to the plaintiff. But it should be further said that although the defendant had every opportunity to plead the pendency of the litigation in the Federal Courts which might result in an alleged estoppel, he has not done so, and this question is not raised by the pleadings.

If, however, on the motion for a temporary injunction this question of possible estoppel ought to be considered as bearing upon whether the defendant equitably ought to be allowed to contest this question before the Court of Errors and Appeals of New Jersey, it is sufficient, now, for me to say that I understand the present suit and the decree to go upon the ground that the action is in personam to recover from the defendant as a trustee property of the company which it 150 is claimed he wrongfully appropriated, and the fact that Lewisohn, his co-promoter, may have acted with him as a "joint equitable tort feasor," but who during his lifetime was domiciled in another jurisdiction, where his legal representatives are also domiciled, and who have successfully contested the plaintiff's claim, affords no bar to the plaintiff's prosecution of this suit.

Having first obtained jurisdiction, and having judicial authority to hear and determine fully the subject-matter of the suit, the usual rule should be applied, that this right, having once attached, Mr. Bigelow, who is domiciled in Massachusetts, should not be permitted either to nullify or to take it away by proceedings in other courts.

Home Ins. Co. v. Howell, ubi supra.

Stevens v. The Central Nat'l Bank, 144 N. Y. 50, 60.

Hines v. Hobbs, 40 Ga., 356.

Decree accordingly.

HENRY K. BRALEY, J. S. J. C.

And on the said fourteenth day of August the following Interlocutory Decree was entered by the Court, to wit:

Interlocutory Decree.

Upon motion of the Plaintiff that the Defendant be enjoined from beginning or prosecuting any suit or suits other than in this Court involving the matters in controversy between the parties, and after taking evidence and hearing the arguments of counsel, upon consideration thereof, it is Ordered and Decreed that an injunction issue restraining the defendant Albert S. Bigelow, his attorneys, agents and servants 151 from further prosecuting the action commenced by said Bigelow against the plaintiff in the Court of Chancery in the State of New Jersey, as is in the plaintiff's petition set forth; and from commencing or prosecuting any other suit or proceeding either in law or in equity, except in this court, against the plaintiff to prevent it from obtaining the final decision and decree of this Court, or in any manner to delay or impede the presentation of said case according to the due and orderly course of procedure in this Court, or until further order of the Court.

By the Court:

WALTER F. FREDERICK, Clerk.

August 14, 1908.

And on the twenty-sixth day of said August, the defendant filed his motion to vacate the decree of August 14, 1908, the said motion being in the words following, to wit:

Application of the Defendant to Vacate the Decree of August 14, 1908, and Dissolve the Injunction Issued Thereon.

And now comes the defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and moves that the decree entered by this Honorable Court on August 14, 1908, be vacated and the injunction issued thereon be dissolved.

(1) Upon the ground that said decree and injunction denies, impairs and abridges the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant arising under Article 3, Sections 1 and 2, and Article 4, Sections 1 and 2, of the Constitution of the United States, and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the rights, privileges and immunities aris-
152 ing under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution.

(2) And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing ground, the defendant specifically moves that said decree be vacated and said injunction issued thereon be dissolved on the ground that it denies, impairs and abridges the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant arising under Article 4, Sections 1 and 2, of the Constitution of the United States and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and the rights, privileges and immunities arising under the Acts of Congress pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution in this, that said decree and injunction prevent the defendant from continuing the prosecution of a bill in equity now pending in the State of New Jersey, referred to in the plaintiff's petition in which said decree was entered, wherein the defendant herein is the plaintiff and the plaintiff herein is the defendant, and thereby deprives the defendant herein of his right to enter and prosecute an appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals in said State of New Jersey, the highest Court of said State, from a decision which has been rendered against him in said cause by an inferior Court in said State; that the defendant herein has the right in said State of New Jersey to perfect said appeal and prosecute said cause, and, to deny the defendant herein such right, will operate to make final and conclusive in favor of the plaintiff herein the decree heretofore entered in said cause in the State of New Jersey in favor of the plaintiff herein, and will operate to dismiss and dissolve the injunction heretofore granted 153 in said cause in the State of New Jersey, and will deprive the defendant herein of his right to apply for a continuance or renewal of said injunction.

(3) And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing grounds, the defendant specifically moves that said decree be vacated and said injunction issued thereon dissolved, on the ground that it denies, impairs and abridges the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant arising under Article 3, Sections 1 and 2, and Article 4, Sections 1 and 2, of the Constitution of the United States, and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the rights, privileges and immunities arising under the Acts of Congress pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution in this, that said decree and injunction prevent the defendant herein from asserting in any of the Courts of the United States in any manner the rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed to him by and arising under the Federal Constitution and laws aforesaid in connection with the matters in controversy in this cause.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
J. W. FARLEY.

And on the said twenty-eighth day of August the defendant filed his application to modify the decree of August 14, 1908, and the injunction issued thereon, said application being in the words following, to wit:

154 Application of the Defendant to Modify the Decree of August 14, 1908, and the Injunction Issued Thereon.

And now comes the defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and moves:

(1) That the decree entered by this Honorable Court on August 14, 1908, and the injunction issued thereon be so modified and limited as not to prevent the defendant from continuing the prosecution of and perfecting his appeal in a certain cause now pending in the State of New Jersey, referred to in the plaintiff's petition on which said decree was entered, wherein the defendant herein is the plaintiff and the plaintiff herein is the defendant; and the defendant herein says that, unless said decree and injunction are so modified, it will prevent the defendant herein from entering and prosecuting an appeal to the Court of Errors and Appeals in said State of New Jersey, the highest Court of said State, from a decision in said cause which has been rendered against the defendant herein by an inferior court in said State; that the defendant herein has the right in said State of New Jersey to perfect said appeal and prosecute said cause, and to deny the defendant herein such right will operate to make final and conclusive in favor of the plaintiff herein the decree heretofore entered in said cause in the State of New Jersey in favor of the plaintiff herein and will operate to dismiss and dissolve the injunction heretofore granted in said cause in the State of New Jersey, and will deprive the defendant herein of his right to apply for a continuance or renewal of said injunction, and will deny, impair and abridge the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant 155 herein arising under Article 4, Sections 1 and 2, of the Constitution of the United States, and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant herein arising under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution.

(2) And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing ground, the defendant herein further moves for the modification of said decree and injunction of this Honorable Court of August 14, 1908, so as not to restrain the defendant herein from proceeding in any of the Courts of the United States, and the defendant herein says that, unless said decree and injunction are so modified, the same will deny, impair and abridge the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant herein arising under Sections 1 and 2 of Article 3, and Sections 1 and 2 of Article 4, of the Constitution of the United States, and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and the rights, privileges and immunities of the defendant herein arising under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution.

(3) And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing ground, the defendant herein further moves for the modification of said decree and injunction of this Honorable Court of August 14, 1908, so as not to restrain the defendant herein from proceeding in any of the Courts of the several States or Territories of the United States, other than the Courts of New Jersey or the Courts of the United States wherein jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject matter in any manner arising out of or in connection with 156 the controversy herein can be obtained.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
J. W. FARLEY.

And on the said twenty-eighth day of August, the defendant filed his motion to modify the decree of August 14, 1908, and the injunction issued thereon, the said motion being in the words following, to wit:

Application of the Defendant to Modify the Decree of August 14, 1908, and the Injunction Issued Thereon.

And now comes the defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and says:

That the said decree and the injunction issued thereon, except in so far as the same relates to the action for injunction pending in the Court of Chancery in the State of New Jersey is too indefinite, general and uncertain to be a valid decree, and said Albert S. Bigelow respectfully prays,

That the portion of said decree hereinbefore referred to as too indefinite, general and uncertain, and the injunction issued thereon be made specific, definite and certain.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
J. W. FARLEY.

157 And on the said twenty eighth day of August the motions and applications for modification and vacation of the decree of August 14, 1908, were each denied by the Court.

And on the first day of September, A. D. 1908, the defendant appealed from the decree of August 14, 1908, the claim of appeal being in the words following, to-wit:

Defendant's Appeal.

And now comes the defendant and appeals from the decree entered in the above entitled cause on August 14, 1908, and from the orders denying the defendant's motions to modify or vacate said decree.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
J. W. FARLEY.

And on the fourth day of said September, it was ordered by the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth by its Rescript, that the Clerk of this Court for the County of Suffolk make the following entry under this case in the docket of the Court, viz:

158 The defendant having made an application for leave to file a supplemental answer, the decree is vacated and the case remitted for hearing before a single Justice upon the question whether the defendant shall be allowed to file the supplemental answer, and if his motion for leave to file the supplemental answer is allowed, for a further hearing upon the matters set up in this answer, and for reversal or such modification of the original decree, if any, as ought to be made by reason of these matters. After the hearing or hearings the original decree, unless reversed, is to be entered with or without such modification, and the parties shall have the same right of appeal as they had when the decree was first made, or the Judge may reserve for the full court the questions that arise upon the supplemental answer.

By the Court. C. H. COOPER, Clerk.

September 4, 1908.

And on the sixteenth day of said September the defendant filed his motion for leave to file the supplemental answer thereunto annexed, which said motion was allowed by the Court, said motion and supplemental answer being in the words following, to wit:

159 Motion of the Defendant.

Now comes the defendant and moves for leave to file the supplemental answer hereto annexed, to introduce evidence to prove the facts therein alleged, and to have said answer and evidence consolidated with and made a part of the existing record in the above entitled causes, for the following reasons:

(1) There are now pending before the Supreme Judicial Court for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts two (2) causes in equity in which the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company is plaintiff and Albert S. Bigelow is defendant, and numbered, or heretofore numbered, 8098 and 8099 in Equity for the Supreme Judicial Court for the County of Suffolk. At the time of the hearing of the above entitled causes in the Supreme Judicial Court for the County of Suffolk there were pending in the Circuit Court for the United States for the Southern District of New York two (2) actions in equity brought by the plaintiff, the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, against the Executors of the Estate of Leonard Lewisohn, said Lewisohn being the same person referred to in the bills of complaint in the above entitled causes. One of said actions pending in said Circuit Court was, and is, identical with said above entitled cause numbered 8098, and the other of said actions pending in said Circuit Court was, and is, identical with said above entitled cause numbered 8099.

(2) The allegations set forth in the bills of complaint in said actions in said Circuit Court were, in the first instance, identical mutatis mutandis with the allegations in the bills of complaint in the above entitled causes. One of said bills of complaint in said Circuit Court corresponding to 8098 was thereafter twice 160 amended by the plaintiff, but said allegations remained substantially the same, and throughout said bill of complaint stated and relied upon the same contracts, matters and transactions as set forth in the bills of complaint in the above entitled causes.

(3) Thereafter, that one of the said actions in the Circuit Court, corresponding to No. 8098 of the above entitled causes, having been demurred to by the defendants therein, resulted on July 23, 1908, in a final decree, dismissing the plaintiff's bill of complaint through the course of procedure hereinafter described. The other of said actions in the Circuit Court corresponding to No. 8099 of the above entitled causes, after answer by the defendant therein, has been and now is pending in said Circuit Court, under an agreement between counsel (the counsel for the complainant in said actions in the Circuit Court being the same as the counsel for the plaintiff in the above entitled causes) that the depositions taken in the above entitled causes may be considered as evidence in said pending action. The procedure hereinafter described in said Circuit Court refers only to the action corresponding to No. 8098 of the above entitled causes.

(4) At the time of the hearing in the above entitled causes there was no final judgment or decree or any judgment or decree in the said action or actions in said Circuit Court which could be in any way properly pleaded and proved in the above entitled causes as a bar thereto, nor has there at any time been such a judgment or decree until the twenty-third day of July, 1908.

(5) The course of procedure in said action in said Circuit Court was substantially as follows:—

Said action was begun by the plaintiff on or about the sixth day of January, 1903, the Executors of said Lewisohn, defendants 161 therein, duly demurred to the bill of complaint in said action, and on hearing said demurrer was sustained, and thereafter a decree, in accordance therewith, was entered in said action on or about the eighteenth day of November, 1905. The plaintiff on or about the third day of January, 1906, appealed from said decree to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and said Court sustained the demurrer and affirmed the decree of said Court, said order affirming said decree being filed in said Circuit Court of Appeals on or about the seventeenth day of December, 1906. On or about the fifteenth day of January, 1907, the plaintiff presented a petition to the Supreme Court of the United States for a writ of certiorari in said action to said Circuit Court of Appeals, and, on the twenty-seventh day of February, 1907, said Supreme Court granted said petition and issued said writ of certiorari.

(6) At the time of said hearing in the above entitled causes said action, which had been begun in said Circuit Court, was pending before the said Supreme Court of the United States upon said writ of certiorari, there had been no hearing therein and no decision or decree had been rendered thereon.

(7) Under and by virtue of the law of the State of New York, and of the law as applied by the Federal Courts, which laws the defendant herein expressly offers to prove as a fact, the plaintiff's appeal from the decree of said Circuit Court to said Circuit Court of Appeals operated as a supersedeas to and vacated the decree of said Circuit Court, and said writ of certiorari to said Circuit Court of Appeals vacated and suspended its said decree and that of said Circuit Court, and suspended all action thereunder by either of said Courts or upon the decrees of said Courts.

162 (8) Thereafter, subsequently to said hearing of the above entitled causes and to the decrees therein and the appeals of both parties therefrom, upon hearing said Supreme Court of the United States sustained the demurrer to the bill of complaint in said action in said Circuit Court, and, in due course, on the twenty-third day of July, 1908, in accordance with the mandate from said Supreme Court, a final decree and judgment, dismissing the plaintiff's bill, was entered in said Circuit Court.

(9) Said Lewisohn, the Executors of whose estate were the defendants in New York in said action in said Circuit Court, was in said contracts, matters and transactions complained of in said action, and in the above entitled causes the trustee, representative and agent of your defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and the defendant would have been a proper party and was, in fact, a privy to said action, and the defendant, through one of his counsel, participated in the actual defence of said action in the Circuit Court, and assumed with said Lewisohn's Executors the joint defence thereof, and the defendant, both through his agents and counsel, has, by large expenditure of time and money, contributed to and joined and taken part as privy thereto in the defence of said action, with the knowledge of the plaintiff, throughout the entire period of the aforesaid litigation.

(10) By the law of the State of New York and by the law as applied by the Federal Courts and by the law of this Commonwealth, the mere pendency of said action or any action in said Circuit Court was not properly pleadable or provable as a bar or for any purpose in the above entitled causes.

(11) At the time of said hearing of the above entitled
163 causes and until July 23, 1908, owing to the acts of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company the aforesaid matters could not be pleaded and proven in the above entitled causes, and, owing to the acts of said Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company there was not at that time, and has never since been, until the twenty-third day of July, 1908, any decree or judgment in said action in said Circuit Court which he could plead and prove in the above entitled causes as a bar thereto or for any purpose.

(12) The bill of complaint in said Circuit Court did not allege that the contracts, matters and transactions there complained of were governed by the law of Massachusetts, but on the contrary, the plaintiff in said action in said Circuit Court proceeded on the sole and exclusive ground that the causes of action there sought to be enforced, and the transactions there complained of, arose and were governed by the laws of New York.

(13) The plaintiff in the above entitled causes, the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, by prosecuting to final judgment in another forum an action in equity based on the same cause of action as that in the above entitled causes, and said action having been finally determined adversely to it, is forever estopped and barred against prosecuting the above entitled causes against the defendant herein.

(14) Under and by virtue of the law of the State of New York (which law the defendant herein hereby expressly offers to prove as a fact) the legal effect and operation of said final decree of July 23rd, 1908, in said Circuit Court is to estop and forever bar the plaintiff in any action against this defendant upon either and both of the causes of action set forth in the two (2) bills of complaint now or formerly pending in this Court in the above entitled causes.

Said decree in said action is a conclusive judicial determina-
164 tion that the plaintiff, the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, has no cause of action against the defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, and renders res adjudicata between the plaintiff and this defendant all matters and causes of action complained of or shown by the evidence in the above entitled causes.

(15) The defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, desires to plead to the plaintiff's bills of complaint in the above entitled causes as a bar thereto, and all decrees, if any, now existing or hereafter to exist, in the above entitled causes, said final decree and judgment of July 23rd, 1908, of said Circuit Court. The defendant claims the benefit of all privileges and immunities guaranteed to him by the Constitution and the Acts of Congress of the United States and by Article I, Section X and Article IV, Sections I and II of said Constitution, and by Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment thereto, and all Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution, and the defendant claims that, by virtue of said Constitution and said Articles and Sections thereof and said Acts of Congress, he is entitled to a final adjudication and decree in the above entitled causes dismissing the plaintiff's bills of complaint.

The defendant further claims all the rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed to him by the United States Constitution and the Acts of Congress, and, more especially, by Article I, Section X, Article IV, Sections I and II of said Constitution, and Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment thereto, and all Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of said Constitu-165 tion, and claims that to deny him the right to plead and prove the aforesaid matter in the above entitled causes will deprive him of said Constitutional rights, privileges and immunities.

And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing, the defendant expressly says:

(1) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court is a final bar to the causes of action in issue in the above entitled causes is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(2) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court rendered res adjudicata between the plaintiff and the defendant all contracts, matters and transactions and the alleged cause of action resulting therefrom in issue in the above entitled causes is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(3) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court is an estoppel upon the plaintiff from prosecuting the above entitled causes is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(4) That to deny that the law of New York governed the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled causes is to deny to this defendant the due process of law and the equal protection of the laws under Section I of the Fourteenth

Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the 166 Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(5) That to deny that the law of New York governing the validity of said contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled causes is not finally determined by said decision of the Supreme Court of the United States is to deny to said decision full faith and credit under Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(6) That to determine or find the law of New York governing the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled causes differently from the law of New York, as expressly enunciated by its highest Court prior to the making of said contracts and the execution of said matters and transactions, and to apply such law as so determined or found thereto so as to render such contracts, matters and transactions invalid and voidable when the same were valid and unassailable by the law of New York theretofore enunciated is to impair the obligation of said contracts under Section X of Article I of the Constitution of the United States and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(7) That to deny that the law of New York governed the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled causes, after the plaintiff on the sole ground that the law of New York did govern the same, prosecuted to final decree an action based on the same contracts, matters and transactions and cause of action and thereby released and discharged the estate of said
167 Lewisohn from all liability on account thereof either to the plaintiff or by way of contribution to this defendant is a denial to this defendant of the due process of law, the equal protection of the laws and is an impairment of the obligation of said contracts under Section X of Article I of the Constitution of the United States and under Section 1 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

Wherefore, the defendant says that the said decree in said action is a final bar to the cause of action relied upon by the plaintiff in this cause, and that the defendant's motion should be allowed.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY,
J. W. FARLEY, Of Counsel.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
Suffolk, ss:

SEPTEMBER 1, 1908.

Then personally appeared the above named J. W. Farley, and made oath that he was personally familiar with the matters of fact stated in the foregoing motion and that the same were true to the best of his knowledge, information and belief, before me,—

BURTON E. EAMES,
Justice of the Peace.

168 Supplemental Answer of the Defendant.

And now comes the defendant, Albert S. Bigelow, in the above-entitled cause, and files this further and supplemental answer to the bill of complaint and says:—

That, on or about January 6, 1903, the plaintiff exhibited its bill of complaint in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the last will and testament of Leonard Lewisohn, deceased; that said Leonard Lewisohn is the same person referred to by the plaintiff in the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause; that the allegations set forth in said bill of complaint in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York were, in the first instance, identical mutatis mutandis with the allegations in the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause that said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court was thereafter twice amended 169 by the plaintiff, but said allegations remained substantially the same and throughout said bill of complaint set forth the same cause of action and stated and relied upon the same contracts, acts and transactions as those set forth in the bill of complaint, and as shown by the evidence in the above entitled cause, and the contracts, acts, matters and transactions in which it is alleged in the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause that the defendant Bigelow and said Lewisohn participated, are the same contracts, acts, matters and transactions in which it is alleged in the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court that the defendant Bigelow and said Lewisohn participated. Said contracts, acts, matters and transactions as a result of which it was claimed that the respective defendants were liable to the plaintiff, were non-severable parts of one entire transaction, the relation of the defendant and said Lewisohn to the plaintiff in said transaction was the same, and their respective alleged liabilities to the plaintiff were identical and solely based on the determination of the validity of the said contracts, acts, matters and transactions. A copy of said bill of complaint, together with the amendments thereto, is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit A."

That the said defendants, Lewisohn's executors, appeared and interposed two (2) demurrers to the plaintiff's bill, one of which was stated to be a demurrer to the whole bill and the other of which was stated to be a demurrer to a part of the bill. Copies of said two (2) demurrers are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, "Exhibit B" and "Exhibit B'"; that, after hearing, a decree was entered in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on or about March 24, 1905, sustaining the said demurrers to so much of said bill of complaint as sought rescission and allowing the plaintiff thirty (30) 170 days in which to file an amended bill. A copy of said decree is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit C," and a copy of the opinion of Judge Lacombe ordering said decree is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit C'." Thereafter the plaintiff filed an amended bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, a copy of which is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit D." Thereafter two (2) demurrers were duly filed by the defendants therein, the said Lewisohn's executors, one being a demurrer to the whole bill and the other being a demurrer to a part of the bill. Copies of said two (2) demurrers are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, "Exhibit E" and "Exhibit E'." Thereafter, upon hearing, a decree was entered by said Circuit Court on or about November 18, 1905, by which it was ordered by the Court that the demurrer to the whole of said amended bill of complaint be sustained for want of equity, and that the bill of complaint be dismissed. A copy of said decree is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit F." Thereafter, on or about December 6, 1905, a final and formal decree was entered, dismissing the bill of complaint, a copy of which is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit G." Thereafter, on or about January 3, 1906, the plaintiff filed his petition in said Circuit Court for an appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit from the decree of said Circuit Court dismissing the plaintiff's bill. A copy of said petition for appeal and a copy of the assignment of errors on which said appeal was based are hereto annexed and marked, respectively, "Exhibit H" and "Exhibit I." Thereafter, on or about January 3, 1906, the plaintiff's petition for appeal having been duly allowed, the plaintiff, in accordance with the Statutes of the United States, in such cases made and provided, duly filed its bond to answer for all damages and costs on account of said appeal, and there-

171 upon said appeal and bond, under the Statutes of the United States in such cases made and provided, operated as a writ of supersedeas and vacated said decree. A copy of said bond is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit J" and a copy of said Statutes of the United States is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit J'." Thereafter, on or about December 4, 1906, the said United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, after hearing, rendered an opinion, affirming the decree of the Court below. A copy of said opinion is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit K." Thereafter, on or about December 17, 1906, a decree was entered in said cause by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, affirming the decree of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. A copy of said decree is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit L." Under the law of the United States and of the State of New York governing the procedure in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit and in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York said decree of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit was entered only for the purpose of authorizing and was operative only to authorize a mandate to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. Thereafter on or about January 15, 1907, the plaintiff applied to the Supreme Court of the United States, by motion, for a review of said cause of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company v. Lewisohn theretofore pending in the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York and in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, and therewith filed in the Supreme Court of the United States its petition for a writ of certiorari to be issued in said cause to the United 172 States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. A copy of said petition is annexed hereto and marked "Exhibit M." Thereafter, on or about February 27, 1907, a writ of certiorari issued on said petition, a copy of which writ is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit N." Thereafter, due return having been made to said writ and the entire record hereinbefore described in said cause being before the Supreme Court of the United States for review and after full hearing thereon, the Supreme Court of the United States rendered its decision of said cause, affirming the decree of the Court below. A copy of the opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit O." Thereafter, on May 18, 1908, a mandate was duly issued, remanding the cause to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. A copy of said mandate is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit P." Thereafter, on or about July 23, 1908, pursuant to said mandate, a final judgment and decree, in favor of the defendants in said cause, was duly entered in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York. A copy of said final judgment and decree is hereto annexed and marked "Exhibit Q." And the defendant says that there was no final decree reflecting a final and binding adjudication of the issues in said cause or binding upon the parties thereto between January 3, 1906 (the time when the decree of the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York was vacated by the appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit) and July 23, 1908 (when said Circuit Court entered its final decree aforesaid, pursuant to the mandate ordering the same). Copies of certain additional papers constituting a part of the record in said case in said Circuit Court are hereto annexed and together marked Exhibit R.

173 And the defendant says that the said final judgment and decree entered by the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York and the entire proceedings of said Courts and each of them prior thereto proceeded on the merits of the controversy between the complainant and the defendants therein, and not on any technical or formal ground; said controversy put in issue the validity of all the contracts, acts and transactions in which it is alleged in the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause or shown by the evidence herein that the defendant participated and put in issue all questions as to the liability of this defendant and said Lewisohn as to said contracts, acts and transactions which have been or are raised in the above entitled cause. The issues in the said controversy in said Circuit Court were the same issues which are or have been raised in the above entitled cause and the contracts, acts and transactions complained of in the bill of complaint in said Circuit Court, the validity of which was put in issue in said controversy in said Circuit Court, were identically the same contracts, acts and transactions set forth in the plaintiff's bill in the above entitled cause or shown by the evidence herein; and the defendant says that the said Lewisohn and the defendants in said action in said Circuit Court were, in the acts, matters and transactions complained of therein and in the acts, matters and transactions complained of or in issue herein, the trustees, representatives and agents of this defendant; and this defendant says that he would have been a proper party and was, in fact, a privy to said action and that he participated in the actual defence of said action in the Circuit Court and assumed, with said Lewisohn's Executors, the joint defence thereof, and the defendant, both through his agents and counsel, has, by large expenditure of time and 174 money, contributed to and joined in and taken part in the defence of said action as privy thereto, with the knowledge of the plaintiff, throughout the entire pendency of the aforesaid action in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York, including the defence thereof on appeal and on certiorari and including all matters and proceedings in connection therewith; and the defendant further says that said final judgment and decree of said Circuit Court of July 23, 1908, are in full force and effect and said proceedings have been at all times within the jurisdiction of said Courts and have been carried on in conformity with and according to the due course of law there established and then in force governing the same in the State of New York and in the United States; and the defendant further says that the effect of said decree, under the law and usages of the State of New York, is to make the same final and conclusive against the plaintiff upon the contracts, matters and transactions there complained of and the cause of action set forth in said bill of complaint in said Circuit Court and that said decree is, under the law and usages of the State of New York, effectual to estop and forever bar the plaintiff in any action against the defendant herein upon said contracts, matters and transactions and upon the cause of action set forth in the bill of complaint in this cause or as shown by the evidence herein, and said decree of said Circuit Court is a final judicial determination that the plaintiff has no cause of action against this defendant, on account of the contracts, matters, transactions and causes of action set forth in the plaintiff's bill of complaint in this cause or shown by the evidence herein, and that all the contracts, matters and things complained of in said bill of complaint or shown by said evidence are rendered res adjudicata by said decree, as between the 175 plaintiff and the defendant herein; and this defendant further claims, in connection with the matters hereinbefore set forth, the benefit of Article I, Section X, Article IV, Sections I and II, of the Constitution of the United States, and Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and of all Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution; and this defendant expressly claims that he is entitled to have said decree of said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York of July 23, 1908, given that full faith and credit in this cause which it would have by law or custom in the State of New York, and the defendant says that, by the law of the State of New York, said decree would be a final bar and an estoppel against the plaintiff from proceeding with any action or suit at law or in equity to enforce against the defendant the cause of action in issue herein; and this defendant further says that, if said decree is given that full faith and credit to which the same is entitled under the said provisions of the United States Constitution and Acts of Congress, the contracts, matters, transactions and cause of action in issue upon the pleadings and evidence in the above entitled cause are res adjudicata. And this defendant further says that if said decree is given such full faith and credit, then it is res adjudicata that the law of New York governed said contracts, matters, transactions and cause of action, and that such contracts, matters and transactions were valid and legal transactions in the State of New York, and cannot be here complained of by the plaintiff against this defendant.

The defendant further says that the plaintiff in its bill of complaint in said Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York did not allege that the contracts, mat-176 ters and transactions there complained of and in issue upon the pleadings and evidence in this cause were governed by any law other than the law of the State of New York, but, on the contrary, the plaintiff in said action in said Circuit Court proceeded on the sole and exclusive ground that the causes of action there sought to be enforced and the contracts, matters and transactions there complained of were governed by the laws of the State of New York; and the defendant further says that the plaintiff having prosecuted said cause in said Circuit Court to a final decree on said ground that said contracts, matters and transactions were governed by the law of the State of New York is now estopped from setting up or claiming against the defendant that said contracts, matters and transactions were governed by the laws of Massachusetts or any law other than the law of the State of New York.

And this defendant further says that said decree of said Circuit Court of New York is a bar and estoppel in the above entitled cause, in that the contracts, matters and transactions complained of in the plaintiff's bill in said Circuit Court in New York, and in the plaintiff's bill in this cause or shown by evidence herein were governed by the law of the State of New York, and that at the time, when the acts complained of were done and the contracts complained of were made, it was the law of the State of New York, as shown by the express decisions of the highest Court of that State, that the contract between the plaintiff, on the one side, and the said Lewisohn and your defendant, on the other, and the transactions resulting from the carrying out of the same were legal contracts and transactions in the State of New York and such as not to subject this defendant or the said Lewisohn to any liability to the plaintiff on account thereof; and the defendant says that the decision of the Supreme Court of 177 the United States in said cause in the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York was a final adjudication and application of the law of New York to the contracts, matters and transactions complained of in the plaintiff's bill in said Circuit Court and in issue upon the pleadings and evidence in this cause; and this defendant expressly claims, in connection with the matters herein set forth, the benefit of all privileges and immunities granted to him by Section X of Article I, Sections I and II of Article IV, of the Constitution of the United States, and Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and, also, under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant to, under the authority of and for the purpose of carrying into effect the foregoing provisions of the Federal Constitution.

And, without limitation or waiver of the foregoing, the defendant expressly says:

(1) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court is a final bar to the cause of action in issue in the above entitled cause is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(2) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court rendered res adjudicata between the plaintiff and this defendant all contracts, matters and transactions and the alleged cause of action resulting therefrom, in issue in the above entitled cause is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

178 (3) That to deny that said final decree and judgment of July 23, 1908, of said Circuit Court is an estopped upon the plaintiff from prosecuting the above entitled cause is to deny to said decree full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(4) That to deny that the law of New York governed the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled cause is to deny to this defendant the due process of law and the equal protection of the laws under Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(5) That to deny that the law of New York governing the validity of said contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled cause is not finally determined by said decision of the Supreme Court of the United States is to deny to said decision full faith and credit under Section I of Article IV of the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(6) That to determine or find the law of New York governing the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled cause differently from the law of New York, as expressly enunciated by its highest Court prior to the making of said contracts and the execution of said matters and transactions, and to apply such law as so determined or found thereto so as to render such contracts, matters and transactions invalid or voidable when the same were valid and unassailable by the law of New 179 York theretofore enunciated, is to impair the obligation of said contracts under Section X of Article I of the Constitution of the United States and under Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and under the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

(7) That to deny that the law of New York governed the validity of the contracts, matters and transactions in issue in the above entitled cause, after the plaintiff on the sole ground that the law of New York did govern the same, prosecuted to final decree an action based on the same contracts, matters and transactions and cause of action and thereby released and discharged the estate of said Lewisohn from all liability on account thereof either to the plaintiff or by way of contribution to this defendant is a denial to this defendant of the due process of law, the equal protection of the laws and is an impairment of the obligation of said contracts under Section X of Article I of the Constitution of the United States and under Section I of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and the Acts of Congress enacted pursuant thereto.

By His Solicitors, ALFRED HEMENWAY.
J. W. FARLEY.

——— ———, Of Counsel.

180 EXHIBIT A.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

No. 2.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING CO.
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Amendment to Bill of Complaint.

Now comes the complainant in the above entitled cause before the Rule Day on which the subpœna issued in said cause is returnable and prays to amend the bill of complaint therein as follows:

First. By striking out in the eighth paragraph of said bill of complaint the words "the respondent" between the words "to wit" and the words "Jesse Lewisohn."

Second. By substituting in paragraph nineteenth of the said bill of complaint for the words and figures "thirty-six hundred and nineteen (3619)" the words and figures "thirty-six thousand one hundred and ninety (36190)."

(Signed) BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Solicitors for Plaintiff.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
Of Counsel.

(Signed) CARTER, HUGHES & DWIGHT,
Solicitors for Complainant, 96 Broadway, New York.

CHARLES E. HUGHES,
Of Counsel.

181 Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Bill of Complaint.

THE OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY, a Corporation Duly Organized Under the Laws of the State of New Jersey and a Citizen of Said State, Residing at Jersey City, in the Said State and in the District of New Jersey, Complainant,

against

FREDERICK LEWISOHN, WALTER LEWISOHN, ALBERT LEWISOHN and Philip S. Henry, All Citizens of the State of New York, Residing in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, in the State of New York, and in the Southern District of New York, as Executors of the Last Will of Leonard Lewisohn, Who, at the Time of His Death, was a Citizen of Said State, Residing in Said Borough of Manhattan, Respondents.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York:

And thereupon your orator complains and says:

First. The complainant, the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, is a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and having a usual place of business at Boston, in the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth 182 of Massachusetts, and a citizen of New Jersey, residing at Jersey City, in said State and in the District of New Jersey. Said corporation is the owner of copper mines and smelting works in the Territory of Arizona, and is carrying on the business of mining, smelting and selling copper.

Second. On and prior to March 21, 1895, there existed a certain corporation called the Old Dominion Copper Company, of Baltimore City (hereinafter called the Baltimore Old Dominion Company), organized under the laws of the State of Maryland, and having a usual place of business in said Baltimore. Said Baltimore Old Dominion Company was then the owner of mines and mining claims in Arizona. It had a capital stock of five hundred thousand ($500,000) dollars, divided into twenty-five thousand (25,000) shares of the par value of twenty (20) dollars each. Of said shares there were then owned by the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson, late of said Boston, deceased, about seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17857) shares and the balance of said shares were then owned by one William Keyser, of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland, and others. Said Keyser also then held the title in his own name to certain mines and mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, the New York Mine, the Chicago Mine, the Keystone Mine, and a certain parcel of land near the Bloody tanks, so-called, all in said Arizona, but whether said Keyser held said property solely in his own right or in trust, wholly or in part for others or for said corporation, the complainant is ignorant.

Third. At some time prior to May 24, 1895, one Albert S. Bigelow, of said Boston, and said Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, formed the plan of acquiring all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion 183 Company and all said real estate, title to which then stood in the name of said Keyser, as aforesaid, and of organizing a new corporation to acquire and of selling to such new corporation at a large advance in price, all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and all the real estate held by said Keyser, as aforesaid, and putting upon the market and selling to such of the public as might be induced to buy the same a large number of the shares of such new corporation in order to provide the same with a working capital, and make necessary improvements in the plant, and acquire additional mining claims, and of thereby securing for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit from the purchase and resale to said new corporation to be organized by them of said property; and said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn thereupon conspired together to carry out said plan and thereby to injure said corporation to be formed as aforesaid and the future stockholders in said corporation, and to secure for themselves as promoters and organizers thereof a large secret profit.

Fourth. Pursuant to said plan and conspiracy said Bigelow in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn, at some time prior to May 24, 1895, procured a number of persons whose names are to the complainant unknown, to subscribe to the Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called; said syndicate was formed for the purpose of raising about one million (1,000,000) dollars, or so much thereof as was necessary to carry out said plan and conspiracy of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn above described for the benefit of the members of the syndicate. The terms of said subscription were that the subscribers should pay in fourteen (14) per cent. of the amount of their respective subscriptions on May 27, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds (28⅔) per cent. on July 26, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds 184 (28⅔) per cent. on August 26, 1895, and twenty-eight and two-thirds (28⅔) per cent. on September 24, 1895, and with each of said last three instalments five (5) per cent. interest thereon from May 27, 1895; and that the amount so subscribed and paid in should be used so far as required for the purpose of acquiring the property or all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and that the subscribers to said syndicate should receive in cash or in stock of the new corporation to be formed to purchase said property from said syndicate two million ($2,000,000) dollars to be distributed pro rata according to their several subscriptions. The precise terms of said syndicate agreement are to the complainant unknown, and the complainant has no copy thereof which it can attach hereto, but said respondent well know the terms of said agreement and have a copy of the original thereof in their possession or control.

Fifth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about May 24, 1895, said Bigelow in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn received the first instalment payable by the subscribers to said syndicate amounting to about one hundred and forty thousand ($140,000) dollars. At some time on or about May 2, 1895, said Bigelow in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn, for the purpose of carrying out said plan and conspiracy and the purposes of said syndicate, made an agreement with the executors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson for the purchase from said executors of seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17,857) shares of the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, being five-sevenths (5-7) of the total capital stock of said corporation, at a price not exceeding six hundred and thirteen thousand one hundred and thirty-seven dollars and thirty-nine cents ($613,137.39). The complainant is ignorant of the precise terms of said agreement, but is informed 185 and believes, and therefore charges, that said agreement was in the form of an option for which a sum not exceeding one hundred thousand ($100,000) dollars was paid, under which option said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were entitled to acquire said stock at the price aforesaid by making further payments at a future time or times.

Sixth. At some time prior to July 1, 1895, said Bigelow, in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn, for the purpose of carrying out said plan and conspiracy and for the purposes of said syndicate, made an agreement with said William Keyser and with other persons to the complainant unknown by which said Bigelow and said Lewisohn acquired the remaining two-sevenths (2-7) of all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, to wit, seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares at a price not exceeding one hundred and seventy-five thousand one hundred and eighty-two dollars and eleven cents ($175,182.11). The complainant is unable to state more particularly the terms of said purchase, but the terms thereof are well known to the respondents.

Seventh. At about the time of the purchase from the said Keyser and others of said seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company said Bigelow and said Lewisohn for their common benefit acquired from said Keyser for the same consideration paid for seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7143) shares, but, as they claimed, for their own benefit and not for the benefit of said Old Dominion Syndicate, the parcels of real estate in Arizona, title to which then stood in the name of said Keyser, as above set forth, to wit, the four mining claims known as said Old Dominion Mine, said New York
Mine, said Keystone Mine, and said Chicago Mine, and said 186 parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks. All said real estate was acquired in the name of and was conveyed by said Keyser to said Leonard Lewisohn, but for the common benefits of said Lewis-ohn and said Bigelow, as hereafter set forth, and pursuant to and as a part of the plan and conspiracy and for the purposes hereinafter set forth.

Eighth. On or about July 8, 1895, said Bigelow in conjunction with said Leonard Lewisohn, in pursuance of said plan and conspiracy and for the purpose of carrying out the same for the benefit of themselves and of the subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, caused the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company the complainant herein, to be organized under the general corporation laws of the State of New Jersey. Said corporation was formed by seven persons selected and employed for the purpose by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, to wit, the respondent, Jesse Lewisohn, Allen W. Evarts, Edgar Buffam, Charles W. Welch, Sidney Riddlestorffer, William V. Rowe and William R. Montgomery. None of said several persons, except said Jesse Lewisohn, who was a son of said Leonard Lewisohn, had any actual interest in said corporation or acted in the formation thereof otherwise than as the representative and agent of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn. Each of said individuals nominally subscribed and paid for four (4) shares of the capital stock of said corporation except said Jesse Lewisohn who subscribed and paid for sixteen (16) shares; but in fact all said subscriptions were made for the benefit and at the request of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, and each subscription was paid for by said defendant and said Leonard Lewisohn or one of them.

Ninth. On July 9, 1895, the first meeting of said corporation, organized as aforesaid, was held in Jersey City and all of the 187 said incorporators were then present. By-laws were adopted and upon an election of directors by ballot said seven incorporators above named were duly chosen directors, and it was further voted to increase the capital stock to three million seven hundred and fifty thousand ($3,750,000) dollars divided into one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) shares of twenty five ($25) dollars each. A recess was taken by said meeting, and thereupon said seven directors met and organized and elected officers, to wit, said Allen W. Evarts, president, and said Sidney Riddlestorffer, vice-president, said Jesse Lewisohn, treasurer, and said Edgar Buffam, secretary. Said meeting of directors confirmed the action of the prior meeting of incorporators increasing the capital stock as above set forth. The organization of said corporation and the proceedings of said meetings of incorporators and directors were duly had according to the laws of the State of New Jersey, and the by-laws adopted, as aforesaid, and thereby the complainant became duly organized as a corporation and the individuals above named became the lawful officers of the corporation, holding respectively the offices above named.

Tenth. A meeting of the directors of said complainant corporation, organized as aforesaid, was duly held on July 11, 1895, at the office in New York City of the firm of Lewisohn Brothers, of which firm said Leonard Lewisohn was a member; all of the directors except said Montgomery were present. Pursuant to instructions from said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, the resignation of said Montgomery as a director was presented and duly accepted, and said Bigelow was thereupon chosen a director in his place. Thereupon, pursuant to instructions from said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, the successive resignations of said Rowe as a director, of said 188 Welch as a director, of said Jesse Lewisohn as treasurer and as director, of said Evarts as president, and of said Riddlestorffer as Vice-President and as director were presented and duly accepted, and said Leonard Lewisohn, one Henry M. Whitney, one Thomas Nelson, and one Joseph G. Ray were successively duly chosen directors, and said Thomas Nelson was duly chosen treasurer, and said Bigelow was duly chosen president of said corporation. Said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were present at said meeting, and upon their respective elections as directors took their places in said meeting. All said resignations were duly received and acted on and said elections to fill the vacancies caused by said resignations were duly had pursuant to the laws of the State of New Jersey and the by-laws of said corporation.

Eleventh. At some time prior to July 11, 1895, to-wit, on or about July 8, 1895, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, in pursuance of said plan and conspiracy, completed the purchase of all said shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company upon the terms of the agreement with the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson and with William Keyser and others hereinbefore referred to, and all said stock was delivered and transferred to said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, or to persons designated by them, and the directors and officers of the said Baltimore Old Dominion Company resigned and new directors nominated by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were duly chosen and said Bigelow was duly chosen president and said Allen W. Evarts secretary of said corporation. At the same time, to-wit, on or about July 8, 1895, and prior to July 11, 1895, said Keyser, pursuant to said agreement, conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn said real estate in Arizona above referred to, to-wit, the Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine, and parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, 189 so-called and the legal title to said real estate became vested in said Leonard Lewisohn.

Twelfth. At said meeting of the directors of the complainant corporation on July 11, 1895, above referred to, after the several changes of directors and other officers by resignation above set forth, and after said Bigelow had been elected President of said corporation, there remained present four directors, to-wit, said Bigelow, said Leonard Lewisohn, said Evarts, and said Buffam. Said Evarts was the attorney employed by said Bigelow and said Lewisohn to attend to the incorporation of the complainant corporation and to carry out their said plan and conspiracy; said Buffam was a person selected by them and employed by them to act as director, and assist them in carrying out said plan and conspiracy. The remaining directors were said Thomas Nelson, Henry M. Whitney, and Joseph G. Ray, no one of them was present and each of whom was a subscriber to said Old Dominion Syndicate and interested to assist said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn in their plan to sell said property to the complainant and in the success of said plan and conspiracy.

Thirteenth. At said meeting of the directors of the complainant company on July 11, 1895, after the change of directors and officers above set forth and after said Bigelow had been chosen president as aforesaid, said Bigelow through said Evarts presented to said Board of directors of the complainant an offer to the complainant to sell and convey substantially all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, except the cash assets, to the complainant for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of the complainant corporation to be issued to said Baltimore Old Dominion Company or its nominees. Said offer was signed by said Bigelow as president of and by said Evarts as secretary of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company. A copy of said offer and of the schedule 190 therein referred to is hereto annexed and marked "A" and made a part of this bill of complaint. Upon presentation of said offer, on motion of said Leonard Lewisohn, seconded by said Evarts, it was unanimously voted to accept said offer and to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock in payment for said property, and said Bigelow and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fourteenth. Immediately after the passage of the vote last above referred to at said meeting of the directors of the complainant on July 11, 1898, said Leonard Lewisohn presented to said Board of Directors of the complainant a proposition to sell and convey to the complainant said real estate in Arizona acquired by said Leonard Lewisohn from said Keyser as above set forth, to-wit, said Old Dominion Mine, said New York Mine, said Chicago Mine, said Keystone Mine, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock of the complainant to be issued to said Leonard Lewisohn or his nominees accompanied with a request to issue said shares to said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn. A copy of said proposition is hereto annexed and marked "B" and made a part of this bill of complaint. Upon presentation of said proposition said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn caused the directors of the complainant corporation unanimously to vote to accept said proposition and to issue thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock in payment of said property, and said Bigelow and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fifteenth. Thereafter said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, pursuant to the original plan and conspiracy, and for 191 the purpose of furnishing the complainant corporation, promoted by them as aforesaid, with working capital and with funds required to develop its plants and other properties, caused to be offered twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock of the complainant corporation, not theretofore disposed of, for public subscription and sale at the price of twenty-five (25) dollars per share; and all of said shares were so subscribed for and sold and the price therefor paid by said subscribers to the complainant. Said subscribers and purchasers of said shares were ignorant at the time said shares were offered for subscription and at the time they severally subscribed and paid therefor and received their shares, as hereinafter set forth, of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the promotion and organization of the complainant corporation by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, and the large profit to be made by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn and by the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate therefrom.

Sixteenth. Thereafter the sale and conveyance of the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, included in the offer marked Exhibit "A" and the schedule thereto annexed, was consummated by the transfer of said property to this corporation, and the sale and conveyance of the property included in the proposition of said Leonard Lewisohn marked Exhibit "B" was consummated by the transfer of said property to this corporation. Thereafter, to-wit, on or about September 18, 1895, the Board of Directors of the complainant corporation at a meeting duly called voted at the request of said Baltimore Old Dominion Mining Company to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this complainant to one Philip K. Dumaresq, as representing said corporation as and for the price of said property so transferred and conveyed, and said shares were duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said board of directors of this corporation at said meeting further voted to 192 to issue thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation to said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn as and for the price of said property transferred and conveyed by the latter to this corporation as above set forth, and said shares were thereupon duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said board of directors of this corporation at the same meeting voted to issue twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock thereof to persons who had subscribed therefor, as above set forth upon receiving payment of twenty-five ($25) dollars per share therefor.

Seventeenth. Said property conveyed to the complainant by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company was at the time of such conveyance fairly worth not more than one million (1,000,000) dollars. Said parcels of real estate sold and conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant as aforesaid, to-wit, said several mining claims known as Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, and Keystone Mine respectively, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks so-called, were at the time of such conveyance fairly worth not more than five thousand dollars ($5,000). Said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow knew when they acquired the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said Leonard Lewisohn acquired title to said parcels of real estate, and when said offers to sell to the complainant were made by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and by said Leonard Lewisohn, respectively, that the value of the property referred to in said offers respectively was not in excess of the amounts above specified. The stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate were acquired in the manner aforesaid with intent on the part of said Leonard Lewisohn and of said Bigelow to sell said property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate for a large price.

No disclosure was at any time made to the com-
193 plainant corporation of the fact that said property and said real estate was not of more than the values above given respectively, and by reason of the control by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn of the complainant corporation and its board of directors, as above set forth, said purchase was made without any disclosure to or injury by complainant corporation as to the reasonable value of said properties; and no disclosure was ever made to any of the persons who subscribed for or afterwards purchased shares of stock in the complainant corporation or to any other person of the facts as to the purchase of said properties or as to the reasonable value thereof, and said facts were not known to any of said persons or to any of the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, except said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn.

Eighteenth. By the transactions above set forth, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn carried out their said plan and conspiracy, and having, for the purpose of promoting a corporation and selling to such corporation, at a price much in excess of the cost thereof, the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Mining Company and the property so conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn, acquired all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for the sum of less than eight hundred thousand ($800,000) dollars, and acquired without making any further payment, but for themselves as they claimed, all the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant, and having promoted the complainant corporation and caused the same to be organized, thereupon did sell to it the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation of the par value of twenty-five ($25) dollars each, to-wit, the aggregate par value of two million five hundred thousand ($2,500,000) dollars, and also sold to it all the property conveyed to said Leonard Lewis-194 ohn for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of said stock of the aggregate par value of seven hundred and fifty thousand ($750,000) dollars. And for the purpose of providing the corporation so promoted and formed by them pursuant to and in execution of said plan and conspiracy, to wit, the complainant corporation with working and other capital, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn in further execution and performance of said plan and conspiracy, sold to the public twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock of said corporation so formed as aforesaid, to-wit, this corporation. The shares of this corporation so issued in payment of the property sold to it as aforesaid were at the time of the fair market value of twenty-five ($25) dollars each, and continued for a long time thereafter to be of such or greater value, and said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn thus made for themselves and their associates in said syndicate from the sale of the property conveyed by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the complainant a profit of more than one million five hundred thousand ($1,500,000) dollars, and in addition thereto made for themselves alone on the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant a profit of over seven hundred and fifty thousand ($750,000) dollars.

Nineteenth. The subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate so-called were entitled by the terms of the agreement forming said syndicate to receive each his proportionate share of two million (2,000,000) dollars in repayment of his original advance and his share of profits. To effect this division each member of said Syndicate was permitted to apply for shares of this corporation at par to the amount so payable to him, and said shares were thereupon issued to such applicant in lieu of his proportionate share of said sum. All or substantially all the subscribers to said Syndi-
195 cate availed themselves of this privilege, and so far as such privilege was not availed of the money required was advanced by said Bigelow or others interested, and the corresponding number of shares was issued to the person so advancing the money. Of the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation issued to Philip K. Dumaresq as above set forth, upon and as consideration for the conveyance of all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company as aforesaid, eighty thousand shares were thus distributed to and among the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, or persons exercising the privilege of such members in the manner above set forth. And of this amount more than one-half was a profit made in the manner above described, and said syndicate thereby made a profit of not less than one million ($1,000,000) dollars. Of the eighty thousand (80,000) shares thus divided said Bigelow received as his proportion four thousand (4000) shares, and said Leonard Lewisohn received thirty-six hundred and nineteen (3619) shares. Not less than one-half of the shares so issued direct to said Bigelow and to said Leonard Lewisohn represented and was a profit to them respectively as members of said syndicate from the purchase of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the sale of its property aforesaid, to this corporation, pursuant to the plan and conspiracy formed by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn as hereinbefore set forth.

Twentieth. Said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn by agreement between themselves, and as the complainant is informed and believes without the knowledge or assent of the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, took from the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares issued to Philip K. Dumaresq, as above set forth, ostensibly in payment of expenses and their own services in 196 connection with the matter, the twenty thousand (20,000) shares remaining after dividing eighty thousand (80,000) shares among the members of said Syndicate, as above set forth. The expenses actually incurred by them did not exceed six thousand (6000) dollars. These twenty thousand (20,000) shares were divided between said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, said Bigelow receiving ten thousand nine hundred and forty (10,940) shares as his proportion thereof, and said Leonard Lewisohn nine thousand and sixty (9060) shares as his proportion thereof. Said thirty thousand (30,000) shares issued to said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn from said conveyance of real estate by said

Leonard Lewisohn were also divided between said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, said Bigelow receiving sixteen thousand four hundred and ten (16,410) shares thereof, and said Leonard Lewisohn thirteen thousand five hundred and ninety (13,590) shares.

Twenty-first. Prior to the formation of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, and prior to making the several agreements hereinbefore referred to for the acquisition of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and for the acquisition by said Leonard Lewisohn of said several parcels of real estate in Arizona conveyed to him by said Keyser as aforesaid, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn had formed the plan and intention of organizing a corporation to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and to acquire said several parcels of real estate; and had formed the plan and intention of selling said property and said real estate to such new corporation at a large advance in price and of thereby acquiring and obtaining for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit from such sale to said corporation so to be formed, and of selling to the public a sufficient number of shares in the corporation so formed to provide 197 said corporation with a working capital. And said Bigelow and said Lewisohn formed said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, and purchased said stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said real estate conveyed to said Leonard Lewishon as aforesaid, for the purpose and with the intent of carrying out the prior plan and intention so formed by them as aforesaid, and of selling the property so conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant corporation when the same should be formed, at a large advance in price; and said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn caused the complainant corporation to be organized and to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and to acquire the real estate conveyed by said Keyser to said Leonard Lewisohn, and caused said corporation to offer for sale and to sell to the public sufficient shares, to wit, twenty thousand (20,000) shares to provide it with working and other capital, in the manner aforesaid in further execution and performance of said plan and intention. When said offer was made by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the complainant corporation and when said proposition was made by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant corporation, and when said offer and proposition was accepted, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were in absolute control of the complainant corporation through the ownership by them and their associates of all stock in said complainant corporation then outstanding, and through the selection of a Board of Directors and other officers chosen by them and selected for the purpose of enabling them to carry out said plan, and consisting of themselves, their employees and associates, all of whom were expressly chosen for the purpose of carrying out said plan and intention, and had expressly undertaken to do so; and said offer of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said proposition of said Leonard Lewisohn were accepted by the complainant corporation through its board of directors acted solely at the direction of and pursuant to previous agreement with said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, and for the express purpose of carrying out the said plan and intention of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, and all of said action was taken and was intended by the individuals who took part therein to carry out said plan and intention and to enable said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn and such persons as they had associated with them to make a large profit by the sale of said property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate to the complainant corporation at a price greatly in excess of the cost to said Bigelow and to said Leonard Lewisohn and their associates of all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate. And when said twenty thousand (20,000) shares of stock were offered to and were sold to the public, as above set forth, said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were in absolute control of the complainant corporation, as aforesaid, and said shares were so offered for sale and sold to carry out said plan and conspiracy of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn aforesaid.
198 as above set forth, by the direction of said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, and the other directors in acting thereon

Twenty-second. From July 11, 1895, when said purchase in behalf of the complainant corporation of the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said real estate from said Leonard Lewisohn was consummated, as above set forth, until April 4, 1902, said Bigelow was continuously the president and chief executive officer of the complainant corporation; throughout said period the board of directors of the complainant corporation was continuously composed of persons selected by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn and at all times until April 4, 1902, a large ma-

199 jority of the persons so acting as directors were personal friends of said Bigelow and of said Lewisohn, and had been interested with said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn in the transactions above set forth and had received some share in the profits thereof, and the remaining directors took no active part in the management of the complainant corporation, and were ignorant of the facts hereinbefore set forth. No disclosure was at any time made to any of the subscribers for or to any purchasers of the capital stock of the complainant corporation not disposed of to said Bigelow or said Leonard Lewisohn, or to any purchaser thereof from them or either of them of the profit made by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn, as above set forth, as promoters of the complainant corporation or of any part thereof, and no disclosure was made to those persons other than said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn who shared in the distribution of eighty thousand (80,000) shares of stock distributed to the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate of the profit made by said Bigelow and by said Leonard Lewisohn in the division between them of said additional twenty thousand (20,000) shares derived from the sale of the property formerly held by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company or of the thirty thousand (30,000) shares derived from the sale of the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn, as above set forth, in the proportion of twenty-seven thousand three hundred and fifty (27,350) to said Bigelow and twenty-two thousand six hundred and fifty (22,650) to said Leonard Lewisohn. This complainant had not until after April 4, 1902, any knowledge or information of any of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the profit derived by said Bigelow or by said Leonard Lewisohn in the manner above stated as promoters of this corporation or of any profit having been derived by them, 200 or either of them or by any other person interested or participating in the promotion and organization of this corporation, and immediately upon receiving information relating thereto, the complainant investigated the same and thereupon promptly made demand upon said Bigelow and upon the defendants.

Twenty-third. The property conveyed to the complainant by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as above set forth, consists mainly of the copper mine which was then and ever since has been in active operation, and from which large amounts of ore have since been taken, and upon which large expenditures have been made in the development and establishment of the necessary plant. All the property as conveyed at the time it was sold to the complainant as above set forth was worth not over one million (1,000,000) dollars. The property conveyed to the complainant by Leonard Lewisohn as above stated consists merely of mining claims and a parcel of land for a mill site, all of which property has since said conveyance remained undeveloped and is now in substantially the same condition that it was at the time of the conveyance by said Lewisohn to the complainant. Said property so conveyed was at the time of such conveyance fairly worth not more than five thousand (5000) dollars.

Twenty-fourth. Said Leonard Lewisohn died on March 5, 1902, and was at the time of his death a citizen of the State of New York and a resident of the Borough of Manhattan in the City, County and State of New York. On or about April 4, 1902, the last will and testament of said Leonard Lewisohn was duly admitted to probate in the Surrogates' Court for said County of New York, and on or about April 5, 1902, the respondents herein were duly appointed executors of said will, and letters testamentary were duly issued to them as such by said Surrogates' Court, and they are now 201 such executors and duly qualified and acting as such. All said respondents are citizens of the State of New York and reside in said Borough of Manhattan in the City of New York and State of New York in the Southern District of New York.

Twenty-fifth. After April 4, 1902, and prior to July 24, 1902, the complainant made investigations as to the matters above set forth. In the course of such investigations it applied to said Bigelow for information and access to papers. This information was, as the complainant is informed and believes, referred to the respondents, and said Bigelow subsequently notified this complainant that the respondents were unwilling to permit information or access to papers relating to said matters to be given to the complainant. Thereafter, to wit, on or about July 24, 1902, the complainant by its counsel notified the respondents that the complainant had a claim for a very large amount against them as executors as aforesaid to recover the profits made by said Leonard Lewisohn as above set forth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about August 1, 1902, said respondents informed the complainant's counsel that they believed the claim of the complainant to be absolutely unfounded. Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 12, 1902, the complainant offered to said Bigelow and to the respondents to rescind the sale and conveyance to it from said Leonard Lewisohn of said parcels of real estate in Arizona, to wit, the parcels known as The Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine, and parcel of real estate near the Bloody Tanks, so-called.

Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 18, 1902, said complainant submitted to the counsel for the respondents a full statement of the claim contained in the bill of complaint, and on September 26, 1902, said counsel for the respondents notified the complainant that after a full investigation, the respondents believe, and coun-202 sel had so advised them that the claims made upon them were not valid.

Twenty-sixth. The complainant desires to rescind the sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Leonard Lewisohn, as hereinbefore set forth, and has offered to convey all of said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Leonard Lewisohn, to wit, said parcels known as the Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine, and parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, to said respondents or to such person as they might name upon receiving from them the consideration paid by this complainant for the conveyance thereof to it, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or upon a proper accounting for said shares, but said respondents have refused to make any such restitution or accounting; and the complainant is still ready and willing, and hereby offers, to convey said last named parcels of real estate to such person as this Honorable Court may direct. Said Bigelow is a citizen and resident of Boston in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and cannot be served with process in this district or in the State of New York.

Twenty-seventh. The complainant says that the shares which it seeks to recover are of great value, to wit, greatly in excess of two thousand (2000) dollars, and that the sum recoverable upon an accounting therefor is very large, to wit, greatly in excess of two thousand (2000) dollars, exclusive in each case of interest and costs.

Wherefore the Complainant Prays:

1. That this Honorable Court will declare said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the com-
203 plainant, as hereinbefore set forth, rescinded, and will direct this complainant upon the return to it of or a proper accounting to it for the consideration for said sale and conveyance, to execute such reconveyance, if any, of said several parcels of real estate to such person or persons as this Honorable Court shall think proper.

2. That said respondents, in their capacity of executors of the Will of said Leonard Lewisohn, be required to return to the complainant the consideration paid by this complainant for said conveyance, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or if, and so far as said shares are no longer in their control, to account to the complainant therefor.

3. In the alternative, in case this Honorable Court shall deem that the complainant has not rescinded and is not entitled to rescind said sale or conveyance of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant as above set forth, that this Honorable Court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the complainant by reason of the sale of said parcels of real estate as above set forth, and will by its decree establish the right of the complainant to recover said amount and order said respondents, in their capacity of executors of the will of the said Leonard Lewisohn, to pay said amount to it.

4. For such other relief as to this Honorable Court shall seem meet.

And may it please your Honors to grant unto the complainant a writ of subpœna ad respondendum directed to said respondents Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn, and Philip S. Henry, commanding them each to be and appear in this Honorable Court on a day certain therein to be named to answer 204 this bill of complaint, but not under oath, an answer under oath being specially waived, and to abide by and perform such orders and decrees as may be made herein.

(Signed) OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING CO.
By BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
(Its Solicitors),
220 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.
CARTER, HUGHES & DWIGHT,
Solicitors for Plaintiff,
106 Broadway.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
Of Counsel for Plaintiff:
CHARLES E. HUGHES,
Counsel for Plaintiff.

A.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a Corporation Organized and Existing Under the Laws of the State of New Jersey:

The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, a corporation organized and existing under the Laws of the State of Maryland being the owner of certain mines and mining properties at Globe in the territory of Arizona described in the annexed schedule and of machinery, lumber, wood, tools, implements and other personal property for use for and in connection with the operation and maintenance thereof, hereby makes the following proposition. To convey, assign and transfer all its property, both real and personal of every kind and nature whatsoever and wheresoever
205 situated, by good and sufficient deeds and instruments properly executed so as to convey absolute title thereto to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company upon receiving from said Company one hundred thousand shares of its capital stock to be issued to the said Old Dominion Copper Company or to its nominees.

It being understood that the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company shall assume all obligations of the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City incurred since the first day of June, 1895, and shall be entitled to all earnings and profits of said Company since that date.

July eleventh, 1895.

A. B. BIGELOW, President.
A. W. EVARTS, Secretary.

Schedule.

First. The Globe Mine patented by the United States Government to W. B. Reagan on the 18th day of October, 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona, on the 19th day of November, 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said mine.

Second. The Globe ledge mine patented by the United States Government to Benjamin W. Reagan, on the eighteenth day of October, 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona on the nineteenth day of November, 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said mine.

Third. The Copper Jack Mill site of which the location is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, 206 in Book 2 of Record of Mines, at page 311, and to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said mill site and upon which the smelting works formerly owned by the Old Dominion Copper Company are situated.

Fourth. The Globe Mill site of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Record of Mines at page 311, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said mill site.

Fifth. The Globe Ledge Mill site of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Record of Mines at page 310, to which record reference is hereby made for a description of said mill site.

Sixth. The South East Globe Mine of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Record of Mines, page 312, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said mine.

Seventh. All of the certain mining claim known as the Interloper in Globe District Record on page- 116, 117, in Book 3, reference to which will more fully show being the same property conveyed to William Keyser by Thomas H. Mason by deed bearing date January 3rd, 1887, and recorded at page 586, Book 2, Record of Deeds to Mines Gila County Arizona Territory.

Eighth. The Fraction Mine of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County Arizona in Book 2 of Record of Mines at page 569, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said mine.

Ninth. The Alice Mine or Lode located October 10th, 1875, by A. R. Hammond and J. W. Reed and notice of location recorded in Book I, page 131, Globe District Mining Records (now a 207 part of the records of Gila County), and located February 28, 1879, notice of location recorded in Book 5, Globe District

Mining record (now a part of the records of Gila County), on pages 184 and 185, said mine or lode being more particularly described in the last mentioned notice of location as follows, to wit:

Commencing at this monument of stone in a gulch being the centre of southwest end of claim and upon which this notice is posted, thence southeast 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence northeast 1400 feet to a monument of stones, thence northwest 300 feet to a monument of stones, being the centre of the northeast end of claim; thence northwest 300 feet to a monument of stones; thence southwest 1400 feet to a monument of stones under a tree; thence southeast 300 feet to the place of beginning, being the same mining claim conveyed to Michael H. Simpson, deceased, by deed of the Globe City Mining Company, dated July 1st, 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds to Mines, Book 2, page 227, etc.

Tenth. The mining claim called and known as the Hypathia Mine, situate, lying and being in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Territory of Arizona and more particularly described in the notice of location recorded at page 55, Book 2 Record of Mines, Gila County Records to which record reference is made for a more definite description of said mine. Said mine was formerly known as the Southwest Alice Mine, being the same mining claim conveyed to said Michael H. Simpson, lately deceased, by deed of William H. Cook dated November 18th, 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds, Book 2, page 305.

B.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company:

I hereby offer to convey the following described property now owned and held by me upon receiving thirty thousand shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting
208 Company to be issued to me or to my nominees.

First. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, entry number 267, Lot 45, situated in Globe Mining District Gila County, Arizona.

Second. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, at the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, entry 268, lot 46, in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

Third. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office of Tucson, Arizona, entry 269, lot 51, in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Fourth. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1885, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, entry 384, Lot 54, in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Fifth. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company, deed recorded in Book 1 of Deeds to Real Estate at pages 126 and 127, in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land.

New York, July 11, 1895.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

Please issue said thirty thousand shares of stock to Mr. A. S. Bigelow and myself.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

209 EXHIBIT B.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING CO.
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Defendants' Demurrer to the Whole Bill.

The Joint and Several Demurrer of Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the Last Will of Leonard Lewisohn, the Defendants Above Named.

These defendants respectively by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in the said plaintiff's bill to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, demur thereto, and for cause of demurrer show that it appears by said bill that the same sets up against the defendants different and distinct causes which are inconsistent with each other and cannot properly be joined; that different reliefs inconsistent with each other are prayed for, and that the said bill is altogether multifarious.

Wherefore, and for divers other good causes of demurrer appearing in the said bill these defendants respectively demur thereto and humbly demand the judgment of this Court whether they shall be compelled to make any further or other answer to the said bill, and pray to be hence dismissed with their costs and charges 210 in this behalf wrongfully sustained.

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for Defendants.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Frederick Lewisohn makes solemn oath, and says, that he is one of the above named defendants, and that the foregoing demurrer is not interposed for delay, and that the same is true in point of fact.

FREDERICK LEWISOHN.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 5th day of March, 1903.

MORRIS MAYER.
[L. S.] Notary Public, N. Y. County.

I hereby certify That in my opinion the foregoing demurrer is well founded in point of law.

EDWARD LAUTERBACH,
Of Counsel for Defendants.

EXHIBIT B.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Defendants' Demurrer to a Part of the Bill.

The defendants by protestation not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be true in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, and not waiving his demurrer to the whole bill, but insisting and relying thereon, further demur to so much of said bill as seeks to have the sale of certain parcels of real estate * * * conveyed to the plaintiff by Leonard Lewisohn rescinded, and to have the defendants ordered to return to the plaintiff the consideration paid by the plaintiff for said conveyance; and for causes of demurrer the defendants show:

1. That the plaintiff has not, in and by said bill, stated such a case as entitled it to the aforesaid relief against the defendants.

2. That it appears by said bill that one Albert S. Bigelow therein referred to is an indispensable party defendant to said bill so far as it seeks the rescission of the aforesaid sale, but that he has not been made a party defendant.

Wherefore, the defendants demur to so much of the complainants bill as is above specified, and demands judgment of this court, whether he shall make any further or other answer to such part of said bill as is so demurred unto as aforesaid, and prays to be hence dismissed with their costs in this behalf sustained.

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for the Defendants.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Frederick Lewisohn makes solemn oath, and says, that he is one of the above-named defendants, and that the foregoing demurrer is not interposed for delay, and that the same is true in point of fact.

FREDERICK LEWISOHN.

212 Subscribed and sworn to before me this 5th day of March, 1903.

[L. S.]

MORRIS MEYERS,
Notary Public, New York County.

I hereby certify that in my opinion the foregoing demurrer is well founded in point of law.

EDWARD LAUTERBACH,
Of Counsel for Defendants.

EXHIBIT C.

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States of America for the Southern District of New York, in the Second Circuit, Held at the United States Court House, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on ——, the Twenty-Fourth Day of March, 1905, in the Year of Our Lord One Thousand Nine Hundred and Five.

Present, Hon. E. Henry Lacombe, Circuit Judge.

In Equity. No. 8333.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING & SMELTER COMPANY, Complainant,
against
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al., Defendants.

The demurrer of the defendants to a part of the bill of complaint, and the demurrer of the defendants to the whole of the bill of complaint having come duly on for hearing, and after hearing Eugene Treadwell, Esq., of counsel for the defendants, in support of the demurrer to a part of the bill of complaint, and Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., of counsel for the complainant, in oppo-

213 sition thereto, and the consideration by the Court of the demurrer to the whole bill of complaint at this time having been waived in open Court by the Counsel for the respective parties, and the premises having been duly considered, it is Ordered by the Court, that the demurrer to so much of said bill as seeks rescission be and the same is hereby sustained, with leave to complainant to serve an amended bill of complaint within thirty days from the entry of this order, and the defendants to have leave within thirty days of the service of such amended complaint to answer, plead, demur or take such other proceeding as they may deem advisable. It is Further Ordered, that the defendants do recover against the said complainant their costs and charges by them upon the said demurrer to be taxed, such costs to abide the event of this suit.

Further Ordered, that in event of the complainant's failure to serve an amended complaint within thirty days from the date of the entry of this order, as above provided, the bill of complaint be dismissed and defendants have execution for costs thereon.

E. M. LACOMBE,
U. S. Circuit Judge.

March 24, 1905.

Approved as to form.
LOUIS D. BRANDEIS,
Counsel for Complainant.
HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for Defendants.

214 EXHIBIT C.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING CO.
v.
LEWISOHN et al.

On Demurrer to a Bill of Complaint against the Executors of Leonard Lewisohn, Deceased.

Edward Lauterbach, in support of demurrer.
Louis D. Brandeis, opposed.

LACOMBE, Circuit Judge:

It was conceded by complainant upon the argument that the bill prayed no relief except rescission of a contract for the sale of certain mining rights and a parcel of real estate in Arizona. Irrespective of such concession, the court would be inclined so to construe the bill. Therefore the objection that it is multifarious cannot be sustained.

The demurrer asserts that the complainant has not by the bill stated such a case as entitles it to have such contract and sale rescinded. This sufficiently challenges the equity of the bill. The facts as averred in the bill are as follows: The deceased, Leonard Lewisohn, and one Albert S. Bigelow were the promoters of the complainant company, and caused it to be organized under the laws of New Jersey on July 8, 1895, by seven persons selected and employed for said purpose, none of whom had any actual interest in the corporation, or acted in the formation thereof other than as the representative and agent of the promoters. Forty shares were nominally subscribed and paid for by these persons, but in fact all of said subscriptions were made for the benefit and at the request of Bigelow and Lewisohn, and each subscription was paid for by them.

The company having been organized, elections for officers and 215 directors ensued, as a result of which, on July 11, 1895, Bigelow and Lewisohn both became directors, and Bigelow the president of the company. Prior to July 11th they had become the owners of several mining claims and a parcel of real estate in Arizona, which were worth on that day, as the bill alleges, not more than $5000. On that day, at a directors' meeting attended by themselves and two of their dummy directors, they sold and conveyed to the corporation the said mining claims and real estate for 30,000 shares of the capital stock of the par value of $25 a share. Thereafter, at times not specified, additional shares of capital stock (to the amount of 20,000) were from time to time offered and sold to the public at par, to obtain working capital. The bill also alleges a similar sale, for stock, on July 11th, of a mine owned by the promoters, at an excessive valuation, but no relief is prayed as to that transaction. The prayer of the bill is that the sale of the mining claims and real estate be rescinded, the property reconveyed, and the shares of stock returned or accounting had therefor, or, in the alternative of rescission, that the court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the complainant, and decree therefor.

Whether the contract for the sale of the real estate was voidable, so as to give the corporation the right to rescind or to demand damages, must be determined under the conditions which existed when it was made. Ordinarily, when a director or promoter contracts to sell property to his corporation, the corporation not being independently represented, it may rescind the contract, upon the theory, of course, that the relation between the parties is fiduciary, and that the other stockholders and subscribers to the stock are to be protected against an abuse of trust. But where there are no other stockholders nor subscribers, there is no one who is deceived, no stock-
216 holder or subscriber who is defrauded, since all the profit put into one pocket by the "faithless" directors is taken out of their other pocket as the sole stockholders. This principle is abundantly established by decisions controlling here, so it will be unnecessary to cite numerous authorities from other courts. In Foster v. Seymour (C. C.), 23 Fed. 65, which was decided in this court (Wallace, J.), the facts were very similar, except that the sale was for scrip, the stock not having yet been issued. The court said:

"There was no fraud on the corporation. At the time the scrip was exchanged for the mining property, the trustees were all there were of the corporation. There were no stockholders unless they were stockholders. What was done was done by the corporation. By the exchange the corporation got the mining property, and gave it back again to those from whom it got it, divided into 100,000 shares of the nominal value of $100 each."

And it held that whether or not a subsequent purchaser of stock could recover against those who had misled him—against the corporation or the trustees—"the corporation has no cause of action against the trustees." Subsequently the same question came before the Court of Appeals in this circuit (McCracken v. Robinson, 57 Fed. 375, 6 C. C. A. 400), where as the court expressed it—

"When they entered into the contracts they owned the corporation and all its stock, and represented only themselves. While directors in fact, they were principals in name."

It was held that in such a case the rule prohibiting persons in a fiduciary relation from contracting for their own advantage in the name of their beneficiaries had no application.

217 This demurrer to the bill is well taken, and it is therefore unnecessary to discuss the special demurrer as to defect of parties. The bill is dismissed, with costs.

Exhibit D.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity. No. 8333.

Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company
v.
Frederick Lewisohn et al.

Amended Bill of Complaint.

To the Honorable the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York:

The Old Dominion Mining and Smelting Company, a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and a citizen of said State, residing at Jersey City, in said State, and in the district of New Jersey, complainant, against Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, all citizens of the State of New York, residing in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, in the state of New York, and in the Southern District of New York, as executors of the last will of Leonard Lewisohn, who, at the time of his death, was a citizen of said State, residing in said Borough of Manhattan, respondents—

And thereupon your orator complains and says:

First. The complainant, the Old Dominion Copper Min-
218 ing and Smelting Company, is a corporation duly organized under the laws of the State of New Jersey, and having a usual place of business at Boston, in the County of Suffolk and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and a citizen of New Jersey, residing at Jersey City, in said State and in the District of New Jersey. Said corporation is the owner of copper mines and smelting works in the Territory of Arizona, and is carrying on the business of mining, smelting and selling copper.

Second. On and prior to April 30, 1895, there existed a certain corporation called the Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City (hereinafter called the Baltimore Old Dominion Company), organized under the laws of the State of Maryland, and having a usual place of business in said Baltimore. Said Baltimore Old Dominion Company was then the owner of mines and mining claims in Arizona. It had a capital stock of five hundred thousand ($500,000) dollars divided into twenty-five thousand (25,000) shares of the par value of twenty (20) dollars each. Of said shares there were then owned by the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson, late of said Boston, deceased, about seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17,857) shares and the balance of said shares were then owned by one William Keyser of Baltimore, in the State of Maryland. Said Keyser also then held the title in his own name to certain mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, the New York Mine, the Chicago Mine, the Keystone Mine, and a certain parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, all in said Arizona. Said Keyser held said property for the benefit of himself and of the estate of said Michael H. Simpson.

Third. At some time prior to May 4, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn, deceased, and one Albert S. Bigelow, of said Boston, formed the plan of acquiring all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as aforesaid, and of organizing a new corporation 219 to acquire and of selling to such new corporation at a large advance in price all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and in order to provide the same with a working capital of causing said new corporation to offer for subscription for cash to such of the public as might be induced to subscribe for the same a large number of the shares of such new corporation not previously issued in payment for said property, and of thereby securing for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit by such persons and the subsequent sale to said new corporation to be organized by them of said property, and of obtaining from the subscribers for shares to be issued for cash the means of operating said mines; and said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow thereupon conspired together to carry out said plan and thereby to injure said corporation to be formed as aforesaid and the future stockholders in said corporation and to secure for themselves as the promoters and organizers thereof a large secret profit.

Fourth. Thereafter, pursuant to said plan and conspiracy, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow at some time prior to May 24, 1895, procured an option to purchase from the executors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson said seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17,857) shares for seven hundred and fourteen thousand two hundred and eighty-five (714,285) dollars, and formed a syndicate known as the Old Dominion Syndicate, for the purpose of raising the money necessary to purchase said shares. Said syndicate was formed in order, by purchasing said shares pursuant to said option, to carry out the plan and conspiracy of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow above described for the benefit of themselves and of such persons as might become members of said syndicate. Said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow, pursuant to said 220 plan and conspiracy prior to May 24, 1895, induced a large number of persons to subscribe to and join said syndicate, upon the terms that the members of the syndicate should pay in fourteen (14) per cent. of the amount of their respective subscriptions or interests therein on May 27, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds ($28\frac{2}{3}$) per cent. on July 26, 1895, twenty-eight and two-thirds ($28\frac{2}{3}$) per cent. on August 25, 1895, and twenty-eight and two-thirds ($28\frac{2}{3}$) per cent. on September 24, 1895, and with each of said last three instalments five (5) per cent. interest thereon from May 27, 1895. It was understood and agreed between the members of said syndicate and said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow, and the intention in forming said syndicate was that the amounts so subscribed and paid in should be used so far as required for the purpose of acquiring the property or all or the greater part of the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and disposing of said property to a new corporation at a large advance in price and that the members of said syndicate should receive in cash or in stock of the new corporation to be formed to purchase said property as aforesaid the profit made by such sale to a new corporation pro rata according to their several subscriptions or interests.

Fifth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about May 27, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow received the first instalment, payable by the persons who up to that time had become members of said syndicate, amounting to about one hundred thousand (100,000) dollars. On or about May 28, 1895, said Bigelow, in behalf of himself and of said Leonard Lewisohn and of their associates in said Old Dominion Syndicate, and of such persons as might thereafter become associated with them in said syndicate paid, in large part from the funds received from members of said syndicate other than said Bige-
221 low and said Lewisohn, to the executors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson, in accordance with the terms of said option for the purchase of said seventeen thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven (17,857) shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company the sum of one hundred thousand (100,000) dollars, and delivered to said executors three notes each for two hundred and four thousand seven hundred and sixty-one and 66/100 (204,761.66) dollars, all dated May 28, 1895, and payable sixty (60), ninety (90) and one hundred and twenty (120) days after date, respectively, made by said Leonard Lewisohn and endorsed by said Bigelow and by Lewisohn Brothers, a corporation. Said payment was made and said notes were made, endorsed and delivered in pursuance of and for the purpose of carrying out said original plan and conspiracy. Upon said payment and delivery of said notes all said shares of stock were deposited with the Old Colony Trust Company in said Boston, to be by it delivered upon payment of all said notes.

Sixth. On or about June 13, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow, for the purpose of carrying out said plan and conspiracy, and for the purposes aforesaid of said syndicate, made an agreement with said William Keyser, whereby said Keyser undertook to sell to said Leonard Lewisohn and his associates seven thousand one hundred and forty-three (7,143) shares of stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, being all the remainder of the stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, for two hundred and eighty-five thousand seven hundred and fifteen (285,715) dollars, payable forty thousand (40,000) dollars on June 20, 1895, and the balance by three promissory notes each for eighty-one thousand nine hundred and five (81,905) dollars, payable thirty (30), sixty 222 (60) and ninety (90) days after date, respectively, with the privilege of anticipating any payments. Said Keyser further agreed on payment of said cash and delivery of said notes to deposit all of said shares with the Old Colony Trust Company in said Boston, to be delivered upon final payment of all said notes. By said agreement said Keyser further undertook to convey to said Leonard Lewisohn or his order without any further consideration than the purchase of said stock all the interest of said Keyser, alleged to be one-half, in said Old Dominion Mine, Keystone Mine, New York Mine and Chicago Mine. Said agreement was made with the intention of providing the means for paying for said stock from the sums to be paid by subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate and of dealing with said stock in the same manner as with the stock of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company purchased from said executors. Thereafter, to provide the means of paying said Keyser for said stock, said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow induced a number of additional persons to subscribe to said syndicate and receive from such subscribers to said syndicate further large sums for the first instalment payable on such subscriptions, and said Bigelow on or about June 20, 1895, in behalf of himself and of said Leonard Lewisohn and of their associates in said Old Dominion Syndicate and of such persons as might thereafter become associated with them in said syndicate, paid, in large part from the funds received from subscribers to said syndicate other than himself and said Leonard Lewisohn, said sum of forty thousand (40,000) dollars and a further sum in anticipation of the first of said notes and delivered two other notes in conformity with said agreement, and said stock was deposited with said Old Colony Trust Company to be delivered as aforesaid. Said payment was made and said notes were made and delivered in pursuance 223 of and for the purpose of carrying out said original plan and conspiracy.

Seventh. When said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow first obtained said agreement for the sale by the executors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson, they did not know that said four mining claims and said parcel of real estate were owned by said Keyser for the benefit of himself and said executors. Thereafter and on or about June 13th they learned that such was the case and formed the plan of securing said claims and parcel of real estate without the payment of any additional consideration and of selling the same for a large profit to the corporation to be formed to acquire the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company as above set forth. In pursuance of this plan and conspiracy they required said Keyser to undertake to convey said claims and real estate to them without payment of any additional consideration upon said executors assenting thereto. Thereafter, on or about June 14, 1895, they induced said executors to and said executors did agree that all interest of theirs in said four mining claims known as the Old Dominion, Keystone, New York and Chicago Mines and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, legal title to all of which was then in said Keyser as above set forth, should be transferred without any further consideration than the purchase of said shares of stock from said executors.

Eighth. On or about June 20, 1895, a meeting of the directors of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was duly held at Baltimore. At said meeting two of the five directors of said corporation and the president and treasurer thereof resigned and their resignations were duly accepted. Said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn were thereupon duly elected directors and duly elected president and treasurer respectively, of said corporation, and the then remaining old 224 directors tendered their resignations to take effect when desired by said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow. One Allen W.

Evarts, an attorney employed by said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow, was also duly elected secretary of said corporation. At the same time, to wit, on or about June 20, 1895, said William Keyser, pursuant to his said agreement and the agreement of the exectuors of the will of said Michael H. Simpson and without the payment of any consideration other than the payment for the stock in said Baltimore Old Dominion Company purchased as aforesaid, conveyed and transferred to said Leonard Lewisohn said four mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, Keystone Mine, Chicago Mine and New York Mine, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called. Said conveyance was made to said Leonard Lewisohn and the title to said property was acquired by him for the common benefit of himself and said Bigelow, as hereinafter set forth, and as a part of the plan and conspiracy hereinbefore set forth.

Ninth. On or about July 8, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn, in conjunction with said Bigelow, in pursuance of said plan and conspiracy and for the purpose of carrying out the same for the benefit of themselves and of the subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, caused the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, the complainant herein, to be organized under the general corporation laws of the State of New Jersey. Said corporation was formed by seven persons selected and employed for the purpose by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, to wit, Jesse Lewisohn, Allen W. Evarts, Edgar Buffam, Charles W. Welch, Sidney Riddlestorffer, William V. Rowe, and William R. Montgomery. None of said seven persons except said Jesse Lewisohn, who was a son of said Leonard Lewisohn, had any actual interest in said cor-225 poration or acted in the formation thereof otherwise than as the representative and agent of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow. Each of said individuals nominally subscribed and paid for four (4) shares of the capital stock of said corporation except said Jesse Lewisohn, who subscribed and paid for sixteen (16) shares; but in fact all said subscriptions were made for the benefit and at the request of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and each subscription was paid for by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow or by one of them.

Tenth. On July 9, 1895, the first meeting of said corporation, organized as aforesaid, was held in Jersey City, and all of said incorporators were then present. By-laws were adopted, and upon an election of directors by ballot said seven incorporators above named were duly chosen directors. At said meeting it was further voted to increase the capital stock to three million seven hundred and fifty thousand (3,750,000) dollars, divided into one hundred and fifty thousand (150,000) shares of twenty-five (25) dollars each. A recess was taken by said meeting, and thereupon said seven directors met and organized and elected officers, to wit: Said Allen W. Evarts, president; said Sidney Riddlestorffer, vice-president; said Jesse Lewisohn, treasurer; and said Edgar Buffam, secretary. Said meeting of directors confirmed the action of the prior meeting of incorporators increasing the capital stock, as above set forth. The organization of said corporation and the proceedings of said meetings of incorporators and directors were duly had according to the laws of the State of New Jersey, and the by-laws adopted, as aforesaid, and thereby the complainant became duly organized as a corporation and the individuals above named became the lawful officers 226 of the corporation holding respectively the offices above named.

Eleventh. A meeting of the directors of said complainant corporation, organized as aforesaid, was duly held on July 11, 1895, at the office in New York City, of the corporation known as Lewisohn Brothers, of which corporation said Leonard Lewisohn was general manager; all of the directors except Montgomery were present. Pursuant to instructions from said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, the resignation of said Montgomery as a director was presented and duly accepted, and said Bigelow was thereupon chosen a director in his place. Thereupon, pursuant to instructions from said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, the successive resignations of said Rowe as a director, of said Welch as a director, of said Jesse Lewisohn as treasurer and director, of said Evarts as president, and of said Riddlestorffer as vice-president and as director were presented and duly accepted, and said Leonard Lewisohn, one Henry M. Whitney, one Thomas Nelson, and one Joseph G. Ray, were successively duly chosen directors, and said Thomas Nelson was duly chosen treasurer, and said Bigelow was duly chosen president of said corporation. Said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow were present at said meeting, and upon their respective elections as directors took their places in said meeting. All said resignations were duly received and acted on and said elections to fill the vacancies caused by said resignations were duly had pursuant to the laws of the State of New Jersey and the by-laws of said corporation.

Twelfth. At said meeting of the directors of the complainant corporation on July 11, 1895, above referred to, and after the several changes of directors and other officers by resignation above set forth, and after said Bigelow had been elected president of said cor-
227 poration, there remained present four directors, to wit, said Leonard Lewisohn, said Bigelow, said Evarts and said Buffam. Said Evarts was the attorney employed by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow to attend to the incorporation of the complainant corporation and to carry out their said plan and conspiracy; said Buffam was a person selected by them and employed by them to act as director and assist them in carrying out said plan and conspiracy. The remaining directors were said Thomas Nelson, Henry M. Whitney and Joseph G. Ray, no one of whom was present and each of whom was a subscriber to said Old Dominion Syndicate and interested to assist said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow in their plan to sell said property to the complainant and in the success of said plan and conspiracy, and had been selected by them to fill said positions.

Thirteenth. On or about July 11, 1895, a meeting of the directors of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company was held at the office of said Lewisohn Brothers, in New York City. There were present said Leonard Lewisohn, said Bigelow and one R. Brent Keyser. On motion of said Leonard Lewisohn it was voted to make the complainant corporation the offer, a copy of which is marked "A" and attached to and made a part of this bill of complaint. Said Keyser acted at said meeting merely as a representative of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and voted in favor of making said offer at their request and by their instructions. At said meeting of the directors of the complainant corporation on July 11, 1895, after the change of directors and officers above set forth and after said Bigelow had been chosen president and said Leonard Lewisohn treasurer as aforesaid, said Bigelow through Evarts presented to said Board of 228 Directors of the complainant said offer by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company to sell and convey to the complainant substantially all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, except the cash assets, for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of the complainant corporation to be issued to said Baltimore Old Dominion Company or its nominees. Said offer was signed by said Bigelow as president of, and by said Evarts as secretary of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company. Upon presentation of said offer, on motion of said Leonard Lewisohn, seconded by said Evarts, it was unanimously voted to accept said offer and to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock in payment for said property, and said Bigelow and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fourteenth. Immediately after the passage of the vote last above referred to at said meeting of directors of the complainant on July 11, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn presented to said Board of Directors of the complainant a proposition to sell and convey to the complainant said real estate in Arizona acquired by said Leonard Lewisohn from said William Keyser as above set forth, to wit, said Old Dominion Mine, said New York Mine, said Chicago Mine, said Keystone Mine, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so called, for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock of the complainant to be issued to said Leonard Lewisohn or his nominees, accompanied with a request to issue said shares to said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn. A copy of said proposition is hereto annexed and marked "B" and made a part of this bill of complaint. Upon presentation of said proposition said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow caused the directors of the complainant corporation 229 then present unanimously to vote to accept said proposition and to issue thirty thousand (30,000) shares of the capital stock in payment for said property, and said Bigelow and said Nelson were appointed a committee to supervise and carry out the details.

Fifteenth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about July 18, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, pursuant to the original plan and conspiracy, and for the purpose of furnishing the complainant corporation, promoted by them as aforesaid, with working capital and with funds required to develop its plants and other properties, caused said complainant corporation to offer for subscription and sale at the price of twenty-five (25) dollars per share twenty thousand (20,000) shares of capital stock of the complainant corporation remaining unissued and which had not been issued to or appropriated by said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow and their associates as payment for said properties. All of said twenty thousand (20,000) shares were so subscribed for and sold and the price of twenty-five (25) dollars per share paid therefor to the complainant by said subscribers. Said subscribers for said shares were ignorant at the time said shares were offered for subscription and at the time they severally subscribed and paid therefor and received their shares, as hereinafter set forth of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the promotion and organization of the complainant corporation by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and the large profit to be made by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow and by the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate therefrom and of the facts hereinbefore set forth concerning the acquisition of said four mining claims and parcel of real estate by said Leonard Lewisohn for the benefit of himself and of said 230 Bigelow, and the acquisition thereof by said corporation and the issue of thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock therefor.

Sixteenth. The total subscriptions to the Old Dominion Syndicate amounted to one million (1,000,000) dollars, of which amount said Leonard Lewisohn contributed for his personal account about one hundred ninety-eight thousand and nine hundred and twenty and fifty-five hundredths (198,920.55) dollars, and said Bigelow contributed for his personal account about fifty thousand (50,000) dollars. Payments of the deferred instalments on the subscriptions to said Syndicate were largely anticipated. The three notes payable to the executors of the will of Michael H. Simpson were paid—the note due July 27th on June 20th, the note due August 26th on July 1st, 1895, and the note due September 26th on July 8th, 1895. The two notes payable to William Keyser were paid—the note due August 26th, on July 1st, 1895, and the note due September 25th on July 8th, 1895. All of these payments were made from the funds contributed by the members of said Syndicate or in part from such funds and in part from money advanced by said Lewisohn Brothers or by said Leonard Lewisohn for the purpose, and repaid from the funds of said Syndicate. On or about July 12th, 1895, possession of all of said mining property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, included in the offer marked Exhibit "A" and schedule thereto annexed, and of said four mining claims and said parcel of real estate included in the proposition of said Leonard Lewisohn, marked Exhibit "B," was delivered to the complainant corporation, and thereafter said sales were consummated by delivery of deeds of conveyance of said several properties. Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 18, 1895, said Leonard Lewisohn and Bigelow caused the Board of 231 Directors of the complainant corporation, at a meeting duly called, to vote to issue one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this complainant to one Philip K. Dunaresq, the nominee of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as and for the price of said property so transferred and conveyed, and said shares were duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow further caused said Board of Directors of this corporation at said meeting to vote to issue thirty thousand

(30,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation to said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow as and for the price of said property transferred and conveyed by the latter to this corporation, as above set forth, and said shares were thereupon duly issued pursuant to said vote. And said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow further caused said Board of Directors of this corporation at the same meeting to vote to issue the remaining twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock thereof to persons who had subscribed therefor, as above set forth, upon receiving payment of twenty-five (25) dollars per share therefor, and said shares were thereafter duly issued to said persons and paid for by them.

Seventeenth. Said property conveyed to the complainant by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company was at the time of such conveyance fairly worth not more than one million (1,000,000) dollars. Said parcels of real estate sold and conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant as aforesaid, to wit, said several mining claims known as the Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine and Keystone Mine, respectively, and said parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, were at the time of such conveyance together fairly worth not more than five thousand 232 (5000) dollars. Said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow knew when they acquired the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company as above set forth, and when the title to said parcels of real estate was conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn as aforesaid, and when said offers to sell to the complainant were made in the name of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and by said Leonard Lewisohn, respectively, that the value of the property referred to in said offers respectively was not in excess of the amounts above specified. The stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate were acquired in the manner aforesaid with intent on the part of said Leonard Lewisohn and of said Bigelow to sell said property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said parcels of real estate for a much larger price than the cost thereof to them. No disclosure was at any time made to the complainant corporation of the fact that said property and said real estate were of values not greater than the values above given respectively, and by reason of the control by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow of the complainant corporation and of its Board of Directors, as above set forth, said purchases were made without any disclosure to or inquiry by the complainant corporation as to the reasonable value of said properties, and no disclosure was ever made to any of the persons who subscribed for or afterwards purchased shares of stock in the complainant corporation or to any other persons of the facts as to acquisition of said properties by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow and the purchase of said properties by the complainant corporation or as to the reasonable value thereof, and said facts were not known to any of said persons or to any of the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, except said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow.

Eighteenth. By the transactions above set forth said Leon-233 ard Lewisohn and said Bigelow carried out their said plan and conspiracy, and having for the purpose of promoting a corporation and selling to such corporation at a price much in excess of the cost thereof, the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the property so conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn, acquired all the capital stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for the sum of one million (1,000,000) dollars, and acquired for the same consideration and without making any further payment, but for themselves, as they claimed, all the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant, and having promoted the complainant corporation and caused the same to be organized, thereupon did sell to it the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company for one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation of the par value of twenty-five (25) dollars each, to wit, the aggregate par value of two million five hundred thousand (2,500,000) dollars, and also sold to it all the property conveyed to said Leonard Lewisohn for thirty thousand (30,000) shares of said stock of the aggregate par value of seven hundred and fifty thousand (750,000) dollars. And for the purpose of providing the corporation so promoted and formed by them pursuant to and in execution of said plan and conspiracy, to wit, the complainant corporation, with working and other capital, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow in further execution and performance of said plan and conspiracy, caused the corporation so formed, to wit, the complainant corporation, immediately to offer the twenty thousand (20,000) shares of its capital stock then remaining unissued as aforesaid for subscription at twenty-five (25) dollars per share, and caused said corporation to issue said twenty thousand (20,000) shares to subscribers who were ignorant at 234 the time they subscribed and at the time they paid therefor of the facts above set forth. The shares of this corporation so issued in payment for the property sold to it as aforesaid were at the time of the fair market value of twenty-five (25) dollars each, and continued for a long time thereafter to be of such or greater value, and said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow thus made at the expense of the complainant corporation from the sale of the property conveyed by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the complainant a profit of more than one million five hundred thousand (1,500,000) dollars and in addition thereto made from the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant a profit of over seven hundred and fifty thousand (750,000) dollars.

Nineteenth. Said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow allotted as a bonus or profit to the subscribers to said Old Dominion Syndicate to be divided among them in proportion to their respective subscription forty thousand (40,000) shares of the stock of the complainant corporation part of the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares received as payment for the property conveyed by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and further offered to each member of said syndicate the option of receiving without further payment a like number of additional shares part of said one hundred thousand (100,000) shares or the repayment in money of the amount of his original subscription. Substantially all the subscribers to said syndicate availed themselves of the option to take additional shares and such shares, together with the shares first allotted to them, were transferred to them accordingly from said shares issued to said Dumaresq. To such few as elected to receive back in cash the amount of their subscription said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow caused the complainant corporation to pay such amount in cash from the funds of the complainant corporation and the corresponding shares not taken 235 were transferred to persons who paid cash therefor to the corporation to the amount of the par value thereof. Of the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of the capital stock of this corporation issued to said Dumaresq, as above set forth, upon and as consideration for the conveyance of all the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as aforesaid, eighty thousand (80,000) shares were thus distributed to and among or for the account of the members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so called. Of this amount one-half was a profit made in the manner above described, and said syndicate thereby made a profit of not less than one million ($1,000,000) dollars. Of the eighty thousand (80,000) shares thus divided said Bigelow received as his proportion four thousand (4000) shares and said Leonard Lewisohn for himself and other members of the syndicate operating through him received thirty-six thousand one hundred and ninety (36,190) shares, of which about sixteen thousand (16,000) were retained for his personal account. Not less than one-half of the shares so issued direct to said Bigelow and of the shares issued to and retained by said Leonard Lewisohn represented and was a profit to them respectively as members of said syndicate from the purchase of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and the sale of its property as aforesaid, to this corporation pursuant to the plan and conspiracy formed by said Bigelow and said Leonard Lewisohn as hereinbefore set forth.

Twentieth. Said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow by agreement between themselves, and as the complainant is informed and believes, without the knowledge or assent of the other members of said Old Dominion Syndicate, or of the subscribers for the twenty thousand (20,000) shares of stock issued by the complainant corporation, took from the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares issued to said Dumaresq, as above set forth, and ostensibly in 236 payment of expenses and their own services in connection with the transaction, the twenty thousand (20,000) shares remaining after dividing eighty thousand (80,000) shares among the members of said syndicate, as above set forth. The expenses actually incurred by them did not exceed six thousand (6000) dollars. These twenty thousand (20,000) shares were divided between said Lewisohn and said Bigelow, said Bigelow receiving ten thousand nine hundred and forty (10,940) shares as his proportion thereof, and said Leonard Lewisohn nine thousand and sixty (9060) shares as his proportion thereof. Said thirty thousand (30,000) shares issued to said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow for said conveyance of real estate by said Leonard Lewisohn were also divided between said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, said Bigelow receiving sixteen thousand four hundred and ten (16,410) shares thereof, and said Leonard Lewisohn thirteen thousand five hundred and ninety (13,590) shares.

Twenty-first. Prior to the formation of said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, and prior to obtaining said option for and making the several agreements hereinbefore referred to for the acquisition of the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow had formed the plan and intention of organizing a corporation to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and had formed the plan and intention of selling said property to such new corporation at a large advance in price, and of thereby acquiring and obtaining for themselves and such persons as they might associate with them a large profit from such sale to said corporation so to be formed, and of causing said corporation to retain and forthwith to offer for subscription to persons who might be willing to subscribe and pay therefor, a 237 sufficient number of shares in the corporation so formed to provide said corporation with a working capital. And said Lewisohn and said Bigelow formed said Old Dominion Syndicate, so-called, in order to provide the money with which to carry out said plans, and purchased said stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, for the purpose and with the intent of carrying out the prior plan and intention so formed by them as aforesaid, and of selling to the complainant corporation when the same should be formed the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company at a large advance in price; and said Leonard Lewisohn, and said Bigelow made this agreement for the acquisition and for the conveyance to said Leonard Lewisohn of said four mining claims and parcel of real estate with the purpose and intention of selling said mining claims and parcel of real estate to a corporation to be formed by them for the purposes above set forth, and of taking to themselves a large profit from such sale and with the intention of causing such corporation to retain and offer for subscription as above set forth a large number of shares of its stock; and said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow caused the complainant corporation to be organized and to acquire the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and to acquire the mining claims and real estate conveyed by said Keyser to said Leonard Lewisohn as above set forth, and caused said corporation immediately to offer the twenty thousand (20,000) shares of its capital stock remaining unissued after said purchases as aforesaid for subscription to persons who might be willing to subscribe and pay therefor, in order to provide said corporation with working capital, in the manner aforesaid, all in further execution and performance of said plans and intentions. When said offer was made by said Baltimore Old Dominion Company to the com-
238 plainant corporation, and when said proposition was made by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant corporation, and when said offer and propositions were accepted, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow were in absolute control of the complainant corporation through the ownership by them and their associates of all stock in said complainant corporation then outstanding, and through the selection of a board of directors and other officers chosen by them and selected for the purpose of enabling them to carry out said plan, and consisting of themselves, their employees and associates, all of whom were expressly chosen for the purpose of carrying out said plan and intention, and had expressly undertaken to do so; and said offer of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and said proposition of said Leonard Lewisohn were accepted by the complainant corporation through its Board of Directors, as above set forth, by the direction of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and the other directors in acting thereon acted solely at the direction of and pursuant to previous agreement with said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and for the express purpose of carrying out the said plan and intention of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and all of said action was taken and was intended by the individuals who took part therein to carry out said plan and intention and to enable said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow and such persons as they had associated with them to make a large profit by the sale of said property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, and of said mining claims and real estate to the complainant corporation at a price greatly in excess of the cost to said Leonard Lewisohn and to said Bigelow and their associates of all the stock of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said mining claims and real estate. And when said twenty thousand (20,000) shares of stock remaining unissued after said purchases as aforesaid were of-239 fered for subscription as aforesaid and were issued and sold to the subscribers therefor, as above set forth, said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow were in absolute control of the complainant corporation, as aforesaid, and said shares were so offered for subscription and issued and sold in order to carry out said plan and conspiracy of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow aforesaid.

Twenty-second. From July 11, 1895, when said purchase in behalf of the complainant corporation of the property of said Baltimore Old Dominion Company and of said mining claims and real estate from said Leonard Lewisohn was consummated, as above set forth, until April 4, 1902, said Bigelow was continuously the president and chief executive officer of the complainant corporation; throughout said period the Board of Directors of the complainant corporation was continuously composed of persons selected by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and at all times until April 4, 1902, a large majority of the persons so acting as directors were personal friends of said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and had been interested with said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow in the transactions above set forth and had received some share in the profits thereof, and the remaining directors took no active part in the management of the complainant corporation and were ignorant of the facts hereinbefore set forth. No disclosure was at any time made to any of the subscribers for the twenty thousand (20,000) shares of the capital stock offered for subscription as aforesaid or to any purchasers of said shares of the capital stock of the complainant corporation or to the other members of the Old Dominion Syndicate or to any subsequent purchasers of the shares issued to said Dumaresq or to said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow, and none of said persons in fact knew of the profits made by said Leonard Lewisohn 240 and said Bigelow, from the division between them of said additional twenty thousand (20,000) shares part of the one hundred thousand (100,000) shares issued for the purchase of the property formerly held by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company from the division between them of the thirty thousand (30,000) shares derived from the sale of the property conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn, as above set forth. This complainant had not until after April 4, 1902, any knowledge or information of any of the facts hereinbefore set forth as to the profit derived by said Leonard Lewisohn and said Bigelow or said Leonard Lewisohn in the manner above stated as promoters of this corporation, or of any profit having been derived by them, or either of them, or by any other person interested or participating in the promotion and organization of this corporation, and immediately upon receiving information relating thereto, the complainant investigated the same, and thereupon promptly made demand upon said Bigelow and upon the defendants.

Twenty-third. The property conveyed to the complainant by the Baltimore Old Dominion Company, as above set forth, consists mainly of the copper mine which was then and ever since has been in active operation, and from which large amounts of ore have since been taken, and upon which large expenditures have been made in the development and establishment of the necessary plant. All the property so conveyed at the time it was sold to the complainant as above set forth was worth not over one million (1,000,000) dollars. The property conveyed to the complainant by Leonard Lewisohn as above set forth consisted merely of mining claims and a parcel of land for a mill site, all of which property has since said conveyance remained undeveloped and is now in substantially the same condition that it was in at the time of the conveyance by said Lewisohn to the complainant. Said property 241 so conveyed was at the time of such conveyance fairly worth not more than five thousand (5,000) dollars.

Twenty-fourth. Said Leonard Lewisohn died on March 5, 1902, and was at the time of his death a citizen of the State of New York and a resident of the Borough of Manhattan in the City, County and State of New York. On or about April 4, 1902, the last will and testament of said Leonard Lewisohn was duly admitted to probate in the Surrogate's Court for said County of New York, and on or about April 5, 1902, the respondents herein were duly appointed executors of said will, and letters testamentary were duly issued to them as such by said Surrogate's Court, and they are now such executors and duly qualified and acting as such. All said respondents are citizens of the State of New York and reside in the Borough of Manhattan in the City of New York and State of New York and in the Southern District of New York.

Twenty-fifth. After April 4, 1902, and prior to July 24, 1902, the complainant made investigation as to the matters above set forth. In the course of such investigation it applied to said Bigelow for information and access to papers. This information was, as the complainant is informed and believes, referred to the respondents, and said Bigelow subsequently notified this complainant that the respondents were unwilling to permit information or access to papers relating to said matters to be given to the complainant. Thereafter, to wit, on or about July 24, 1902, the complainant by its counsel notified the respondents that the complainant had a claim for a very large amount against them as executors as aforesaid to recover the profits made by said Leonard Lewisohn as above set forth. Thereafter, to wit, on or about August 1, 1902, said respondents informed the complainant's counsel that they 242 believed the claim of the complainant to be absolutely unfounded.

Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 12, 1902, the complainant offered to said Bigelow and to the respondents to rescind the sale and conveyance to it from said Leonard Lewisohn of said parcels of real estate in Arizona, to wit, the parcels known as The Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine and parcel of real estate near the Bloody Tanks, so-called.

Thereafter, to wit, on or about September 18, 1902, said complainant submitted to the counsel for the respondents a full statement of the claim contained in the bill of complaint, and on September 26, 1902, said counsel for the respondents notified the complainant that after a full investigation the respondents believed, and counsel had so advised them, that the claims made upon them were not valid.

Twenty-sixth. The complainant desires to rescind the sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Leonard Lewisohn as hereinbefore set forth, and has offered to convey all said parcels of real estate conveyed to it by said Leonard Lewisohn, to wit, said parcels known as the Old Dominion Mine, New York Mine, Chicago Mine, Keystone Mine and parcel of land near the Bloody Tanks, so-called, to said respondents or to such persons as they might name upon receiving from them the consideration paid by this complainant for the conveyance thereof to it, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or upon a proper accounting for said shares, but said respondents have refused to make any such restitution or accounting; and the complainant is still ready and willing, and hereby offers to convey said last named parcels of real estate to such persons as this Honorable Court may direct. Said Bigelow is a citizen and resident of Boston in the Common-243 wealth of Massachusetts and cannot be served with process in this District or in the State of New York. The complainant does not in this suit seek any relief as to sale to it of the property of the Baltimore Old Dominion Company or the issue of one hundred thousand (100,000) shares of its capital stock in payment therefor as above set forth or as to any profit made by said Leonard Lewisohn and by said Bigelow or by any other person from such sale, and disclaims all right to any such relief in this suit, having brought a separate suit for the purpose of obtaining such relief.

Twenty-seventh. The complainant says that the shares which it seeks to recover are of great value, to wit, greatly in excess of two thousand (2000) dollars, and that the sum recoverable upon an accounting therefor is very large, to wit, greatly in excess of two thousand (2000) dollars, exclusive in each case of interest and costs.

Wherefore the complainant prays:

1. That this Honorable Court will declare said sale of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant as hereinbefore set forth, rescinded, and will direct this complainant upon the return to it of or a proper accounting to it for the consideration for said sale and conveyance, to execute such reconveyance, if any, of said several parcels of real estate to such person or persons as this Honorable Court shall think proper.

2. That said respondents in their capacity of executors of the will of said Leonard Lewisohn be required to return to the complainant the consideration paid by this complainant for said conveyance, to wit, thirty thousand (30,000) shares of its capital stock, or 244 if, and so far as said shares are no longer in their control, to account to the complainant therefor.

3. In the alternative, in case this Honorable Court shall deem that the complainant has not rescinded and is not entitled to rescind said sale or conveyance of said parcels of real estate conveyed by said Leonard Lewisohn to the complainant as above set forth, that this Honorable Court will ascertain the amount of damages suffered by the complainant by reason of the sale of said parcels of real estate as above set forth, and will by its decree establish the right of the complainant to recover said amount and order said respondents in their capacity of executors of the will of the said Leonard Lewisohn to pay said amount to it.

4. And may it please your Honors to grant unto the complainant a writ of subpœna ad respondendum directed to said respondents Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn, and Philip S. Henry, commanding them each to be and appear in this Honorable Court on a day certain therein to be named to answer this bill of complaint but not under oath, an answer under oath being specially waived, and to abide by and perform such orders and decrees as may be made herein.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY,
By BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
Its Solicitors.

LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.
CHARLES E. HUGHES.

245 (EXHIBIT.)

Schedule.

First. The Globe Mine, patented by the United States Government to B. W. Reagan on the 18th day of October, 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona, of the 19th day of November, 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said mine.

Second. The Globe Ledge Mine, patented by the United States Government to Benjamin W. Reagan on the eighteenth day of October, 1881, by patent recorded in the office of the Recorder of Pinal County, Territory of Arizona, on the nineteenth day of November 1881, to which record reference is made for a fuller description of said Mine.

Third. The Copper Jack Mill site of which the location is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2, of the Record of Mines at page 311, and to which reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site, and upon which the Smelting Works formerly owned by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Co., are situated.

Fourth. The Globe Mill site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 311, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said Mill Site.

Fifth. The Globe Ledge Mill Site, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines at page 310, to which record reference is hereby made for a description of said Mill Site.

Sixth. The Southeast Globe Mine, of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Ari-246 zona, in Book 2 of Records of Mines, at page 312, and reference is hereby made to said report for a fuller description of said Mine.

Seventh. All of the certain Mining claim known as the Interloper in Globe District Records on pages 116 and 117 in Book 3, reference to which will more fully show, being the same property conveyed to William Keyser by Thomas H. Mason, by deed bearing date January 3rd, 1887, and recorded at page 586, Book 2, record of deeds to Mines, Gila County, Arizona Territory.

Eighth. The Fraction Mine of which the location notice is recorded in the office of the Recorder of Gila County, Arizona, in Book 2, of Records of Mines at page 569, to which record reference is hereby made for a fuller description of said mine.

Ninth. The Alice Mine or lode, located October 10th, 1875, by A. R. Hammond and J. W. Reed and notice of location recorded in Book 1, page 131, Globe District Mining Records (now part of the records of Gila County) and relocated February 28th, 1879, and notice of location recorded in Book 5, Globe District Mining Records (now a part of the records of Gila County) on pages 184 and 185, said Mine or Lode being more particularly described in the last mentioned notice of location as follows, to wit: Commencing at this monument of stones in a gulch, being the centre of southwest end of claim, and upon which this notice is posted, thence southeast 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence northeast 1400 feet to a monument of stones, thence northwest 300 feet to a monument of stones, being the centre of the northeast end of claim, thence northwest 300 feet to a monument of stones, thence southwest 1400 feet to a monument of stones, under a tree, thence southeast 300 feet to the place of beginning, being the same mining claim conveyed to Michael H. Simpson, deceased, by deed of the Globe City Mining Company dated July 1st, 1884, and re-247 corded with Gila County Deeds to Mines, Book 2, page 227 et seq.

Tenth. The Mining Claim called and known as Hypathia Mine, situated, lying and being in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Territory of Arizona, and more particularly described in the notice of location recorded at page 66, Book 2, Records of Mines, Gila County, Records, to which record reference is made for a more definite description of said mine. Said mine was formerly known as the Southwest Alice Mine, being the same mining claim conveyed to said Michael H. Simpson, lately deceased, by deed of William H. Cook, dated November 18th, 1884, and recorded with Gila County Deeds, Book 2, page 305.

(EXHIBIT.)

A.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining & Smelting Company, a Corporation, Organized and Existing under the Laws of the State of New Jersey:

The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Maryland being the owner of certain mines and mining properties at Globe in the Territory of Arizona, described in the annexed schedule and of machinery, lumber, wood, tools, implements and other personal property for use for and in connection with the operation and maintenance thereof hereby makes the following proposition. To convey, assign and transfer all its property, both real and personal of every kind and nature whatsoever and wheresoever situated by good and sufficient deeds and instruments properly executed so as to confer absolute title thereto to the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company upon receiving from said Company one hundred thousand shares of its capital stock to be issued to said Old Dominion Copper Company or to its nominees.

248 It being understood that the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company shall assume all obligations of The Old Dominion Copper Company of Baltimore City incurred since the first day of June, 1895, and shall be entitled to all earnings and profits of said Company since that date.

July 11th, 1895.

A. S. BIGELOW, President.

A. W. EVARTS, Secretary.

B.

To the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company:

I hereby offer to convey the following described property now owned and held by me upon receiving thirty thousand shares of the capital stock of the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company to be issued to me or to my nominees.

(EXHIBIT.)

First. The Old Dominion Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry No. 267, Lot 45, situated in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Second. The New York Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry 268, Lot 46, in Globe Mining District in Gila County, Arizona.

Third. The Chicago Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry 269, Lot 51, in Globe Mining District, Gila County, Arizona.

Fourth. The Keystone Mine entered by the Old Dominion Copper Mining Company on the 17th day of December, 1883, in the 249 United States Land Office at Tucson, Arizona, Entry 384, Lot 54, in Globe Mining District, Gila County, of Arizona.

Fifth. A lot or parcel of land situated near the Bloody Tanks, and deeded by E. A. Saxe to the Old Dominion Copper Mining Co., deed recorded in Book 1 of Deeds to real estate at Arizona, and reference is hereby made to said record for a fuller description of said parcel of land.

New York, July 11, 1895.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

Please issue said thirty thousand shares of stock to Mr. A. S. Bigelow and myself.

LEONARD LEWISOHN.

EXHIBIT E.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Defendant's Demurrer to the Whole Bill.

The Joint and Several Demurrer of Frederick Lewisohn, Walter Lewisohn, Albert Lewisohn and Philip S. Henry, as Executors of the Last Will of Leonard Lewisohn, the Defendants Above Named.

These defendants respectively by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in the 250 said plaintiff's bill to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, demur thereto, and for cause of demurrer show:

1. That the complainant has not, in and by said bill, stated such a case as entitled it to any relief against the defendants.

2. That it appears by said bill that the same sets up against the defendants different and distinct causes which are inconsistent with each other and cannot properly be joined; that different reliefs, inconsistent with each other are prayed for, and that the said bill is altogether multifarious.

Wherefore and for divers other good causes of demurrer appearing in the said bill these defendants respectively demur thereto and humbly demand the judgment of this Court whether they shall be compelled to make any further or other answer to the said bill, and pray to be hence dismissed with their costs and charges in this behalf wrongfully sustained.

HOADLEY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for the Defendants.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Frederick Lewisohn makes solemn oath, and says, that he is one of the above named defendants, and that the foregoing demurrer is not interposed for delay, and that the same is true in point of fact.

FREDERICK LEWISOHN.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 5th day of May, 1905.

ERNEST W. BROWN,
Notary Public, N. Y. County.

[SEAL.]

I hereby certify that in my opinion the foregoing demurrer
251 is well founded in point of law.

EDWARD LAUTERBACH,
Of Counsel for Defendants.

EXHIBIT E'.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Defendants' Demurrer to a Part of the Bill.

The defendants by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in the plaintiff's bill of complaint to be true in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, and not waiving his demurrer to the whole bill, but insisting and relying thereon, further demur to so much of said bill as seeks to have the sale of certain parcels of real estate conveyed to the plaintiff by Leonard

Lewisohn rescinded, and to have the defendants ordered to return to the plaintiff the consideration paid by the plaintiff for said conveyance; and for causes of demurrer the defendants show:

I. That the complainant has not, in and by said bill, stated such a case as entitles it to the aforesaid relief against the defendants.

252 II. That it appears by said bill that one Albert S. Bigelow therein referred to is an indispensable party defendant to said bill so far as it seeks the rescission of the aforesaid sale, but that he has not been made a party defendant.

Wherefore, the defendants demur to so much of the complainant's bill as is above specified, and demand judgment of this court, whether he shall make any further or other answer to such part of said bill as is so demurred unto as aforesaid, and pray to be hence dismissed with their costs in this behalf sustained.

HOADLY, LAUTERBACH & JOHNSON,
Solicitors for the Defendants.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
County of New York, ss:

Frederick Lewisohn makes solemn oath, and says, that he is one of the above-named defendants, and that the foregoing demurrer is not interposed for delay, and that the same is true in point of fact.

FREDERICK LEWISOHN.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 5th day of May, 1905.

ERNEST W. BROWN,
[SEAL.] Notary Public, N. Y. County.

I hereby certify that in my opinion the foregoing demurrer is well founded in point of law.

EDWARD LAUTERBACH,
Of Counsel for Defendants.

EXHIBIT F.

At a Stated Term of the Circuit Court of the United States of 253 America, for the Southern District of New York, in the Second Circuit, Held at the United States Court Rooms, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 18th day of November, in the Year of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Five.

Present: Hon. George C. Holt, Judge.

THE OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY, Complainant,
against
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al., Defendants.

The demurrers of the defendants to a part of the amended bill of complaint, and to the whole of the amended bill of complaint, having duly come on for hearing, and after hearing Eugene Treadwell, Esq., of counsel for the defendants, in support of the demurrers, and William H. Dunbar, Esq., and Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., of counsel for the complainant, in opposition thereto, and the premises having been duly considered, it is Ordered by the Court, that the demurrer to the whole of said amended bill of complaint for want of equity, be, and the same is hereby, sustained, and the complainant having heretofore been permitted to amend the bill of complaint to meet the prior decision of this Court sustaining a demurrer herein and dismissing the bill of complaint, it is Further ordered by the Court, that the said bill of complaint be, and the same hereby is dismissed; and it is further ordered that the defendants do recover against the said complainant their costs and charges by them incurred upon the said demurrer, to be taxed, and that the said defendants have execution therefor.

GEO. C. HOLT, J.

254 (Endorsed:) United States Circuit Court, Southern Dist. of New York. The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Complainant, v. Frederick Lewisohn, et al. Def'ts. Order. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, Sol'rs for Def'ts, 22 William Street, New York City. Copy Received Nov. 13, 1905. Carter, Hughes & Dwight. U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. Filed Nov. 18, 1905. John A. Shields, Clerk.

Exhibit G.

United States Circuit Court, Southern District of New York.

The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, Complainant, against
Frederick Lewisohn et al., Defendants.

This cause having been regularly brought on for trial upon the issues of law formed by complainant's amended complaint, and the demurrers of the defendant to a part of the amended bill of complaint, and to the whole of the amended bill of complaint, at a Term of this Court, held by the Hon. George C. Holt, one of the Judges of this Court, who, having heard the parties by their counsel, and after due deliberation, has duly made and filed his decision, and an order having been duly made and entered herein and filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court on the 18th day of November, 1905, directing that the demurrer to the whole of said amended bill of complaint for want of equity be sustained and that the bill of complaint herein be dismissed, the complainant having heretofore been permitted to amend the bill of complaint to

255 meet the prior decision of this Court, and further directing that the defendants recover against the complainant their costs and charges incurred upon the said demurrer, to be taxed, and that the said costs and charges having been duly adjusted by the Clerk of this Court upon notice to the complainant at the sum of Two hundred and twenty-seven dollars (227), now, upon motion of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, attorneys for the defendants, it is Adjudged and decreed, that the said amended bill of complaint herein be and the same hereby is dismissed, and that the defendants recover of the complainant the sum of Two hundred and twenty-seven dollars ($227); their costs and charges as taxed, and that the defendants have execution therefor.

JOHN A. SHIELDS, Clerk.

(Endorsed:) United States Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Co., Pl'ff, v. Frederick Lewisohn, et al., Def't. Judgment. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson, Attorneys for Defendants, 22 William St., New York City. U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. Filed Dec. 6, 1905. John A. Shields, Clerk.

256 EXHIBIT H.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity. No. 8333.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY
v.
FREDERICK LEWISOHN et al.

Petition for Appeal.

The Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, the complainant in the above entitled cause, conceives itself to be aggrieved by the decree made and entered on the eighteenth day of November, 1905, in the above entitled cause, dismissing the amended bill of complaint therein, and hereby appeals from said decree to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit, for the reasons specified in the assignment of errors which is filed herewith, and prays that this appeal may be allowed and that a transcript of the record, proceedings and papers upon which said decree was made, duly authenticated, may be sent to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER.
HUGHES, ROUNDS & SHURMAN,
Solicitors for Appellants.

Appeal allowed.

E. H. LACOMBE,
U. S. Circuit Judge.

(Endorsed:) Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York. In Equity. No. 8333. Old Dominion Copper
257 Mining and Smelting Company v. Frederick Lewisohn, et al. Petition for Appeal. Brandeis, Dunbar & Nutter, 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass., and Hughes, Rounds & Schurman, 96 Broadway, New York City, Solicitors for Complainant. A copy this day received. Jan. 3, 1906. Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson. U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. Filed Jan. 3, 1906. John A. Shields, Clerk.

Exhibit I.

Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York.

In Equity. No. 8333.

Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company
v.
Frederick Lewisohn et al.

Assignment of Errors.

Now comes the Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company, the complainant in the above entitled cause, and says that the final decree of said court in said cause, sustaining the demurrer of the respondents to the amended bill of complaint therein, is erroneous and against the just rights of said complainant for the following reasons:

First. The court erred in holding that the amended bill of complaint did not state a case entitling the complainant to any relief in equity.

258 Second. The court erred in holding that the facts alleged in the amended bill of complaint and admitted by the demurrer did not entitle the complainant to rescind the sale complained of and recover from the respondents the consideration paid or in the alternative to recover from the respondents the damages suffered by the complainant by reason of such sale.

Third. The court erred in holding that upon the facts alleged in the amended bill of complaint and admitted by the demurrer there was any consent to the sale complained of such as to disable the complainant from rescinding the same or having other relief in respect thereof.

Fourth. The court erred in not holding that upon the facts alleged in the amended bill of complaint and admitted by the demurrer the respondents' testator Leonard Lewisohn was a promoter of the plaintiff corporation and by reason thereof upon the facts so alleged and admitted liable to account to the complainant upon a rescission or offer of rescission by it of said sale complained of for the consideration received for said sale, or to restore to the complainant the profits made by him from such sale, or compensate the complainant for the damages suffered by it by reason of such sale, and in not holding that the respondents as executors of the will of said Leonard Lewisohn are in their representative capacity in like manner liable.

Fifth. The court erred in not overruling the demurrer to the amended bill of complaint and in ordering the amended bill of complaint to be dismissed.

BRANDEIS, DUNBAR & NUTTER,
HUGHES, ROUNDS & SCHURMAN,
Solicitors for Appellants.

259 (Endorsed:) Circuit Court of the United States, Southern District of New York. In Equity. No. 8333. Old Dominion Copper Mining and Smelting Company vs. Frederick Lewisohn et al. Assignment of Errors. U. S. Circuit Court, Southern District of New York. Filed Jan. 2, 1906. John A. Shields, Clerk.

EXHIBIT J.

Circuit Court of the United States of America for the Southern District of New York, in the Second Circuit.

OLD DOMINION COPPER MINING AND SMELTING COMPANY
v.
